City Treasurer To Issue Permits

Recommendation for Council to Consider—Advantages Derived

In speaking of Ald. McIntyre's building permit bylaw, and his suggestion that he issue the permits, as chairman of the property committee, a gentleman stated that such an idea was practically impossible. He said it was very generous of the chairman of the property committee, to make the offer as it would save the city engineer a lot of extra work and save the city a little expense. But how could the chairman of the property committee issue permits? asked the gentleman. He is a contractor and possibly not in the same place more than a few hours at a time. Where could he be found by the person who wanted the permit? It would be necessary to chase all over the city, taking probably the greater part of the day before the alderman could be found. After he was found he would have no books or certificates with him, and a trip to his house or the city hall, would be necessary, entailing a loss of two or three more hours of valuable time. It is also a question whether it would be advisable to have any member of the council transact business of this nature. It might cause the individual alderman all kinds of embarrassment and a lot of trouble for the council.

The proposition suggested by the person mentioned above is that if the city engineer is to busy to attempt to look after the work the council could not do better than authorise the city treasurer to issue the building permits. His department is very busy it is true, but nevertheless, the addition of this work would not overtax the treasurer and he would no doubt willingly take the responsibility.

There are several good reasons why the city treasurer was mentioned in this connection. First, it is necessary for the water commissioners to secure information as to the quantity of stone, brick, plaster and cement used in building any house or business place, to enable them to charge the contractor for the quantity of water used. This work very often entails a large amount of labor and takes considerable time. If the city treasurer, or water works collector, issued the permits the information desired would be furnished without any labor to the city official.

The contractor, or person applying for the permit, should be required to furnish a good blue print of the proposed structure along with the contractor's estimate of the number of brick, the quantity of stone, cement and plaster to be used, the size of the building and the contract price.

With these figures at hand, the commissioners would know at once how much to charge the owner of the building for water. It would enable the city's assessors to make a correct assessment without going to any great trouble. The plans and figures would also be on fyle at any time anyone wanted any information.

The city treasurer is as good an official as any in the city. He is always in his office and everyone knows where the office is. He is a capable and efficient man and there could be no objection to him doing the work if he would take it.

Burleigh Falls Power For Peterborough's Industries

Mr. J. Alexander Culverwell Interviewed the Special Power Committee—Will Make a Definite Proposition in a Short Time.

Mr. J. Alexander Culverwell, of Cobourg, managing director of the Central Ontario Power Co. was in the city yesterday and today in the interests of his company. He states that in a very short time he will have a definite proposition to place before the council. He proposes to bring his power from Burleigh Falls to Peterborough and wants to get a contract from the city for sufficient power to run the electric light plant and to supply cheap power to new manufacturing concerns.

It is estimated that the Central Ontario Power Company have at least 5,000 horse power at Burleigh Falls. The water can be developed in much less time than the powers at any other point along the Trent Canal and the company should be able to transmit it to the city at as low or even a lower price than the companies developing power much nearer the city.

Mr Culverwell interviewed the special power committee appointed by the city council to handle all power questions. This committee is composed of Mayor McWilliams, Ald Stevenson and Ald. Bradburn. These gentlemen heard the proposition of Mr. Culverwell and told him to get his matter in shape and come to the council with something definite when the council will be only too glad to consider it.

There is no doubt but that the Burleigh Falls is a valuable power, and if the city had control of it, it would be the salvation of the manufacturing interests. Peterborough would then be in a position to go after new and large industries on equal or better terms than the western towns which have Niagara Falls power at their backs. If a reasonable offer is made by the Central Ontario Co., the city council will not turn it down as there never was a greater demand for cheap power than at the present time.

Mr. Culverwell stated last night that the engineers for the company will be sent to Burleigh in a week to make a thorough survey of the property, to estimate the quantity of power, the cost of development and the time required for development. As soon as this is done the council will be furnished with the definite statement.

Mr Culverwell has told the committee that he does not think it in the interests of the city for the council to close a contract with the Otonabee Power Co. (of which Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., and Mr. Meldrum are the leading spirits) for supplying the Oates Company, except when taken up with the whole power and lighting question. The offers of all the power companies should be looked into before the five hundred horse-power matter is closed.

Semi-official Statement on Ontorio Bank Affairs

Montreal, Feb. 20.—A semi-official statement in regard to the Ontario Bank's affairs says:—"It is understood that there will be a considerable percentage left for the shareholders of the Ontario Bank when the affairs of that institution are finally liquidated. So far no estimate can be reached of what will be really saved, but it can be stated pretty authoritatively that there will be something left after the depositors and other claims are paid in full."

Will He Receive Retiring Allowance?

It is Said Mr. J. B. McWilliams Application is Favorably Considered

It is learned on good authority that Mr. J. B. McWilliams, former inspector of Crown Timber lands, who was retired from office over a year ago, has made application to the Ontario Government for a retiring allowance or pension. Mr. McWilliams was for thirty-three years in the employ of the Crown Land department. It is said that he bases his claim for an allowance on his "long, faithful and energetic services on behalf of the department." It is rumored that he has a reply from the Attorney-General stating that the matter had been favorably considered and that he would receive a retiring allowance. How much has not been learned, but it is reported that it will be a fair amount.

Providing Pensions for Poor Should Receive Consideration

Interesting Discussion in Parliament on the Question.

Mr. Pringle Brings the Matter Up in a Resolution—After Debate, in Which Sir Wilfrid Laurier Joined, the Motion Was Withdrawn—Compensation for Injuries on the Intercolonial Railway.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—In the House yesterday, Mr. Pringle moved the following resolution: "That in the opinion of this House, the subject of improving the condition of the aged deserving poor and of providing for those who are helpless and infirm is worthy of and should receive the early and careful attention of the Government and of Parliament."

He contended that the soldier of labor should have consideration from the Canadian Parliament. They pensioned their civil servants, and pensions were granted by many of their large banking and other institutions, but there was no provision made for the soldier of labor or for the men who had been pioneers in Canada. In the Australian Commonwealth a Royal Commission, appointed to inquire into the subject, had presented a report unanimously recommending the adoption of a Federal pension system to apply to persons over 65, not as a charity, but as a right. It had been said that old-age pensions discouraged thrift, but that view was not borne out by the evidence heard before the commission which sat in England. On the contrary, the evidence showed that pensions encouraged thrift.

Poor In Canada Few.

The proportion of poor in Canada was possibly smaller than in any other country, but they had cases of men who had spent thirty or forty years of their lives in developing the country, and who had reached old age, and yet did not like to seek the poorhouse. According to the census of 1901, the total population was 5,371,315, and the proportion of those beyond the age of 65 was only 280,338. It was impossible to say how many might be classed as deserving poor, but he estimated that probably one-fourth of the number beyond the age of 65 would be entitled to a pension if a scheme were adopted. He could understand the difficulty in Great Britain, with a population of 38,000,000 and a high percentage of poor. But no such difficulty existed in Canada. Already they were spending large amounts in charities, and the fund as he suggested would not increase the burden, while it would become a man's right to receive a pension instead of making him dependent on charity.

The Premier's View.

The Prime Minister said that he was sure everybody had listened with a great deal of attention and pleasure to the speech of the mover of the motion. The subject to which he had called attention was one which in an eminent degree commanded the attention and sympathy of all those who had any humanitarian feelings in their hearts. So far as the object of the motion was concerned everybody must sympathize with it, but the subject was one full of difficulties. Without hesitation he would say that he was in sympathy with the idea advocated, which was that the nation at large should endeavor to give comfort and help to those who had come to a certain age, but who had been denied through the force of circumstances that provision for their old age which all men looked to make. But he was not prepared to say that he would agree with the proposal as presented by the mover.

Sir Wilfrid then asked the mover, having brought the matter to the attention of the House, to withdraw his motion, and leave the matter over for future consideration.

Mr. Maclean's Idea.

Mr. W. F. Maclean thought that Canada should be prepared to undertake State insurance and annuities. He agreed that the State should contribute to the annuity fund, and in that way enlarge the desire of the mover of the motion.

Mr. Lemieux said that as Minister of Labor he had naturally taken an interest in this matter, but he doubted whether under the British North America act the Federal Government had power to legislate along the lines of the motion. He sympathized with the principle involved in the motion, and assured Mr. Pringle that the Department of Labor would co-operate in endeavoring to solve the problem.

Compensation For Injuries.

Mr. Lawrence made a motion relating to the adjudication of claims for compensation for injury, loss or damage sustained on the Intercolonial Railway. The object of Mr. Lawrence's motion, which was carried, was to obtain information indicating the policy that had been pursued by the Government in dealing with claims for compensation for injury or loss suffered on the Intercolonial.

The losses of the Hondurans are said to have been insignificant.

When Your Health Fails, What Then?

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for the strong and alert—for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigor and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health, and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

POSES OF MRS. THAW

District Attorney Jerome Does Not Spare Her in Cross-Exam.

Springs a Surprise When He Mentions the Garland Divorce Case—Wants to Know If Mrs. Thaw Was Not a Co-Respondent—Payments of Stanford White Inquired Into, But Witness Doesn't Remember.

New York, Feb. 21.—In continuing yesterday his cross-examination of Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, at the trial of her husband, District Attorney Jerome brought out that in 1902 Stanford White deposited the sum of $1,300 with a New York trust company, with instructions that it be paid to the Nesbit girl at the rate of $25 a week. Mrs. Thaw frankly admitted receiving a number of cheques from the trust company, but she would not admit that there was a provision that she should receive the money only when out of employment. The prosecutor spent nearly the entire afternoon trying to make Mrs. Thaw reply that this was true, and in as many ways as he put the question to her, she gave the one answer, "Don't remember."

The Garland Divorce.

Mrs. Thaw's inability to remember a number of other things about which Mr. Jerome questioned her was by far the most material element in the cross-examination.

He interrogated her most pointedly as to her male acquaintances of the past. He laid especial stress upon her acquaintance with James A. Garland, who figured for the first time in the case. Mrs. Thaw said she knew Garland before she met White.

Were'nt you named as co-respondent in the Garland divorce case?" asked Mr. Jerome.

Mrs. Thaw was shaking her head when Mr. Delmas sprang to his feet with an objection. He demanded that the record of the divorce case be brought into court that it might speak for itself. Justice Fitzgerald overruled the objection, but Mr. Jerome withdrew the question.

The Poses.

Mr. Jerome questioned the witness about her manner of posing for artists, and brought from her a denial that she ever posed in the nude. Mr. Jerome insisted on details on the subject. He did not mince words. Many photographs of Mrs. Thaw were introduced in evidence.

"Was there any exposure of the person or did you wear the so-called artistic draperies?" he asked.

"I would not say that," replied the witness, "I posed in a Greek dress and a Turkish costume with low neck draperies."

Asked for letters from White witness said Mr. Hartridge had some of them, and Jerome demanded their production.

"Was there a single work of impropriety or indecency in Stanford White's letters to you?"

"I don't remember."

Mr. Jerome questioned her about her first stage as partners.

"Mamma said I ought not to go out without her," replied the witness.

"When you went on the stage, your mother came for you every night?"

"Yes, until I met White."

"During this time did you ever pose for an artist in the nude?" he asked.

"Never."

"Ever have any casts made in the nude?"

"No."

During the morning session he plied the young woman with questions as to what disposition she made of the letters written to her by Stanford White. Some, she said, had been destroyed, and some she gave to her husband. In the midst of the district attorney's examination with regard to the letters, and when he was pressing the witness for an answer as to what had become of some of them Thaw leaned over and whispered to his counsel in a voice audible to those nearest him: "Stanford White stole them." Attorney O'Reilly thereupon said aloud: "Stanford White got them."

TRAIN WRECK NEAR WINDSOR.

Windsor, Feb. 21.—In a blinding snowstorm, Wabash passenger train No. 13, bound from Buffalo to Chicago, crashed into another passenger train one and a half miles west of Belle River, 16 miles east of Windsor, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Neither train was much damaged.

No. 3 was "stalled" in the snow and the crew of No. 13 say there were no signals displayed at the rear of the snowbound train.

Engineer George H. Elseys, 15 Aylmer avenue, Windsor, in charge of No. 13, was jammed against the side of his cab, but escaped with slight injuries. His fireman was also lucky, escaping with a few cuts and bruises.

Upwards of a dozen passengers on both trains were more or less injured, but none fatally. Some sustained broken ribs and dislocated shoulders.

Dr. J. A. Ashbaugh, Wabash surgeon at Windsor, went to the scene of the wreck on an auxiliary train, which left Windsor at 6 p. m. He was able to give temporary aid to all.

Some of the injured went to hospitals on reaching Detroit, and it is thought they will not have to stay more than a day or two.

Windsor railway officials say the operator at Belle River is to blame for the wreck; that he should not have allowed No. 13 to leave there un- No. 3 reached the next station west.

Dies In Hotel Fire.

Guelph, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Sidney Saunders of this city, who left for Baltimore some weeks ago on account of the illness of her mother, Mrs. J. S. Mack of that city, suffered a sad bereavement in the death of her father Tuesday. Mr. Mack, who was a traveling salesman, was in Charleston, W. Va., stopping at the St. Albert Hotel, when a fire broke out in that building. As all escape by the stairways was cut off, Mr. Mack, who had been aroused by smoke, jumped from a third storey window. He was rendered unconscious by the fall, and died shortly afterward.

CHAMBERLAIN IS A WRECK.

Authoritative Statement Concerning Health of Fiscal Reformer Published.

London, Feb. 21.—An interesting authoritative statement concerning the health of Joseph Chamberlain was published yesterday.

It does not confirm the worst rumors, but it shows that Mr. Chamberlain is completely broken physically, although he is mentally alert.

He passes most of his time indoors at Highbury, his Birmingham residence, but when the weather is fine he drives in a carriage in the grounds of his estate or on unfrequented roads in the vicinity. He seeks to avoid the public gaze. He never stays outside the house more than forty-five minutes at a time.

He sometimes spends considerable time in his orchid houses, as the temperature in these buildings suits him, or he will be wheeled in an invalid chair about the grounds.

He occasionally takes a short walk, supported by his stout stick and the arm of his wife, but the invalid chair always is at hand.

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Vane nodded. "I wondered whether she'd tell you," he said, simply. "I'm glad if she has. It wasn't to be. No matter. I can still wish you luck, old chap. What are you going to do."

Julian had got up and, as if mechanically, had put the iron pot on the spirit furnace.

"An experiment," he said, in a casual kind of way. "I'm trying for this new color. I've got it in my head. You don't mind, do you?"

"No; not if you don't make too much of a froust," said Vane. "Well, what do you say to my plans? We could join the Ormes at Monte Carlo— Phew, that stuff's beginning to smell already!"

"It will be over in a minute," said Julian. "You leave it to me, as usual! You don't seem to care, Vane!"

"That's just it," said Vane. "I don't care. It's all one to me where I am. Few places or things hold any charm for me."

Julian looked at him with a strange mixture of curiosity and aloofness, as if his mind were preoccupied. Then he turned to the furnace again.

"Bother!" he said. "I shall have to get more spirit. Do you mind?" He looked over his shoulder at Vane, and the bluish flames cast a ghastly light on his pale face—"do you mind stirring this stuff while I'm gone? I sha'n't be more than a minute or two. I keep it outside—"

Vane got up from his chair and shrugged his shoulders good-humoredly. "All right; but I hope I sha'n't spoil it; I'm not used to this game."

As he opened the door he glanced over his shoulder again at Vane; and surely if Vane had seen the expression in the black eyes shining forth from the dark shadows surrounding them, he would have felt some presentiment of coming ill; but all his attention was fixed on the task he had undertaken.

Julian's glance lasted but a moment, and he went out and closed the door softly behind him. He did not turn the key, for the door locked by a spring, as did that which led to the ladies' garden, and to both doors only he and Deborah had keys. Outside the door he paused a moment, biting his lips and driving the tell-tale expression from his eyes, then he went slowly, and humming the air he had sung a little while ago, into the hall. Prance, the butler, was standing there and Julian went up to him.

"Oh, Prance," he said, "I've run out of methylated spirits; do you think you could get me some?"

"Yes, Mr. Julian. I generally keep some by me in my pantry. Shall I bring it to your room?"

"Oh, don't trouble; I'll wait here, thanks," said Julian. He sang rather more loudly as Letchford came down the stairs.

"Seen Vane?" he asked. "If he hasn't gone to bed I want him to come and have a pipe. I can't sleep, somehow," he laughed shamefacedly. "Usually drop off as soon as my head's on the pillow."

"Vane's in my den—writing letters. We were making our plans for abroad. I'll tell him when I go back."

"Oh, don't bother him if he's writing," said Letchford, and he went on to the smoking-room.

Prance came back with the spirit-can in his hand.

"Very sorry, Mr. Julian," he said, "but I've run out. Some of the maids must have been at it for their curling tongs. I daresay I could get some from one of them."

Julian thought swiftly. "Ah, yes," he said. "I wish you would. I want it particularly. Send up to Miss Orme's maid and ask her."

"I'll go myself, sir," said Prance, and he went up the stairs.

Julian, still humming, went to the smoking-room and looked in. Letchford was walking up and down, smoking vigorously and rumpling his short hair, a trick he had when he was worried or puzzled.

"Come in and sit down," he said to Julian. "I've got what my wife calls a fidgety fit on me to-night; kind of a—a—what do you call it, presentiment."

Julian smiled. "That ragout was very rich," he said. "I think that chef always overdoes the butter. I'll come and have a cigarette presently; but I must go back to the den first. I'll bring Vane with me."

"Do!" said Letchford, with undue earnestness.

Julian nodded and sauntered back to the hall. As he did so a tall figure in a tea-gown glided down the stairs. It was Judith. He stopped short and their eyes met. In hers was a covert fear, a dread questioning and doubt; in his the gleam of a deadly determination.

"You sent for some spirit?" she said in a low voice.

The expression of his face changed to one of passionate admiration, and his eyes roamed over the beautiful face and tall, light figure.

"Yes," he said, in an ordinary tone. "But I am sorry if I disturbed you, your maid—"

"My maid is getting it," she said. "Where—where is Vane?"

His lids drooped. She, too, was asking for Vane. Did she suspect anything? No matter if she did. At that moment he felt that he would like her to have known, would wish that she should share his guilt.

"In my den," he replied steadily. He looked at his watch as he spoke, and his lips moved as if he were making a calculation.

"In your den—what is he doing there?" she asked.

Julian smiled with an affectation of surprise. "He is writing; we are talking over our programme, and have decided to join you either at Monte Carlo or Cairo."

She drew a breath of relief, but said nothing. Prance came down the stairs with the can in his hand, and, with a murmured "good-night," she went up.

"I've been able to get a little for you, Mr. Julian," said Prance.

Julian thanked him, and, taking up his song again, went slowly toward the Witch's Room.

Vane had drawn a chair up to the spirit furnace and he leant over the pot stirring it mechanically. Yes; he was decidedly de trop; if he were out of the way, Julian and Judith would reign at Lesborough now in the heyday of their youth; with their capacity for enjoyment still at its height; while he— He sighed listlessly; then the sigh was followed by a cough, for the fumes were beginning to rise from the pot and had got into his lungs.

"Phew!" he muttered. "Hope nothing's going wrong with the beastly stuff; Julian will be disappointed. Am I stirring it enough?" The fumes grew thicker, so that he felt some difficulty in breathing. Gradually the difficulty increased and, half choking, he looked round the room.

"Ventilator closed, of course," he said to himself. "These scientific chaps seem to be able to breathe without air; it's use, I suppose. I must open that thing."

He rose, and to his amazement felt his legs weaken under him. His breath was coming in gasps, the room was filling with the fumes. Staggering and holding by the table and the chair, he made his way to the wall where the rope hung and pulled it with a jerk. It broke, and the lower part fell over his arms. He was half blinded and nearly suffocated by this time, and he made for the door with his hands outstretched like a blind man. In the confusion of his mind caused by the deathly sensation of asphyxiation he missed the door and groped with his hands along the panelled wall. At last, as his sight and his breath were utterly failing, he touched the portiere curtain; but he could only cling to it. It came down with his weight, and he fell to the ground, still gripping it.

There is a moment, the millionth part of a moment, before the hand of death crushes out all power of thought, when the past moves like a flash before the mental vision; and in that moment Vane saw and heard Nina as plainly as if she had been in the room with him. His lips formed her name and, half fighting, half resigning himself to the end, he closed his eyes. As he did so he heard in the intense, horrible silence, the turning of a key. "It comes too late," he thought; "I shall be de trop no longer!" But the sound was followed by a draught of fresh, of heavenly air; but he was too faint to move, and he was only conscious of the figure of a woman dimly outlined in the dense fumes. She stood for a moment looking round, then noiselessly she sprang towards him. As she did so the garden door by which she had entered closed. She sprang from him to the rope, saw that it was broken, and, staggering, made for the garden door. By the time she had opened it Vane had recovered sufficiently to get to his feet and heavily, blunderingly, was moving towards her, when, as if she had suddenly thought of something, she ran to the furnace and, taking off the iron pot, poured out its contents. There should be no evidence against her beloved master. But her hand was unsteady, her whole frame, indeed, shaking, and some of the liquid fell into the furnace. The flame arose, piercing even the dim fumes, and lighting the room with a livid glare in which Vane saw her face and recognized Deborah. He saw something else that roused his bewildered senses with a quick horror; the flame had caught her dress, and she was on fire. Struggling fiercely with his weakness, he tore off his coat and wrapping it round her, essayed to drag her to the door. As he did so the burning liquid ran like a snake from the furnace and along the floor, caught the curtain, and in another moment the whole room seemed ablaze.

Vane struggled to the garden door, still grasping the inert figure. The silence, here caused by her terrible affliction, his from the fumes that filled his lungs, was weird and ghastly. They were like two demoniac figures struggling through a nightmare of hell. Swaying this way and that, Vane reached the door at last. It was ajar, and he forced it with his weak, uncertain fingers, but even as he stood on the threshold his strength failed him, and as he fell outwards, his burden slipped from him, the door closed on its spring, and she was shut up in the burning room.

Vane fell down the steps heavily, and, rolling under one of the thick bushes, lay there senseless.

Letchford, still waiting for Vane, was knocking the ashes from his pipe when he saw a shaft of yellow light shoot across the opening between the curtains. He thought nothing of it for a moment or two, but as it grew more intense he drew the curtain aside and saw that the light came from some part of the house. His impulse was to open the window, but he remembered that a draught was, in cases of fire, an added peril, and he sprang to the door shouting for help. In an instant, as it seemed, the stairs were filled with people, the hall itself, while his shouts were joined by screams and cries of "Fire!"

Letchford gasped his answer. "I saw it from the smoking-room; it is on the west side!"

"It must be in your room, Mr. Julian," said Prance.

A cry, a sharp cry of horror, rose from the group of women. It came from Judith.

Julian's eyes went towards her and held hers for a moment, and she shrank and covered her face with her hands as if to shut out his gaze.

"We shall soon see!" he said, as he ran down the corridor so swiftly that before the rest could reach him he had unlocked the door and flung the key into the room.

Before the dense volume of smoke and the sheets of flame which, like a demon spirit rejoicing in the evil that it has done, poured out to meet them, the terrified throng fell back. It was Letchford who sprang forward, his arm across his face.

"Vane! Vane was in here! My God!" he cried. "Water! Water! No, no! Don't open the windows! The room is closed. Vane, oh, poor Vane!"

There was, of course, a "perfect system of appliances for meeting cases of fire" at Lesborough, and; equally of course, the perfect system broke down. Before the elaborate hose could be uncoiled and the water turned on and directed upon the burning room, it had been reduced to ashes; the other part of the wing was in flames, and the remainder of the building threatened. But every man worked with the energy of madness, and the women, too, bore their part. With Lady Fanworthy at their head they filled the buckets which the men passed from hand to hand.

It was over an hour before the flames were mastered and the house saved; then, though the smoke and steam were well nigh blinding, Letchford, followed by Julian, sprang and stumbled amidst the ruins and began their search.

Julian worked like a man possessed, tearing at the blocks of stone, the charred beams, the thick debris which hid the floor.

"He may have left the room!" he gasped, pausing for a moment, and wiping the sweat from his blackened face.

"God grant it!" gasped Letchford; then his voice broke with a groan and he staggered back with something gripped in his hand.

"What—what is it?" gasped Julian, and his question was echoed by the rest.

"Send—send the women away!" panted Letchford. "For God's sake send them away!"

They fell back, all but Lady Fanworthy and Lady Letchford. The men closed round her husband, then fell back also. In his hand he held the charred fragment of the thick smoking-jacket from which gleamed through the smoke the big brass buttons.

"Oh, my God! Vane is dead!" cried Letchford.

Julian stood staring at it speechlessly for a moment; then he moved his head slowly. One of the women had come forward and was standing looking at him.

It was Judith Orme. Their eyes met for an instant, then she uttered a terrible cry and fell back in a swoon.

One does not recover from the deadly fumes of aconite, ammonia and other deadly chemicals very quickly. Vane lay unconscious beneath the sheltering bush until nearly the moment the flames were extinguished, and his senses came back so slowly that for some time he was incapable of any desire for life. At last he raised his head, gazed vaguely at the dense volume of smoke, and steam in an uninterested fashion, and, still dazed, crawled weakly to a safer position. He lay there for some minutes, panting for breath and fighting for strength; then he rose to his feet with the intention of going to the assistance of the others; but suddenly he heard his name spoken. He stopped and put his hand to his head. What had happened? Why, yes, of course, he had been in that room, had been nearly burned. Nearly? At that moment Letchford's cry arose, "Vane is dead!" and pierced the thick air.

Vane stood quite still while one could count twenty; then, obeying an impulse that came as swiftly as a flash of lightning, he drew back into the shadow of the shrubbery.

He remained there for a moment, trying to think clearly, consecutively, then he passed through the other door of the ladies' garden and, keeping in the shadow of the wall, reached the common room of the stablemen.

It was empty—every one was gathered round the scene of the fire—and Vane, still striving for an effort at thought and resolution, took one of the jackets and caps which lay on the table, put them on, and, going through the yard, made his way towards the park.

CHAPTER XXII.

After Nina had gone Sutcombe stood and stared at the sea and faced the music like a man—and a gentleman.

Decima had refused him: it was a bitter, hard blow. And yet, notwithstanding her entreaty that he would forget his proposal, was there no hope left for him? From her reiteration "You don't know, you don't know!" he inferred a mystery, a secret; and yet not much of a mystery, a secret, for what else could she mean but that she loved and was pledged to another man?

Anyway, by the explanation of her words, her almost anguished manner, what it might, he, Sutcombe, had to accept her refusal. In common courtesy he must refrain from pressing his suit while they three were alone on this desolate island and she was unable to keep out of his reach.

So he went back to his bed in the "saloon," unhappy and unsatisfied, but not altogether despairing; for, if she was pledged to another man, where was he, and why had he not put in an appearance all these months?

He rose in the morning, and, filling the role which Mannering had so ably played, got some fuel, lit the fire, and went out with the gun to shoot some wild fowl.

When he came back he found the breakfast ready and the two girls awaiting him.

Nina glanced at him half timidly, but Sutcombe was not the man to whine or wear the willow, and he met her glance cheerfully and reassuringly; indeed, he was so cheerful that Vivienne, notwithstanding her acuteness, did not guess that he had asked his question and been rejected. Immediately after breakfast he set off with pick and shovel to the spot to which Nina directed him, the ladies promising to follow him directly they had "cleared away." Sutcombe walked by no means quickly, for what his heart desired was love and not gold; but after he had taken off his coat and been at work for some minutes, he was seized by a mild attack of the "yellow fever," and began to work with that enthusiasm which the gold-seeker alone experience; so that when the two girls came slowly toward him, Vivienne supported by Nina's strong arm, they found him hot but exultant.

"You are quite right!" he said, pointing to the specks of yellow which shone dully amongst the heap of dirt and rock. "I'm not much of an authority, but even I can see that there is a large quantity of gold here!"

Nina nodded and caught something of his enthusiasm.

"I'll help you!" she said, brightly. "Oh, yes, give me the spade. I know how to handle it. I used—" She stopped suddenly, and Vivienne, who was seated in the shade of the rock, cut in eagerly:

"Why can't I help!"

"So you can!" said Sutcombe; "you shall sort out the pieces with the gold in them."

Having thus made a division of the labor, they worked almost in silence until Sutcombe and Nina had made a large heap and Vivienne a smaller but more valuable and precious one. Every now and then Sutcombe paused to wipe the sweat from his face—and glance at Nina; and he saw plainly enough that though she was working hard—far too hard for his taste—she was not thinking of the gold; and once he saw her look round toward the sea and heard her sigh as if her mind were dwelling on the past; and as he stole glances at her sad eyes and heard the sigh she tried to repress, a wave of bitterness rose within him and he felt, not for the first time since last night, a resentment against the unknown man, the memory of whom was disturbing her peace and causing her unhappiness. But he worked on and said nothing; there was nothing for him to do but possess his soul in patience.

Stopping only for meals, they had by dusk, when Sutcombe insisted upon a halt, collected a good quantity of the gold-bearing quartz; but as he and the girls bent over it, a difficulty presented itself to his mind.

"How are we going to get this away?" he asked, thoughtfully.

"Pack it in boxes!" replied Vivienne, triumphantly; but Nina saw what was passing in his mind and shook her head.

"There would not be boxes enough," she said.

"And we could not get it away without taking the men into our confidence," said Sutcombe; "and though they are good fellows, well— Is there any man who could resist the temptation to desert and make for this Golden Isle? Of course, what we want is a mill to stamp, crush the quartz—"

"But not having it, we must get the gold itself," said Nina. "My father spoke of finding some in layers—placers, I think he called it; and he said it was in the valley, south by southeast. He said"—her voice shook a little as she recalled the scene—"that it was quite easy to get."

"I'll go there to-morrow," said Sutcombe. "I will go alone, for it will be too far for Vivienne, and, besides, Decima—Miss Wood"—he faltered, and Vivienne looked from one to the other as he stumbled over the names, "I think you ought to rest. I don't like your working as you have done to-day."

Nina shook her head. "It has not hurt me; it has helped me," she said, quickly. "But we will stay at home and keep house to-morrow, if you wish it," she added, meekly.

That night when the two girls were undressing Vivienne laid her hand on Nina's arm with gentle deprecation and whispered:

"Has he spoken, Decima?"

Nina's silence was answer enough.

"And—and is it of no use, dear?"

Nina shook her head and fought with the tears that rose to her eyes.

"No," she said, almost inaudibly. "I am so sorry! Ah, how cold the words sound; and what would I not give if—if I could have said 'yes'! Lady Vivienne, your brother is the best, the most unselfish—"

She stopped suddenly, for the words recalled those Fleming had used when he was speaking of Vane Mannering. Her face went crimson, then paler than before.

"There is some one else, dear?" whispered Vivienne. "Oh, poor Sutcombe!"

"Oh, poor me!" sprang from Nina's lips with mingled sadness and bitterness.

Vivienne looked at her. "Was it—was it some one in the ship that was lost, some one who was here on the island? Oh, don't think me curious, dear. I am wondering if I can help you. It is not possible?"

Nina shook her head. "No, no one can help me," she said. Then suddenly the craving for the sympathy of this sweet friend of hers melted her into partial confidence.

"We were thrown together—linked by Fate—but—but he did not care for me. There—there was some one else—" She stopped and turned her face away, calling to her pride to burn up her tears.

The clasp of Vivienne's hand became a caress.

"And you, dear—you cannot forget! You love him still, though you are parted—"

Nina's head drooped and Vivienne was answered. She thought of her brother.

"May I tell Sutcombe?" she said in a low voice.

"Yes," said Nina; "please tell him. I—I want him to understand that—that what he wishes can never be, that I am bound—"

"Bound?" echoed Vivienne in surprise; but Nina, remembering her promise, would say no more.

The next morning Vivienne gave Sutcombe Nina's message.

He nodded almost savagely. "I understand," he said. "The man, whoever he is, has broken her heart. And it is my fate to have to stand by and look on—helpless! Some day"—he paused—"some day I may have the luck to meet him. If so—"

"You will remember that she—she loves him still!" Vivienne put in with gentle earnestness.

He went off moodily to the valley. At his return at nightfall he brought with him a bag full of small nuggets and dust, and reported that, as Dr. Wood had said, large quantities of gold were there in placers in the rock and soil, and plenty of dust in the bed of the stream.

"We'll go with you to-morrow," said Nina; but he would not hear of it.

"It is too far," he said; "besides, one man can get all we shall be able to take on this trip without the knowledge of the men."

Riding Wheel on Sidewalk

Bicyclist Fined Second Time Within a Week for the Offence

Wm Dinsdale, at the police court today was, for the second time within a week, charged with riding his bicycle on the sidewalk and if he continues to break the law in the future, as frequently as he has in the past, his bicycle will be a source of great expense to him. A few days ago he had to pay two dollars for the same offence and this time the price for riding on the sidewalk took a big jump. The fine was $2.00 and costs, amounting to $4.60.

The condition of the roads at the present time is not at all favorable for wheeling. The hardened snow on the sidewalk makes good wheeling and in all probability it is for that reason the cyclist persists in wheeling on the sidewalk and therefore must suffer the consequences of the offence.

Patrick Heffernan, who was remanded last week on a charge of insanity, appeared this morning before His Worship. His sister testified to this strange acting. She said that he at no time attempted to do acts of violence. Dr. McNulty said he had attended Heffernan. He had been insane over a year ago, but apparently got over it. Some two weeks ago he again began to act strangely and his actions certainly were not those of a sane man. Heffernan was committed to the county gaol and probably later on, if his condition does not improve, he will be conveyed to an asylum.

Street Railway Company Busy

Sweepers out all Night to Keep the Tracks Cleared

The very heavy snow storm which passed over the city last night was the worst which has struck here this winter. The street railway company was probably the heaviest sufferer. The heavy wind which accompanied the snow caused drifts to form on the company's tracks. The company had its sweepers out all night trying to keep the tracks cleared. For the first few hours the drifts formed as quickly as the sweeper cleaned them out and it simply meant that the car had to travel all the time. Manager J. H. Larmouth, superintended the work personally until two o'clock this morning. The company succeeded in keeping its line open and traffic was not interferred with at all. So far this winter the railway has had a comparatively easy time of it as there have been no heavy storms and no blockade.

There are Thousands of Run-down Women.

Are You One of Them?

There are thousands of women here, there and everywhere, who are suffering from a run-down condition.

The tendency is, to let matters go, till serious illness or some chronic female weakness results.

Isn't this a foolish thing to do?

Don't do it. Get well. Be your old self again.

Do you ask, how? Do as Miss Clark and Mrs. Thomas did when they got run-down. They took Health Tablets.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets Make Healthy Women.

I was suffering from a run-down condition. My doctor gave me some brown tablets. I improved so much in two weeks that I congratulated my physician. He then told me I had been taking Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets.—Flora Clark, Island Pond, Vt.

The benefit secured from one box of Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets has been so great that I am satisfied one box more will effect what you claim for them, and make me again a healthy woman.—Mrs. Jennie Thomas, Dixville, Que.

Notice, too, that there was no waiting for results. Improvement began at once. And it always does. The 72 tablets in 50c box will start you on the road to health.

Celebrated Their Silver Wedding

On Friday evening last the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Girvin, Otonabee, presented a very festive appearance when, friends numbering about fifty, braved the weather and came to do honor to the bride and groom of 25 years.

As soon as the guests had arrived supper was announced. The tables were very tastefully decorated with cut flowers and smilax and a sumptuous repast was spread.

After ample justice had been done to the good things provided, a most enjoyable evening was spent in a good old-fashioned way. The songs and singers of 25 years ago were heard with delight, also instrumental music, recitations and speeches. Stories were told and social chat was freely indulged in, and all were made to feel thoroughly at home and welcome by the genial host and hostess. All too quickly the evening passed. "Auld Lang Syne" was sung with a hearty hand-shake, and the guests departed feeling brighter and better for the evening so happily spent.

Mr. Robert Reynolds of Frobisher, Sask., Tells of Blockaded Roads and Snow-Barricaded Barns—Raised 2,000 Bushels of Grain Last Year—Sends Regards to the Members of 57th Regiment.

Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, of the 57th Regiment, has received an interesting letter from Mr. J. F. Robert Reynolds, now of Frobisher, Sask. The writer is an old Peterborough boy and a former enthusiastic member of the 57th Regiment. He is succeeding well in the west, and the following communication will be read with interest by his many friends here;—

Frobisher, Sask.,
Feb. 2nd, 1907.

Lt.-Col. Miller,
Peterborough:

Dear Friend,—When this letter is handed to you it will never once strike you how you came to have a correspondent in this part of the world, but though years have passed since last I saw the old town, I have not yet forgotten those whom I once called my friends. It is now 7.10 p.m., and there is a cyclone, tornado, hurricane and typhoon all, rolled into one howling from the nor-west and sweeping the tarnation out of everything, and has been for the last three days steady, excepting for about fifteen minutes in the evenings which it occupies in turning from one point of the compass to the other, so as not have all the snow in one place. At present the most of snow in Saskatchewan seems to be around my stable. There is a drift about seven feet high around the building, and I have a runway dug to get down to feed the horses and stock. This afternoon I read an article in a Peterborough papper in which Dr. Prust, of Quill Lake, Sask., now visiting in your city, says that the climate there is very mild, being affected by the chinook winds, and that when he left there were only a few inches of snow, but I am afraid that when he gets back, if he does get back this winter, he will find the few inches have increased to as many feet and that his balmy breezes have shifted considerably, and instead of soft winds from the south-west, we are getting something a little different from another direction. The trains in this section have been blocked for about two weeks now, and mail is a thing of the past, a pleasure long forgotten. The elevators are blocked up and business is very dull. This is the worst winter we have had for 7 years. Well, Col., I suppose the old bunch of boys that were around the shop when I was there are pretty well scattered now, as I never hear of any of them. I often think of the good times we used to have in the old 57th with the boys, but those times will never come again; some are dead and some gone like myself to different parts, striving to make homes for themselves. Suppose you see Capt. Bennett occasionally now, or is your new shop like the old one, a gathering place for the teams? The first time you see him kindly give him my love, and tell him I never forget him, and that I would be glad if he could write me a letter, however short. Is Capt. Hounsell still on the beat? Tell him that I would like to go down and set the pace home at noon hour for him a couple of weeks. How is No. 5 Co. getting on? Is it well up in strength now, and who are its officers and non-coms. now? I have been out here about five years now and am living near Frobisher. I have a good farm and like the country well. Our summers are warm and winters cold, so see we are suited both ways. Last year was not as good as the year before, but threshed about 2,000 bushels of grain. Last year I had nearly 3,000 bushels and had in about 40 acres less land, so by that you can see what a difference the season makes to our crops. Wheat is worth 58 cents and 54 cents per bushel, and oats about 40 cents. Horses are very high, a good team of farm horses about 3,200 lbs., fetching about $550 to $600, and driving horses about $250 each. Cattle are cheap, beef being 5 cents and 6 cents per lb., and pork 8 cents. I have four heavy horses and one driving horse, three foals, coming year old, two head of cattle and hogs. Hired help is one drawback here. A good man can get from $35 to $40 per month. I had a raw Englishman last summer and paid him $20 a month until threshing started, and then paid him $2.50 per day. Well, old friend, tell all the boys that I am well, and I would like to hear from any of them who will write, and will answer all correspondence. Kindly think of me sometimes, and if you could find time to write, you would confer a great pleasure on your old friend.

J. F. ROBT. REYNOLDS,
Frobisher,
Sask.

P.S.—Give my respect to your own boys. They will remember me.

Mayor McWilliams Receives a Letter From Anson Gard, Ottawa,—Casket Made of Rare Canadian Woods Containing a Book to be Sent With Photographs of Many Canadians.

His Worship Mayor McWilliams this morning received a letter from Anson A. Gard, of Ottawa. The letter is reprinted below and will need no explanation. Mr. Gard intends sending a volume of his book "Pioneers of the Upper Ottawa," to His Majesty King Edward VII. The book is to be enclosed in a rare casket of historic woods found in Canada. The letter will be of great interest to many in this neighborhood;

Dear Mr. Mayor,

I am desirous of having the autographs and photographs, of all persons, now living, who took an active part in the entertainment of the Prince. If you will have all such persons in your community, send these to me, you will confer a favor on both myself and your own people, as I wish to feature all the cities and towns along the tour of the Prince.

It will be a favor if you will have sent to me the population of your place in 1860 and 1906, that I may show the growth of the country, since the Prince was here.

I am desirous of having bits of historic woods to be worked into cases which are to be most elaborately made.

If there are in your city anything in historic woods, I will be pleased to have a small bit of it sent to me.

Nothing approaching these gifts to King and President has ever before been sent from Canada and I want that all places should join in the honor to the two great rulers.

Have all communications sent to me thus;

ANSON A GARD,
Ottawa, Ont.

P.S.—I am desirous of getting bits of historic woods to work into the King's box. What have you in the historic line?

Heavy Programme Prepared for Committee of Whole on Monday

Estimates for 1907 Will be Considered and Decision as to Rate Arrived at—Coates Co. Agreement and Otonabee Power Co. Resolution Will Come Up.

A long, heavy session is in prospect for the committee of the whole council on Monday night next. There are three matters to be finally dealt with that have been before the council for some time. The first and most important of these is the agreement with the Coates Co., Limited. The sub-committee which was sent to Toronto to interview, Mr. Dunwoodie has now completed its work and will have its report ready to present along with the agreement. This question should not require much time. The report from the committee should thoroughly explain the agreement and plainly point out exactly what the city is required to do and what it will receive in return from the company. Everyone has already a rough idea what the location of the company in Peterborough means, although the details of the agreement have never yet been taken up in council.

Another important question will be the resolution the council is to pass asking the Dominion Government to grant the lease of No. 4 dam to the Otonabee Power Co. This is directly connected with the Coates Co., because it is proposed that the 500 horse power the Otonabee Company will give the city at $15 will be handed over to the Coates Co. at the same price. There has been considerable difficulty in drafting that resolution as the city's representatives and the power company could not agree on the conditions. The latter wanted to deliver the 500 horse power off the main line, which would mean that the city or Coates Co. would have to install a transformer plant which is very expensive and also stand the loss of transforming. This the city would not agree to. After several weeks' efforts it is now in such shape that both parties will stand by the resolution. Just what changes have been made, have not been made public, but will come out at the meeting Monday night.

Another matter which has before occupied the attention of the council is Mr. G. Walter Green's application for a part of Gilchrist street, which divides his property. Some of the aldermen visited Mr. Green's foundry today and looked over the portion of the street it is proposed to close and investigated some of the objections to it, which have been filed. These aldermen will state their opinions to the council on Monday night and it will then be decided whether or not the city should go to any expense in advertising the closing as required by law.

Another matter which will be of the greatest interest to all residents of the city will be the estimates for 1907. The committee of the whole council will have the full figures placed before them for consideration before they go to the council the following Monday night. The finance minister will say in presenting his proposed budget speech: "Any alderman who has anything to say as to why these should not be passed say it now, or forever after hold your peace." Considerable hard labor has been put upon the estimates. The needs of the city require a large sum of money, more than any former year, but the finance committee will recommend that the rate of taxation be kept the same as last year, viz., 17 1-2 mills. A lot of figuring has been done to enable the committee to reach this decision. An 18 mill rate would let the council out very nicely and it all depends on the board of education, which rate will be struck.

Runaway Horse Promptly Stopped

Brought to a Standstill by Mr. Burns—Damage Was Slight

Mr. Corney Burns, the well known Toronto baseball pitcher, who has been on the Review staff for several months and will be on the ball team next summer, displayed courage last night. He was going home to supper when a runaway horse going down Hunter street caught up to him just at the bridge over the river. Corney ran into the road, seized the horse's bridle and brought it to a standstill. The animal had broken loose from the cutter, but otherwise no damage was done and the owner thanked the typo for his efforts as it saved him the inconvenience of walking home.

A Statement Has Been Forwarded

Local Club Explain to O. H. A. Why They Should Meet Kingston

Secretary Graham of the Peterborough Hockey Club, this morning sent to the secretary of the O.H.A. a statement of Peterborough's case in connection with the district championship going to Kingston without giving the locals a chance. Peterborough wants a game with the soldiers on neutral ice, or home and home games.

A meeting of the O.H.A. Executive will be held to consider Peterborough's claim. The local team has been practically assured that they will be given a chance against Kingston.

PROGRAMME FOR TEN DAYS

The programme for the Gigantic Sale Extension for the next ten days at the B. Y. Moyes store, is a bunch of bargains such as have never before been offered to a Peterborough shopping public, and include all new goods too, bought for the spring and summer trade. Now, take a little good, sound advice. Get busy, and join the crowds that are flocking to this store. Remember, these goods must be sold, and you might just as well get in on some of them as anybody else. "Enough said." B. Y. MOYES, 408 George street.

The sixth annual concert of Court Queen Alexandra, A.O.F., was held last evening in S.O.E. hall and was a decided success. A large number of people were present. It gave him great pleasure to be at their concert and he hoped all would enjoy a very pleasant evening.

The following excelent programme was then given;—

Snow Shovelling In Order To-day

Heavy Fall of Snow Last Night Trains Not Delayed

The heaviest snow fall of the season occurred last night and today mother earth is enveloped in a fresh supply of "the beautiful." About eight o'clock the snow began to come down and continued to fall heavily until well on towards morning. The wind also increased in velocity towards midnight and caused the snow to drift badly. About six inches of the fleecy stuff fell during the night but it was of the kind that packs and not much inconvenience was caused. The street railway company had its sweepers out early this morning and the cars were running at the usual time. The trains were not delayed to any extent by the storm, although they were a few minutes behind the scheduled time.

There was a big demand for snow shovels this morning, Peterborough residents having to do the first real snow shovelling of the season.

Little Girl Had Miraculous Escape

A little girl about seven or eight years of age had an almost miraculous escape from serious injury or perhaps death, at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets this morning. She was riding on a sleigh that was coming south along Aylmer street, and without noticing that one of Fitzgerald's coal sleighs was coming right behind, jumped off at the corner of Hunter street. Both teams were trotting and when the little girl jumped off, the horses that were coming behind ran right over her. One of them kicked but strange as it may seem they went right over the child without as much as touching her. A couple of gentlemen who were passing, pulled the girl out from under the sleigh, expecting to find her badly injured, but to their surprise she sprang to her feet and was not injured to the slightest extent. When she jumped off the sleigh she had a little cup in one hand and a small purse in the other. When she was taken out from between the runners she still had the purse and her first words were to ask for "her little cup." It was found unbroken a few feet away.

It is remarkable that the child was not killed or seriously injured, but she did not have even a scratch. She told one of the gentlemen that she lived at 516 Aylmer street.

Will Start New Business Next Week—Mayor McWilliams Addressed Committee on Estimates—Will Buy Sewer Pipe—New Piling Ground.

The regular meeting of the Board of Works was held last night and the most interesting thing which took place was the clearing of the fyle. Ever since the Board first met practically the whole time each evening was taken up with old business. From now on, however, the committee will have only new matters to take up and the meetings should prove more interesting.

Tenders were opened and read from a number of cement companies for the city's supply of 5,000 barrels. But as there was no particular rush to close a deal and as it was considered advisable to get some information about one of the firms, the matter was left over until next Wednesday night.

After the business of the committee was completed Mayor McWilliams addressed the aldermen on the estimates for the year, which would be presented to the committee of the whole on Monday night. He outlined, briefly, the substance of the proposed budget speech and stated that the Board of Works would receive about $17,400 or practically the same amount as was actually expended by the Board last year.

Those present were Ald. Duncan, in the chair, Ald. Johnston, McIntyre and Wilson, Mayor McWilliams, City Engineer Hay, and Street Commissioner Evans.

REFUSE TO PAY

The first matter taken up was the account the city sent to the Peterborough Radial Railway Company for their share of the permanent crossings laid last year. The Board of Works and the Company last year agreed that if the city furnished the material the company would pay for the cost of the labor of laying the crossing. The city was to do the work and charge it up.

The city, however, took the total cost of the crossings and charged the company with an equal portion. The company objected to that and refused to pay the cost of the material.

Moved by Ald. Johnson, seconded by Ald. Wilson, that the city engineer be instructed to adjust the bill and charge the company with the full cost of the labor and twenty-five per cent. additional, and that all other crossings built be charged on the same basis.

The latter clause was changed so that the company will be charged per square foot, the engineer to make an estimate of the average. The motion then carried.

NEW PILING GROUND.

The engineer and street commissioner notified the board that they wanted a new piling ground in Ashburnham. The old lot on which the city's lumber was piled has been built up. A letter in connection with this matter was received from the city engineer, stating that the McGregor property could be had if the city built a fence on the front side and allowed Geo. Lipsett to pasture his cow on it.

Mrs McGregor also wrote the Board stating that she owned the property and that Lipsett had nothing to do with it. The city could have said property if the taxes were paid and street scrapings were drawn onto the land.

On motion of Ald. Wilson and Johnston, Mrs. McGregor's offer was accepted. Lease only good from year to year.

The matter of G. Walter Green's request for a portion of Gilchrist street was brought up. It was decided that the committee and members of the council meet at the street some day this week. Two petitions against the transfer to Mr Green were presented, but it is not known whether these are real. The committee felt this would be the easiest way to settle the whole question.

Moved by Mayor McWilliams, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that all parties wanting to have their streets watered next summer be requested to put in their petitions at once.—Carried.

Moved by Mayor McWilliams and Ald. Johnston, that all petitions for sidewalks and sewers be referred to the city engineer after they have been read to the council and the board.—Carried.

SEWER PIPE

City Engineer Hay introduced the matter of buying sewer pipe for this year. He said that by buying now the city could save considerable. The Canadian Sewer Pipe Co.'s representative was in the city yesterday and gave the following figures:

Up to the 1st of March, 8-inch and 9-inch pipe at 75 per cent. discount

Up to the 1st of March, 12-inch pipe at 73 per cent. discount.

During the season the discount will be 70 per cent.

The Dominion Sewer Pipe Co. wrote that they would give a discount of 75 per cent. for pipe delivered in January, February or March and 70 and 10 per cent. discount during the season.

The city engineer recommended the Board taking the Canadian Co.'s offer because the other company had delayed delivery on several occasions.

Ald Johnston and Ald. Wilson moved that the engineer's recommendation be accepted and that he be authorized to purchase whatever sewer pipe is required.—Carried.

NEW BRIDGES.

City Engineer Hay recommended the Board to order at once the steel beams for Dalhousie and Reid street bridges. It takes a long time to get steel orders filled and the work must be done at once.

Moved by Ald. Johnston and Ald. McIntyre that the city engineer be instructed to purchase the steel girders required.—Carried.

In the Ontario Legislature yesterday, Mr. E. J. B. Pense, M.P.P., of Kingston asked: Is it the intention to establish a two-cent-per-mile passenger rate upon the Temiskaming & Northern Railway, and to provide for it upon all railways hereafter voted subsidies by the Legislature? He also asks an order of the House for a return of copies of all correspondence between the Government and the Northumberland-Durham Power Company with respect to a lease of water power at Healey Falls, which power is being offered by the said company to municipal councils.

Passed Away This Morning

Mrs. Hutton, Sister of Mr. Geo. Edmison, Died in St. Marys

County Police Magistrate Edmison received the sad intelligence this morning that his sister, Mrs. Mrs. Theodore Hutton, had passed away in St. Mary's, Ont., where she had resided for about half a century. She had been in rather poor health for two or three years. She was 77 years of age, and leaves a son, Mr. Fred Hutton, of St. Mary's, and a daughter, Mrs. Rumsey, relict of the late O S. Rumsey, manager of the Traders' Bank, St. Mary's. The deceased, whose maiden name was Sarah Edmison, was born in Smith township. Her husband predeceased her some years. Four brothers and three sisters are left. The brothers are Alex Edmison, of Smith township; Rev. Henry Edmison, of Toronto, Percival Edmison, of Sioux Falls, Dakota, and George Edmison, of this city. The sisters are Mrs. Joseph Milburn, of Smith; Mrs. (Dr.) Beattie, of Parry Sound, and Mrs. W. Andrews, of St. Mary's. The funeral of the late Mrs. Hutton will take place on Sunday at 2 p. m. The remains will be interred in St. Mary's cemetery. The deceased lady was highly respected and will be remembered by many of the older residents of Smith and Peterborough.

CONTRACT TO SOO WORKS.

A Toronto despatch says:—The Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission met Thursday morning and awarded the contract of supplying 65,000 tons of rails to the Algoma Steel Company, of the Soo. This will complete about forty-five miles of road.

Many other matters with regard to the extension of the road were not completed, but it is expected they will be decided shortly.

Cars are now running on the line as far as Englehart. The distance from here to the proposed junction with the G.T.P. is 112 miles. When this is completed the T. and N.O. will stretch 250 miles beyond North Bay. From the junction with the G.T.P. to Fort Churchill, on the Hudson Bay, where the line will probably be extended to, is 1,100 miles

Transmission of Electricity From Niagara to Toronto

An Able Article From the Pen of a Pupil of the Local Collegiate—An Important Subject Interestingly Dealt With.

An interesting article on "Transmission of electricity from Niagara to Toronto," appears in the February number of Collegiate Echoes. It is written by Colin Lees of Form III. and is well worth perusing,—

"The day of miracles is not yet over. As we become accustomed to things we cease to regard them as wonderful. Had our grandfathers been told half a century ago, that a wheel revolving in the bottom of a pit beside Niagara Falls would light the streets, propel the cars and operate the machinery in the factories of Toronto, they would have certainly said that it could not be without the performance of a miracle. Less than twenty years ago one of the most distinguished electrical experts of America, when consulted as to the possibility of harnessing the falls, and transmitting its energy to places as far off as Toronto, gave as his opinion that it was utterly impracticable; expressed grave doubts as to the possibility of developing electrical energy in large quantities, and declared that to transmit it to Toronto in quantities sufficient for commercial purposes, would require a copper cable at least two feet in diameter.

"But today we see the miracle accomplished, and by what means! The first difficulty to overcome was the lack of adequate machinery for the generation of electric currents in quantity and voltage required; the second was the difficulty of handling electricity of such high voltage. Step by step, invention following invention, such machinery has finally been constructed by two Canadian firms, The Canadian General Electric Company and The Canada Foundry Company, without whose courage and ingenuity the dream of cheap Niagara power in Toronto might never have been realized.

The construction of the transmission lines was in itself no small matter. The wires are supported by metal towers, instead of by poles, as we are accustomed to see them. There are 1300 towers, each weighing a ton and a quarter. There are three angle towers, where the wires bend and where there is a double strain each weighing eight tons. At Welland again, there are two one hundred and fifty feet towers weighing at the rate of a ton a foot, and at the gap at Burlington, there are two one hundred and seventy-five feet towers, each weighing about one hundred and fifty tons. In the towers altogether there is about twenty-two hundred and fifty tons; in the buildings the Canada Foundry Co. has placed three thousand tons more, and in the whole enterprise about eighty-four hundred tons of metal have been used.

The part played by the Canadian General Electric Company is no less great. The magnitude of the work demanded new types of generators and transformers, which had to be invented and manufactured by them. On account of the tremendous weight of these machines they were shipped from the local works to Niagara in pieces, it being impossible to load and move them ready for installation. The high voltage switch board which in itself is said to have cost $300,000 is also the product of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian General Electric Company.

Above the falls the water is diverted from its natural course into the flume, which is in reality, a large pipe eighteen feet in diameter. From this the water drops one hundred and fifty feet to the turbines, where the pressure of the water is converted to mechanical energy which is applied to the massive shafts which connect with the generators. Here the mechanical energy changes to electricity at a voltage of 12,000. Thence through a conduit the current is flashed to a transformer house on the hill, where it is raised to 60,000 volts to overcome the resistance in transmission to Toronto. From the transformer house it travels eighty miles to the sub-station on Davenport Road, Toronto. Here the voltage is reduced to 2,200 volts, and the current is used by the Toronto Railway Company and the Toronto Electric Light Company for operating cars, motors and arc and incandescent lamps.

In many parts of the province of Ontario are waterfalls of large volume awaiting development, and it is impossible at the present time to estimate the extent to which they will in the near future replace the other sources of power. The work of the Hydro-Electric Commission as outlined in their recently published reports, affords some idea of the possibilities along these lines. It is impossible, however, to foretell the effect on the industry of the province of the introduction of cheap electrical energy into so many manufacturing centres. Peterborough is especially favorably situated in this respect, being within easy reach of the magnificent power privileges on the Otonabee River.

The Solution of Temperance Problems May be Local Option

Bill to Enable Municipalities to Assist Them.

Maximum Grant Ranges From $2,000 to $500 According to Population—Bylaw Must Receive Assent of the Electors — Municipal Council to Have Power to Impose Conditions and Regulations on These Temperance Hotels.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—Dr. Currie, the Liberal member for Prince Edward, who Tuesday electrified the Legislature while debating the dismissal of ex-Sheriff Gillespie, of Picton, by the charge that Speaker St. John and a number of local politicians had "held up" the Prime Minister for the removal—a charge which was instantly denied by Hon. Mr. Whitney—withdrew his statements yesterday and expressed regret for having made them.

Dr. Currie's Amende.

Dr. Currie rose to a question of privilege. He said that in the course of his remarks the previous day he had given utterance to a rumor he had heard connecting the name of the Speaker of the House with what had occurred. In view of what he had since ascertained he regretted this and desired to withdraw it. The Speaker was a gentleman he held in highest esteem. He had performed his duties with impartiality and uniform fairness, and in so far as anything said had reflected upon his honor, Dr. Currie desired to express his regret for having stated it. He then withdrew the remarks in question.

The session was an exceptionally short one, devoted almost entirely to the introduction of a score of bills by private members, affecting their local conditions and enterprises.

Local Option Legislation.

Mr. J. J. Preston (Durham) introduced a bill of an interesting and somewhat radical character affecting local option districts. It is understood that in its preparation he conferred with Hon. Mr. Hanna, the Provincial Secretary, and that the measure is to have Government consideration.

Grants to Temperance Hotels.

The measure proposes to confer upon towns, townships and villages which have passed, or may pass local option bylaws, the power to assist in the establishment or maintenance of temperance hotels and houses for the convenience of the traveling public. This assistance may be rendered in the character of annual grants for which a schedule is provided as follows: In municipalities having 5,000 or over population the maximum grant shall be $2,000; where the population is 2,000 or over $1,000, and where less than 2,000, $500. The bylaw conferring these grants is to receive the assent of the electors and not to remain in force after the repeal of the local option act.

Conditions and Regulations.

The municipal council is also empowered to impose conditions and regulations in the public interests and may require the person who obtains the assistance to enter into an agreement and give security for the faithful observance of them. In no case may the grant be paid to anyone convicted of a violation of the Liquor Act.

The bill received its first reading and will be discussed next week.

Two Bills Withdrawn.

Bills to amend the assessment act by Messrs. Torrance (Perth) and Preston (Lanark) respectively, the former to change the system of township assessing and the latter the amount of assessable income, were withdrawn at the request of the Government.

"We have reached a general understanding," said the Prime Minister, "that the Assessment Act shall be tampered with as little as possible until the people have had a full opportunity to put it to the test and determine their desires in reference to it. At such a time a general revision is in contemplation. At present the various sections so dove-tail in together that it would be dangerous to deal with one or two without dealing with all."

Premier Scotches Globe Yarn.

Hon. Mr. Whitney read from The Globe a story concerning the resignation of the police magistrate at Belleville, which he characterized as devoid of truth. As the resignation did not take effect until March he did not desire to discuss the matter until that date, when the Government was fully prepared to lay all the facts before the House if they were desired.

Hon. Mr. Graham, the Opposition leader, concurred in the view the Prime Minister had expressed.

ACCOUNTANT ARRESTED.

Confesses to Having Stolen $4,000 From Company.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—Nathaniel Hellman was arrested last night on the specific charge of stealing three five-pound notes.

Hellman was accountant with the Canada Furniture Manufacturing Co. When T. R. Shaw, the managing director, returned from Europe he handed these notes to Hellman, and later found they had not passed through the cash book. This caused suspicions and further investigations were made, with the result that further defalcations were discovered. On his arrest, Hellman admitted that he had stolen about $4,000 from the company.

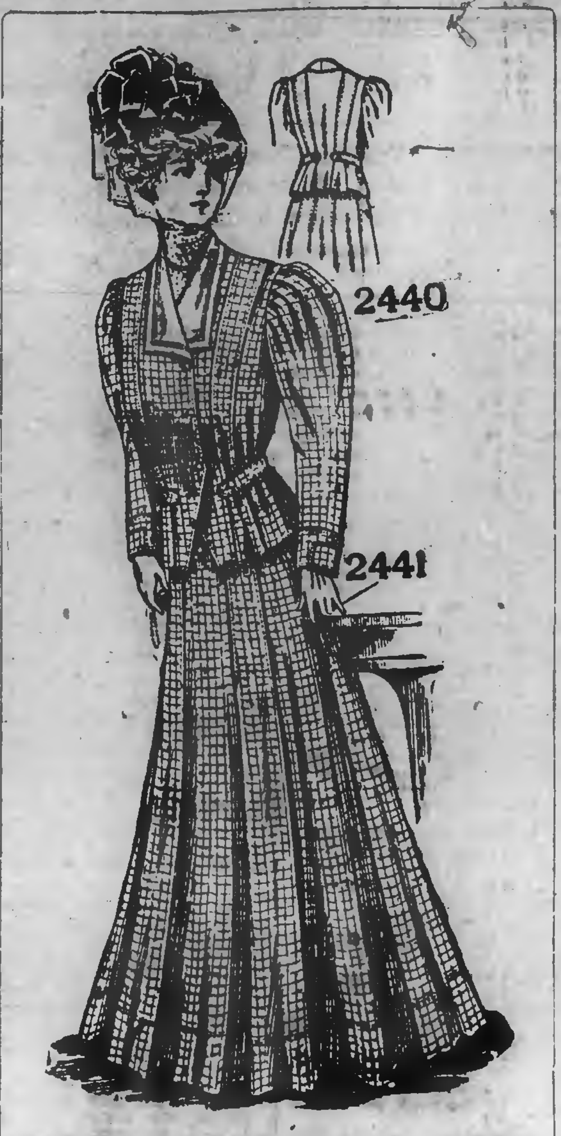
THE LATEST DEAN PATTERN.



A SMART DEVELOPMENT FOR CHECKED GOODS

Many pleasing new suits are showing small checks and stripes and one which is rather new in style and suited to a variety of figures is sketched. The coat is semi-fitted and has applied pleats to give it chic lines. The collar and front closing are unique in outline, while the sleeves are long as most fitting for a general wear suit. The skirt is an eleven-gored one with each alternate gore arranged in a box pleat. For a jaunty knockabout suit to wear during the coming months, one could not find a more attractive style. The new materials in checked suiting would make this a most attractive suit. 7 yards of 54 inch material are needed for the medium size.

TWO PATTERNS.—2440—5 Sizes, 32 to 40 inches bust measure. 2441—6 sizes, 22 to 32 inches waist.

The price of this pattern is 20 cents, but either will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent to you by mail.

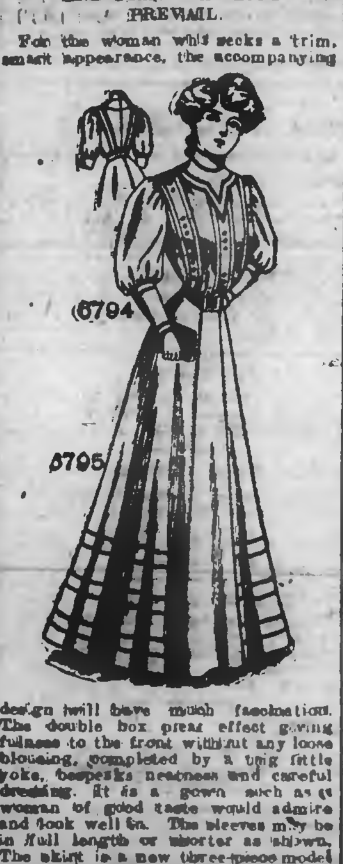
For the woman who seeks a trim, smart appearance, the accompanying design will have much fascination.



The double box pleat effect giving fulness to the front without any loose blousing, completed by a tiny little yoke, bespeaks neatness and careful dressing. It is a gown such as a woman of good taste would admire and look well in. The sleeves may be in full length or shorter as shown. The skirt is a new three-piece model having circular side gores and an under box pleat or habit back, which is very easily made and most graceful in shape, being wide at the hem and close fitting over the hips. A gown of this kind would be smart in chiffon, broadcloth, or herringbone cheviot. The skirt might be made of one material and the blouse of another, but they should match or harmonize in color. Bands of cloth or silk may trim the skirt while any of the simple embroideries or velvet ribbon might serve for the waist. For the medium size 5 3-4 yards of 44 inch material are needed for the gown.

Two Patterns.—6794, sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure. 6795, sizes, 20 to 32 inches waist.

The price of these patterns is 20c, but either will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

Get False Teeth Soon as Possible

Prices are Rising and Dentists May Make Advance on Material and Work

The increased cost of living cannot be better borne out by any one single illustration than the dentist's bill. Those who have been receiving treatment within the past month will doubtless have noticed that the cost of false teeth and expensive filling has advanced. This is due to the increased cost of platinum, which enters largely into the construction of false teeth, and gold and silver filling preparations, which have also gone up in value. The rapid advances in the practice of dentistry within the last fifteen years, constitute another factor which must not be overlooked. Time, knowledge and cost of material are the bases of reckoning.

Several city dentists in answer to inquiries corroborated these facts.

"Every false tooth is fastened to the plate by two platinum pegs," said an officer of the dentist association. "Platinum has gone up over 15 per cent. in the last month, due to its extreme scarcity. The largest mines of this metal were those in Russia, and these have not been worked since the Russo-Japanese war. British Columbia, I believe is supposed to have large quantities, but unless new sources are discovered shortly, the price will rise to $50 an ounce. Twenty years ago the price was $7 an ounce.

"One fact I would like to emphasize is the influence of the manufacturers. If platinum rises $5.00, the manufacturers, who possess the powers of a trust, put it up to $15 on us. We get soaked every time."

"While fillings and materials enter largely into the cost," he said, "we go largely upon the work necessary. If we charged only on the actual cost of the material, a couple of hours' work upon a delicate job would mean a decided loss, for there might be just the same amount of filling in an easier cavity, and the time would be wasted."

Bank Rewards Office Staff

For Bravery During Earthquake Horror in Jamaica

Mr. H. C. McLeod, general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, which has a branch in Peterborough, stated that the facts in the following item of news from Kingston, Jamaica, were not over-stated: "In recognition of the bravery of its servants during the earthquake horror,—from manager downwards—they stuck to their posts and put away all the books and cash—the Bank of Nova Scotia has presented each member of the staff of the Jamaica branch, with cheques ranging from $100 to $1,000."

"Religious and Devotional Life"

Eloquent Address by Rev. A. J. Fidler in St. John's Church

Last night the second of a series of Wednesday evening Lenten services was held in St. John's church. These Lenten services are growing to be very interesting and have been well attended.

At last night's service Evensong was said, and the special sermon was preached by Rev. A. J. Fiddler, of Grace church, Toronto. The reverend speaker was listened to with deep interest throughout his address, which was one of general interest. The subject was "The Religious and Devotional Life." Rev. Mr. Fiddler said in his remarks, that to the beginner in the religious life, there are two great and chief stumbling blocks, but as the habit of the religious life is formed and the soul learns to face and conquer difficulties, the devotional life follows as a matter of course. When one expects to begin the religious life with the love of St. John, or the wisdom of St. Paul, he must be disappointed. The child begins the study of literature with the primer and not with Plato. Musicians begin the study of music with the scale and not with Beethoven; and as Plato becomes in time easier than was the primer in the beginning, and the music which required ten fingers becomes easier than that which first demanded two, so in religious life, that if the conscious and definite living of it, there are corresponding stumbling blocks.

The first impediment that one usually meets at the gate of entrance is, "I am not good enough," and, second, "Others are not good enough," and the latter is usually given precedence to the former. There are those who withhold themselves from a religious life because they feel that those who are Christians are not always in reality what they prefer, and thus they take the stand that the church is intended for saints and not for those who offend Almighty God.

In the history that is gone there have been men that have brought into being religious societies, exclusively for saints, but in every case the sinner has gained admission. In the first Christian congregation of 12, with Christ, Himself, as minister, one, Judas, fell.

The church is not intended for saints, to the exclusion of those who are otherwise. It is for the spiritually ragged, as well as those who are clothed in the pulpit fine linen of holiness. Christ admitted all who were being saved. The church is not a veterans' home for those who have fought all their religious wars and battles in this life, but in the church militant.

A stumbling block to many is, "Other people are not good enough." Christ, when speaking to St. Peter, when the latter was following the Master and criticised another following, said: "What is that to thee? Follow thou Me." Christ will take care of the Pharisees; It is our individual duty to follow Him.

"I am not good enough," and therefore I remain outside of the helps and graces of the church. When the multitude listened to the Apostles' message, some of them remained in order that they might be baptised and made members of the church, because they were pricked at heart and conscious of the need of help. Others withdrew, not because they were not good enough, but because they felt no need of the help which Christ could give them.

The religious and devotional life can only be developed by the mastery of the body, the subjugation of the mind, the restraining of the tongue and the submission of the will.

Lenten Address St. Luke's Church

Rev. H. Ben Oliel Draws Lesson From the Crucifixion

A large congregation attended the second of a series of special Lenten services at St. Luke's church last evening. The preacher was Rev. H. Ben Oliel of Millbrook, and he delivered an able and inspiring sermon from the words found in the 36th verse of the 27th chapter of St. Matthews gospel "And sitting down they watched Him there." These words the speaker said, were spoken concerning the soldiers who crucified the Saviour. St. Luke tells of those who caused the crucifixion. The text concerns those who carried it out. The reverend gentleman then pictured the scenes of the crucifixion in a very vivid and graphic manner. He referred to the hill on which the crucifixion took place; then the hardened soldiers, who as they carried out their duties, seemed to glory in them. The great multitude of all classes, who had gathered to witness the terrible death of the criminals was also described. There were the idly curious, and then lastly there were the loving disciples.

The speaker asked, "Does there enter our hearts a wish that we could have been there? Would we have fought for Him and for justice? It was for our sins that Christ suffered there. The reverend gentleman referred to our continual sinning day by day. We did not mourn over them. It would have been good for us to have witnessed the Crucifixion, so that the sight of it might have so impressed us, that we would refrain from wrong doing. There are the soldiers now the same as then. There are those who scoff at religion and whose souls are hardened to the Scripture. The idly curious at the present time, are those who come to church in an indifferent mood, and for curiosity only.

Mr. Ben Oliel urged those present to be sincere and to strive against the power of evil which exists in the world. He said, "Let us look with reverent awe into our Saviour's passion at this season of Lent. Let us consider what he suffered and thus try to lead a life consecrated to Him.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for, as a matter of fact, they sap the vitality of mind and body and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, stinging sensations of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing, and oftentimes, stubborn disease.

Arrest of Woman on Murder Charge

Father of Mr. G. H. Williamson is Governor of Cayuga Gaol Where Mrs. Perkins is Great interest is being taken in the Perkins case of North Cayuga. The woman, whose name is Mattie Perkins, was arrested on Tuesday on the charge of murdering her husband by giving him a dose of strychnine. He passed away on Christmas day. There were circumstances surrounding the death that were suspicious. The remains were disinterred and much to the wife's objections, a post mortem was performed. This revealed that Perkins came to his death by poisoning. Detective Greer has been for some weeks working on the case, and has been gathering evidence. As a result of this investigation, the woman was taken in custody and is now an inmate of Cayuga gaol. She protests that she is innocent and says that her arrest has been brought about by the work of spiteful enemies.

Local interest is attached to the case, as Mr. Williamson, governor of the gaol in Haldimand county, where Mrs. Perkins is confined, is father of Mr. Geo. H. Williamson, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Peterborough.

A FRANK UTTERANCE

Premier Whitney has been attacked in many quarters for appointing Conservatives to certain offices which have been filled for a generation or more by Liberals, nearly all of whom, if not all, had become active partisans or had been so long in office that they became indifferent and neglectful of duty. Several had been active and offensive agents for the Rossites during election campaigns and made no secret of the fact. They seemingly preferred to serve their party rather than the people of the province and, now that some of them are out of harness, they are naturally very bitter.

Because a sheriff in Prince Edward county, over 84 years of age, who had been a most bitter partisan, who had appointed his own son as deputy during an election, and who two Supreme Court judges had refused to permit to accompany them to the court house, was dismissed, Dr. Morley Currie, of Prince Edward county, asked an explanation in the House. The answer which he received must have satisfied his curiosity. The premier did not hedge neither did he seek to shift the responsibility on others. With a frankness, openness and honesty which characterizes all his public utterances he gave the inquisitive M.P.P. from the peninsular county all the satisfaction that he desired. Mr. Whitney unhesitatingly told Mr. Currie that there had not been one dismissal from office that had not received his (the premier's) own earnest and active endorsation. He accepted the onus, if any, of the whole matter, and did not seek to put it on his colleagues. He had not been constrained to act, and, while mistakes might have been made—for all governments were human and therefore liable to err—he would say solemnly and earnestly that no dismissals had taken place that would not be repeated. This is a straightforward and unequivocal declaration and leaves no doubt as to where the present administration stands in dealing with any officials who are offensively partisan and notoriously incompetent.

THE THREE FIFTHS MAJORITY

Is it not surprising how rapidly unprincipled politicians can change their views when party tactics demand it?

It will be remembered that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his sham apostle of prohibition, Sydney Fisher, pledged themselves in convention that they would submit the question to a vote of the people of the Dominion, and if prohibition was affirmed by them, legislation in its favor would follow. The electors did affirm the principle by over 15,000 majority, yet the Laurier-Fisherites, on the plea that the majority was not large enough to justify legislation, refused to act. Public opinion was not ripe for the question, they declared, and the rank and file in Parliament and out of Parliament, sang the same song and danced to the same tune. The press followed suit, led by the Globe, in defence of the declaration that 15,000 was too small to justify legislation. Both politicians and press are now on an opposite tack, and are denouncing in strong Anglo-Saxon the law placed upon the statute book by the Whitney Government requiring a three-fifths' majority to bring into force the local option law, declaring any other than the principle of a simple majority, vicious, and that any other policy "is a most injurious precedent, for which there is no defence or justification." Such is the declaration of that theological teacher, the chief editor of the Globe, of Toronto, ignoring altogether its arguments in favor of the position of the Laurier Government when it pronounced 15,000 majority not sufficiently large to justify practical legislation.

Think of the Globe's position in the past and its attitude now upon this question, and then draw a conclusion as to its political honesty.

That there may be no mistake, here is an extract from its editorial columns of the 15th inst.:

"It is to be noted that the opposition to the three-fifths majority provision is not confined to those who favor the withdrawal of liquor license, and the abolition of the bar. It is regarded with general dislike as an undemocratic restriction on the taking of plebiscites, a species of insult to a thoroughly respectable section of the general public. As a mere matter of constitutional law and practice, it is a most injurious precedent, for which there is no defence or justification. If the self-sacrificing people who are in the most altruistic spirit seeking only the good of the community have been working some scheme to promote their own selfish interests, the precendent would have been just as vicious, but the wrong would not yet have been so glaring. In the end the provision will have to be repealed."

Why this change, the reader may ask? Is it not difficult of solution. The Whitney Government placed the three-fifths clause upon the statute book and the new leader of the Grit party in the Ontario Legislature has given notice of a motion to repeal it, hence the "flopping" of the Globe.

PROVINCIAL RIGHTS

One of the most important questions before the public today is that of provincial control of the franchises under which electric roads shall be operated in Ontario. In the past, electric roads have not been content with a provincial charter, but have also sought and generally obtained a Dominion charter. This placed the Ontario Government in a rather awkward position and robbed them of complete control of these public services. Premier Whitney has inaugurated a campaign to place these electric roads under the complete control of the provincial government, and so when a company makes application to the Dominion Government for a charter that they be referred back to the Ontario authorities.

The Dominion Government has jurisdiction over those lines that are operated for the benefit of the people of Canada; that is where a line covers territory that extends beyond the confines of more than one province. The electric lines in Ontario do not go beyond the province, and consequently the provincial government should have undisputed control.

Leader Graham of the opposition has promised Mr. Whitney his earnest support in obtaining this end, and it is generally felt that the legislature will be a unit in the fight.

The Toronto Star (Liberal) offers an interesting and favorable criticism of the question. "Why," it asks "should the Dominion Government invade the provincial domain. What interest have they in seeking control over local concerns, and in entering upon a contest with the Ontario legislature, united without distinction of party?"

Continuing it says: "The trouble has arisen, not out of a desire of the federal authorities to seize power, but out of the desire of the private corporations to have two strings to their bow, going to Toronto one day and Ottawa the next, as they suit their convenience. The Dominion authorities will be very foolish if they play the game of the corporations in this respect. They should not seek, but should avoid, interference in the local concerns of Ontario. The railway committee when such applications should come before them, should send the applicants back to Toronto. The authorities have plenty of work that lies within their own proper field, and they will be unwise if they needlessly increase their own labor and responsibility and invite a conflict, in which, whatever the letter of the constitution may be, they will weaken themselves in public estimation.

"It would be an act of wisdom and courtesy on the part of the representatives of Quebec and other provinces outside of Ontario to declare that they prefer to leave these matters to be settled in Ontario. As to the Liberals, it need hardly be said that the true position for them is the one indicated by the record of Oliver Mowat and his colleagues at Toronto and of Blake and Mills at Ottawa. If the fight must come, Ontario will stand as a unit for control over its own affairs. But the Dominion authorities, if they choose, can stop the fight by one clear declaration that they will observe the spirit and not merely the letter of the federal constitution."

PEN POINTS

A time when everybody works — just after a big snow storm.

Well! we have had one, real old fashioned storm anyway.

Why do they call it Port Hope? Because it has been hoping for years but never realizing.

That 10,000 Club of Port Hope will now disband. The canal is not coming their way. All hope is gone. The "Lost Opportunities" organization will now be formed.

Port Hope always had "mouth" enough when it came to a discussion or argument in sport, but wishes it had a little more mouth now in connection with the Trent Canal.

The pretty little village of Athens, near Brockville, is stirred from centre to circumference over a bigamy case. That's nothing. Athens of old had three or four daily and never seemed to mind it at all.

That vexed question, which is preferable, the ward or general system of electing representatives to council, will be settled definitely to night at the Young Conservative Club rooms. Go and help in the solution.

Because counsel for the Ontario government objected that the line was not for the general advantage of Canada, but wholly provincial in scope the senate railway committee yesterday killed the Stratford and St. Joseph Radial Railway bill. This is a win for Mr. Whitney's policy of provincial rights.

This truth comes to us more and more the longer we live, that on what field or in what uniform or with what aims we do our duty matters very little, or even what our duty is, great or small, splendid or obscure. Only to find our duty certainly, and somewhere, somehow, to do it faithfully makes us good, strong happy and useful men, and tunes our lives into some feeble echo of the perfect life.

Phillips Brooks.

Ottawa some months ago established a publicity department and placed a competent newspaper man at its head. Good work has been done by the department but now some of the aldermen in the Capital seem anxious to abolish it as well as the industrial committee of the city council. Ottawa surely can stand a little more advertising than it gets and to talk of wiping out a department of the civic service before it has been given a fair trial to demonstrate its usefulness and bear fruit, is a very short-sighted policy indeed.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier says that Senate Reform, which was adopted by the Liberals in the big Ottawa convention in 1893, as one of the planks of their platform will not be taken up by the Commons this season. No need to hurry now, you know, since the Grits have a majority in the Upper Chamber. Senate reform was agitated just fourteen years ago, by the Laurierites and nothing done yet! But patience may win in the end. Everything comes to him who waits long enough—even death.

The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has undertaken to collect a list of maple sugar makers from each county in the Dominion and will be glad to send a copy of a bulletin just issued to all who apply. This bulletin not only deals with the manufacture of pure maple syrup and sugar, but also explains the sections of the Adulteration Act having reference to maple syrup and sugar, and like ingredients, and gives a form of warranty which has to be signed by the sugar maker himself and handed on to the wholesaler, retailer and consumer, thus giving the purchaser assurance that the goods sold as "pure maple syrup" or "pure maple sugar" are what they are represented to be.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

VALUABLE FORMULA

A noted authority on diseases of the throat and lungs, who established a camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine, and whose remarkable cures there have attracted great attention from the medical world, says that his entire treatment consisted of fresh air, nourishing food, and the Pure (Virgin Oil of the White Pine Trees) mixed with Whisky and Glycerine in the following proportions:

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), 1-2 oz.
Glycerine ...... 2 "
Good Whisky ...... 8 "

Used in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

It is claimed that the above mixture will heal and strengthen the lungs, break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable.

The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost and can be easily mixed in your own home.

Inquiry at the prescription department of a leading local pharmacy elicited the information that Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up only in half-ounce vials for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont., plainly printed thereon. Only the cheaper Oils are sold in bulk, but these produce nausea and never effect the desired results.

MAJORITY 145.

Duncan C. Ross, Son of the Senator, Wins in West Middlesex.

Strathroy, Feb. 21.—Duncan C. Ross, the Liberal candidate in West Middlesex, and son of Senator G. W. Ross, was yesterday elected over George Stewart (Con.) by a majority of 145. Contrary to expectations, Strathroy gave Ross a majority of 67.

Mr. Calvert, M.P., was master of ceremonies for the celebrants last night. He claimed it was one of the greatest battles ever fought in Canada.

Mr. Ross when he entered the hall was carried to the stage on the shoulders of his friends. He was placed on a table, where he thanked the people for his election. This is the first time he had appeared before the electors. He said he had always done what he could for the people in private affairs, and he assured them that when he went to Toronto he would do all he could for them in public affairs, to the best of his ability.

He would not oppose good legislation if it came from the Conservatives, he said; neither would he further bad legislation if it came from the Liberals. If there were less party and more independence it would be better.

After the meeting, over 200 Liberals made a raid on the broom factory and a procession was soon formed.

Ross received his majorities as follows: Caradoc 87, Delaware 4, Ekfrid 29, Mosa 69, Strathroy 67.

Stewart's majorities were: Metcalfe 41, Glencoe, 46, Newbury 11, Wardsville 13. Making a total majority for Ross of 145.

The majority of G. W. Ross in the general elections was 113.

SPEEDING AT FALL FAIRS.

Hon. Nelson Monteith Discloses the Intention of the Recent Act.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—The annual meeting of the Ontario Association of Fall Fairs and Exhibitions opened yesterday afternoon at the City Hall, President Sheppard of Cayuga in his annual address said he thought that horse racing should not be forbidden at country fairs and allowed at Ottawa, London and the Toronto Exhibition.

The evening session was opened by the chairman, Hon. Nelson Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, who delivered an address on the educative value of agricultural fairs and exhibitions. Though the new act may have defects he would like to see it given fair working trial, as he believed it would prove of benefit to all concerned. The horticultural societies were now separate, and perhaps it is better so; as the cultivation of fruit and flowers has become so enlarged that it became necessary to give them responsible government. The intention of the recent act was not to discourage fast horses or the breeding of such, but to relegate the professional trotting horse to his proper place on the race track and give farmers a fair ground for competition in the fast stock they own or raise in points of value, speed and style.

Some delegates declared they could not have carried on their exhibitions successfully and kept out of debt except by the attractions they offered in the way of horse racing, but the general concensus of the meeting seemed to favor the elimination of the latter practice.

TO BRIBE COMMISSIONERS.

Curious Revelations At the License Commission Hearing At Toronto.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—That Thomas Jones, contractor, of Manning avenue, and F. P. Braxill, got $500 from Andrew Martin, former proprietor of the Parkdale Hotel, to use, as he believed in influencing the license commissioners to get him the hotel transferred back, was admitted yesterday. Some weeks ago Martin entered suit for a recovery of the $500. At that time both Jones and Braxill emphatically stated that they knew nothing whatever of the $500, and said they would sue Martin for libel.

To Commissioner Starr, Andrew Martin yesterday told his story. He had been proprietor of the Parkdale Hotel for 10 years.

Speaking of the condition of the ranchers in his district. Mr. Woolf stated that the losses of the ranchers had not been in the least degree above the normal.

The average loss through the district would not reach five per cent., a loss which the ranchers in Southern Alberta figures on in each year.

Pursued Policy of Gross Slander

How Liberals Sought to Win in B. C.—Hon. Mr. Green's Retirement

To the Editor of the Review:

Dear Sir,—In your issue of the 5th inst., which has just come to hand I note in your editorial re the Conservative victory in this province you regret the defeat of the Hon. Mr. Green, Minister of Lands and Works. Bob was not defeated. Just previous to the Government's decision to appeal to the country he resigned his portfolio so that he could devote his whole time to his own private business interests, which were being neglected. Of course not being a grafter he could not follow the example of some of the Ottawa politicians and make himself a millionaire at the public crib. At the Conservative convention of the Kaslo riding, he was earnestly pressed to accept the nomination, but could not be prevailed on to do so, but nominated Mr. Neil F. McKay, who has been elected with a good majority. The campaign in this province as conducted by the Liberals stinks in the nostrils of respectable men. They had no policy, but slander and abuse and the Lands and works department was the principle mark at which they aimed. The electors of British Columbia are wise in that they have returned to power with a good majority the best government the province ever had, notwithstanding the frantic efforts of the Ottawa machine to have it otherwise.

Yours, etc.,
W. J. GREEN.

OUT OF SCHOOL BECAUSE OF COLDS

THOUSANDS OF CHILDREN WILL ACQUIRE LUNG TROUBLES, WHICH COULD BE AVOIDED BY USING

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

The records of attendance at the Toronto Public Schools show that ten thousand children were absent on account of colds during a single month.

"The worst enemy of all to the child, so far as keeping him from school is concerned, apparently is the common, every-day cold," said Dr. Goodchild, in his report to the Ontario School Association.

"Not only does the cold prove an enemy in this way," he continued, "but it is well known that many of the more serious diseases follow from the simple cold. As a result of the patient becoming weakened down in his resistance against disease, the germs of various infectious diseases, the more easily find a place to multiply somewhere in the organism."

Parents who make a practice of keeping Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house have at hand the most certain means of curing coughs colds, croup and bronchitis and positively preventing more serious disease. It is sometimes forgotten that few ailments possess more possibilities of danger than a common cold.

Mrs. R. D. Turner, Broadview, N. W.T., writes; "We have seven children and have used Dr Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for every one of them and with good results. We get four bottles at a time and find it a good remedy to break up cold on the lungs."

Not only is Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine a positive cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma and severe chest colds but it is also a preventive of all diseases of the lungs.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents, a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every bottle.

Dukes Played Plucky Game But Were Not Dangerous

Peterborough Won Handily Last Night, the Score Being 13-6—Was Only Fair Exhibition of Hockey.

Peterborough and Marlboros met in a senior O.H.A. game at Brock-st. rink last night and after various types of hockey had been dished up for about an hour it was found that the home team had scored 13 goals to the visitor's 6. This is hardly a fair criterion of the play for the locals toyed with the Dukes in the second half and did not try to run up the score. Chuck Tyner was also largely instrumental in keeping down the score against his team, some of his stops bordering on the phenomenal. The half time score was 6-3 in favor of the winners.

The game was played on pretty fair ice considering the mildness of the weather, but it was not a good exhibition of hockey. Occasionally there was flashes of speed and good stick handling, but these were not numerous enough to bring the game up to the senior brand. The players wearied before the match was over and in the last ten minutes there was nothing very strenuous on the tapis. Some of the players got into the habit of standing still and making a swipe at the puck when it came their way, but otherwise they took things easily.

Ernie Wasson acted as referee and gave satisfaction to both teams. He inflicted several penalties, but the game was clean. There was an absence of any deliberate roughness and none of the penalties imposed were for more than two minutes. Some stiff body checks were handed out and the checking was hard and close until the last ten min. of the second half.

About 500 hundred people saw the game and were well pleased with the result.

The Marlboros started off strong and played pluckily throughout, but in the last half they were outplayed and once the home team secured a comfortable lead they did not exert themselves. Otherwise the score would have been larger. Tyner gave one of the most finished exhibitions of goal tending ever seen here. Although bombarded with shots he was as cool as the proverbial cucumber and picked off the hardest kind of drives with the greatest coolness and grace. His work in the nets was one of the features of the game. Kent and Birmingham were the pick of the Dukes forwards with Forbes scintillating at times and doing effective work. Edgar and Roesler stayed in their positions well and broke up numerous rushes.

The Peterborough team all did good work, especially in the second half. The forwards were weak in combination and in shooting in the first period, but got going nicely in the second half and the scores came rapidly then. The defence was good, Lang, Glover and Crowley having plenty to do at times and doing it well. Glover's rushes down the ice were a feature of the match while Crowley seemed tireless and kept rushing all the time. Lang delivered splendidly on many occasions. Morgan was the most conspicuous on the forward line, but he let up towards the close as the home team then had a safe lead. Moore excelled throughout the game and did fine work, both offensive and defensive. His checking back was of great help to the defence in times of need. In the second half Miller was placed at rover and Moore took the left wing and a big improvement was at once noticeable in Miller's play. Rover is apparently his position and once he was placed there the forward line began to work much better. In the first half Miller was weak on the wing, but once he got in the centre of the ice he began to shine and netted two goals in rapid time. Unfortunately he had to be dropped after the second half was in progress about ten minutes owing to Quigley getting hurt and having to retire. Whether he would have been able to keep up the pace for any length of time remains to be demonstrated, but during the time he played rover last night it was clearly evidenced that the team would be strengthened by playing Miller as rover and putting Moore on the wing. Parnell did splendid work all evening and made many fine rushes in the second half. His stick handling was pretty to watch and reminded one of Whitcroft's style.

It was nearly nine o'clock before the game started. The Marlboros did not appear on the ice till 8.45 and then it was seen that both teams wore similar uniforms. The Peterborough management dug out some old T.A.S. sweaters, black and red striped, and Morgan, Moore and Parnell appeared in these. Miller had a guernsey of the sleeveless type over his blue sweater. Crowley must have taken a liking to Miller's outfit for at the commencement of the second half he appeared with the sleeveless guernsey while Miller had found another red sweater and appeared arrayed therein.

17.—Marlboros, Moore.
18.—Marlboros, Kent.
19.—Peterborough, Parnell.

Forbes took the first game for Marlboros in 3 1-2 minutes after a pretty rush by the visitors forward line. No two came to Peterborough on a shot by Parnell, who had been given the puck by Crowley after the latter had made a fine rush. Kent evened up for the Marlboros in two minutes and then Morgan beat out Tyner a few minutes later. In less than two minutes he repeated the trick, which was duplicated shortly afterwards by Miller. This made the score 4-2. Moore scored another for the home team and Forbes got another for the Dukes. Morgan then made it 6-3 on a pretty shot just before half time was called.

In the second half Peterborough started to strike their gait and Moore netted the puck in short order. Morgan took a pass from Crowley and made it 8-3 and duplicated the trick in rapid order. Miller scored on a pass from Parnell behind the nets and Forbes got one soon after the face off. Moore and Morgan respectively were responsible for the next two tallies which made the score 12-4. In attempting to take the puck away from his own net Moore accidentally shoved the puck by Lang and brought the Marlboros score up to five. Kent got another for the visitors and Parnell scored again for Peterborough.

Quigley was hurt early in the second half by colliding with a Peterborough man and had to retire. The home team dropped Miller to even up. A few minor penalties were inflicted by Referee Wasson. The offences were about evenly distributed between the two teams.

N.Y. Crescents Here To-morrow Night

The famous New York Crescents play the Peterborough team at the Brock street rink tomorrow night. The boys from Gotham will be accompanied by a big bunch of supporters, word having been received to reserve sixty seats for them.

There should be a big crowd present to see the game which promises to be exceedingly fast.

HOCKEY

The Strathconas will present the following lineup tonight in their city league fixture with the Orphans;

Goal, Wilson.
Point, Meagher.
Cover, White.
Rover, Fred McGrath.
Centre, McMillan.

BAD FINGER BROKEN.

"Chuck" Tyner, the crack goal tender of the Marlboros had his finger broken in a game at Brock street rink last night. The accident occurred during a mix-up in front of the Marlboro goal in the first half. Chuck did not know the finger was broken until after the game was over, although it caused him some inconvenience during the match.

A CHALLENGE.

The office staff of the C.G.E. challenge the office staff of the Quaker Oats Co. to a game of hockey to be played at an early date.

CITY LEAGUE GAMES.

The ice at the Brock street rink is in splendid condition for the games tonight and fast hockey is assured. The Strathconas and Orphans play the first game which will start at eight o'clock. Charlotte street and Lakefield the second games. Mr. Geo. Lynch will referee the games.

The Kingston Whig says: The 14th hockey team has remained intact right through the season and will finish its series of games with the same players as it started out with. All of them are seasoned. They play well together, and have improved with every game. Midland and Peterborough may have shown more dash, but it is the steady and cool work that counts. Good headwork won for the 14th in Toronto on Monday night. The Kingston defence played their positions, while Midland's cover-point and point were often enticed out to their sorrow. If the 14th continue their steady play they can win the O.H.A. championship, of which they are now within reach. A little practice in short shooting on goal, and in poking the puck in the nets during mix-ups, will be valuable to the locals. Several of their goals were scored in this way in Toronto, and the value of rendering effective that system of play can be seen.

STRATFORD MIDGETS WON.

St. Michael's College junior O.H.A. team was walloped by the Stratford Midgets in the Classic City last night. The score was 9—0, and the Toronto bunch was shut out as badly as the score would indicate. The Midgets should win the round handily, and will then go into the finals with the Lindsay juniors.

WESTERN SEMI-FINALS.

Wanderers defeated Shamrocks last night, 18—5.

A Mother's Argument.

"The most to be regretted act of my life," says a commander of the navy, "was a letter I wrote to my mother when about seventeen years of age. She always addressed her letters to me as 'my dear boy.' I felt at that time I was a man, or very near it, and wrote saying that her constant addressing me as a 'boy' made me feel displeased. I received in reply a letter full of reproaches and tears. Among other things, she said: 'You might grow to be as big as Goliath, as strong as Samson and as wise as Solomon; you might become ruler of a nation or emperor of many nations, and the world might revere you and fear you, but to your devoted mother you would always appear in memory in your innocent, unpretentious, unself conceited, unpampered babyhood. In those days when I washed and dressed and kissed and worshiped you, you were my idol. Nowadays you are becoming part of a gross world by contact with it, and I cannot bow down to you and worship you, but if there are manhood and maternal love transmitted to you, you will understand that the highest compliment that mother love can pay you is to call you "my dear boy."'"

Some Old Time Giants.

Cajanus, a Swedish giant who was nine feet high, was on exhibition in London in 1742, and several old hand bills still exist which set forth the measurements of this freak of nature. Thirty years later we have Charles Byrne, who was eight feet four inches in height in his stockinged feet. He, however, died young, at the age of twenty-two, from hard drinking. Cotter O'Byrne, another Irish giant, followed a few years later. He was born at Kinsale in 1761 and at the age of fifteen was eight feet high. This by the time he was twenty-three had increased to nine feet four inches, and then he changed his name to O'Brian in order to make people think that he was descended from King Brian Boroihme and went on exhibition. At that business he, of course, soon realized a very comfortable fortune and retired, dying at Clifton on Sept. 8, 1804. His will especially provided that his body should be thrown into the sea in order to prevent the surgeons from cutting it up.

No Rhyme For Tipperary.

A poet once jumped to the conclusion that there was no rhyme to Tipperary and said so, whereupon an indignant Irishman, who chanced also to be a bit of a versifier, pounced upon him and poked fun at him in a lengthy poem, every other line of which rhymed or was supposed to rhyme with the place in question. Thus:

A bard there was in sad quandary
To find a rhyme for Tipperary.
Long labored he through January,
Yet found no rhyme for Tipperary;
Toiled every day in February,
But toiled in vain for Tipperary;
Searched Hebrew text and commentary,
But searched in vain for Tipperary.

And so on through many scores of stanzas, ending up with:

He paced about his aviary,
Burnt in despair his dictionary,
Blew up sky high his secretary,
And then in wrath and anger swore he
There was no rhyme for Tipperary.

The Primary Competition Will be Decided To-Day

Connal of Peterborough and Ridpath of Lakefield are Playing the Final Game—Bonspiel will be Over To-morrow

The winner in the primary competition in the curling bonspiel will be decided this afternoon. After this morning's games only two rinks were left, J. H. Connal's of Peterborough, and J. W. Ridpath's of Lakefield. They commenced the final game at two o'clock this afternoon, but it had not been completed at the time of going to press. Ridpath's rink has made a splendid showing. Owing to there being no rink at Lakefield they have had no practice, but despite this handicap, they have succeeded in defeating the best rinks in the district. Ridpath won from Reid of Bobcaygeon this morning, 12—7, while Connall defeated McMurtry of Oshawa, 19—10. Read's defeat came as a surprise as it was expected that Lakefield would not be strong enough to down the 'Caygeon veterans. But the Lakefield men are great workers and nosed out the men from the north. Connal's men played a great game and landed the stones just where and when they were wanted.

At the commencement of the play this afternoon sixteen rinks remained in the consolation. As a result it is not likely that this competition will be finished until noon tomorrow or perhaps not until the evening.

This morning's scores were as follows:

PRIMARY.

Oshawa McMurtry Skip 10.	Peterborough Connal Skip 19.
Lakefield Ridpath Skip 12.	Bobcaygeon Read Skip 7.

CONSOLATION.

Peterborough Fitzgerald Skip 14.	Keene McIntyre Skip 10
Aberdeens Booth Skip 19.	Oshawa Sykes Skip 9.
Peterborough Davidson Skip 17.	Keene Campbell Skip 10.
Lindsay O'Connor Skip 13.	Aberdeens Richardson Skip 9.

AFTERNOON DRAW.

The following is the draw for the games, commencing at 1.30 o'clock:

PRIMARY.

Peterborough Connal	Lakefield Ridpath

CONSOLATION.

Bobcaygeon Read	Oshawa McMurtry
Peterborough Fitzgerald	Aberdeens Booth
Peterborough Hall	Peterborough Dr. Greer
Beaverton Birchard	Peterborough Neill

YESTERDAY'S GAMES.

Yesterday was the big day at the bonspiel. As the rinks were gradually knocked out of the primary, the games became more interesting and the number of spectators increased. The afternoon games were nearly all won by comfortable margins, but at night it was different. R. Neill, Peterborough; and J. Richardson, Aberdeens, were each defeated by one shot and McNab, of Claremont, went down to defeat by only two shots. The consolation games were also well contested and every game was nip and tuck right up till the last stone was shot.

The ice last night was somewhat sticky owing to the mildness of the weather. The curlers found it hard to judge the distance and frequently stones were left outside the hog line. But as the games progressed the curling improved and "don't be too short" was a frequent admonition from the skips. Vigorous sweeping was also done in order to bring the stones down, but unless the granite was travelling at good speed it was difficult to give it any impetus for our the soft ice once they started to stop they came to a standstill in short order.

PRIMARY.

4.30. p.m.

2. p.m.

NOTES.

The teachers rink, as it is called, did great work in the contest, winning one game and losing one in the primary. The quartette, which was composed of J. W. Kelly, R. N. Merritt, H. R. H. Kenner and T. J. Wallace (skip), played in the consolation last night and won from Skip J. Ham and his men of Napanee by the score of 16 to 13. The teachers were unable to continue in the consolation to-day, having to drop out owing to professional duties taking up their time. The pedagogues quartette is certainly a strong one and Skip Wallace and his men are to be congratulated on their splendid showing.

In the primary last night between Bobcaygeon and the Aberdeen rink of Toronto, the score, at the close of the fourteenth end was 13 each. An extra end had to be played when Skip G. W. Read and his men of Bobcaygeon were one up, thus defeating Skip J. Richardson of the Aberdeens and his associates. There was great excitement during the last end, the final score being Bobcaygeon 14, Aberdeens 13.

A high tribute was paid to the newspaper press of Canada by Mr. A. H. U. Colquhoun, Deputy Minister of Education, in his address before the Daughters of the Empire at the Canadian Institute in Toronto recently. Mr. Colquhoun's subject was 'The Press of the British Empire," and he said that he considered the Canadian press, for sincerity, earnestness, and unselfishness, to be easily in the first rank in the Empire. The Canadian press was frank in its expression of opinion, but intelligent in its opinions, and the speaker knew no country where public opinion was so accurately reflected in its periodicals. Canadian papers were, perhaps, less brilliantly written than those of England, but they were nearer to the life of the people.

The cost of production was one of the greatest difficulties of a Canadian newspaper. High import duties had to be paid on inks, presses, and typesetting machines, though there was no justification of such a duty, as such machinery was not manufactured in Canada. Moreover, the Canadian press had to compete with hundreds of United States periodicals.

The great characteristic of the colonial, and especially of the Canadian press, was its free discussion of Imperial matters. Such freedom should be encouraged, and it would be found that the newspapers of Canada would be the most valuable and efficient agents for the cause of Imperial Federation.

In Australia the population was chiefly in the cities, thus producing wealthy and powerful newspapers. The tone of the great Australian dailies was very similar to that of the English ones; the problems were English problems transplanted—not new ones, as in Canada. They were rather heavy papers; not so readable as those of Canada.

Of the South African papers little was known in America, nor did they exert much influence outside the colony, though they were often well written and ably conducted.

The press of Great Britain the speaker considered to be the ablest in the world, as it was the oldest. Of recent years a certain amount of American disregard of accuracy has been introduced, and some American violence of tone, but, on the whole, the English press was likely to remain dignified, able, and respectable. It was one of the greatest influences which England was exerting upon the world.

Fire Did Damage in an Alymer Street Residence

Furniture Destroyed in Dining Room of Mr. J. E. Hodgson's Home—Mrs. Hodgson Injured in Fighting the Flames.

A fire that might have resulted disastrously, were it not for the presence of mind of Mrs. Hodgson, occurred this morning, at the home of Mr. J. E. Hodgson, collegiate institute teacher, who resides at 518 Aylmer street. As it was a chair and rug were completely destroyed, a sofa partially burned and other damage done in the dining room where the fire occurred. The fire was started in a most peculiar manner. Mrs. Hodgson was sitting before the grate in the dining room when a piece of coal, that was ignited, fell over the top of the grate and before she could do anything her skirt was on fire. The blaze also spread to the upholstered chair upon which she was sitting and was spreading rapidly. Mrs. Hodgson, did not lose her presence of mind, however, and seizing a couch cover that was lying near her, succeeded in smouldering the flames in her garments. This done, she turned her attention to the other burning objects in the room and securing some water was successful in putting out the fire. The chair was completely ruined and the couch was also burned to a considerable extent. A rug on the floor was also badly damaged.

Mrs. Hodgson's prompt action under the circumstances is most commendable. Had she attempted to secure help before trying to extinguish the fire, it would in all probability have meant the destruction of the house and other loss. She was alone in the house at the time and in fighting the fire, had her hands and hair, burned, but not seriously.

Farmers Want Horse Racing

At the Fall Fairs and Will Tell the Government So—Mr. Collins is an Auditor

Mr. Wm. Collins, who is in Toronto, representing the Peterborough Agricultural Society, at the annual meeting of the Fair and Exhibition Association, has been appointed one of the auditors. A despatch from Toronto says:

Toronto, Feb. 21.—The Fairs and Exhibition Association at its closing session yesterday, decided to have a deputation wait on the Hon. Mr. Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, to ask for such an amendment to the act relating to fairs as will permit the local fair directors to hold races or speeding contests if they so decide, but subject to such regulations as will prevent professional racers monopolizing the tracks and to effectively prohibit all gambling, pool selling and betting.

The following are the officers and the fairs they are directors [illegible] elected for this year,—William Laidlaw, Guelph, president; A. McDonald, Dufferin, 1st vice-president; H. A. MIDDLE LIFE

A Time When Women Are Susceptible to Many Dread Diseases—Intelligent Women Prepare for It. Two Relate Their Experiences.

Mrs. E. Powless

The "change of life" is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

Every woman who neglects the care of her health at this time invites disease and pain.

When her system is in a deranged condition, or she is predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of any organ, the tendency is at this period likely to become active—and with a host of nervous irritations, make life a burden. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness, inquietude, and dizziness are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system.

For special advice regarding this important period women are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and it will be furnished absolutely free of charge. The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely given to sick women.

Read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound did for Mrs. Powless and Mrs. Mann:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"In my opinion there is no medicine made for women which can compare with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and you have no firmer friend in the Dominion than I am. At the time of change of life I suffered until I was nearly crazy, and was not fit to live with. I was so irritable, irrational and nervous that I was a torment to myself and others. I surely thought that I would lose my reason before I got through, when fortunately an old friend recommended your Vegetable Compound. I took it for five months and then off and on until the critical period had passed, and it restored me to perfect health. My advice to suffering women is to try your Vegetable Compound, and they will not be disappointed."—Mrs. E. Powless, Deseronto, Ont.

Another Woman's Case.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"As I owe my splendid health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very pleased to write and tell you my experience with it. I am the mother of three children grown to womanhood, and have safely passed the change of life, and feel as young and as strong as I did twenty years ago, and I know that this is all due to your woman's friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I used it before my children were born, and it greatly assisted nature and saved me much pain during the change of life. I took it off and on, for four years, and had but little trouble and sickness that most women have to endure."—Mrs. James K. Mann, 806 Bathurst St., Toronto, Canada.

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Powless and Mrs. Mann, it will do for other women at this time of life.

It has conquered pain, restored health, and prolonged life in cases that utterly baffled physicians.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

An Increased Revenue for The Province of Ontario

Budget Will Show Surplus of Quite $300,000.

Mining Act Amendment Passes Second Reading — Will Put Liberal Bonus on All Ores Refined in Province — New Judicial District In Sudbury—Registry Act Amended—Powers of Municipal Boards.

Toronto, Feb. 22.—The long-anticipated day of Ontario's annual provincial stock-taking has been determined. The stalwart guardian of the cash chest, Hon. A. J. Matheson, will lay before the Legislature on Tuesday next the public accounts and estimates for the year, and will follow that procedure on Thursday by the Budget.

Flood Tide of Prosperity.

Mr. E. J. B. Pense, of Kingston, whom the Opposition have chosen as their financial critic, will reply.

It is believed the budget speech of the Provincial Treasurer will be of a remarkable character. It will indicate that Ontario is at the flood-tide of provincial prosperity and that the Government has exercised much sagacity in the handling of financial affairs.

Revenue Has Increased.

The ordinary revenue has been enormously increased and the receipts have been materially augmented by the increased license fees, the succession duties, the successful operation of the Government-owned Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, and other sources, not to mention the material increase to capital account in the mining land sales.

The prediction of Mr. J. H. Ferguson, of Grenville, in moving the reply to the speech from the throne, that the surplus would reach $300,000 for the year is considered conservative.

Important Measures Advanced.

Yesterday was Government day in the Legislature and several Ministerial measures of considerable importance were advanced on their stages toward the statute book.

Hon. Frank Cochrane secured a second reading to his bills to amend the mining act and to encourage the establishment of smelting works in the Province. The latter is of much importance.

Bonus on Refined Ore.

It is destined to put a liberal Government bonus on all ores refined in this Province, with a view to developing the industry here, rather than permitting a continuance of the present practice of shipping to the United States.

Mr. C. N. Smith, Liberal, Sault Ste. Marie, declared the measure would find favor all over the Province. He would go further and offer a bonus of $100,000 to capitalists who would erect and operate a smelter for all ores in Ontario.

The Minister of Mines, however, took the safe ground that such a move would not be sound. He preferred the fair way of paying these enterprises just for what they do.

Registry Act Amended.

Hon. Mr. Foy, the Attorney-General, introduced a bill to establish a new judicial district in Sudbury. He also put through the second reading of his enactment to amend the Registry Act by many needed improvements to the various registry offices recommended for years by the Government inspector.

To Inquire Into Rates.

Hon. Mr. Hendrie spoke on the second reading of the Government measure to amend the Ontario and Municipal Board Act.

It confers on the board powers under certain acts now exercised only by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council in respect to specifications and plans of railways. It also empowers the board to engage counsel at any time deemed necessary, and clothes it with power to enquire into, and report upon the rates charged by municipalities for service of utilities owned by them. It further gives the board the same powers in regard to arbitration under the municipal act of 1903, as are now held by county judges.

New Police Magistrate.

The Prime Minister, after the session, announced the appointment of Mr. Stuart Masson as Police Magistrate of Belleville, in succession to Mr. J. J. B. Flint, whose resignation takes effect on March 1st.

Liberal Majority Reduced.

London, Feb. 22.—The bye-election of a member to Parliament from the south division of Aberdeen, to replace James Bryce, who has been made British Ambassador to the United States, resulted in E. S. S. Lemon, Liberal, getting 3,779 votes; Ronald McNeil, Unionist, 3,412, and F. Bramley, Socialist, 1,740 votes. The result shows a great reduction in the Liberal majority.

Claim For Son's Death.

Essex, Feb. 22.—William Goodison has issued a writ against this town for $5,000 damages for the death of his son, Benjamin Goodison, which occurred Oct. 21 of last year. With a companion, young Goodison was driving along the street in Essex when the buggy wheel struck a pile of dirt, the horse taking fright and running away. He was thrown out and instantly killed.

Keyham Docks Opened.

Devonport, Eng., Feb. 22.—The great new Keyham docks, which complete the most important naval dock yards scheme of the British empire, were opened yesterday by the Prince of Wales with considerable ceremony.

The large gathering of warships sent here in honor of the occasion were dressed with bunting and the harbor was gay with flags.

Bolt Missing From Brake.

New York, Feb. 22.—D. W. Derring, conductor of the Brewster express, which was wrecked Saturday night, with the loss of 22 lives, testified before the state railroad commission that when the train left South Mount Vernon, 9 minutes late, a bolt was missing from a brake shoe.

MRS. THAW SHED TEARS

Jerome Flays Prisoner's Wife With Cruel Questions.

Witness Admits Her Relations With White Continued For Several Months—Says Champagne Did Not Taste Bitter—Refuses to Be Excused—Past Life Thoroughly Probed—Court Takes a Holiday.

New York, Feb. 22.—Under the stress of a cross-examination in which District Attorney Jerome gave no quarter, Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw broke down yesterday upon the witness stand.

With blinding tears burning their way down cheeks which, from ashen white, flushed to crimson, she admitted that after her first experience with Stanford White her relations with the architect continued several months.

Thaw, his face buried in his hands, might easily have been out of the courtroom picture to-day, for none would have missed him. All eyes were upon the witness chair, the slight woman in blue who sat in it.

During the morning yesterday, and at all times heretofore, Mrs. Thaw has had to rest on the edge of the chair in order that her feet might reach the floor. To make her more comfortable for the ordeal still before her, a footstool and back cushion were profided during the afternoon.

Adjourned Till Monday.

At the close of the most eventful day of the trial, Mr. Jerome announced that probably he would keep her under fire for two more days. Adjournment was taken until Monday morning, being a holiday (Washington's birthday.)

There was no subject affecting the witness of so intimate a nature that the district attorney hesitated to hold it before the gaze of the world, all the while requiring that she recognize and own the fault in her own damning words.

When Mr. Jerome was flaying the witness with questions as to her relations with White, carrying her from place to place, and demanding to know every detail, and while bitter tears were welling to her eyes, two newspaper women, accustomed to harsher scenes of life, left their places in the courtroom and made a hasty retreat out of the big portals.

Was Not Drugged.

At last the prosecutor himself relented somewhat and suggested that the proceedings be suspended. Mr. Delmas thought he detected an unfavorable slant to this and protested that the witness would be able to proceed. Mrs. Thaw wiped her eyes, stiffened up a bit and nodded to Mr. Jerome to go on.

After bringing out that her relations with White continued for some time, Mr. Jerome went deeper. Mrs. Thaw admitted with astonishing frankness that the champagne which she had declared tasted bitter the night she lost consciousness in the mirrored bedroom, was no more bitter than other champagne she ever drank. In fact, she declared it tasted like all the rest. She denied that she intended the jury to assume otherwise.

Mrs. Thaw made what was considered perhaps her most damaging statement to the defendant when she said she had showed Thaw copies of cablegrams that were being sent to Stanford White from Europe asking him to use his influence with a certain man in London to prevent Mrs. Nesbit from "raising a fuss," and from interfering with her daughter Evelyn remaining in the company of Thaw.

Financed by White.

Mrs. Thaw was also forced to admit that when she and her mother went abroad with Thaw in 1903 they were still drawing upon the bounty of Stanford White.

Mr. Jerome dwelt for a long while upon the cablegrams which Thaw is said to have sent to White. He brought out that the cablegrams were sent after Thaw knew of the relations which had existed between Miss Nesbit and the architect.

May Indict Witness.

There seemed to be nothing in the witness' past life of which the prosecutor was not informed.

But the sensations did not all come from the district attorney. Mr. Delmas sent a thrill through the courtroom by declaring that he had been informed was the purpose of Mr. Jerome to indict Mrs. Thaw. Mr. Jerome denied that any such statements had been made, but he did not deny such a purpose.

TRANSVAAL ELECTIONS.

Latest Returns Show Majority for Nationalists and Labor Combinations.

London, Feb. 22.—Though all the results are not yet to hand it is beyond doubt, according to The Daily Chronicle, that the Transvaal elections have resulted in a majority of 25 for the Hetvolk, Nationalist and Labor combination.

Out of the 15 members of the Upper House there are nine Progressives and two Hetvolk.

The results of the Transvaal elections has been received with a certain amount of disappointment by Liberal M. P.'s. On the whole the appointments to the Second Chamber are regarded with satisfaction. Hamar Greenwood states in The Daily Chronicle that the application of self-government would solve all the troubles of the Transvaal, and therefore he is not concerned which way the elections went.

License Inspector Dead.

Belleville, Feb. 22.—The death occurred Wednesday night of Michael J. Lally, for many years license inspector of East Hastings. He was 60 years of age and a well-known Liberal politician.

Shea Freed.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—After being out nearly four hours, the jury in the Shea trial returned a verdict of not guilty, last night.

The fifteen months' old daughter of Henry Hanna, of Hamilton, was drowned in a cistern yesterday.

WILL BE INVESTIGATED.

Charges Made by Mr. Fowler To Be Enquired Into Before the Close of the Session.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—Rising to a question of privilege yesterday, Mr. Bourassa deprecated as derogatory to the dignity of the House that such language should be used as was employed between Mr. Ross and Mr. Fowler. "Wine, women and graft" were mentioned, he said.

Mr. Speaker pointed out that Mr. Fowler was not in the House at the moment.

Mr. Bourassa, resuming, said the accusation of graft, formulated by one member of the House against another, should be investigated. (Hear, hear.) He thought it pertained to the dignity of the House that the Government should take the matter into their hands and make it clear that, if the accusations were true, they would be probed, and if not, they must be withdrawn. He, therefore, gave notice to Mr. Fowler that he would bring up the matter formally upon the most propitious occasion.

"I would ask the member to prosecute his investigations further," said Mr. Foster, "and he will find that a number of others have used the same insinuations since the session commenced."

Then W. H. Bennett took the floor. He said that on Feb. 7 Mr. Carvell had made certain insinuations against him with reference to certain lands he and others had purchased in the Northwest, and he (Bennett) had challenged him to bring on his accusation. That was on Feb. 7, and Mr. Carvell had not had the manliness to bring up the matter since.

Exchange of Compliments.

Mr. Carvell (Liberal, N. B.) contributed to the gaiety of the occasion by suggesting that "from some sources the vilest words which can possibly be framed are more a credit to those against whom they are directed than otherwise, and I think the hon. member from East Simcoe (Mr. Bennett) fully answers that description."

Bourassa Resumes.

At this point Mr. Fowler entered the chamber, and Mr. Bourassa resumed his attack upon Mr. Fowler.

He quoted Mr. Fowler's charge that the Minister of Justice had provided certain Government members with advance copies of the evidence in connection with the Insurance Commission, and said such charges and insinuations should be proved, and either proved or disproved.

Unfortunate Says Premier.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that he had not made up his mind that at this moment the time had come for the House to take any action upon the matter which has been brought to its attention. But it goes without saying that the session cannot close without this matter being brought to the attention of the House. For my part, I believe that we should wait until we have the report of the Insurance Commission, then the whole matter can be threshed out."

Borden Wants Truth.

R. L. Borden agreed that any charge touching the fitness of any man to be a member of the House or a Minister of the Government should be brought forward only by way of formal charge. Still, it must be remembered that insinuations had been cast upon Mr. Fowler and others without provocation, and it was natural enough that Mr. Fowler should have retorted. He agreed with the Prime Minister that it was impossible that the session should close without the charges which had been insinuated either being withdrawn or adjudicated upon.

Mr. Fowler admitted that he would not have said what he had but for the fact that he had been goaded to it.

Vote of Censure Lost.

On motion to go into supply, Mr. Herron (Alberta) called the attention of the House to the granting of grazing leases to favorites of the Government. An amendment was moved censuring the Government for the grazing lease granted to the Galway Horse & Cattle Co. Mr. Adamson (Humbolt) belonged to this company and his brother-in-law, Mr. Turiff, M. P., was at that time land commissioner.

Mr. Oliver defended the Department. He admitted that perhaps the $2,400 back rent should have been collected, but individual errors would occur in a vast Department like his.

Upon division the amendment censuring the Government was voted down—Yeas, 46; nays, 80.

HYMAN AGAIN NOMINATED.

Illness Was of Genuine and Severe Character.

London, Feb. 22.—Nominated by T. H. Purdom, K.C., and seconded by M. Masuret, Hon. Charles S. Hyman, was last night unanimously appointed the candidate for the Liberal party for the coming elections in this city. George G. Gibbons, K.C., was most emphatic in stating that Mr. Hyman's illness was of a genuine and severe character. The Premier's request to Mr. Hyman to reconsider his resignation could not be forwarded to the latter for some time, as the physicians in attendance would allow no business to interfere with the Hon. Charles' recovery.

It was announced that Hon. Mr. Hyman will not be present during the election.

Mr. Hyman's Resignation.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—The privileges and elections committee of the House of Commons met yesterday morning to consider the validity of Hon. C. S. Hyman's resignation from the House.

A motion was carried for the production of all letters relative to this resignation that have passed between Mr. Hyman and any of his colleagues or with the Speaker. It was decided to meet again on Thursday of next week.

Czar Still Lives.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 22.—The reports spread abroad yesterday that the Emperor and Empress had been assassinated are utterly without foundation.

There was not even a rumor of the kind here until it was telegraphed from London.

Fire destroyed the boot and shoe warehouse of Daoust, Lalonde & Co, on St. Paul street, Montreal.

BY CHARLES GARVICE

He was not altogether disinterested in his objection to their company, for the poor fellow was rather glad to be alone with his disappointment. The proximity of the woman one loves but cannot win is at times a torture well nigh intolerable. So Sutcombe went up again to the valley, there to fight, as best he could, the great disappointment of his life.

It was a lovely valley and as solitary as it was beautiful. There was no sound besides that of Sutcombe's pick and spade and the rattle of the rock and stones as they fell beneath his strokes. Now and again a bird flew high up in the sky or whirled close above his head, its bright eyes scanning this intruder on its solitude with a curiosity in which fear had no share, and a lizard crawled out of its cranny to blink at him.

But for his thoughts and his work Sutcombe would have found the intense solitude and silence oppressive, but they soothed him with that balm which Nature holds out to those of her children who are wounded at heart.

He had been working for some hours since he had stopped to eat the lunch Nina had packed up for him in the empty gold bag, and was resolving that he would work for another half hour before he stopped for the day, and he took out his watch to see the time.

While he was looking at it he was conscious of a strange feeling, the sensation which comes to us when we feel a presence that we have neither heard nor seen. Oppressed by this curious consciousness, he looked over his shoulder and saw the figure of a man seated on a rock just above him.

The man sat, with his chin resting on his hands, his elbows upon his knees, so calmly, so absolutely like a statue, that Sutcombe was half inclined to believe himself the victim of a delusion, so much so that he straightened himself and stared speechlessly at the figure.

He saw that the man was young, but thin and somewhat haggard. He was dressed in quite a rough seasuit, but his hands, though tanned, like his face, with the sun, and roughened by the water and the wind, were those of a gentleman. But it was the eyes and not the hands which held Sutcombe's regard, so full of half cynical, half bitter amusement were they.

Sutcombe found his voice at last.

"Hello, sir!" he said, lifting his cap.

The man raised his hat in response.

"How do you do?" he said, gravely.

"Where—where did you come from?" asked Sutcombe. "I did not see you, know you were there!"

The man jerked his head slowly toward the coast behind him.

"I landed from a fishing-yawl half an hour ago, from that side of the island."

There was silence while one could count twenty; then the newcomer said as quietly and as gravely as before:

"You are gold digging, I presume?"

"I am," replied Sutcombe.

"And you are fortunate, I see?"

"I am—very," assented Sutcombe.

"I congratulate you," said the stranger, in a tone which had no trace of envy in it; indeed, it was indicative of an indifference that surprised Sutcombe. "But you would be still more fortunate if you worked further up the valley."

Sutcombe stared at him.

"You—you know the island; have you been here before?"

The faintest and grimmest of smiles shone for a moment in the other man's eyes.

"Yes, I know the island; I have been here before," he said, quietly. "Is this your first visit?"

Sutcombe nodded.

"Yes. Are you alone, sir?"

"Yes, I am quite alone." He smiled as if he read Sutcombe's fear. "You need not be afraid. I shall keep your secret. And I have no desire to share in your find. I've no use for gold."

Sutcombe looked at him with amazement.

"That's a strange statement," he said, gravely. "Most men, every man, wants money!"

"Please regard me as the exception which proves the rule," was the courteous response. "Gold is only worth what it will buy; it can buy me nothing that I desire. May I ask to whom I have the pleasure of speaking?"

"My name's Sutcombe," said Sutcombe.

The stranger nodded. "Lord Sutcombe, of Southernwood?"

"Well, yes; Southernwood was mine—I sold it."

"You can now buy it back, Lord Sutcombe, if you desire to do so," said the stranger, looking at the bag of gold. "You are a millionaire—of the English variety. My name is—Richard Mortimer," he added. "I am on a fishing and shooting expedition—a solitary one, and happened to make this island in the course of my cruise. Have you a match upon you?"

Sutcombe handed his match-box.

"May I take half a dozen? Thanks! I must be getting back to my boat." He rose and picked up the gun which had lain at his feet, and raised his wide-brimed hat. But Sutcombe put out his hand arrestingly.

"One moment, Mr. Mortimer," he said. "You know this island, and the secret of the gold. May I ask if—if any others know of it? I just want to know what to expect."

"No other living person is aware of it—but one," said Richard Mortimer, "and I do not think you have anything to fear from that person. Certainly you have nothing to fear from me. So far as I am concerned you are welcome to the island and all it contains. Good day."

"Wait!" said Sutcombe, sharply. His face had grown pale, his eyes keen and suspicious. "Do you mind telling me the name of that other person, sir?"

Mr. Richard Mortimer regarded the flushed face, the suspicious eyes, thoughtfully.

"Yes, I do mind," he replied. "I have an objection."

"It is a woman?" said Sutcombe.

Richard Mortimer's face reddened and his eyes grew darker.

"You are at liberty to guess," he said, curtly.

Sutcombe dropped the spade upon which he had been leaning and advanced a step or two toward the other man.

"The only other person who knows of this island and its wealth is a lady," he said.

"To whom you are indebted for your information—and your fortune." The retort came like a flash.

Sutcombe reddened again.

"That is true," he said, gravely. "Her name is Wood, Decima Wood. You know her?"

Richard Mortimer shook his head. "I know of no lady bearing that name," he said. Then, suddenly, his manner changed to one of suppressed eagerness. "She may have borne another. Perhaps you can describe her?"

"She has dark hair and grey eyes—they are sometimes violet. She was wrecked in the Alpina—"

A faint cry rose from Mortimer and he threw up his head as a man does when he has received a sudden shock. Sutcombe smiled bitterly.

"You appear to be startled," he said, sternly. "Shall I go too far if I suggest you know the lady, and that she has reason to regret the day she met you?" He did not need any answer. Instinctively he felt that the man who was the cause of Decima's unhappiness, who held the key to her secret, stood before him. "You also were wrecked in the Alphina. Do you deny it?"

"I assent to, I deny, nothing," said Richard Mortimer. "If—if you can give me any information respecting that lady—"

"I can and will," cut in Sutcombe. "She is well and happy"—oh, Sutcombe!—"and is guarded and watched over by friends who—who will protect her happiness by any and every means—"

The other man stood erect, his tanned face set and stern.

"I presume I may count on you as the lady's chief friend, Lord Sutcombe."

"You may," retorted Sutcombe, promptly. "And that being so, I avail myself of the privilege to tell you that, if you are the man I suspect you to be, you are a heartless scoundrel!"

Vane, otherwise Richard Mortimer, stood for a moment as if turned to stone; then he smiled.

"Lord Sutcombe, I have learned from you that the lady we both have in mind is alive. Compared with such knowledge, all else is trivial. Alive! And happy, you say? Thank God! Think me what you will. It is a matter of indifference to me. Stop! You say the—the lady is happy. Let her remain so! Do not tell her that you have met me! I am going down to my boat. In less than half an hour I shall have sailed from the island; and I give you my word that I shall never revisit it; that, in all probability, I shall never cross your, or her, path again. Good day, Lord Sutcombe!"

Sutcombe nodded acquiescingly; but he gnawed at his moustache as if in doubt.

He was an honorable man, and the falsehood he had told rankled in his bosom. He had said that Decima was well and happy, whereas she was fretting after this Richard Mortimer who had turned up in such an extraordinary fashion. Was it not his duty to bring them together? The man had been startled when he had heard that she was alive, had seemed as if he cared. The struggle raged within Sutcombe's mind for a minute or two; then he said, hoarsely:

"Stop! I—I can't let you go like this. I wish to heaven you had not come here, that we hadn't met; but we have and—I told you an untruth just now when I said Miss Wood was happy. She is not."

Vane looked at him gravely, intently.

"She is fretting over something that has happened in the past, something in which you were concerned. I think it would be as well if you were to meet her. She is here on this island."

Vane started and went white. There was silence for a full minute, then he said, hoarsely:

"It would do no good; a meeting with me would only cause the lady pain—"

"In a word," cut in Sutcombe, hotly, "you are afraid to meet her. You have behaved so badly that you shrink from facing her. It is as I suspected. You are a coward, Mr. Mortimer."

Vane's face went white, but he bit his lip and, breathing hard, restrained himself.

"Yes," he said, quietly, "I am a coward—but not quite the same kind you think me, Lord Sutcombe."

"I'm not good at making nice distinctions of that sort," retorted Sutcombe, fiercely. "A man who slinks off as you are doing is a common or garden coward who deserves horse-whipping. I've no whip, but—"

Half mad with anger and the bitterness borne of the situation, he caught up a bit of a branch of a tree which he had been using, and made to strike Vane across the face; but Vane, dropping his gun, caught Sutcombe's arm and averted the blow. Sutcombe endeavored to wrench himself from the steel-like grasp; and almost before they knew it the two men were struggling. They were equally matched in strength and skill, but the gun, which they had disregarded, played a third hand. One of the men must have stepped on the trigger, for there was a flash and report; and, half blinded, Sutcombe felt Vane's grip relax and saw him stagger back.

CHAPTER XXIII.

In an instant the madness of anger passed from Sutcombe's brain and remorsefully he supported the man whom a moment or two before he had been endeavoring to throw.

"Are you hurt?" he asked, anxiously.

Vane tried to smile and answer in the negative, but before he could do so he fainted. Sutcombe laid him down and, getting out a brandy flask, managed to get some spirit through the clenched teeth; and presently, to his immense relief, the wounded man came to.

"I'm afraid you're badly hurt!" said Sutcombe. "I am very sorry! It was an accident. One of us trod on the gun—"

"I know, I know!" said Vane, promptly, though faintly. "The bullet—fortunately it was a bullet and not shot!—struck me in the shoulder. There's—there's no great harm done. A little more brandy, please! Thank you! If you can help me to the boat—it's no great distance—a drink of water and I shall be well enough to manage it—there is something with which we can get the bullet out, if it's there still."

Sutcombe got some water in his panikin and Vane took a long pull and struggled to his feet.

"I can get some help if you could wait," suggested Sutcombe; but Vane frowned and shook his head.

"No need. If you will give me your arm— Thanks! We are all right now!"

The distance from the scene of the tragi-comedy to the boat seemed interminable to Sutcombe, more so probably than it did to Vane, who was only weak and not in pain; but they got there at last, and Vane, throwing himself down on the beach, told Sutcombe where to find in the boat the things he wanted.

The yawl was a trim little vessel with an apology for a cabin roughly but ingeniously fitted up for its solitary skipper. And Sutcombe saw at a glance that it was the boat and cabin of a gentleman. He found the small leather case of instruments and some bandages, and he quickly had Vane's shoulder bare.

"The bullet has gone through the flesh and out in an upward direction; it's a clean wound," he said.

"So I thought," said Vane. "If you can stop the bleeding— It's not the first time you have rendered 'first aid,' I see, Lord Sutcombe," he added, as Sutcombe deftly staunched the blood and bandaged the wound. "My only pang is one of hunger. There is a tin of soup in the galley for'ard—and—"

Sutcombe got it and heated it at the spirit stove and brought it, with some bread, to his patient.

"Join me," said Vane. "If we break bread together we sha'n't be able to quarrel again. Don't look so cut up, my dear fellow! It was as much my fault as yours; more, in fact. I'd no business here—"

Sutcombe shook his head.

"I have an impression that you have more right to be here, to the whole of the island, than any one, excepting—"

"Miss—Wood, you called her," said Vane. He knew intuitively that this handsome young fellow was his rival, and yet he could not help liking him. "I wonder," he went on, ruminatingly, "what, how much, she has told you, Lord Sutcombe? I wonder also whether you would mind telling me. You came here with her—"

"Miss Wood brought me and my sister. We came in my yacht, the Ariel. We had lost a large sum of money, nearly all we possess, and Miss Wood, knowing of the gold on the island, conceived the idea of 'repaying' us for some imaginary kindness on our part—quite imaginary."

"It was like her," murmured Vane.

"What did you say?"

"Nothing. I was speaking to myself; a bad habit I have acquired through having no one else to speak to."

"Miss Wood was cast ashore here from the wreck of the Alpina," resumed Sutcombe. "Her experiences must have been painful, so painful, indeed, that she has never spoken of them."

Vane's head drooped. He was disappointed. Painful, indeed, seeing that she had never mentioned his name, for if she had done so Lord Sutcombe would have known that "Richard Mortimer" was a false one. It was evident that she still disliked him, still regarded her forced marriage with regret and resentment. He stifled a sigh.

"Thank you," he said. "I wish I could be as candid as you have been, Lord Sutcombe, but my lips are closed. I will go on board and set sail presently, and, as I told you, I shall not return to the island." He paused a moment, then he said: "We both rather played the giddy goat just now. Like a couple of schoolboys, eh, Lord Sutcombe? Just as well, perhaps, if we confined the knowledge of that absurd little scene to ourselves?" Sutcombe regarded him silently and Vane went on: "If you think you got the better of the business you can equalize matters by promising that you will not tell—the ladies anything of the affair, or of my presence on the island."

Sutcombe considered for a moment or two.

"I will—on one condition," he said. "That you give me your word of honor that the lady I call Miss Wood has no cause of complaint against you."

Vane looked surprised. "I assent to your condition, Lord Sutcombe. She has none. I have not willingly injured the lady in word or thought or deed. There is my hand on it!"

Sutcombe took it and nodded gravely.

"There is some mystery which I cannot solve," he said in a low voice. "But I believe you and trust you. But you cannot sail at once, you are not fit. The risk—oh, it is impossible! Remain here until tomorrow. I will come about noon; and if I find that you are well enough—well!" he shrugged his shoulders.

After a while Vane reluctantly agreed to the arrangement.

"Now, I don't want to seem inhospitable," he said, "but isn't it time you got back to the ladies? They will be anxious about you."

When Sutcombe had gone Vane sat with his chin on his hands, gazing before him; the bitterness that welled up in his heart reflected in his eyes.

He thought he saw it all so plainly. This man, with the frank blue eyes and pleasant manner, was evidently in love with Nina, and she—of course she returned his love. Why not? Was he not the sort of young fellow any girl might love? And he, Vane, stood between them; in short, barred their happiness and wrecked their lives. It was the irony of fate that he should be doomed to be the marplot, the obstacle to other persons' happiness. He had stood between Julian and the Lesborough peerage; he had stood between Julian and Judith. But he had, by the aid of Chance, effaced himself in their case. Could he not efface himself in this one? Why not? He pondered, with an increasing bitterness, for hours, and at last he arrived at something like a decision. He still felt faint with the loss of blood, and very tired, and, lying down, with his arm for a pillow, he fell asleep.

Sutcombe had promised to return by five, but he did not arrive, and as the half hours dragged on with no sight of him, the girls, Vivienne especially, grew uneasy.

"Do you think anything could have happened to him?" she said anxiously. "He is usually so careful not to be late, knowing that we should be alarmed. Think of him all alone there, dear!"

"I don't think anything has happened to him," said Nina, but I will soon find out."

"Decima! You wouldn't go out there alone!" exclaimed Vivienne fearfully and yet half wistfully.

"Why not?" said Nina, with a smile. "I have often been as far on the island alone, and I am not afraid; indeed, there is nothing to be afraid of. We three are alone here and there are no animals more wild than the ducks and the poor turtles. Of course I shall go—no, you could not come, it would be too far. I shall probably meet Lord Sutcombe close at home. Don't let the stew burn while I am away!" she added with a laugh as she left the saloon.

She walked quickly toward the valley, and would have met Sutcombe if he had been returning from the spot at which he had been working, but he was coming from the direction of the coast, and so she missed him. When she reached the working and found that he was not there, she felt rather alarmed. She stood looking round her anxiously, and saw the footmarks leading in the direction of the beach. Still more anxious, she followed them for some distance, and presently, to her amazement, caught sight of the yawl. She stopped dead short, her heart beating rapidly. What did it mean? Evidently some persons had discovered the island and had come upon Lord Sutcombe! Had they taken him away with them, or had he gone of his own accord? It would be of no use going back to alarm Vivienne; she, Nina, must learn what had become of Lord Sutcombe before she did anything else.

Keeping behind the boulders as much as possible, she approached the yawl and was amazed at finding no sign of life about it. After a time she plucked up courage and stole towards it, her eyes fixed upon it, so that she came quite suddenly and unprepared upon the figure lying full length upon the ground.

She uttered a cry and sprang back, her eyes distending with fear, her breath coming painfully. The man was asleep, his face half hidden in his arms; but there seemed to her something familiar in the figure, and with her heart throbbing like a steam engine, she stole nearer and nearer. Then she saw him distinctly, and the throbbing seemed to cease suddenly and a mist swam before her terrified eyes.

It was Vane Mannering.

For a moment or two she thought that her senses had played her false, that she was the victim of a delusion born of her constant dwelling upon him and some similarity in the sleeping man to the man she loved; but as she crept nearer still and bent over him, she saw that it was indeed Vane.

In an instant Time became a thing of naught and was destroyed, and she was back to that other night long ago when she had bent over him in the saloon, and, waking, he had caught her by the arm and hurt her in his fierce grasp; but as swiftly the present returned to her, and all that had happened since that night yawned like a gulf between.

Then, as she looked, she saw the empty sleeve, the blood-stained bandage on the shoulder, and a thrill of alarm, of pity, ran through her. Vane here, and wounded! Why had he come? What fate had drifted him back to the island and thrown him, so to speak, at her feet? Why had he come? Why had he left the woman he loved, the beautiful woman she had seen in the box at the theatre, the "Judith" whose portrait he had carried next his heart? Had he come in search of her, Nina? Had he come because the memories of the island had haunted him as they had haunted her?

The blood ran warmly and swiftly through her veins and rose to her face. For a moment she hugged the thought to her bosom, and her heart beat with something that was like happiness. The desire to look into his eyes, to hear him speak, assailed her irresistibly. She bent still lower and touched his forehead with her lips, then drew back, breathless and expectant, half fearful, half hopeful.

Light as the touch of her lips had been, the pressure of a thistledown only, it awoke him. He opened his eyes, with a vague and dazed expression in them at first; then, as full consciousness came back to him, he stared at her with a perplexed frown as if he could not believe that it was really her.

"Nina!"

She stood, her hands clasped but ready to be thrown round his neck, her figure standing upright, but as ready to fall on his breast. And, indeed, he did extend his arms as if to take to him, did take a step towards her; then, as if some thought, some remembrance, had thrust itself upon him, he stopped short, and his arms fell to his sides, and, instead of words of love, of endearment, which would have brought her to him never to be put away from him again, came the hoarse, broken words, like the dropping of icicles on her expectant spirit, longing for a softer tone, a loving word:

"I—I am glad you are here. I wanted to see you—speak to you!"

First Meeting Last Night—Mr. Wm. Langford is Chairman

The first meeting of the new Court of Revision was held last night when Mr. Wm. Langford was elected chairman. The other two members, Mr. B. Morrow and Mr. E. A Dixon, are both new members and were introduced to their duties. It was a very long session for the Court of Revision, but there has been no meeting for two or three months and a long list of little matters had accumulated. The Board, however, works well together and the slate was cleared off before they adjourned. Mr. S. R. Armstrong, city clerk, is again secretary of the Board.

Was Death Due to Poisoning?

More Particulars About Tragic Affair at Garden Hill

Port Hope Times.—Nothing further has developed in regard to the death of James and Katherine McMullen, who were found dead in their home at Garden Hill last week. An examination by Dr. McKinley disclosed a small punctured wound on the back of the man's head. He was found lying on the floor near the door, from which the draught blew on to his head. His sister lay on the kitchen floor covered over with blankets, but not on the mattress which were beside the kitchen stove, and from which the blankets had been taken to cover her. The cat lay dead under the blankets beside the woman. In one of the bedrooms was a bed which had evidently been recently occupied.

Dr McKinley gave a verdict that death was due to cold. He thinks that probably the woman succumbed first, and that her brother covered her over, and while going for assistance himself fell and struck his head on the stove, and finally died from the cold. The facts were reported to the county crown attorney, who was satisfied with the report and gave it as his opinion that there was no possibility of any crime having been committed, and no necessity for an inquest.

Death probably occurred on Tuesday. A lamp filled with oil was found unlighted in the house, which might indicate that the disaster did not occur at night. The horse and cattle had eaten everything within reach and were hungry. They had probably not been fed for a couple of days. Dr. McKinley found nothing that would indicate poisoning, although he thinks that some form of poisoning is not impossible. He says that he cannot satisfactorily explain the death of the cat. Cats will survive a great deal of cold, and he was surprised to find the cat dead and the dog living. A theory that the man and woman partook of some poisonous food and gave some to the cat, and that this afterwards proved fatal is not impossible, although nothing was found to substantiate it.

The old people had been residents of the neighborhood for many years. Their farm consisted of 25 acres. Their house was a comfortable one, and they were in good financial circumstances. Mrs. Brooks, of Cavan township, is a sister. A will was left by each of the old people, James leaving his property to Katherine, and Katherine's will being in her brother's favor. The executors are Thomas Leith and Robert Woods.

The funeral of Katherine and James McMullen took place on Friday afternoon, from the homestead, at Campbellcroft, to Gardner Church, and cemetery, which is situated a mile and a half out of Millbrook. The neighboring farmers attended in large numbers, there being about 40 carriages in the procession. Mr. [illegible], curate of Millbrook church conducted the services at the church The bearers were Thos. Leith, Fred Wood, John Campbell, Fred. Armstrong, J. Fair and Jas. Gray.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Peterborough Agricultural Society was held yesterday afternoon in the city council chamber. This work is about complete now and while some of the prizes were reduced and some classes cut out it is generally felt the prize list is much more satisfactory to all concerned.

The members present were; President, Ald. R. H. Leary; Messrs. J. J. Turner, Samuel Redmond, Wm. Stewart, Geo. Elliott, J J Brooks, W. Conway, J. Dawson Kennedy and John Garbutt.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

Mr. Garbutt said that Mr. Telford wished, for personal reasons to drop off the board and he suggested that Mr. John Young be appointed in his place.

A communication was received from the Ontario Agricultural Department, asking if this society wished any expert judges this year from the department. Their charges were $8.00 per day. The society felt however, that they could get their own judges at a much less figure.

The departmental communication also stated that one judge took all classes of horses, one dairy cattle and swine and one poultry and sheep Others also took ladies' work, farm produce, etc. The department asked to be notified at once as they wanted to make up their lists. If they could form circuit of three shows or more the departmental judge would be furnished for $6.00.

On motion of Messrs. Kennedy and Stewart the society decided to appoint their own judges.

A communication from the secretary of the Whitby Agricultural Society was received congratulating the Peterborough Society upon the recommendation of having the show open to only four counties.

Mr. J. M. Brooks expressed the opinion that the show should, not be closed, but left open to the whole country. It would make the local people hustle around and get better stock.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. John Garbutt read the report from the sub-committee appointed to revise the horse list, as follows;

Entrance fees were reduced from $2.00 for pairs to $1.50 and single horses from $1.50 to $1.00.

Prizes were reduced to $10, $8 and $5 for pairs, and single horses $8, $6 and $4, instead of $16, $12 and $8 for pairs, and $12, $8 and $6 for singles.

Ladies' saddle-horse class was cut out and lady driver was substituted.

The three-year-old breeding class was cut out, also single heavy draught horse and single agricultural horse; also the three saddle horse classes were cut out, leaving it at just saddle horse.

The two classes in special farmers' classes, viz., pairs roadsters, trotter, over and under 15 hands were made into one class, viz., pair of farmers' roadsters.

CATTLE, SHEEP, SWINE AND POULTRY

The sub-committee on the revision of the prize list on cattle reported, recommending the following changes;

Herfords, Durhams and Galloways remain the same; that Aberdeen-Angus be made the same as Herfords; in grades entry fee for cow be $1 and classes 76 and 80 be cancelled.

In dairy cattle Ayrshires were adopted In Holsteins, the prizes were to be same as Ayrshires; also the Jersey class. Dairy grade classes, prizes were reduced. Sheep classes were all adopted. Swine classes were all adopted, with the entrance fees reduced to 25c.

Poultry classes. — Entrance fee of 25c with third prize added of 25c.

On motion it was recommended that the Board should rescind the motion respecting unlimited entries; also it was recommended that the area from which entries are received be limited to the counties of Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough, and Victoria.

On motion the report was adopted except the recommendation to rescind the limit clause.

LADIES' WORK.

Mrs. Birdsall's report on ladies' work and fine arts was read making several changes and it was adopted.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

The next matter taken up was the revision of the rules and regulations. As there have been many changes made already Mr. Garbutt recommended that a committee be appointed to go over the whole lot.

In regard to the color of the prize cards it was decided to change the colors to red for first prize, blue for second prize and white for third prize.

The committee which will revise the rules and regulations will also appoint the committees of management and report to the Board at its next meeting.

SPECIAL PRIZES

Mr Wm. Stewart asked why it would not be advisable to have a number of special prizes. He thought that a great many persons would gladly give goods or cash for that purpose. This met with the approval of all present and the committee on rules and regulations will take it up.

The same committee will also canvass for advertisements for the prize list.

Mr Dawson Kennedy notified the Board of Fair Directors that Mr. Wm. Yelland had decided to give a cash prize for a dog race at the fair next fall. He desired the announcement to be made now, so that the boys could get their dogs in condition.

The dog race last year was one of the most amusing features of the special attractions. The crowd was greatly enthused over the event. There were three heats of half a mile each and the dogs furnished a whole lot of fun.

Another suggestion was made by Mr. J. J. Turner that a special prize be offered for a carter's race. This race, whenever it was on the programme, created a great deal of excitement and it would no doubt prove a good drawing card this year.

Sixteen Degrees Below Last Night

How are You Standing the Present Weather?

The big snow storm of Wednesday night was followed by extremely cold and windy weather.

Last night the government thermometer touched sixteen degrees below zero, and, at the reading at seven o'clock this morning, it had dropped two degrees lower—to eighteen below.

At noon today the mercury stood at four beneath the zero mark.

Yes! Its cold—very cold and there is no use telling you more about it. Just take a walk of a few blocks or meet half a dozen friends and you will not be allowed to forget very long the frigidity of the atmosphere.

Who Will be Inspector for the Government on the Armories

Grit Heelers Warming Up for a Fight—Many Applications Already in—Job Offered to an Alderman But He Turned it Down—He Wants More Money.

There is excitement in the Grit camp, and the usual stormcloud, which invariably threatens to burst whenever there is an appointment to be made by the Dominion Government, is looming up in the horizon. In fact, the cloud is directly overhead and has commenced its downward flight. There will be an appointment made soon, probably two if the heelers raise too much dust. To fill this one job there are a dozen or so men, who have served their party long and well, after it. They are all sure they will get it, and threaten dire results if they do not

All the trouble has been stirred up because the Dominion Government has awarded the tender for the new armories to be erected here. The Government will require an inspector on the work, and for this job there is far more wire pulling and lobbying and anxiety than there was over getting the contract. The sit will be worth $3.00 per day, although more than that will probably be paid. Men of all classes and walks in life have been worrying the local member and others who have influence at Ottawa, until now it is announced that two officials will be appointed. One will be clerk of the works at a good, big salary, and the other will be inspector under him at a fair salary.

It is stated on the very best authority, that one of the aldermen of this city was offered the position of inspector, but he turned it down, because there was not enough money in it. He is a man of well known ability. He has been many years a contractor and he knows all about the building trade. He is also one of the most level headed men in the city, and the Government could not find a better man to do the work. But the alderman can make more money building houses than the Government offered him. He has been a strong supporter of the party all his life and his father and grandfather before him. He has every claim in the world on the job, and the party would like to give it to him. For this reason and because so many other hungry office seekers demand recognition, it is said the alderman will be asked to act as clerk of the work and another man will be made inspector.

Just when the appointment will be made has not yet been announced. It probably depends upon the time the contractor gets ready to start his work. But the longer the Government puts off the evil day, the more applications will be put in and more numerous will become the hunger of the heelers. If the battle continues to grow warmer, there is every prospect of a lot of hard things being said about the local member and the Grit party.

AMUSEMENTS

THE GIRL PATSY.

The comedy drama, "The Girl Patsy," was the offering at the Grand opera house last night and was much appreciated. The company has received unstinted praise in Montreal, Ottawa and other cities and certainly did not disappoint the patrons of the Grand last evening. Miss June Mathis as "The Girl Patsy," is brought up amid undesirable and squalid surroundings, being stolen at her birth from Judge Clifford's home by a housemaid who left her own offspring in her place. The housemaid's daughter was for many years recognized as the talented and charming daughter of the Judge, while poor Patsy, ignorant of the nobility and favorable surroundings of her birth was brought up by a deceptive and scheming sister of the housemaid, who died soon after leaving Judge Clifford's home. Miss Mathis, in the title role, by her talent, fidelity and conscientiousness scored a distinct success. The support on the whole was admirable and the scenes, which are laid New York city are very pretty. The comedy element was furnished by Mr. John Morris, as the bibulous, but good hearted Jasper Mussetwhite, and by Miss Lola Downin, as the old maid, Miss Pricklett, who was engaged only once, but her lover committed suicide before the wedding day. Miss Pricklett's choice maxim was "There are more women married now than are doing well."

Mr. Francis Herblin, as the artist, Noel Heritage, in love with Patsy, Miss Lonetta Harris, as the scheming, aristocratic and ambitious Mrs. Heritage, Noel's mother, Miss Jane Tree as Placide, the knowing and discreet French maid, and Mr W. Clinton Hamilton, as John Wilkins, the servant who finally eloped and married Judge Clifford's supposed daughter, all portrayed their respective parts in a manner that called for hearty applause. The cast was an unusually strong one throughout and it is regrettable that a much larger house did not greet the superior production, which is full of heart interest and replete with unromantic incidents of every day life.

TWEED WATERWORKS

Mr. Perkins, who is in the employ of the Nichols Chemical Company and has just completed a report for the company on a system of waterworks for their large plant near Tweed, is engaged this week taking some levels in town towards a partial report on a system of waterworks and sewerage for the village. It is quite possible that a company may be formed to put in a system of waterworks here or that the Nichols Chemical Company may take the matter in hand.—Tweed News.

Ward System of Voting is Better Than General Vote

Excellent Debate in the Conservative Club Rooms—Splendid Speeches by Both Sides—Many Strong Points Brought Out—Euchre Party Next Thursday Night.

"The ward system for electing aldermen is better in the interests of the whole city than the system of general voting now in vogue in Peterborough," is the decision of the Young Conservative Club, based entirely upon the arguments produced in the debate last night.

There was a good attendance at the club rooms, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the evening's programme. Before the debate those present were favored with vocal selections by Mr. Firth and Mr. Coleman, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Rumney.

Next Thursday night a progressive euchre party will be given by the Club, and it is to be hoped a very large attendance will be present. Two prizes are offered for the purpose of creating greater interest in the game.

THE DEBATE.

President J. H. Burnham occupied the chair. The question which occupied the attention of the speakers was: Resolved,—"That the Ward System of electing Aldermen is preferable to the system of General Voting." The affirmative was taken by Dr. Morrison as leader, Mr. E. A. Peck and Mr. Peter Gardiner, while the negative was taken by Mr. F. H. Dobbin as leader, and Ald. Arthur Stevenson and Mr. Robert Layfield.

Dr. Morrison made a very telling speech, in which he pointed out that municipal government should come the nearest to the British idea of government by the people of all other forms of government. The alderman should have his hand upon the pulse of the people, and the best way to be in that position is to have very small constituencies. The general system tends to elect men from the centre of the city, while the outskirts are unrepresented. "By the ward system his ward has two or more representatives who are minutely in touch with the needs of that particular district, and a general interest in the welfare of the whole city. He claimed there would be a better distribution of money over the city's streets, and that the streets would be kept in much better condition. Better men, he said, would be brought out, because they were sure of election without canvassing.

Mr. Dobbin, in opening, said there were three essential features to be remembered, viz., the vote, the voter and the object. The vote is a man's franchise, and it is given to him to exercise for the general good of the community, and not for some petty, selfish purpose. By combining the votes the result is power, while separating them means weakness. The ward system tends to set one ward against another. The representatives of Ward One will support Ward Two in getting a drain, if Ward Two will help Ward One to get a new bridge, etc., which will very frequently tie up the work of the whole city. By the ward system it is the man popular in local circles that is elected, and he may be a very poor legislator. By the general system of voting the candidate does not have to canvass because he cannot cover the whole city, and he has not personal friends in every ward. He is elected simply because he is considered a strong man in the interests of the whole city.

Mr. Peck pointed out that it was most important that the business of the municipality be looked after to the best interests of the people. This could only be done by men who are intimately in touch with certain districts, their own ward, for instance. The councillor elected by a general vote might legislate aright for a hospital or a public work, but he would fall short upon a particular sidewalk or piece of street.

Ald Stevenson pointed out that Peterborough had tried the ward system for many years, and just the minute the opportunity offered to adopt the general vote system this city grasped it. By the ward system the business is narrowed down to petty politics and small issues, while large questions and the city's general progress is very frequently neglected. At the election a man living in ward is compelled to vote for the two candidates in his ward, although those two might not be good men. He has no chance to vote for the best men in the city." By the ward system also influences can be brought to bear, such as employer over employee, friendship, and, sometimes, pity, which are wiped out by the general system.

Mr. Gardiner stated emphatically that the general vote was bad. Some districts are left without a representative, while others have several. He instanced the case of Ashburnham this year. The result of the last election created a feeling of rebellion and the village might want to withdraw from the union.

Mr. Robert Layfield claimed that this city has prospered greatly under the general vote system. On two occasions the taxes had been reduced. In Montreal the ward system was in force and there are 63 members of the council, with the result that the aldermen often fight three and four months over some trifle. The government was extremely unsatisfactory. The only way the ward system was a success was when controllers were elected by a general vote, and they did 90 per cent. of the work, and it took a two-thirds majority of the council to turn down the Board of Control.

Mr. Burnham summarized the different points brought out, and asked for a showing of hands, which resulted in a small majority for the ward system.

Dogs and Lynx Mixed it Up

A Lindsay hunter took a trip to the Brisbane swamp in Manvers, recently, and reports an exciting time. His dogs cornered an animal, which proved to be a lynx, but could do nothing with it. Must Work His Little Game Well

Mr J.N Smith, of Douro, is out $40 which amount he paid over to Rich. N. Graham in return for change in a $180 cheque, which the latter tendered in payment for a horse. Smith went to Peterborough to cash the cheque, but there was nothing doing at the bank, and he hurried back to catch his man. Graham, however, had skipped out in the meantime, catching a train at Indian River.

This is the same man that "did" Mr. Joyce of Dawn, on a little deal some weeks ago. An effort is being made to catch him by County Constable Cochrane.—Havelock Standard.

Handsome Rug on Exhibition

Messrs. Richard Hall & Son, who are always noted for having the most prettily dressed windows of any store in the city, have one today which is attracting the greatest attention from those who have seen it. They have on exhibition in their south window a rug, the like of which has never before been seen in Peterborough. It was made at the works of the Brinton Carpet Co. Ltd., at Naas, Ireland. It was made entirely by hand and is fully three-quarters of an inch in thickness. It is of Kildare quality and measures 10 ft. 8 inches by 14 feet. The color of the rug is a light green interwoven with small patterns of a rich dark green and a pretty border of a rich golden shade. It is worth $300 and no rug at such a high price has ever been sold in this city. The firm of Richard Hall & Son are the first to handle this class of goods. It is but another evidence of the high quality of goods which this firm handles.

OBITUARY

MORRIS SWITZER.

The death of William A., son of Mr. Morris Switzer, of Cameron, on Tuesday last, was particularly sad. The young man was just in the prime of life and until his last sickness enjoyed the best of health. About four years ago, he contracted a slight cold which he neglected and allowed to run on until it was found that his lungs showed signs of weakness. His friends were then alarmed, and every attention was given to get the young man back to health, but without avail. His death has cast a gloom over a large circle of loving friends.

Scores Went Down to Death In British Ship Disaster

British Steamer Wrecked Off Hook of Holland.

Passengers and Crew Nearly All Drowned — Twenty-Five Bodies Washed Ashore—Survivors Clinging to Wreckage—Vessel Broke In Two and Sank—About 180 On Board—Lifeboat Unable to Approach.

Rotterdam, Feb. 22.—A disastrous steamship wreck, attended with great loss of life, occurred yesterday off the north pier of the Hook of Holland, when the Great Eastern Railway Co.'s steamer Berlin, bound from Harwich to the Hook of Holland, was lost.

All on board, 141 persons in all, of whom 91 were passengers, were drowned, with one exception.

The wreck occurred at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, during a terrific southwesterly gale. The steamer struck the north jetty while trying to enter the new waterway at the Hook of Holland.

Broke In Two and Sank.

She broke in two forward and sank while the passengers and crew gathered aft and vainly attempted to use the lifeboats. One person was saved and twenty-five bodies have been washed ashore.

The agents say that although they are not positive regarding the numbers, they believe the vessel carried 120 passengers and a crew of sixty officers and men.

The Berlin was a British steamer, 302 feet long and of 1,775 tons. The ship was commanded by Capt. Precious, and was built in 1894.

The afterpart of the wrecked steamer Berlin did not slip into deep water, as the people on shore at first believed, but seems to be firmly embedded in the sand-bank. There were still at 6 p.m. a few persons on board, clinging to the wreckage. During high water at the height of the storm the waves shut off all view of the wreck, which led to the belief that no trace of the Berlin had been left.

Handful of Survivors.

The receding tide, however, revealed the remains of her stern with a handful of survivors.

It was not possible at 6 p.m. to tell for certain whether the persons seen on the remaining fragment of the Berlin were dead or still hoping to be rescued. If they were alive, the cold they are suffering must be intense.

The steam lifeboat which has been attempting to reach the wreck is unable to approach it on account of the unfavorable position in which the afterpart of the vessel is lying, and it was only with the greatest efforts that the lifeboat itself was prevented from being dashed to pieces.

Bodies Badly Mangled.

The waiting-room of the station at the Hook of Holland has been converted into a morgue, and the station itself is guarded by troops.

Several of the bodies recovered are badly mangled. It is supposed that the wreck of the steamer was caused by the collapse of her steering gear or by the breaking down of one of her engines.

The only person who thus far has succeeded in reaching the shore is Capt. Parkeston of Belfast, Ireland. He is now in a high fever.

No Canadians on Board.

London, Feb. 22.—The Great Eastern Railway Co. officially confirms the loss of the steamer Berlin, with all on board, off the coast of Holland. The Berlin carried passengers and crew to the number of 141.

The Berlin left Harwich at ten o'clock Wednesday night upon the arrival there of the London train, with the greater number of the passengers, who subsequently lost their lives. The steamer should have reached the Hook of Holland at six o'clock yesterday morning, and would have proceeded for Rotterdam.

Started In Gale.

A great gale was blowing in the North Sea when the Berlin started, but the weather was no worse than on the previous night, when similar vessels made the trip without mishap.

As the Berlin was entering the waterway at the entrance of the River Maas, however, she apparently became unmanageable on account of the force of the wind, and was driven ashore.

The steamer apparently struck about midships, as her forepart broke off, and sank immediately, while her afterpart could be seen for a considerable time afterwards.

Within Biscuit Toss.

Land was but a few yards away, and except in the roughest weather those on board the Berlin could have been rescued without difficulty.

One man, an Englishman, was saved. He was unconscious when dragged out of the water and taken ashore, and had not regained consciousness when he was carried to a hotel in the neighborhood.

Captain Precious was senior commander of the company's fleet, and was considered to be a particularly competent officer.

Railway Smash at Detroit.

Detroit, Feb. 22.—Four trainmen killed and two others injured yesterday when the fast American Express train in the Michigan Central Railroad west-bound, which left here for Chicago at 2.57 p. m., collided with an ice-train two miles west of Ypsilanti. The express train was composed of express and mail cars only.

The accident, it was stated, was caused by the engineer of the express train running past a semaphore, which was set against him.

Boy Fatally Hurt.

Strathroy, Feb. 22.—At the Caradoc street crossing yesterday Victor, the 10-year-old son of J. W. Murray, architect, was struck by a Lehigh Valley express. A freight standing in the yards had cut for the crossing, obstructing all view of the express. The base of the skull was badly crushed, and no hope is entertained for recovery.

CANFIELD MURDER CASE.

Witnesses Subpoenaed for Next Wednesday—No Fresh Developments—What Defence Will Be.

Cayuga, Feb. 22.—Crown Attorney Murphy, who is preparing a list of witnesses who will appear on the preliminary hearing of the murder charge against Mrs. Mattie Perkins on Feb. 27. The summons will be served on Monday and those required to attend include Thomas McDonald, the star crown witness, and Spencer, the G.T.R. foreman at Welland, under whom Perkins worked for three months before he died, and to whom he sent a telegram while on his death bed asking him to come at once. Mr and Mrs. John Darrah, tenants of the dead man's farm; Mrs. Hyslop and Ralph Curry, sister and brother, respectively, of the accused woman, are regarded as among the most important witnesses.

Chief Farrell said yesterday morning that there were no fresh developments in the case, but certain parties are under surveillance and will be arrested if necessary.

The defence is based on the assumption that Perkins' death was the result of ulcer of the stomach, and that for some time previous to his death he was subject to fits of violent vomiting.

The property of the deceased is valued at $6,000 and constitutes the comfortable home at Canfield, a 100-acre farm about a mile and a quarter northwest of Canfield and some hundreds of dollars in cash. John Darrah is in possession of the farm, and his lease does not expire for two years.

Interests are Sacrificed to Vengeful Partisanship

And There are Other Reasons, Equally Discreditable, Which Led the Government to Prefer Trenton Route of the Canal, Says Port Hope Times.

The Port Hope Times is putting up a vigorous fight on behalf of that town being selected as the southern outlet of the canal. The Times makes serious charges against the Federal Government and in this week's issue says;

"It is announced that the Government has decided upon Trenton as the outlet of the Trent Valley Canal. A similar statement was semi-officially announced some months ago, long before the engineer's reports had been submitted. There are strong indications that Trenton had been decided upon by the Government long ago, and that the engineer's reports are mere farce, and that the only purpose served by their presentations is to furnish an excuse for the government.

"If the government has decided upon Trenton, what are the motives that have guided it? It is not any care for the interests of the country for the interests of the country unmistakably demand that the outlet of the canal should be at Port Hope. The Port Hope route would save the country millions of dollars. The construction of the canal to Port Hope would cost some half a million of dollars less than to Trenton, and the annual expense of maintenance would be many thousands of dollars less. Not only is this route the cheaper, but it is also the better in all respects. The Port Hope route is the quicker and more convenient route. It is also the most serviceable. If the outlet of the canal were at Port Hope the local traffic would be far greater than if the outlet were at Trenton. The Port Hope route would give cheap water carriage for freight between the midland district of Ontario and Toronto, Hamilton and other great centres of industry to the west of the canal. Sir William Mulock has stated that the chief benefit of the canal will be for local traffic. If the canal goes to Trenton it will be deprived of its chief usefulness. As a regulator of freight rates the canal would also be of far more effect if its terminus were at Port Hope. The only objection to the Port Hope route is the argument of "the open lake," and that argument has been frequently and completely overthrown.

It is not public interests that have led the government to favor the Trenton route. What appear to have influenced the government are motives of the most contemptible description. East Durham declined to elect Mr. Aylesworth. The government and Mr. Aylesworth must be revenged, and thus they vent their spite. Their duty to the country should impel them to construct the canal to the most favorable outlet. But to perform their duty would benefit Port Hope. This is not to be thought of, and the interests of the country are sacrificed to a vengeful partizanship so abject that it arouses the indignation of the government's staunchest supporters. And there are other reasons, equally discreditable, which lead the government to prefer the Trenton route. The government has friends who are interested in water powers on the Trenton route, and who expect the government to develop these water powers at the public expense by means of the canal. These friends must be accommodated at whatever cost to the country. Other interests look on the Port Hope route with displeasure. As a regulator of freight rates the canal would be of more service if the outlet were at Port Hope. Naturally the railways do not wish the canal to be effective in this respect and the government has an extraordinary regard for the wishes of certain railways.

Veteran Colporteur Pays His 24th Annual Visit to Peterboro'

Mr Geo. Buskin, of the International Evangelical and Colportage Mission is making his 24th annual visit to Peterborough in behalf of the work of disseminating the Holy Scriptures and Christian literature, apart from denominational interest of any kind. A large work has been done but larger might have been done had means been on hand to meet the costs and the practical assistance that becomes Christian profession.

48,000 copies of Bibles and books have been supplied by the Mission's agency in 21 languages and a multitude beside of which no account has been taken, and 80 editions of booklets and tracts published by the Mission in five languages. The second portion of the Ojibway and English dictionary in the process of printing for the Indians, but $600 will be required to meet the costs. $36.50 was kindly contributed to the cause last year in Peterborough, which the missionary gratefully acknowledges. The Mission Depot is still at 302 King street east, Toronto, Ont.

Mr. Buskin, who is now in his 73rd year, has not been feeling well of late but after a few days illness he is once more on his rounds. He has been engaged in mission work for half a century and in that time has met with many interesting experiences. Life has had its joys and sorrows for the veteran colporteur, but, taking it all in all, there has he says, been more sunshine than shadow, more pleasure than pain. He is very thankful to a kind Providence to be able to continue the work to which he has devoted his life, talent, time and energy.

Buying Horses For Fire Hall

Committee Have a Lot of Fun—Many Animals Have Been Offered for Sale

The Fire, Water and Light Committee is having a lot of fun purchasing the new team for the fire department. Several teams and several single horses have been brought into the city, but as yet none have been accepted. The majority of the animals have been exceptionally good but no two horses have been shown which answer the requirements. Yesterday Mr. Robt. Deyell and Mr. Wm. Tully, of Otonabee, each had a horse at the city hall, but Mr. Tully's would not suit and tomorrow Mr. Deyell and Mr. John Hanbidge, of Otonabee, will bring in their horses. Mr. Deyell's animal is fine one and it is stated that the one Mr. Hanbidge will offer is a good mate for it, but it has not yet been seen.

FELL DOWN FLITGH OF STAIRS

PROVED ZAM-BUK BEST IN 3 DIFFERENT EMERGENCIES.

One of the most valuable points about Zam-Buk, the herbal balm is the variety of uses to which it can be applied.

Mrs. A. Livernois, of 131 Sydenham St., Toronto, says: "I have used Zam-Buk for colds on the chest and found when rubbed well in it gave almost instant relief to the "tightness" and "stiffness." One day I slipped when descending the stairs and fell to the bottom. My right arm was terribly discolored and swollen and became quite stiff. As I still had a supply of Zam-Buk I rubbed some on the bruised limb, and it was really surprising how quickly it removed the discoloration, cured the stiffness and restored the arm to its proper form. Since that time I have had occasion to use Zam-Buk for rheumatism, and I have found it equally good."

Zam-Buk is so uniformly good because it is composed of the finest herbal balms, essences and juices known to medical science, compounded and refined in a special and peculiar way. It has such high germ-killing power that it is unequalled as an antiseptic. Its healing virtue is very great, and as a household balm Zam-Buk is absolutely unique. Division Court Sitting To-day

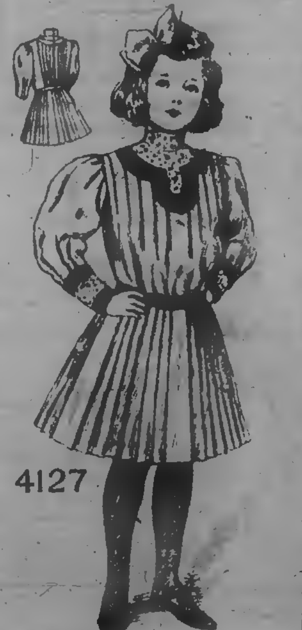
A regular sitting of the Division Court was held today before Judge Weller. There was about twenty cases on the docket, but the majority of them were of minor importance, in fact none of them were of much public interest.

Popular Cure for Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in loosening the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine constantly at hand for use in case of emergency.



4127.—A CHARMING LITTLE PLEATED GOWN.

Some pretty new models in frocks for little maids are pleated in waist and skirt and the gown shown is a pleasing example. Yokes are always becoming and youthful and are much used in frocks for girls. The yoke in this gown is unusually attractive and improved by the dark trimming band which outlines it. The sleeves in all of the new dresses are long or below the elbow and these may be either. The waist and skirt which are joined at the waist line are fully pleated and very graceful. The fulness of the sleeve is also retained at the elbow in tiny pleats. For developing the model, cashmere, henriettas, pongees or another seasonable fabric might be used. The medium size calls for 3 1-4 yards 44 inches wide.

THE COLUMBIA RIVER.

Dangers That Beset the Passage of This Stream of Death.

The Columbia does not merely threaten, but performs. No one can tell how many men have been lost on the Big Bend. The Surprise rapids, far up, at the head of the bend, are about as bad as any. Seventeen men are known to have been drowned here. Leo Davis was capsized on these rapids while we were at Timbasket lake. We found his boat crushed and flung ashore a hundred miles down stream and twenty miles below the head of the bend and so thought Leo was gone. Later we learned that he got out alive, though losing all his supplies. I saw another broken boat on the Twenty-six Mile rapids, whose we never knew or what became of its owner. We saw on a big bowlder near shore the name of a Swede who was drowned a few years back. The body of course was not recovered, for the Columbia never gives up its dead. Now, below us were the bloodiest of all these waters, the Death rapids, where, in the mining stampedes soon after the California gold rushes, so many miners were drowned—some say 103—in what was called the Frenchmen's stampede. These men were mostly drowned from rafts, on which they foolishly tried to get down river to avoid the awful walking. Seven Chinamen once started down on a raft. One got through alive, hanging fast by a rope, and he was so scared he left America without ever saying a word. One man was cast up a few feet from shore on a rock from which he did not dare jump. His companion was swept down in their boat for a mile before he could get ashore and come back to rescue him. Three men went over in a boat, and only one, a duffer who could not swim a stroke, got out. Farther down the river, in the Revelstoke canyon, was where Tom Horne, as good a riverman as there was in the northwest, was drowned with Jack Boyd, the mail carrier, a man who was in deathly terror of the Columbia and who would not even go on the ice in the winter, preferring to wallow through the snow piled trails up on the mountains.—Outing Magazine.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for, as a matter of fact, they sap the vitality of mind and body and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, stinging sensations of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes stubborn disease.

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, FEB. 22, 1907.

HOSPITALS OF THE PROVINCE

A copy of the 37th annual report of the provincial inspector of hospitals refuges and orphanages for the year ended September 30, 1906, has reached the Review. It furnishes some interesting statistics, which have already been published in these columns. At the Nicholls hospital the total number of patients under treatment was 510; the revenue was $10,477.43 and the expenditure $14,858.82. At St. Joseph's hospital the total number under treatment was 315, the receipts $5,239.92, and the expenditure $5,267.64. At the Protestant Home the total number of inmates was 34, the receipts $2,367.30, and expenditure $2,145.02. At the House of Providence the total number of inmates was 151, the receipts $4,862.05 and the expenditure $4,972.56

The report of Mr. R. W. Bruce ~~Smith states that~~ there are in Ontario, 61 hospitals, 37 refuges, 30 orphanages, three homes for incurables, two convalescent homes, two Magdalen asylums, and 25 county houses of refuge. The total number of patients under treatment in Ontario hospitals during the year was 41,950. The total expenditure for hospitals was $1,228,289, for which the provincial grant was $110,000. Civic pride and local philanthropy had combined to do much to improve the hospitals. Although no new hospitals have been completed during the year, steps in that direction have been taken in several towns. There were still some counties without hospital accommodation.

The report speaks strongly of the backwardness of municipalities in establishing sanitaria for consumptives. "Cruel and heartless" are the words used to describe the action of hospitals in turning away consumptives. The National Sanitarium Association, the report says has done splendid work, deserving liberal support, demonstrated what may be done, but no organization, no matter how worthy, could undertake the care of all the consumptives in the province. The large majority of cases must be provided in the locality in which the patient resides.

Forty-four refuges and homes received government aid during the year. The number of people in them was 5,518, and the total expenditure $331,846, of which the government contributed $70,828. The defects in these institutions, the report says, are the overcrowding in the dormitories, and the lack of proper systems of ventilation. These defects, however, are being corrected. The report sounds a note of warning saying that care should be taken that we do not fall into the mistake which has been corrected in some countries that encourages thriftlessness and consequently pauperism.

The report also recommends an institution for the care of feeble minded women. It says "Imbecility and heredity are the most prolific of the known causes of pauperism and crime. The time has surely come when more attention should be paid to preventing the propagation of the undesirable species, or, in other words, to see that these poor creatures do not perpetuate their kind. The cost of protecting feeble-minded women today, is normal. The cost in the future, if we neglect them now, is appalling. There are today in Ontario at least 500 feeble-minded girls without proper custodial protection. Many of this class, on account of there being no other place for them, have been sent to our asylums, others are being kept among the old people in our refuges. An industrial refuge, convenient to a large city, might be established for feeble-minded girls and be made after the first year, largely self-supporting by doing laundry and other domestic work."

Twenty-four county houses of refuge and four under construction leaves only a few counties which have not complied with the statutory requirements. The thirty orphanages in the province, have during the year housed 4,240 children. The expenditure was $127,942, of which the Government had given $16,336. Conditions in these institutions had greatly improved during the year, and the overcrowding had been relieved.

WHO IS TO BLAME ?

In Port Hope the feeling of hostility and resentment against the Government for selecting Trenton as the outlet for the Trent Canal is very bitter. Even the newspapers are berating each other in the grievous disappointment. The Guide, which is the Liberal organ, charges the citizens of that town with largely bringing the present situation on their own heads by not electing Hon. A. B. Aylesworth. This has aroused the ire of the Times, and that paper handles the Guide and the Dominion Government in a rather strenuous manner.

Under the heading, "Which is Culpable?" the Times says:—

It is impossible to congratulate the Guide on its attitude in reference to the decision that the Government is reported to have come to in regard to the outlet of the Trent Valley Canal. There is no one in Port Hope that has studied the question who is not convinced that the public interests demand that the outlet of the canal should be at Port Hope. The Guide is itself firmly of this opinion. Yet when it is announced that the Government has decided to sacrifice the interests of the country and to disregard the undeniable claims which Port Hope possesses, what is the attitude of the Guide? This is what it says:—

"Port Hope had its chance, but deliberately declined the services of one of Canada's greatest statesmen, the Hon. A. B. Aylesworth."

Instead of raising its voice in indignant protest against the government's course, without championing Port Hope's cause and demanding that the public interests be given due consideration, it reproaches, not the author of the injustice with which Port Hope is threatened, but Port Hope itself, the victim of the Government's partisanship and disregard of duty. When East Durham rejected the services of Mr. Aylesworth it followed the dictates of its own conscience. When the Government in revenge for Mr. Aylesworth's defeat, sacrifices the interests of the country, squanders the public money and destroys the utility of a great national work, it is proving itself unworthy of its trust, and is rendering itself contemptible in the eyes of all who are not blinded by partisanship of the narrowest and most paltry description. Against such conduct the Guide has no word of protest, yet it reproaches Port Hope because it has preserved its self-respect and has spurned the unworthy bribe offered to it by a corrupt government.

THE POWER OF MONEY

Money is a great power. The dollar is made up of the cents, and, though a cent may represent very little, yet in the aggregate it means a great deal and stands for much more. The massed cents represent capital, and capital moves the world. A well-known authority has said, if a man with the financing ability of J. Pierpont Morgan was a truly good man he would be a benefactor to his country. His income was about ten millions dollars a year, and there was a possibility that he was worth it. When Wellington, Nelson and Napoleon returned home after their great victories, there was nothing that their countrymen could do for them, or give to them, that was considered too much. At the time of the Gordon riots in London, Wellington displayed his great ability as an organizer, and there might come a crisis in the history of any country when great organizers and financiers might be in demand. The possession of a few dollars gives one a feeling of independence. It is a big mistake to think that money is the root of all evil. It is the love of money as money that is the cause for its being thought a curse.

The biggest cent's worth that can be had is that received through the pulpit, and the next biggest cent's worth is the daily paper. The modern newspaper is the picture of the nation's soul. A paper that advertised that it is a paper and not an organ should cut out editorials. The ideal newspaper would be a paper of headlines, but not of thrills. That is, it would state the facts without telling anything that was disagreeable about a story. Whose fault is it if the papers are not just what they ought to be? If people show a desire to read good, pure articles, in preference to scandals, and if business men fill the advertising columns of the newspapers with good ads, it would make newspapers cleaner sheets. Papers are in a large way dependent on circumstances and it is a very hard matter to keep a paper pure, and yet make it pay, and it is the duty of the people and of the pulpit to help make it such. The real statue of liberty should be a boy in patched pants and bare feet with a bundle of papers under his arm, as the press is one of the greatest champions of liberty in the world.

PEN POINTS

So it appears the Ontario Bank shareholders are going to have something left after all. That is a little source of comfort during this extremely cold weather.

It is going to cost more to build this year. Do not delay erecting that new home of yours or you may never have the pleasure of living in it. The prices will in a few years be higher than the tallest structure.

It is said that some of the returned girl operators are having great fun in Toronto with the telephone subscribers, switching them onto the wrong numbers, breaking in upon their conversation and cutting up all manner of pranks. This is surely more exasperating and annoying than the "listener."

Smokers, beware! We are told by a writer in Harper's Weekly that the composition of tobacco smoke is nicotine, a pyridic basis, formic ladehyde, ammonia, methylamin, pyrrol, sulphuretted hydrogen, prussic acid, butyric acid, carbonic acid, oxide of carbon, the steam of water, an etherized empyreumatic oil, and tarry or resinous products, among which are small quantities of phenol. That, as our friend, the professor, would say, is going some. "All this we draw into our lungs with more or less satisfaction." That combination has the mischievous little germ knocked into a cocked hat.

The Toronto News has the following sensible and reasonable remarks on the recent bye-election in West Middlesex; "West Middlesex has elected to the Legislature Mr Duncan C. Ross, a Liberal, and a son of the former member, Hon. G. W. Ross, Senator. The majority was 145 a slight increase over that received by his father at the general election but still a long way below the normal Liberal majority in that constituency, as shown by elections of former years. It is probable that the election of Mr. Ross was an expression of sentiment, rather than a declaration on any public policy. Mr Ross is exceedingly popular, and deservedly so. He has lived in Strathroy, all his life. He is young, energetic, and speaks well. Moreover, the people have a deep love for the former member who represented them for so many years, and, no doubt, they wished to give him one more tribute of their affection, by conferring honor upon his son. We should like to believe that Mr. Graham's declaration on Civil Service Reform had something to do with the election of Mr. Ross, but, unfortunately, that was never a live issue in the fight.

Pay as you go is a good plan, but if you cannot do that pay when you promised to pay. The department stores have at least taught the public one lesson—that is, to pay cash. For all practical purposes in the matter of housekeeping, etc., cash payments are the best. The man or woman who makes it a practice to pay cash cannot very well run into debt, and neither will be apt to buy more than is needed. When you run a book or tell the merchant to "mark it down" you are not so prone to consider if you can afford the article, or if it is really necessary for you to purchase it. It's so easy to carry away a thing when you do not have to pay down the money, you know. Those who do not pay cash should, however, make it a point to pay when the time for payment comes. The bill may be small or it may be large, but the man you deal with may have a lot of these outstanding and it is a matter of vital importance to him sometimes to have what is due him. To keep it from him when you are quite able to pay him is dishonest, if not downright cruel. When the merchants accommodate you with credit the least you can do is, to meet your engagements without undue loss of time. Pay cash if you can; if you can't, pay when you are expected to pay.

GREEN—WEIR

Keene, Feb. 22.—A pretty wedding took place on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weir, Otonabee township, when their daughter, Miss Janet, was married to Mr. Bart. Green of Glenburn, North Dakota. About eighty guests were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. D. McDonald, pastor of Keene Presbyterian church. The bride was attired in a handsome gown of white silk voile, artistically trimmed with chiffon. She carried a bouquet of lillies-of-the valley and was unattended Little Miss Curtis made a pretty flower girl. A large number of valuable and useful presents were received, testifying to the esteem in which the popular bride is held. Mr. and Mrs. Green, after spending a few days in this vicinity, will leave for Glenburn, North Dakota, where they will reside.

Among the guests from a distance were Mr. Hewie, Fenelon; Mr. and Mrs F., Elmhirst, Carberry, Manitoba; Mrs. Spence, Glenburn N. Dakota. Many friends will join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Green every success and happiness.

When Your Health Fails, What Then?
Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for the strong and alert—for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigor and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health, and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Rigorous Winter, Terrible Storms

Mr. R. E. Tully Old Peterboro' Boy Tells of Conditions in West—Many Cattle Dying

Mr Jas. A. Tully, of this city, has received from his brother, Mr. R. E. Tully formerly of this city, but now residing at Saskatchewan Landing, Sask. ,30 miles from Swift Current, a letter which will be read with much interest. It contains reliable information concerning the vigorous weather conditions out there. The letter, which is dated Saskatchewan Landing, Sask., Feb. 8th, says;

"You think by the papers we are having a bad winter but here. I can tell you the papers are not making it any worse than it is. I have never seen anything like it before. I never thought it could get so cold and stormy as it has been this winter, especially since the 15th of November. Every day it seems to get worse and no sign of a let up yet. There are thousands of cattle dying all through the country. I am feeding about two hundred head. I guess that I will have them all to take in and feed soon. I think I will have plenty of hay if I can only get them to it. I have had a big loss already, and expect to lose more. If a thousand dollars covers my loss I will be satisfied. The snow is about two feet deep and crusted so that it is impossible for the stock to get any feed. There are lots of ranches which are cleaned right out. Some which were worth between ten and fifteen thousand dollars will not be worth one dollar by the first of April, so that is pretty hard lines. There is one blessing, we are all keeping well. We have had lots of good, dry wood to keep us warm and plenty to eat and drink. I think I can hang out until the first of May. It would be almost impossible for me to get to Swift Current now, with the awful depth of snow and cold weather. We get our mail about every three weeks and we just got it tonight. I will say no more about the bad weather. You may thank your stars that you are not here this winter. I just got word today of two young homesteaders who were found frozen to death in their shanty. Neither coal nor wood to be had and I know when spring comes we will hear of lots of that kind of thing."

The Toad and Its Skin.

The toad sheds its skin at certain periods, the old one coming off and leaving a new one, which has been formed underneath, in its stead. It does not give its cast off coat away to any poorer toad, and there are no toads dealing in second hand raiment. Neither does it leave its cast off jacket on the ground after the fashion of the shiftless snake. It swallows its overcoat at one mouthful, converting its stomach into a portmanteau.

Prize Winners in Diary Contest

Results of the Competition in Which $200 in Gold is Given For the Best Diaries Kept in

Dr. Chase's Almanac.

If there were any doubt as to the interest taken in this Diary Competition, it would soon disappear at the sight of the piles of Dr. Chase's Almanacs which came flooding into these offices during the early part of January. And during the last few days the number of enquiries as to the results reminds us that some time as well as much labor has been required to have the judging carefully and accurately done.

The committee of judges, Mr. J. F. McKay, Bus. Mgr., "The Globe" Mr. Geo. E. Scroggie, Adv. Mgr., "Mail and Empire," and Mr. H. B. Somerville, "The World," have after due consideration, made the following awards;

2nd,	50	"	Mrs. Joseph H. Cook, Beachville, Ont.
3rd,	25	"	Rev. Jos. H. Chant, Newburgh, Ont.
4th,	5	"	Mrs. Joseph Halliday, Williamsford, Ont.
5th,	5	"	Mrs. Lucy A. B. Smith, 322 Cambie street, Vancouver, B.C.
6th,	5	"	Mr. James Arthur, North Rustico, P.E.I.
7th,	5	"	Miss Eunice Watts, Waterville, Kings Co., N.S.
8th,	5	"	Mrs. John Banks, Makinak, Man.
9th,	5	"	Madame Marie Louise Patenaude, St. Marc, Vercheres Co., Que.

Many who did not obtain a prize deserve special commendation for well kept diaries, while others made the mistake of putting in items from newspapers, etc., instead of entering up the everyday events of home life, which make a diary both useful and valuable for future reference.

The 1907 edition of Dr. Chase's Calendar Almanac contains full particulars of the competition now going on, and if it has not reached you we shall be pleased to send a copy to your address. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Whitcroft is Keeping it up

Played a Great Game With Kenora Against Brandon

The Kenora Thistles were defeated by Brandon in a Western league game in the Wheat City on Thursday night. The score was 3—2 and the game was one of the best ever seen in the West. The western hockey experts have great praise for Fred Whitcroft, as the following despatch from Brandon would indicate:—

"The appearance of Russell Phillips and Fred Whitcroft, formerly of Peterborough, on the line of the champions, did not materially weaken their strength. Both men played a superb game, only a few occasional mistakes being chargeable to the account of young Phillips, and they cost the Kenoras nothing. Whitcroft on the other hand, proved his stick handling ability to be good enough for any senior company. He confined himself to combination and not until the last half displayed any individual form. Then his headwork brought down cheers time and time again. Art Ross, the cover-point of the Brandons, was ever on the watch for any rush which appeared dangerous. The Thistles appeared to relish the idea of shooting from long range, and most of their shots found a resting place on the shins of Leader, who played a consistent game, blocking with great accuracy."

"City Queen" Won the Free-for-All

Harwood Races a Great Success —Were Largely Attended.

The ice races at Harwood took place yesterday and were largely attended. Messrs. Martin Connors, P. Clunan, Harry Nesbitt, J. Cottingham, W. Duncan, Matt. Mitchell and D. Monahan attended from this city. The results were as follows;

THREE MINUTE CLASS.

Little Will, J. Elmhirst	1	1	1

Little Kate	2	2	2	2

The three winning horses, City Queen, Little Will and Jimmy Smith, were driven by Mr. Dick Monahan, the popular wine clerk of the Maple Leaf hotel, and much credit is due him for the clever manner in which they were driven.

New York's Best Play Here To-night

Famous Crescents Will Meet the Local Septette

The New York Crescents, who play the Peterborough team at Brock street rink to-night, will arrive this evening on the 5.45 G.T.R. train. They will be accompanied by about sixty supporters, and travel in special coaches. A portion of the reserved seat section to accommodate about sixty persons, has been reserved for the visitors from across the line.

The appearance of the New York team here is causing much interest in the city, and judging by the way the seats have been selling, there will be a big crowd in attendance. The New Yorkers play clean, fast hockey, and can be depended on to make the locals travel their fastest. "Herbie" Hyan, who has a large number of friends in this city, will be found on the line-up of the Gotham team, which also includes "Ike" Wall and Dobby, who played with the Montreal Shamrocks in that team's palmy days, and Liffiton, a brother of Liffiton of the Toronto Pros., and Liffiton, of the Pittsburg Intermediate League team.

The game will be played in 25 minute halves, and should be one of the best of the season.

The New Yorkers will make the Oriental their headquarters and will return to Toronto by special train at the conclusion of the game.

Goal—Lang.
Point—Glover.
Cover Point—Crowley.
Rover—Miller.
Centre—Parnell.

Knox Hockey Bunch Again the Winners

Interesting Game at Brock St. Rink Last Night—Score 3-1

An interesting and exciting game of hockey was played last evening at the conclusion of the city league matches, between the Knox church fast septette and a picked team who play without a name. It was a close contest, Knox church bunch winning by the close score of 3 goals to 1. The winners' defence is very strong, a fact which their opponents learned to their sorrow. The forwards are also a speedy bunch and combined well in attacks on the losers' goal. Morphet scored the first goal for Knox church. Hillier scored the only goal for the losers in the first half, but before half time was called White scored another for Knox church team. Neither team scored in the second half until the last six minutes, when Galley notched another for the church team.

Mr. B. Holland refereed the game to the entire satisfaction of all.

The teams lined up as follows;—

Knox team		Picked team
Killenbeck	Goal	B Pillings
W Bellegham	Point.	Percy Johnson
W Galley	Cover.	D Hillier
Archambault	Centre	E Hillier
Morphet	Rover	B Barclay
Hamilton	Right Wing	G Hillier

Kingston Does Not Want to Play

Will Drop Out of League if Ordered to Meet Peterboro'

No word has been recived from O.H.A. headquarters regarding Peterborough's request for a game with Kingston to decide the district championship. The Kingston team affirm that they will drop out of the league if they are ordered to play Peterborough.

The following from the Kingston Whig shows the view taken of the matter in the Limestone City;

F. H. Macnee, manager of the 14th team, when asked about the likelihood of the local team being ordered to play a sudden death game with Peterborough, to settle the dispute, said that his club would certainly not stand for anything of the kind. Peterborough, he declared had no ground for complaint. When the schedule was drawn up the sudden death game with Midland was agreed on, and the 14th has the correspondence with the O.H.A. secretary showing that this match was to count two wins and two losses and the 14th will hold the O.H.A. executive to the correspondence.

"They cannot order another game to please Peterborough," said Mr. Macnee. "If they do the 14th will not stand for it and will simply retire from the series and rest on their laurels, for they are the champions and Peterborough has no claim whatever."

When it was pointed out that the 14th could trim Peterborough on any neutral ice, Mr. Macnee admitted that they could, but he said that the 14th would not allow Peterborough to dictate at this stage, and over-rule a schedule. The matter should have been arranged long ago, and not left to this late date.

The fact of the matter is that Peterborough expected Midland to win the Toronto game and were fearfully disappointed when they didn't.

THE TURF

RESULTS AT WESTWOOD.

The ice races were held at Westwood on Tuesday afternoon and drew a good crowd. Both events were warmly contested and everyone had a good afternoon.

In the free-for-all, W. Elmhirst took first money, J. Elmhirst second, and A. Elmhirst, third.

In the green race, E. Fife took first, M. Godfrey second, and Evans third.

There is talk of having races at Hastings in the near future.

HOCKEY

WILL PLAY LAKEFIELD.

The Auburn hockey team will go to Lakefield tomorrow night to play the city league septette of that place.

LINDSAY WON AGAIN

The Lindsay Midgets defeated Collingwood juniors in a semi-final game at Lindsay last night. The score was 10—1 in favor of the Midgets and they should have no trouble in winning the round. Stratford Midgets meet St. Michael College juniors in Toronto tonight and they should pull out a victory. This will leave the Lindsay and Stratford Midgets for the finals and it's a toss-up as to who will win.

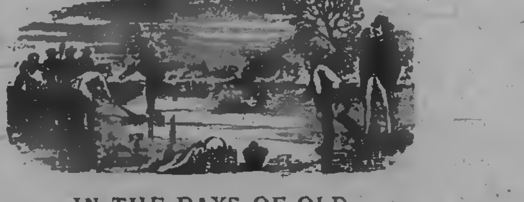
A Peterborough Rink Won The Primary Competition

The First and Second Prizes in the Consolation Also Captured by Local Curlers--Last Game Being Played This Afternoon.

The big bonspiel which has been the event of the city for the past week will be over by the time the Review is in the hands of its readers. The finals for the consolation are being played this afternoon, the competing rinks both being from the local club. One is being skipped by R. M. Waddell and the other by Geo. Fitzgerald.

The final game in the primary was played yesterday afternoon and was won by "Jimmy" Connal's rink, who put Lakefield out of the winning in comparatively easy fashion. Further particulars of the final primary will be found below.

There was a great finish in the consolation semi-finals last night. When the 4.30 games were over only four rinks remained in the running, Davidson, Fitzgerald and Waddell of Peterborough, and McMurtry of Oshawa. Davidson was drawn against Fitzgerald and McMurtry against Waddell for the evening games. Waddell won from McMurtry in easy fashion, but when Fitzgerald met Davidson then came the tug of war. At the end of the thirteenth round the score was 10—10. With only one stone to play at the end of the fourteenth end, Davidson was lying one shot and looked safe, but Fitzgerald made a great shot, and won the game. It was one of the best plays of the bonspiel and evoked a storm of applause. The members of the winning rink executed a hornpipe and tossed their brooms high into the air.



IN THE DAYS OF OLD
How Curling Was Enjoyed In the Open Many Years Ago.

Many of the outside curlers left for their homes last night, and the remainder went today. One and all they were unanimous in pronouncing the Peterborough bonspiel one of the most successful events of its kind they ever attended. They were especially pleased with the splendid arrangements made and the sportsmanlike spirit that was evidenced in every game.

The Peterborough rinks made a splendid showing, winning the first in the finals and the first and second in the consolation. The third prize in the consolation went to the Oshawa rink, skipped by McMurtry.

The scores last night were as follows;

Peterborough Davidson Skip 10.	Peterborough Fitzgerald Skip 11.

THE PRIMARY COMPETITION.

A Peterborough rink won the primary competition. The winner was decided yesterday, when the Lakefield quartette skipped by Ridpath went down to defeat before skip Jas. Connal of Peterborough, the score being 19 to 3. The Peterborough men had the best of the game all the way through and it was not until near the end of the game that Lakefield tallied their three points. The rinks were as follows,—

Peterborough	Lakefield
Dr. Wightman	C. S. Tanner
J. E. A. Fitzgerald	J. Bygot
Dr. Eastwood	W. J. Baptie
J. H. Connal	W. J. Ridpath
Skip 19.	Skip 3.

The Peterborough rink wins the four sets of granites offered as first prize. The stones are beautiful ones and made a capital prize. The Lakefield rink gets second prize, four handsome clocks. Mr. Connal's rink deserves to be congratulated on the way they played throughout the entire bonspiel. They worked hard and the victory was a most popular one, although as far as the Peterborough curlers are concerned, they would be just as well pleased to see the prizes go to outside clubs. But the winning rink showed its superiority over their opponents in every game played and the rinks vanquished were always the first to tender congratulations.

CONSOLATION GAMES.

Yesterday also saw many exciting games in the consolation competition. In the 1.30 o'clock games the victors were McMurtry, Oshawa; Fitzgerald, Peterborough; Dr. Greer, Peterborough, and Neill, Peterborough.

At 4.30 Neill was drawn against O'Connor of Lindsay and defeated him by one shot and "Dick" Davidson's rink down Dr. Greer's quartette by 22 shots to 8.

The game between Neill's rink and Larry O'Connor of Lindsay, was one of the best of the bonspiel. R. M. Waddell skipped the Peterborough rink, Mr. Neill acting as vice. At the end of the 12th end, Lindsay was five-up, the score being 11—6. In the thirteenth end, Peterborough tied the score, making five shots by their skillful playing. This made the score 11—11 with one end to play and the excitement was at fever heat. Peterborough got a stone on the "button" near the beginning of the end and kept one there despite most strenuous efforts on the part of their opponents. The excitement became intense as the end neared the finish. Peterborough was lying one shot when Skip O'Connor went to the north end of the rink for the last shot of the end and game. A well played stone would dislodge the Peterborough granite and give the game to Lindsay. Messrs. Waddell and Neill had played several good guards on the Peterborough stone, but there was still a hole in the fence, and Lindsay was not yet beaten. "Larry" surveyed the end carefully and then sent down the stone. Would it go where the Lindsay men wanted it? It looked like it at one time, but it did not curl enough and struck one of the guards, leaving Peterborough lying one shot. "The best finish of the bonspiel," was the universal comment and both rinks were heartily congratulated on the way they had played. A. Regan, "Pete" Lang, R. Neill and R. M. Waddell, (skip), composed the Peterborough rink.

1.30 P. M.

Bobcaygeon Read Skip 13.	Oshawa McMurtry Skip 16.
Peterborough Fitzgerald Skip 13.	Aberdeens Booth Skip 7.
Beaverton Birchard Skip 13.	Peterborough Neill Skip 14.

4.30 P. M.

Peterborough Davidson Skip 22.	Peterborough Greer Skip 8.

NOTES.

The best ever.

'Rah for Connal.

Lakefield did nobly.

'Caygeon curlers were popular.

The spectators were numerous.

Not one complaint was heard.

It's better to be lying shot than half shot. Ask the curlers.

"Will ye no come back again," is Peterborough's message to the visiting rinks.

The clerical part of the 'spiel was well looked after.

Peterborough's bonspiel gets bigger and better every year.

Lakefield Gave Charlotte Street Team a Bad Scare

The Guild Boys Won Out in the Last Two Minutes—Strathconas Won From Orphans in Interesting Game.

As was expected last evening in the city league contests, the Strathconas and Charlotte street were the winners. The Strathconas won the first game from the Orphans after a hard fought struggle by the close score of 3 goals to one. The Guild team won the second struggle by the greatest of luck and won the game in about the last two minutes of play, the score being at full time 3-2.

The Strathconas and Charlotte-st. are still a tie in the running for championship honors and next Thursday night will see the fastest and most interesting game of the season when the Straths and the Methodists meet in the game to decide who are the champions. The Strathconas had no easy victory last night. They had to work hard to win. It was a fast, clean exhibition of hockey, and few penalties were handed out. The winners did not play their usual good game and were not near so effective as on former occasions. The superior combination and shooting of the red and white fellows won the game. Their forward line is fast, they shoot well and are an all round speedy septette of hockey players. The exhibition of hockey in this game suited the crowd and interest in the struggle did not fag for a minute, and at times it was doubtful who would win out. Ant. Mann replaced Meagher on the defence and played a fine game. The other players were the same as last week and all put up a good game. White made some brilliant rushes carrying the puck clean down the ice, but they were not so effective as in previous games. Wilson made some clever stops and guarded the nets well.

The Orphans played the best game they have ever played this season, and certainly showed to good advantage. They started at a lightning pace and were the first to score. The Orphans play better every game to their previous one and will in time develop into a fast septete. They were short a man early in the game, but the Straths dropped one to even up. Dobson wasn't playing last night and Ryan went on after play was in progress about 10 minutes and they then had their full team. McFadden in goal played the best game he ever did and certainly made some brilliant stops. His clever stops were the feature of the game and he certainly stopped shots which looked like sure scores. The defence of the losers was stronger than on former occasions, Quinlan and Barber being hard to pass. The forwards of the Orphans are a speedy little bunch. Saunders is a fast skater and played a great game, whilst Pentland and Ray were always prominent.

The teams were as follows;

Orphans		Strathconas
McFadden	Goal	Wilson
Barber	Point	White
Quinlan	Cover	Mann
Saunders	Rover	Fred McGrath
Ray	Centre.	McMillan
Pentland	Left Wing.	Weatherstone

SUMMARY.

1—Orphans, Saunders.
2.—Strathconas, Seymour.
3.—Strathconas, McMillan.
4.—Strathconas, McMillan.

The penalties in the game were few. Seymour, Barber, Ray, Quinlan and White occupied a place on the fence for periods of one minute duration.

SECOND GAME.

The Charlotte team and the Centreville septette furnished an interesting game of hockey. Charlotte-st. won by the closest margin notching the goal that won the game in the last 2 minutes of play. It was the closest struggle that has been played for some time, neither teams scoring in the first half. For the greater part of the second half the Lakefield bunch led by the score of two goals to nil, and it was only in the last 12 minutes of play that Charlotte street were able to score. The game was exciting at all stages and as interesting as any game that has been played in the city league. Both teams checked closely. The penalties were numerous and at times the penalty box was pretty much crowded. The Guild team had to move some to win for at times it looked like a close for them. The winners had a strong team last evening, but the brilliant rushes and combining of the forwards were not so effective as on former occasions. Their defence was strong, and Crowe played again in goal and made some clever stops.

Lakefield has never showed up better than in last night's contest. They played the best game they ever figured in at the Brock street rink. Their defence was much stronger than on former occasions. Gray was in goal again and the shots that passed him were few and only ones that were impossible to stop. "Stout" Crawford was again last evening a strong man on the defence and checked hard and also frequently adorned the fence with his figure. Quinn and M. Quigley are the pick of the Lakefield line-up and got away with some nice rushes, which proved effective.

The teams were as follows;

Charlotte-st.		Lakefield.
Crowe	Goal	Gray
Roddy	Point	Sabatino
Moore	Cover	Crawford
Dusty	Rover	M. Quigley
Long	Centre	Quinn
Campbell	Right Wing	Moran

SUMMARY.

1.—Lakefield, Quinn.
2.—Lakefield, Quinn.
3.—Charlotte-st., Dusty.
4.—Charlotte-st., Moore.
5.—Charlotte-st., Dusty.

The penalties were too numerous to mention and were equally divided to both teams.

Shortage of Cars Causes Trouble

Quaker Oats Company Affected —Can Only Run Plant During Day.

The Quaker Oats Company, which have been running in all departments night and day for some months past, have been forced to cease running at night. The big mill is now operating only in the day time on account of the great shortage of cars.

The company are unable to get in a sufficient number of car loads of oats to keep the industry going the full twenty-four hours, while cars cannot be obtained to handle the output.

The present shortage affects the company both regarding supplies and output, considering that from 25 to 30 cars a day are required in connection with the running of plant when in full operation.

The same complaint of a shortage of cars is heard from many manufacturing points in Canada and it appears that both the C.P.R. and G.T.R. have not enough rolling stock to meet the industrial requirements of the country.

The present shortage is a serious matter and will likely be enquired into by the Railway Commission at Ottawa to see if some relief cannot speedily be afforded.

WEDDING BELLS

SHIER—ARNOLD

Lindsay Post says;—On Thursday, Feb. 7th, a pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Arnold, when their youngest daughter, Annie, was united in marriage to William James Shier.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the room to the strains of the wedding march, which was rendered by Miss Emma Shier, sister of the groom. The bride was attired in a very pretty dress of cream crepe-de-chene trimmed with allover lace and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Arnold, was dressed in champagne voile and carried pink roses. The bride's travelling suit was dark green with hat to match. Little Gladys Arnold made a charming flower girl. She was dressed in pale blue silk. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. Charles Shier. Rev. Dr. Bishop performed the ceremony.

After congratulations were offered the wedding party and guests repaired to the dining room, where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served. The bride received numerous and costly presents, all of which were very useful. Mr. and Mrs. Shier left on the eight o'clock train for Peterborough. In a short time they will leave here for their future home in Saskatchewan.

Annual Meeting of Land Company

Bright Prospects of Peterboro'—Saskatchewan Land Corporation

At the annual meeting of shareholders of the Peterborough Saskatchewan Land Corporation held yesterday afternoon there was a large attendance of shareholders. Among those from out of town represented in person or by proxy, were the following; W. J. Bragg and Richard Osborne, Bowmanville; J. S. Pratt, Toronto; Jonathan Chameon, Tyrone; Wm. Rowan and Thomas Rowan, Bethany; Albert Hilton, Cavanville; W. J. Buck, Norwood; R. J. Jory, Lakefield; George Dawson, Bailieboro, and J. G. Armstrong, E. C. Howson, G. H. Howson, C. H. Moore, John Wasson, Dr. Carmichael, William Stewart, R. M. Glover, James Davidson, W. K. Payne, Geo. Ruth, R. A. Garbutt, Frank Sandy, Ernest Wasson, Thomas Hooper, Wm. Eyres, G. Walter Green, W. C. Austin, G. L. Hay, Joseph Mills, Miss Priscilla Westcott, F George Edmison, S. T. Medd and W. S. Davidson, of Peterborough.

Dr. Carmichael acted as chairman and W. C. Austin as secretary.

The financial report brought down shows that the company have now on hand some 12,000 acres of choice lands in Saskatchewan. These lands are situated in the celebrated Tramping Lake, district, one of the richest tracts of wheat land in the Province. These lands were secured a little over a year ago at a low price. One section was sold last year at $12.50 per acre and higher prices are vouched for this year, so that those who were fortunate enough to secure stock in it at the time are likely to realize very handsomely on their investment. The majority of the old Board were re-elected.

The following were elected directors for the ensuing year;

D. N. Carmichael, John Wasson, Wm. Eyres, C. H. Moore, Wm. Rowan, Thomas Rowan, J. G. Armstrong, James Davidson, Frank Sandy, W. J. Bragg and J. Chameon.

A meeting of the directors will be held shortly for the election of officers.

PROGRAMME FOR TEN DAYS

The programme for the Gigantic Sale Extension for the next ten days at the B. Y. Moyes store, is a bunch of bargains such as have never before been offered to a Peterborough shopping public, and include all new goods too, bought for the spring and summer trade. Now, take a little good, sound advice. Get busy, and join the crowds that are flocking to this store. Remember, these goods must be sold; and you might just as well get in on some of them as anybody else. "Enough said." B. Y. MOYES, 408 George street.

Rev. Mr. Knowles Writes New Book

"The Web of Time" is Title of the Work

"The Web of Time" is the title of another book which Rev. R. E. Knowles, of Galt, who is a former resident of Peterborough, and the author of "St. Cuthberts" and "The Undertow," is writing. The new book will be issued by Fleming H. Revell Company, New York, next October or November. Mr. Fleming H. Revell, the head of this great publishing house was in Galt a few days ago, and took away with him Mr. Knowles' signature to a contract to write another novel.

"The Web of Time" will be a Canadian story, and it is altogether likely that the scenes will be laid in Galt and vicinity.

Mr. Knowles is at present engaged on the book, although it is by no means approaching completion. Still he has signed a contract with the Fleming H. Revell Company to produce the book, and that that company's travellers have the name of it on their lists for the autumn trade. In this way thousand of copies of a book may be sold before the author has written more than a half dozen chapters. This, of course, would not apply to first novels, but only to novelists who have already made a constituency.

Big Sale of Logs 40,000 Disposed of

Sold by Lindsay Firm to Kelly Estate at Bridgenorth

Messrs. Sadler & Fee, retail lumber merchants, says the Lindsay Post, have had a number of jobbers busy all winter taking out logs on Squaw River. The season has been so favorable that the supply has exceeded their needs and last week they disposed of 40,000 logs to the Kelly estate, mill-owners, Bridgenorth at a price that represents a snug profit on the deal.

Canal Overseer Was at Lindsay

Mr. Clem. Gordon, of Peterborough overseer of the Trent Canal, was in town yesterday. He drove down the river with Capt. Wm. Fee to select spots where spiles will be driven in the spring at the more dangerous of the many twists in the channel. The intention is to square the heads of the cedar piles and apply a coat or two of luminous paint. The work will be done in the early spring. Boatmen are a bit skeptical concerning the practicable results likely to attend the planting of these elongated tooth picks.—Lindsay Post.

Golden Fleece May be Worked

American Capitalists Will Have the Ore Tested

A party of American capitalists paid a visit last week to the Golden Fleece Mine near Flinton. The party consisted of Mr. E. R. L. Gould president of one of the leading banks of New York City; Mr. C. J. T. Gould, of Baltimore, and Mr. Chas. Ingram, of Baltimore. They were accompanied by Mr F. J. Cowan and Mr. W.C. Weir. The mine is said to be one of the richest in the district and is one that will be easily worked. The gentlemen were very favorably impressed with the property and made arrangements for taking a six months' option on it. They took with them samples of the ore for assay and if results are satisfactory to them a much larger quantity of ore will be taken for a final test. Should this final test prove satisfactory machinery will at once be put in for operating the mine on a large scale. These gentlemen have no intention of booming the property for the purpose of selling stock, but will operate it on their own responsibility. It is to be hoped that the tests will prove satisfactory.

HON. MR. FOSTER STRONGLY RESENTS BEING CONDEMNED IN ADVANCE OF INSURANCE COMMISSION'S REPORT

Liberals Have Carried on Systematic Campaign of Insinuation Against Former Finance Minister—Protests Against Being Tried and Condemned in Advance—Months Before the Foresters' Affairs Were Investigated Word Was Passed Around That He Was to be "Broken".

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—The charges made by Mr. Fowler, M.P., of Kings and Albert, N.B., on Tuesday last, will be investigated before the close of the session. The matter was brought up in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. Bourassa. He said that the political atmosphere should be clared by investigating the case, where it was alleged that members had acted in a manner unworthy of the custodians of public rights. An element of suspicion was growing in the mind of the country. Investigations were carried on, the names of public men were bandied about, election trials were held and disclosures of a damaging character to the public mind made and who was punished? The instrument, the man without responsibility, who was made the scape goat of public men in their own interest or that of their party. With the purely private conduct of a member of the House they had nothing to do, but if they had used their position to gain personal advantage, then they were unworthy of the trust placed in them, and should be deprived of their seats in the House.

W. H. Bennett (East Simcoe) took the floor. He said that on Feb. 6, Mr. Carvell had made certain insinuations against him with reference to certain lands he and others had purchased in the Northwest and he (Bennett) had challenged him to bring on his accusations. That was on Feb. 7 and Mr. Carvell had not had the manliness to bring up the matter since.

MR. FOSTER SPEAKS.

Hon. George E. Foster, in the course of the debate made a vigorous and virile address in which he stated that he had been made a target for insinuation and abuse throughout the session. He invited the fullest inquiry and declared that he was prepared to defend himself, his record and his actions. He also asked that judgment be suspended until the Insurance Commission's report was brought down and then he would repel any attack.

Mr. Foster said;

"Mr. Speaker, I am obliged to ask the House to listen to me for not many minutes. I would prefer, on a great many accounts, to say nothing and to let this matter rest where I believe it should properly rest, for someone, when all the official facts, so far as there are official facts, have been submitted to this House, who feels that it is his duty as a public man, looking towards the vindication of the honor of Parliament, in which he himself sits, to have brought to the attention of this House any matter or concern in which I, for my part, as public man, or a member of this House, have proved remiss to the trust that the people had put in me, had shown the least semblance of a step towards playing with the franchise of the country in an improper way, of trading my position as a member of Parliament in the slightest degree for personal gain, or, by any act of mine, imperiling the character and the standing that a man ought to have to be a reputable member of this House — I would have left it for such a man, who felt that duty incumbent upon him to make that statement, to make that charge and then, and not one moment before, I would have been bound in duty to defend myself. (Hear, Hear.)

WHERE IS THE CHARGE?

"I have been called upon by the press outside to allow not one single day of this Parliamentary session to pass until I arose in my place in this House and defended myself. Great Heavens! Defend myself against what? Where is the charge? Am I to consider myself as a culprit, as an accused party, as next to a prisoner at the bar, as on the way towards the penitentiary or the jail, and stand up and defend myself against shadows, accusations and insinuations? (Hear, Hear) No sir, a man has not lived in this country for 65 years as I have and passed in and out before the people of this country to be called upon at this stage to arise at any time in this House of Parliament and defend himself, unless there is some one manly enough in this House of Parliament to make a charge against him.

"There are some gentlemen on the other side of the House who seem to think that is a very laughable affair. But to a man who has a conscience, and human feeling, who has not lost all sensitiveness, who has friends and values them, who has dear ones and loves them, it is not all the nicest and sweetest of conditions that he has to pass day by day through accusations veiled, and insinuations made and has simply to pass them off at one side and take the bitter with the sweet in the public life he has chosen as his career. (Hear, hear). But there comes a limit to that kind of thing, when men make an absolute system and join themselves in a policy of that kind, and in a House of Parliament where all men are equal as representatives of the people, undertake in a way which is not open and manly, and which is not businesslike, to point the dart, and to inject the poison, and to do it by means of insinuation, instead of by means of open charge. (Conservative cheers)

A CONSPIRACY TO INJURE HIM.

"This thing did not start in this Parliament; shortly after the Insurance Commission was appointed, not long after it was constituted, and months before any business with which I had any connection at all, or any company with which I had the remotest direction, was summoned before the commission or had given one iota of evidence before that commission, it was common talk from one end of this country to the other that I was to be broken before the Insurance Commission. The companies with which I had something to do in a subsidiary way connected with the insurance society, were not called before that commission until September last. Not a shred of evidence was in existence of which the public by any fair and honorable possibility should have known anything about. How happened it that from one end of this country to the other the word was being passed from man to man of the faithful that Foster was to be broken before the Insurance Commission?

INFORMATION WAS GIVEN OUT.

"Who had the information? Who gave out the information? Who had a right to give out the information if they had it until the matter came before the tribunal, which was to try this case and investigate these companies? (Hear, hear.) But it was so. That is a matter of fact, it is not hearsay. I myself was traveling on an I.C.R. train, and I was passing down the aisle, and a gentleman whom I know very well was asked by another gentleman, "Who is that?" He said: 'Don't you know? That is Mr. Foster, they are going to play the dickens with him before the Insurance Commission.' That happened, that is an absolute fact, myself and my own wife heard it. How did he become possessed of that? Did Judge MacTavish, the chairman of that commission, having set himself as he had a perfect right to do, to find the why and wherefores of the different insurance companies, he was to investigate, become possessed of the information and give it currency with this stamp in this country? I do not believe it. Neither do I believe that any member of that commission did it. (Hear, Hear.)

INDISPUTABLE FACTS.

"But these are facts that I am telling you, and they are facts that are absolutely indisputable. The committee met, and in the course of time the Foresters were brought before that commission, the Foresters being an insurance society. Then I, as manager of a trust company, was brought as a witness, and submitted my evidence to the commission. Then from one end of this country to the other my case was judged, and the judgment was pronounced in the headlines of the party press. I was adjudged guilty, a culprit without room for pardon. I am not making very much of a kick about that. That is what these papers are for; they think so at least; that is a part of their tactics. If they think these are the best kind of tactics that is carrying out their own judgment. I am not kicking very much about that. But, sir, I am kicking that this Government should appoint a royal commission, and put this matter of an investigation out entirely from partisan work, from partisan feeling, and from partisan management, and that yet, months before that commission had taken up any case in which I was involved, the current coin went from one end of this country to the other that I was to be broken on the commission, that there was evidence in plenty to do it. That is what I am kicking about; that is what every man in this House at this moment, while I am speaking, knows I have an absolute right to kick about. (Hear, hear.) He would kick about it himself, and he would say a good deal more than I have said about it. Now, sir, that word was passed.

MIGHT HAVE WAITED FOR TESTIMONY.

"Then the evidence was taken, and we have had from that time to the present the intimation from gentlemen who support the Government that there was going to be high doings with reference to myself and certain other members of Parliament as the result of evidence that was brought out before the Insurance Commission. In all honor, in all fairness, in all truth and soberness, these gentlemen would have been wise and would have been doing what their position as members of Parliament and as gentlemen, would have counseled them to do, if they had waited till the official testimony was before the House." (Hear, hear).

Continuing, Mr. Foster said that he and his friends had been told publicly that he was to be effectually muzzled in Parliament. Those who had said that were mistaken. Parliament had no right to call him to account for his manner of conducting his private business, but if, in the course of evidence, it were brought out that he had used his position as a member of Parliament to get an undue advantage to buy a single acre of land, and so crippled himself as a free member of Parliament, any member had a right to bring him to account. It was impossible altogether to separate private character and public position, and times would come when the man who had done nothing wrong, so far as his public trust is concerned, would be privately so scandalous in character that he ought not to sit in the House or have a representative position among men holding representative positions. (Hear, hear.)

"There were various transactions treated of in the evidence before that commission," said Mr. Foster. "They will come before this House. When they do I invite hon. gentlemen to examine them; but I still hold to this that the honorable man, the fair man, the honest man, will distinguish between what is absolutely private business and what is of public concern in a way that is possible to neutralize or to compromise my position as a member of Parliament."

He was sensitive, supersensitive, if he might make that confession to the House. He believed in a man taking the blows which came in playing the game. He thrust sharply himself, and was ready to take sharp thrusts in return, but what he objected to was that he never of late rose in this House and discussed a question on its public merits but someone either got up or was put up who immediately left the question at issue and commenced, by insinuation and slur, to try to diminish the force of what he (Mr Foster) said. It seemed to have become the rule.

ATTEMPTS TO MUZZLE HIM.

"In the very beginning of this ses- place? I attempted to make what I thought a calm and temperate address. I had scarcely taken my place when the member for Wright (Mr. E. Devlin,) altogether unnecessarily, it seemed to me, made a very pointed allusion to the headlines of the newspapers and the gossip of the country with reference to this very affair. It amounted to simply this—that he was filled with wonder that the member for North Toronto would have the hardihood to take his place in this House and to open his mouth in debate here. And that has been repeated, not once, not twice, not three times, not four times only, but over and over again."

Mr Carvell had said to-day that he did not make any insinuation. He knew that he would not have made that reference unless there had been a barb in it.

He was not going to defend himself until it was shown that it was necessary to do so. When a charge was made he would endeavor to give it a sufficient answer. It should be made, however, on allegations of fact, not on newspaper, headlines and insinuations, and evidence should be adduced in support of those allegations. (Hear, hear.)

WRECK OF THE BERLIN

Lifeboat Crews Rescue Eleven of the Survivors.

Gallant Attempts to Reach Ill-Fated Passengers In Mountainous Seas—Eye Witness Gives Graphic Account—Prince Consort Dares the Storm—Heartrending Scenes—Battered Bodies Washed Ashore.

Hook of Holland, Feb. 23.—After over thirty hours of almost incessant efforts the Dutch lifeboat men have succeeded in rescuing eleven survivors on the afterpart of the British steamer Berlin, which went ashore here Thursday morning. Buffeted and driven back time after time, the sturdy Dutchmen refused to relax their attempts to rescue the handful of shipwrecked persons, and throughout last night and this morning they launched their boat repeatedly, only to be foiled by the mountainous seas. In the early afternoon the lifeboat again went out. The receding tide and some improvement in the weather gave better hope of success, and after a hard tussle with the seas the few persons still living were safely taken off at 3.30 p.m.

Prince Consort At the Scene.

Prince Henry of the Netherlands, the Prince Consort, arrived here yesterday and twice went out in a steam pilot boat to as near the wreck as it was possible to approach. Subsequently the Prince visited the building which is being used as a morgue and passed down the line of white-draped figures, stopping with bowed head for a few minutes before the body of a fair-haired child.

Bodies Battered Beyond Recognition.

The straggling little village of the Hook of Holland was filled with anxious relatives of the crew of the Berlin, and heartrending scenes are witnessed at the improvised mortuary, where the 35 bodies which already have been washed up are lying. Many of these are battered beyond recognition, and some are without heads, and others without arms or legs.

Eye Witness Tells Story.

London, Feb. 23.—The Great Eastern Railway Co.'s steamer Clacton returned to Harwich from the Hook of Holland. An officer of the Clacton yesterday gave a graphic account of the wreck as follows:—

Tremendous Sea.

"We found the Berlin broadside on at the north pier end and we at once set to work in an endeavor to succor the stranded steamer. A tremendous sea was running. The waves were 40 feet high, for the tide was flood and a fierce gale was glowing bang on shore. We got in close to the rocks but nearly went on them ourselves, and had to put about in order to escape the fate of the Berlin. It was impossible for us to get out a life boat, as it would have been smashed to pieces in the raging waters.

Victims Raised a Cheer.

"We could see people in groups on board the Berlin, some on decks and some in the smoke room on the forepart of the vessel. As we approached in an attempt to rescue them the persons on board raised a cheer. Apparently the best of discipline prevailed on board. All the passengers had been furnished with life belts and had gathered on the lee side, endeavoring to shelter themselves from the awful seas which were breaking over the vessel, submerging her decks, funnels, and almost her masts, at times hiding her entirely from view. When within a hundred yards of the Berlin we threw out all our life belts with lines attached, but they failed to reach her.

Vain Fight For Life.

"It was impossible to take a line on board the stranded steamer, as nothing could have lived in the terrible waves. When the Berlin broke in two the passengers and crew were swept off her decks in batches and drowned within a few yards of safety. We could hear their shouts for help, but could do nothing to assist them. We saw scores of people struggling in the water, many clinging for brief periods to floating wreckage. But in their benumbed state they were unable to long resist the tremendous force of the waves and dropped off one by one."

Drowned Youth Leaves a Widow.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 23.—Charles McGinn, while working on the Bengore Head yesterday, fell overboard and was drowned. He was 19 years old, and leaves a widow, having been married a short time ago.

Legislator Has Smallpox.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 23.—Representative W. J. Balts of Pleps County was taken down with smallpox while in his seat on the floor of the House yesterday.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Nina stood with her hands clasped tightly, her eyes fixed on Vane waitingly, and under their regard his courage almost failed him, the longing to take her in his arms well nigh mastered him. But he thought of Sutcombe, the man who loved her, the man whom she doubtless loved. and he found his voice at last. It sounded harsh and hard in his own ears; how much more so, then, in hers!

"This—this is a strange meeting," he said. "The gentleman who came with you has just left me—"

She shot a quick glance of alarm at his shoulder; a glance which, of course, Vane misinterpreted.

"An accident," he said. "A mere trifle. Lord Sutcombe is not hurt."

The color flooded her face, and she drew a long breath of relief—of relief on Sutcombe's account, Vane thought, bitterly.

"He has told me how you happened to come here. I am glad you have done so, glad he should have the gold. Indeed, it is yours to do what you like with. But that's nothing! To me the all important fact is, of course, that you should be alive. I have sought for you—" He checked himself, for he felt he should melt and his resolution break down if he dwelt on the past, the days that had passed since they had parted. "Will you tell me how you were saved? How fate has dealt with you? I'm—I'm naturally curious," he added, with a smile from which he tried hard to keep the bitterness.

Nina obeyed, speaking almost mechanically. The dream, the hope, which had illumined her spirit as she bent over him had vanished, and left her heart an aching void.

He listened, with his eyes on the ground, keeping from his face every sign of the emotions that thrilled him at her story. She had been struggling with poverty while he had been burdened by the wealth that was useless to him without her! When she had finished she stood and waited. She did not ask him for an account of his life since they had parted. He noticed this, and again misunderstood.

"Thank God, hard times are over for you!" he said, fervently. "You are well? But—but—not happy, Nina?"

She looked at him, an eloquent glance, but his eyes were fixed on the ground and he did not see it.

"Perhaps—perhaps I can guess the cause—and remove it," he said, grimly. "May I speak quite candidly? Oh, what is the use of our beating about the bush! We are both thinking of what happened on this island. You were the victim of a cruel fate, Nina, a fate I appreciated, I—I strove to avert. You will do me the justice to acknowledge that, won't you? But I have kept my promise, the promise you asked of me. No one knows of our—marriage."

She turned her face from him and looked straight before her.

"I, too, have kept my promise," she said, in a low voice.

He nodded. "I knew you would—for your own sake," he said, not at all gratefully. "It was poor Fleming's doing entirely. Mind! I bear him no ill will. He acted according to his lights. And—and, after all, there is no harm done—I mean that it can be undone."

She looked at him for a second and waited.

"Since Lord Sutcombe left me," he went on, "I have been thinking of the—the tie that binds us two, and I've come to the conclusion that it—the marriage—was invalid; anyhow, that it would not stand good unless we were married again."

The blood threatened to rise to her pale face, but she kept it down.

"If you remember, poor Fleming said that we might go through the ceremony again if we escaped from the island, when we got to a port—"

She made the faintest gesture of assent with her hand.

"Therefore, in Heaven's name, why should you be bound to me by so frail and intangible a bond!" he broke out, sharply. "I know how you must long for your freedom; you would do so in any case; but now—"

Her brows knit as if she were trying to understand this.

"And—and I admit that you have the right to be free; that, indeed, it would be a shameful thing to hold you by a chain which fettered you against your will."

She made no sign of assent or dissent, and, stringing himself up to the necessary pitch of self-sacrifice, he went on, huskily:

"Fleming gave you a kind of certificate? You have got it still?"

She made a movement of her hand in the affirmative.

"Well, then," he said, almost savagely, "destroy it."

Her eyes flashed on him for an instant, with surprise and relief, as he thought.

"And the ring. Give it back to me, and—and so cancel our"—he laughed slowly and bitterly—"our agreement. There can be nothing then between you and—your freedom, except the—the ceremony. If that seems to you an obstacle, you can get it removed by a court of law. I—of course, I should not oppose. Lord Sutcombe would be able to help you in that part of the business. He—he is a good fellow; I am sure of that, and he—you—" The words stuck in his throat; he could not go any further.

Nina stood with bent head; her eyes flashing, the blood running fiercely through her veins. He had spoken as if it were her freedom he desired, but was he not craving for his own, that he might be free to marry—Judith? At that moment she saw the portrait as plainly as she had seen it when it had been actually in her hand; and, her heart racked with jealousy and wounded, outraged love, she could utter no word. Suddenly she turned from him and took from her bosom the certificate and the ring that was wrapped in it, and held them out to him.

"There they are," she said, with an unnatural calm.

Vane took them from her outstretched hand and looked at them for a moment as if he saw nothing. Then, without a word, he lit one of the matches Sutcombe had given him and held it to a corner of the paper. But, as he did so, something seemed to catch his breath, and, half choking, he flung the match from him, crushed the certificate and ring in his hand and springing towards her caught her in his arms.

Through a mist of tears she saw his face, white to the lips and stern, almost savage, in its passion. Amazed she struggled faintly in his grasp, but he held her so tightly as almost to crush her.

"No!" he cried, hoarsely. "I won't do it! I can't! You are my wife; do you hear? I don't care whether the ceremony was valid or not, I hold you to it! You are my wife! My wife! Do you understand? You married me for better or for worse; I refuse to release you. I hold you to your vow. I refuse to give you up to any man. Do you understand?"

Her eyes closed, the languor of surrender stole over her; but she fought against it, though the pressure of his arms, the fierce, passionate words were sending the blood surging through her veins in a happy flood. But though she loved him with a love that threatened to sweep away every barrier, she was a woman and not a child, and she remembered. So she held her face from the pillow—his heart—which it craved, and retained possession of her soul.

"Why did you fly from me—risk your life rather than stay with me?" he demanded, masterfully. "Did you dislike me so much? Where you so afraid of me? Could you not trust me? No matter! I don't care to know! You are my wife! I hold you to your vow, your promise. Nina! I love you! I loved you then; I've loved you all the time we've been parted. I love you now, and, by God, I'll hold you! Nothing shall part us!"

Then she spoke the word; reluctantly enough, for love's voice was clamouring to her, "Be satisfied! He loves you."

"Judith!"

He started slightly and stared down into her eyes with amazement and a dawning recollection.

"Judith?" he echoed.

"Yes," she breathed. "I—I found her portrait in your coat pocket. A beautiful, a lovely woman. I saw her in a box at the theatre in London. Yes; Judith!"

He gazed, questioningly, anxiously into her eyes, half dazed for a moment; then he laughed. And the laugh was almost sweeter in her ears than his words of passionate love and longing.

"Judith! Judith Orme!— You found her portrait! I had forgotten it; forgotten her!"

The warm blood flooded Nina's face and she drew a long sigh of relief.

"Judith? I thought I was in love with her! In love! I did not know what it meant till I met you. Nina, my dearest, my—wife!" His arms closed round her again. "I had forgotten her! Judith!" he laughed again. "She is going to be married—is married by this time to—to another man! Judith! And you thought—"

Nina's eyes overflowed with the glad tears. Oh, it is well for women that they can weep, even in their joy!

"What else could I think? And—and—you don't care for her now?" she faltered, like any girl in her teens, woman as she was.

He threw back his head and laughed again, the laugh that was such sweet music to her.

"You—only, dearest," he said. "And you never guessed it! Ah! well, if you could have seen me when I found you had gone on that infernal raft; if you could have seen me when its remains floated ashore with your cap! The dear little cap! Oh, Nina! I was mad with grief; I have been more than half mad since. All the world could not console me for the loss of you! And all the time you were thinking I was in love with—Judith!"

"Forgive me!" she murmured. "But what else could I think?—her portrait, there in your coat, over your heart!—and knowing that you had been forced into the marriage—"

"I loved you then, before then!" he said, earnestly. "It was on your account that I hesitated, pleaded with Fleming, made the raft. I thought you disliked me, and I loved you too well to get you against your will."

"How blind we were!" she murmured, regretfully; for how much their blindness had cost them!

"Blind as young puppies! But our eyes are opened now, dearest! It is all right!"

"Your shoulder, your wound— Do you remember the fight with the Lascar?" she whispered, with a shudder.

"Yes, and how gently you dressed the wound; you little guessed how the touch of your dear fingers thrilled through me!" he responded. "My beautiful!" He gazed into her eyes, raised shyly but lovingly to his. "To think of your being a literary swell! A dramatic author! And to think of my looking on at the play, and not knowing that my dear, clever wife had written it! My wife! Nina, you haven't kissed me yet! Kiss me now! Just that I may realize that you are actual flesh and blood, and not one of the visions of you that have come to me so often in my dreams."

She raised her head and kissed him, and did not tell him that she had already done so!

"And now, dearest, touching the future—"

He started at his own words. Future! Why, he had destroyed the future that belonged to her, had given away his birthright, the title, the wealth that should belong to her as his wife! It had been the act of a madman; but—the act had been accomplished, and could not be undone.

She nestled against him and laughed.

"I am too happy in the present to think of the future," she said in a low voice.

"You—you don't mind being the wife of—of a poor man, a man of no account?" he faltered.

She looked at him with surprise. "You forget the gold—Vane!" she said.

The tone of her "Vane" thrilled him.

"Ah, yes, of course!" he responded, with relief. "Yes; yes! I'd forgotten the gold. No wonder, with such a treasure in my arms! We'll go to England, form a company—" He stopped and frowned. How could he go to England, he who had exiled himself from civilization, who was dead to the world, his world. "You—you wouldn't like to stay here?" he suggested, scarcely knowing what to say.

"Anywhere—with you!" she murmured.

Suddenly athwart this dream of happiness came a voice calling, "Decima—Miss Wood!"

Nina started. "Lord Sutcombe!" she whispered almost guiltily.

"Ah, poor Lord Sutcombe!" murmured Vane, gravely. "Yes, I can pity him, Nina! To love you—and lose you! Don't I know what that means!"

Sutcombe came upon them hurriedly and stopped short, looking from one to the other, the color coming and going in his face. Vane made a dash at the revelation.

"Lord Sutcombe—Nina—Miss Wood—we have met—she is my wife!"

Sutcombe started; then he remembered the paper and the ring he had seen Nina weeping over, and realized the truth—and his own absolute, irrevocable loss. He stood for a moment or two quite silent, then he came forward and held out his hand.

begins at the beginning to prevent and eradicate disease—it acts on the nerves that control the vital organs of the body, gives strength to the whole nervous system, fills the blood with that richness and purity that is so essential to health—because, remember this, that when these nerves become weakened and exhausted it means indigestion, torpid liver, stagnant kidneys, the heart flutters and becomes irregular and weak, the lungs fail to have the nourishment and weaken, and the climax, naturally enough, is debility—and the next stage may be consumption. All such dire consequences may be saved by the wonderful potency of South American Nervine.

EIGHTEENTH TIME UP.

British House Passes "Deceased Wife's Sister" Bill.

London, Feb. 23.—The House of Commons yesterday by 263 to 34 votes adopted the second reading of the bill legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister.

This is the eighteenth time the measure has passed its second reading, but there seems to be better prospects than heretofore that it may become a law during the present session of Parliament.

Want Indians Deported.

Cornwall, Feb. 23.—On behalf of the St. Regis chiefs, John A. Chisholm has applied to the Indian Department for the deportation from the reservation of a lot of American Indians and Canadian braves from Oka, Que., who have settled among them without their consent.

Britain's Army Bill.

London, Feb. 23.—An official memorandum issued yesterday announces that the army estimates, which will be introduced in the House of Commons Feb. 25, will provide for the expenditure during 1907-8 of $138,890,000, a reduction of about $10,000,000 from last year.

YET MORE SENSATIONS.

Mrs. Thaw's Life To Be Still Further Probed—Trial Will Cost Half a Million Dollars.

New York, Feb. 23.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has three days to rest and prepare for a continuation of the ordeal which she is undergoing at the hands of District Attorney Jerome. The Thaw trial was adjourned Thursday night until Monday morning, after Mrs. Thaw had spent the entire day on the stand under a searching flaying cross-examination at the hands of the district attorney. On Monday morning she will again take the stand and there is considerable question whether even on Monday the district attorney will be through with her.

More Sensations to Come.

Her associations with both White and Thaw after her return from Europe in 1903; the interviews with Abe Hummel when was drawn the famous affidavit which she has denied she had any part in framing; the European trip of 1904; the incident of the Cumberland Hotel and other incidents with Thaw, following her return; her marriage and the subsequent events—up to the fatal night on the Madison Square Garden—none of these has been inquired into on cross-examination. It would seem that the climax of sensationalism had been reached Thursday, but it is said the district attorney expects to bring out on Monday incidents of at least as sensational a character as those of Thursday.

Cost of the Trial.

The trial will have cost more than half a million of dollars before it is ended.

Of this vast sum the Thaw family will have paid nearly $400,000, while the burden on the taxpayers will be in excess of $121,000.

Irish Cattle.

London, Feb. 23.—(C. A. P.)—Professor Campbell of the Department of Agriculture is informed by the Irish congested districts commission that the outlook for the Irish cattle trade is very serious, having regard to importation of Argentine and Canadian cattle. There is, however, not the danger from Canadian cattle many feared, because Canadians will not be satisfied to sell their stores. Irishmen ought to have farms the size of Canadians.

Gruesome New York Mystery.

New York, Feb. 23.—The feet and portions of the legs of a human body were found in a box in a snow bank in the back yard of a tenement house in Third avenue yesterday. The legs had been chopped off apparently with an axe. From the appearance of the feet and legs it is believed that an attempt was made to destroy them by fire.

Two Asphyxiated by Gas.

Yonkers, N. Y., Feb. 23.—James F. McKay and his wife Mary were found asphyxiated in their home here yesterday.

It is supposed that when they retired Thursday evening one of them accidentally knocked the tube from a gas stove.

FOR HUDSON BAY RAILWAY

General Demand For a New Line—Premier Says Matter Is Being Carefully Considered.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—On a motion to go into supply yesterday afternoon, Mr. Knowles called the attention of the Government to the urgent necessity for the construction of a railway to Hudson Bay.

The west was suffering from the lack of transportation. Neither wheat nor coal could be moved as required. He claimed that the C. P. R. is withdrawing its motive power and rolling stock from the west, although the traffic is increasing.

Should Assist the West.

The Government should assist the West by constructing a national road. The western people were heavily taxed by a tariff that did them no earthly good, and from this revenue were built wharves in Nova Scotia and canals in Ontario. Had not the West some right to relief from the national treasury? He claimed that ships could enter and leave the ports of Hudson Bay from June to December.

Mr. Lake considered this matter of the highest importance. The present railways were unable to meet the demands of western traffic.

Feasible and Necessary.

Mr. Greenway thought the Hudson Bay route was entirely feasible. It was the original route, the one used for hundreds of years by the Hudson Bay Co. The congestion of freight in the Northwest was a serious problem. The G. T. P. and other new roads running east and west only accentuated the trouble by opening additional areas and increasing the quantity of grain to be carried.

Mr. Cash said that the entire West was anxious for this road to be built. The railways had utterly broken down in their efforts to get out the grain. Had the Government no way of enforcing the law and compelling the companies to serve the people? He submitted that a railway to Hudson Bay might bring relief.

Shortage of Cars.

Mr. McRaney corroborated the preceding speakers as to car shortage. The trouble was so chronic that people had largely been talking about it.

Mr. Foster defended the C. P. R. It seemed only commonsense that the company would carry all the freight that it possibly could. But he favored a railroad to Hudson Bay.

Premier Promises Something.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the Hudson Bay Railroad had been discussed for many years. A statute was passed years ago appropriating a subsidy of 12,000 acres of land per mile. No company had ever applied for it. But some other method would be found. At this very moment, the matter was engaging the attention of the Government.

He could not promise any announcement next week or the week after, but he hoped to make an important announcement foreshadowing the building of this important system before the close of the session.

Lack of Motive Power.

Every western member who spoke referred to the car famine, but Mr Greenway, who made a strong, sensible speech ascribed the breakdown of the C. P. R. to lack of motive power. He instanced the fact that cars loaded with grain stood for weeks and months on a siding, thus indicating that so far from more cars being in demand that there were a surplus of cars as compared to locomotives.

C. P. R. Starves West.

"In the east," said Mr. Knowles, in substance, "the C. P. R. has competition, hence you people in Ontario and Quebec get service that is prompt, careful and efficient. In the West the C. P. R. at most points has no competition, and we have to take any old kind of service they see fit to give us."

STRUCK BY TRAIN.

Woman Killed and Husband May Die While Returning From Wake.

Lindsay, Feb. 23.—While returning from a wake yesterday evening Mr and Mrs. Primeau of this town were caught at Pottery Corners crossing by the C. P. R. train, due here at 7.20.

Mrs. Primeau was instantly killed, and Primeau was so seriously injured that he is not expected to live. The horse was also killed.

The train stopped and carried the bodies to Lindsay station.

Mr. Primeau is a highly respected merchant.

GETS NEW TRIAL.

Condemned for Murder, But Judge Did Not Charge Jury Fairly.

Fredericton, N. B., Feb. 23.—The Supreme Court yesterday afternoon gave judgment unanimously in favor of granting a new trial to Thomas Collins, sentenced to be hanged on the 25th for the murder of Mary Ann McAulay, on the ground that Judge Gregory, the trial judge, in his charge to the jury, did not lay the facts fully and plainly before them.

Cars Fell Forty Feet.

Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 23.—A combination coach and a loaded coal car of a train on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Narrow Gauge Branch Railroad, between Bellevue and Cascade, jumped the rails yesterday at a curve on a trestle over a small stream near Washington Mills, and fell a distance of 40 feet.

The coal car landed on top of the coach, in which were ten passengers. The coach was completely wrecked. One passenger was killed and seven seriously injured. The cause of the derailment is not known.

London, Feb. 23.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra had the first court of the year at the Buckingham Palace last night.

Workmen Will Ask for Higher Wages

Carpenters Bricklayers and Others Will Request Increases

There will be considerable increase in the cost of general building material this year and it is likely that members of the various building trades will receive more money.

Wages have advanced in other cities and it is felt by the members that there should be an increase in Peterborough. There were a few advances last year but it is said that there will be more this year. It is expected there will be plenty of work for all as a great deal of building will be going on.—in fact more than usual, and last season was a pretty busy one in this line.

The members of the bricklayers and stonemason's union hold a special meeting this evening, when it is said, the matter of an increase per hour will be discussed and some action taken. The bricklayers and masons labor nine hours a day, but there will be no attempt made to cut down the hours as the working season in the year is not as long in their trade as in many other trades.

A meeting of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners will be held on Monday night. The minimum wage for carpenters is now 25 cents an hour, although many receive over that sum. The carpenters work nine hours a day. It is expected that a demand will be made to raise the rate of wages to 27 1-2 cents an hour. This would be the minimum. At the meeting on Monday night the report of the Building Trades Council will be presented. This embraces rules governing the trade, which will be used for the first time in Peterborough, if adopted.

It is reported that builders' laborers will request a small increase in wages. It is not expected the various unions will experience any difficulty in having their demands met as the augmentation of pay in each trade is not large.

Machine Phones New List Issued

Thirty Five New Names Added—Total Now Reaches 250

On Monday the Canadian Machine Telephone Company will issue its new directory and it will be pleasing to the large number of people interested in this company's welfare, to know that some 35 new names have been added since the last list was published. This brings the total number of subscribers up to about 250 and in a very short time the required 300 'phones will be in operation. As it is the Machine Co. has been kept on the jump. It is hard to keep up with the demand for telephones, and especially have the requests from the public been strong during the past few weeks.

As everyone who has ever heard of the Canadian Machine 'phone knows, it is absolutely private. One is just as secure talking personal matters over this telephone as if he were in a separate room. This fact is now being fully appreciated, hence the increased demand for a service.

Members of Local Encampments Put on Splendid Degree Work

In Connection With the Resuscitation of Victoria Encampment in Port Hope—About Forty Patriarchs Went Down by Special Train—Votes of Thanks Tendered the Visitors.

Victoria Encampment, I.O.O.F. was resuscitated last night in Port Hope. About forty members of Mount Hebron and Hiawatha Encampments of Peterborough went down to the lakeside town by special train. Mr. Joseph Powley of Toronto, Grand Chief Patriarch, was unable to be present to install the officers, but Patriarch, Alex. Smith, D.D.G.M., of Whitby, was there in his official capacity to install the officers.

After the first and second degrees had been exemplified, all the Patriarchs had supper. About eighty-seven sat down and a most enjoyable time was spent. Later the third degree was put on in the I.O.O.F. hall The business was concluded about three o'clock this morning after speeches had been made by A. H. Blackeby, P.G.P. of Kingston; Alex. Smith, D.D.G.M. and others.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the Peterborough Encampments for bringing their full paraphernalia and for the splendid manner in which the degree work was conferred. A vote of thanks was also accorded D.D.G.M. Smith and others. The Peterborough Patriarchs who went down by special train arrived home about five o'clock this morning, well pleased with the reception given them in Port Hope by the mebmers of Durham Lodge No. 78 I.O.O.F.

Victoria Encampment, Port Hope, starts off with eleven charter members. Thirty-two candidates received the first second and third degree last night. In the first degree the principal chair was occupied by Dr. McKercher, in the second by J. E. Sharpe and in the third by George Cairns.

Victoria Encampment has bright prospects ahead of it. The following were the officers installed;

Mr. Knowles Does Not Want More Hotels in Town of Galt

Without Vote of the People Being First Taken—Says the Ratepayers Should Pronounce on the Issue

At the prayer meeting in Knox church last night, Mr. Knowles made a strong appeal against the granting of further liquor licenses in Galt. He said the attempt to do so was an affront to the whole moral intelligence of Galt.

"It is said," remarked Mr. Knowles, "that we need more hotel accommodation, but we do not need it badly enough to pay the price that this entails. It would be a terrible step backward and while we need new industries, we do not need those that find their grist in the souls of men. Councils are often ready to submit questions to the people. Let them submit this to the electors of Galt, and the mandate will soon be forthcoming."

Mr. Knowles expressed his conviction that the moral sentiment of the council would crush the proposal; anything else would absolutely misrepresent the highest public opinion.—Galt Reformer.

No More Foreigners are to Be Employed in Galt Works

The Galt Reformer says;

"None but men of Anglo-Saxon origin will in future be employed by the Goldie & McCulloch Company Limited. This is declared to be a rule which has been established by the company since the occurrence in the moulding shop last Saturday, when a murder was attempted, the principals being two Bulgarian laborers.

There is at present only one man of foreign birth employed in the [illegible] shops, and no more will be engaged.

The attempted shooting by Ivan George of his brother-in-law, Ruso Petro, has made it clear to the management that foreign help is anything but desirable, and while other firms may continue to employ this class of labor for the reason that it is cheaper, the Goldie & McCulloch Company refuse to do so, believing the protection of their Anglo-Saxon employees to be of more importance than the saving of the difference in the cost between white and foreign labor.

This action on the part of the company is said to find unanimous approval among employees of the works."

Some Changes in Regiment; New Paymaster for Corps

Major Hayes Retires in Order to Accept Appointment as Paymaster, Succeeding Major Dennistoun—Capt. E. B. Clegg Promoted—Will be Junior Major of the Corps.

Militia orders this week contain some important announcements affecting the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

Major L. M. Hayes has resigned his post in order to accept the appointment of paymaster of the corps He will succeed Major R. M. Dennistoun who has stepped down and out owing to his removal to Winnipeg in the near future.

Capt. E. B. Clegg, of No. 2 Company will succeed Major Hayes as junior major of the Regiment.

The friends of both gentlemen will congratulate them on their well deserved promotions.

Major Hayes, the new paymaster, has been identified with the corps about eighteen years. He was for six years lieutenant of No. 4 Company and for a similar length of time was captain of No. 6 Company. He has been junior major about three years and is a highly respected and popular officer.

Major E. B. Clegg has been connected with the Peterborough Rangers off and on for about twenty-one years. He has been a captain ten years and as such was entitled to an honorary majority. He would have been gazetted a Brevet Major some time ago, had he applied for his honorary majority. He has now been appointed junior major of the Rangers. He is an energetic and faithful officer. Captain Bennett now succeeds Major Clegg as senior captain of the 57th.

Who will be appointed to the captaincy of No. 2 Company (Major Clegg's Company) is not yet known but an announcement may be expected in a few days.

The resignation of Major R. M. Dennistoun is sincerely regretted. He was an ideal paymaster. The best wishes of all the officers and men will follow him to his new western home, when he leaves for Winnipeg, which will be in the course of a few weeks.

Difficulties That Hamper The Local Truant Officer

The work of Peterborough's truant officer is beset by difficulties. The lack of school accommodation is one of them, and until there is sufficient school room for the pupils, truancy no doubt will continue unabated.

A few days ago the city truant officer, Mr. George Cochrane, notified about twenty families in the city that they would have to send their children to school. The youngsters had not been attending school for some time, and the school inspector had become aware of the fact. Two or three days ago one of the fathers who had been notified, decided that his children would have to attend school and accordingly they were sent to the educational institution in the south ward. They went to the school, but were informed that there was no room for them, and had to return home. The father naturally was somewhat indignant that he should have been ordered to send his children to school and then have them sent home. Determined to ascertain what the matter was he accompanied the children back to school, but was informed that the class rooms were already overcrowded, and that the children could not be kept at school more than a forenoon or afternoon each day. Under these conditions it is, of course, very difficult to stamp out truancy, for the lack of school accommodation is used for an excuse by some parents as a reason why their children are not being educated. When the new south ward school is finished it will be different, as there will then be much more accommodation, and there should be no excuse for pupils staying at home on that account.

Until then the truant officer will have his own troubles.

Prices are High in Calgary

"Calgary must be in dire longing for spring when a citizen writes;—What with coal at $8 per ton, rotten cordwood at $12 per cord, lumber from $30 to $60 per 1000 ft., rentals from $25 to $60 per month and pay your light and water tax besides, taxes generally on the upward move, eggs 70c per dozen, butter 35c and 40c per pound, potatoes $1.75 per bushel and ponds going dry, water connections frozen all over the city and the consequent scarcity and high price of milk, a blizzard raging and no wood or coal to be had, all building trades at a standstill and hundreds of our people out of work and much sickness and distress prevailing, you must admit sir, that average wage-earners in Calgary to-day are facing an alarming condition of things.

BUTTER AND EGGS REMAIN STEADY

To-day's Prices Showed Little Change From Last Week.

The extremely cold weather did not keep the buyers and sellers away from the market this morning and business was active in several lines, although there was not a very great variety of produce on hand. Pork and beef were the principle offerings on the outside market and both sold at the prices that have ruled all winter. Pork sold at 9c and 10c per pound, the former for fronts and the latter for hindquarters. Beef was in fair demand at 5c and 6c per pound. There was a big supply on hand and it was late in the day before it all was disposed of.

Potatoes were quoted at 90c and $1.00 per bag and hay, of which there was a big supply on hand, sold at $13 and $14 per ton, according to quality.

Butter and eggs were also in the old groove. Butter changed hands at 26c to 28c per pound for dairy prints, although some holders asked as high as 30c. Eggs were none too plentiful and the market was cleared of them early in the day. The ruling figures were 27c and 28c per dozen. Poultry sold at the usual figures and was in fair demand.

WEATHER HAS BEEN VERY COLD

Former Peterborough Man Refers to Climatic Conditions in Edmonton

School Inspector Duncan Walker has received a letter from Mr. Jas. McCaig, public school inspector of Edmonton, formerly of Peterborough, in which he says the weather in the capital of Alberta has been exceptionally cold—from December 1st to Feb. 1st. Since the beginning of the present month, the temperature has moderated, and the days are now nice and warm in Edmonton.

CUTTER STRUCK BY TRAIN AT LINDSAY

Man Seriously Hurt—Woman Instantly Killed

A Lindsay despatch says;—Last evening, just as the C.P.R. train from Toronto was approaching the crossing at Pottery Corners, Mr. and Mrs. A. Primeau, respected residents of this town, returning home from a visit in the country, driving a single horse and cutter, were struck by the incoming train, Mrs. Primeau being instantly killed and Mr. Primeau seriously hurt, the full extent of his injuries not being known at this writing. The horse was also killed. The late Mrs. Primeau is well known in Peterborough, having visited here on several occasions.

DAM NO. 4 LEASE TO GO THROUGH

Whether City Wants Power or not—Otonabee Co. Getting Busy

In speaking of the agreement of the Otonabee Power Company supplying the city with 500 electric horse power, one of the directors said this morning that the company was tired waiting for the council to act, and that they had proceeded to take the matter up on their own book. This week Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., and Mr. J. H. McClellan, interviewed Mr. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, and started the work of putting the lease through. The difference between the rental the company will have to pay for dam No. 4, if it does not supply the city with the electric power, and if it does, is only $300 per year. That is if the city does not get the 500 horse power the company will have to pay the above mentioned figure in addition to the $600, the amount of their tender. In the opinion of the directors, the company would just as leave the city didn't take the 500 horse power. They can make more money selling it in small quantities. But the offer was originally made for the purpose of helping the city out of a hole, but the council has taken so much time say the directors of the company, that they cannot wait any longer.

Farmer Complains About Heating of Market Hall

A prominent Otonabee farmer today made a statement to the Review regarding the heating of the market hall. He stated that this morning the hall was almost as cold as outside, and that those who were there with produce for sale suffered greatly from the cold. He thought that when farmers paid for the privilege of occupying the hall, it should be properly heated. Country folk who drove in 15 and 20 miles this morning and expected to find the market hall comfortably heated, were bitterly disappointed. They had to seek other places in which to get warmed.

"Whoever is responsible for the heating of the market building should see that it is done properly," remarked the Review's informant. "We don't want to pay our money for nothing."

HOW IS THIS.

It does seem rather peculiar, as a Kingston paper points out, that as the price of rubber boots and shoes advances, the quality of the goods becomes poorer. But some people will tell you that the same condition exists in other things, too.

SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION.

Col. Young of Kingston, was in the city last evening and visited the school of instruction which is in progress nightly at the City Hall. Mitchell has decided to retire from the grocery part of his business and confine himself altogether to the wine and liquor branch of the business. In the meantime the entire stock of groceries will be sold at prices that will ensure a speedy sale. The stock is fresh, up-to-date and at prices at which it is offered will mean money saved to early buyers.

A GOOD RETORT.

An Irishman boarded a train in which every seat except one was occupied by two people. This seat had as occupants a young 'sport' and a large shaggy dog. The Irishman stood by the seat, expecting that room would be made for him. The young man did not take the hint, but regarded the other, who was poorly dressed, with ill-disguised scorn. At last the Irishman remarked: "That's a foine dog ye have with ye. What breed is it?" "It's a cross between a skunk and an Irishman," was the sneering reply. "Shure then, it's related to both of us," was the instant retort.

SONG SERVICE.

THE FIRST BIG EGG.

The season for big egg stories has once more arrived and the first that we are called upon to record is that of an egg measuring 6 1-4 inches by 7 1-2 inches, which was laid by a Rhode Island Red pullet owned by Mr. S. J. Ray, one of Tweed's numerous poultry raisers. This will be hard to beat as we had it boiled for breakfast yesterday morning.—Tweed News.

ORILLIA'S ASSESSMENT

Orillia Times: It is time, too, that the village notion of two assessors for the town of Orillia was done away with. The appointment was first made with the idea of pleasing both political parties, but Orillia has long ago banished politics from its municipal affairs, and this last relic of bygone days should be laid on the shelf. Whatever it may have been in theory it has no value in practice. A permanent assessor would have an opportunity to study land values the whole year instead of rushing the work through in a few weeks at an unreasonable time.

DOG WAS SHOT.

A large collie dog had one of his hind legs taken off this morning by a street car on Charlotte st. near Louis st. As the animal was so badly hurt it had to be shot and P.C. Newhall put an end to its suffering. The first shot did the trick. To satisfy an old gentleman, who witnessed the shooting and said he saw the dog wink its eye the policeman put another shot through the canine.

JUST ABOUT SKIRTS.

There is a rumor in the world of fashion that skirts are to be narrow and skimpy. The latest French skirt is cut with a narrow front seam, and this extends above the waist, where it is closely fitted to the figure, the wide seams being similarly shaped and fitted. The back has a plait, corselet style of skirt, which is most becoming to tall, thin women. As it is cut to give an impression of narrowness it is seldom lined, and very little underclothing is worn.

SNOW UP NORTH.

The first heavy snowfall of the winter commenced about 2 p.m. on Wednesday, coming straight out of the north, which is an unusual occurrence. About eight inches fell and drifted considerably. As a consequence, the train from Haliburton on Thursday morning was three and one-half hours late, reaching the Falls at 11.30. The noon train from the south was about an hour behind its regular time. —Fenelon Falls Gazette.

AT PARK STREET.

The people's popular Sunday evening services at the Park street Baptist church will be continued tomorrow. The Y.M.C.A. male quartette, will give several selections. Their last visit made a deep impression and they will receive a hearty welcome tomorrow night. The subject for the evening is "Does God keep His Word." This will be a unique service. There will be a responsive public exercise on the promises. Rev. A. H. Brace will be in charge.

CHOSEN FRIENDS MEET

The Peterborough Council, Chosen Friends, met last evening in the S.O.E. Hall, and matters of great importance to the society were discussed. There was a large attendance of members, and all entered into the discussion of the proposed amendments to the constitution, but only a portion of them was fully taken up. The remainder of the amendments are to come up for discussion at the next regular meeting.

MARRIED MEN, ATTENTION!

Some men seem to account their marriage certificate, O,
As a fully paid-up policy of happiness, O.
They act as if the courtship days were those of paying, O,
Premiums of compliments, courtesy and cheerfulness, O, Consideration and chivalry, and that marriage, O,
Makes all these premiums of love-
like attention, much less, O,
Then get an absolutely guaranteed
insurance, O,
On matrimony is to keep paying the premiums, O,

Many first class matrimonial policies lapse, O,
Just because of these suspended
payments of premiums, O,
There is a tendency to assume that this loving, O,
Is known and recognized, so why
speak of it at all, O,
There is a dangerous taking for granted of what should, O,
Be made real pulsing and vital in thought, word and deed, O,
There is small danger of over telling this story, O,
It is often the wine of life and inspiration, O,
To one hungering and thirsting for tender affection, O,

There are more souls on this great rolling earth hungering, O,
For sweetness and tender words of appreciation, O,
Genial confidence and generous affection, O,
And for love-like attention, than are starving for bread, O,
With husband and wife these delicate messengers of, O,
Affection cost so little— sometimes only a thought, O,
But it is the thought that the thoughtless thought, that is all, O, Constant courtship after marriage
preserves the lover, O,
In the husband as well as the sweetheart in the wife, O,

But courtship is not solitaire like a quarrel, O,
It requires two to make it a success
you know, O,
It is not the wife alone who needs
the gracious, O,
Sometimes of concentrated comradeship, we know, O,
For husbands built on the right
line, have the same hunger, O,
For loving kindness and kindly loving just the same, O,
Courtship is a vessel of promise
that's often wrecked, O,
On the unforeseen shoals of matrimony aspect, O,
Courtship means two mates genial without a captain O, Marriage sometimes becomes two captains without a mate, O.

Great Power Plant at Niagara; How Falls are Being Harnessed

The Important Part That the Canadian General Electric Company is Playing in the Development at the Falls--What Members of Canadian Press Saw on Recent Trip.

A few days ago the members of the Canadian Press Association, meeting in Toronto, and gathered at the annual meeting, were pleased to accept an invitation to inspect the electric power plants and development work going on at Niagara Falls, on the Canadian side of the Falls. The Grand Trunk Railway very kindly provided three coaches, which were attached to the morning train from Toronto, the party of press men and ladies accompanying being in charge of Mr J. D. McDonald, the district passenger agent of the G.T.R. Reaching the Falls at 11 o'clock a.m., the party were guided on a visit of inspection by Mayor Slater, of Niagara Falls, and by the officials of the several power companies visited. Trolley cars took the visitors up the Canadian side of the river to view the magnificent works of the intake of the Ontario Power Co. By means of a wing wall, built out into the rapids, the water of the river is directed into a large area, and there confined until drawn off by the two big 18 foot conduits, which convey the water [illegible] power house. Coming down the river, the works of the Electrical Development Co. were next visited. The power house is a handsome building of Cleveland limestone, and when finished will look more like a State Capitol than a building for developing electrical energy. Those of the party who explored the wheel pits obtained some conception of the amount of money expended in developing the plant and preparing it for operation. An immense wheel pit was excavated through the solid rock, to a depth of 120 feet, and in this pit are placed the enormous turbines, which connect with the generators above by vertical shafts of steel, as large as the propellor shafts of an ocean liner. The water is delivered to each turbine by an 8 foot steel pipe. At this plant two of the huge generators are in operation, while four more are being installed. A fact of interest to the visitor from Peterborough was that the generators and accompanying plant, all bore the name plates of the Canadian General Electric Co, of Peterborough, and it is largely to the credit of the company that, while in the other plants the generators were built in Europe, that a Canadian concern is able to undertake a work of such colossal character and large responsibility. This is the source of the electric current now being delivered in Toronto, and along the line, which is seen from the railway coach as one leaves Toronto. From the power house straight through the solid rock, and 120 feet below the surface of the river, a tunnel twenty-four feet in diameter was driven, opening out behind the wall of water of the Horse Shoe Falls. Some conception of the size of the tunnel can be had, when it is said that four railway coaches could be placed in it, two side by side, with two more on top. It is said than when running at full capacity the water from the six turbines will fill the twenty-four foot tunnel. Oddly enough, while a Canadian development, the turbine wheels were made in Switzerland, the Swiss having had many years of experience in developing power from water falls delivering a flow of water to be utilised under high heads and at enormous pressure. Looking at the enormous cost of the work to ensure a supply of water, free from ice in the winter season, of the conduits and power plant, and of the transmission lines, one is not surprised that power cannot be sold at the low cost assumed by many as being a permissable price. The courage and enterprise of the promoters, who have invested immense sums, much of it years ago, and making no return during the long period of building and equipping the plant, deserves a substantial reward, and which no one who inspects the plant would deny them.

Further down the river and directly at the water's edge, below the Falls on the Canadian side, is the power house of the Ontario Power Co. It is a model plant in every respect, massive, permanent and designed for continuous service. The power house contains five 15,000 h.p. generators, each driven by twin turbines on the same shaft with the generator. The generators and wheels are magnificent specimens of engineering skill, and were built in Germany. Access is had to this power house by tunnels driven back into the hill, then by elevator to a lower level, and by another tunnel out to the power house. All this has been done so that the scenic beauty of the Falls should not be impaired.

During the afternoon a visit was made to the works of the Shredded Wheat Biscuit Co., on the American side. Here the press party were entertained and made welcome, and shown over the magnificent factory, the most complete plant of its kind on the continent.

Shortly after noon the Association were guests of the Clifton Hotel for lunch, where an excellent menu was served. After lunch a few toasts were responded to. Mayor Slater, of Niagara Falls, made a short speech and extended a warm welcome to the visitors. Mr. H. C. Hammond, director, responded for the hotel syndicate, and Mr. J. T. Clark, the newly elected president, for the Canadian Press Association.

Canadians may regard with pride the Clifton Hotel, which has just been completed at Niagara Falls, on the Canadian side, at a cost of $500,000. Tourists and pleasure seekers will not find anywhere a more comfortable or handsomely appointed hotel, or one with more picturesque situation. Its position is ideal, being the only hotel at Niagara Falls to command an unobstructed view of the American and Horseshoe Falls and the great Gorge.

From its wide and spacious piazzas the most magnificent views of the cataracts, the brilliant rainbows in the fleecy clouds of mist, the islands, and the great gorge, can be enjoyed.

The interior of the hotel is arranged for the thorough comfort and pleasure of the guest. It is artistically furnished with a harmonious color scheme. Many of the rooms are en suite with private bath, affording all modern conveniences. The rooms are heated by electric radiators. The large, white-pillared Colonial dining room will seat six hundred guests with individual tables. In the observation dining saloon unobstructed views of the falls and the gorge add to the guests' enjoyment. In addition, there are several charming tea rooms and private dining rooms for special parties, besides a large and handsomely appointed cafe. The cuisine of the Clifton Hotel is of the highest order, and the service is as near perfection as modern hotel methods can devise. For the pleasure of the guests a beautiful ball room and a commodious and finely equipped games room provides amusement for the evenings, enhanced by the music of the hotel orchestra. The ball room is equipped with a stage suitable for concerts and entertainments.

The Clifton Hotel is under the management of Mr. George R. Major, formerly manager of the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec.

The Canfield Poison Case; Course the Crown Will Take

Further Evidence in Support of Crown's Theory.

Prisoner Alleged to Have Asked Lawyer How She Would Share if Husband Died Without Will—Strychnine Found in Dead Man's Trunk—Suicide Will Be the Defence—Poison Was Purchased.

Cayuga, Feb. 23.—Interest in the Perkins case is at fever heat. In fact the public feeling has had not a little to do with the affair. The arrest of Mrs. Perkins, it is said, was at least precipitated by a movement on the part of a section of the community to petition the Attorney-General's Department to hurry up and do something. Inspector Greer had been doing a lot of useful work, as the evidence to be submitted will show, but he had been doing it quietly, if none the less thoroughly, and neighbors were getting tired of waiting for a climax.

Evidence Circumstantial.

While the case against the accused is wholly circumstantial the authorities claim to be justified in placing Mrs. Perkins in custody.

At the inquest into Perkins' death Dr. Kerr, the family physician, stated that he knew of no strychnine being about the house. The poison book at the local drug store, however, shows that Rolph Carrig, brother of Mrs. Perkins, purchased a quantity in October. It is said, too, that strychnine was found in the trunk owned by the dead man. On this the defence will, it is believed, base an argument that deceased ended his own life. In rebuttal the crown will produce witnesses from Welland to show that Perkins was in good health and good spirits when he lived there and when he left there to go home for Christmas.

Line Crown Will Take.

It was learned yesterday that the crown will endeavor to show that Mrs. Perkins has been buying poison for years in St. Thomas, Windsor and Detroit. While in Welland Detective Greer interviewed the persons with whom deceased boarded. On one occasion Perkins remarked to his boarding-house mistress that he was always well when away from home. When home he was invariably troubled with his stomach. It is the crown's endeavor to connect the alleged purchase of the poison which has been going on for years with Perkins' statement.

New Piece of Evidence.

A new piece of evidence will be furnished by a lawyer, who says that a short time before Perkins came home Mrs. Perkins enquired of him how she would share should Perkins die without making a will. She said he would not make a will and she was afraid he would die suddenly. The lawyer told her she would get $1,000 insurance and about $3,000 in property.

Perkins' father died under somewhat similar circumstances. It is said that Perkins got about $6,000 in property from the estate.

Government Will Organize Larder Lake District—Surveys to Be Made—May Build Wagon Roads and Branch of Railway There—Bill to Create County Boards of Health—To Register Tuberculosis.

Toronto, Feb. 23.—The Provincial Government, with commendable zeal and enterprise, will this spring undertake the task of a further opening up and development of the great district of New Ontario.

An appeal from Mr. C. N. Smith (Sault Ste. Marie) for the Larder Lake district at the Legislature yesterday, resulted in the interesting assurance of Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands and Mines, that the Government had had the whole matter under consideration for some time and that plans were in contemplation for the complete organization of the district and the possible building through it of another new branch of the Government-owned Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway.

Open Larder Lake District.

Mr. Smith made his plea at the opening of the session. He related that, after Coleman, Bucke and Lorraine townships had been explored, a number of prospectors went northward to the Larder Lake district. As a result there were now some 2,300 in the northern country and scores of others were treking in as rapidly as they could. The north of Larder Lake was 80 miles from Cobalt and 76 from Haileybury. The pioneers were looking through and under the snow for ore in an unsurveyed country with no recorder's office in which to locate a "strike."

Wanted to Hustle.

Mr. Smith, then, wanted the Government to send surveyors thither at once—with the next 24 hours, if possible,—and form a line of communication for the prospectors to tie to. He also wanted another recorder's office established to the south of Larder Lake, 40 miles north of Haileybury.

The plaint prompted Hon. Frank Cochrane to an indication of some of the big things he has in store for this territory. The rush there, he said, began late in the fall and had continued during the winter. Under the old act, as passed by the former Government, prospectors who made finds and desired to take up property were called upon to bring up surveyors and have plans made.

May Build Wagon Roads.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane has better plans. In the estimates there is already provision for the proper surveying of the districts, which will follow the report of one of the Government geologists who will be sent into that country in the early spring. The Department was also debating the advisability not only of building good wagon roads but a branch of the railway to serve the district. The Minister of Mines was surprised, however, that Mr. Smith should urge such hurried action. He must be aware that it would be a waste of money to send men in to make the survey at the present time when there was four feet of snow upon the ground.

A Pertinent Question.

Mr. Kerr put the following query: "What amount of taxes does the Province receive from the Pullman Car Co. and what is the amount of assessment. Are taxes levied, and if not by assessment, in what way. What is the number of all kinds and descriptions of cars and rolling stock, the company have in use in the Province and running therein?"

Hon. Col. Matheson, the Provincial Treasurer, replied that the Pullman Co. paid the Province $1,748.33 during 1906, being a tax under the Supplementary Revenue Act, one-third of one per cent. upon the capital of the Co. invested in cars and rolling stock in use in Ontario the preceding year, $524,501. The tax, he said, was collected by requisition of the Provincial Treasurer.

The average number of cars of the Co. in use in Ontario, as per return of 1906, was as follows: Standard 48,191, valued at $481,910; parlor 5,401, valued at $32,406; emigrant or tourist 2,037, valued at $10,185, a total valuation of $524,501. The standard cars were assessed on a valuation of $10,000 each, parlor cars $6,000 each, and tourist cars $5,000 each. In 1904 the valuation was for the same purposes: standard $7,250; parlor $5,000; tourist $3,500.

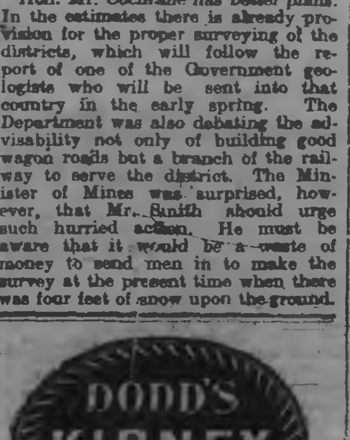
To Amend Insurance Act.

Mr. [illegible] Hoyle's measure to amend the Insurance Act was referred without discussion to a special committee, consisting of Hon. Mr. Foy, Hon. Mr. Graham and Messrs. Clark (Bruce), Downey, Fergnson (Grenville), Preston (Brant), Craig, Pense and Hoyle.

County Boards of Health.

Mr. J. P. Downey introduced a bill of considerable importance. Its chief purpose is to meet the necessity for the registration of cases of tuberculosis. With this end in view it provides for the creation of County Boards of Health, or associations for the prevention of the white plague. Every municipality not employing a medical health officer at a salary of $1,500 shall have one representative on the board. The board shall meet at least once a year, and receive and consider reports on all cases of tuberculosis, but the names of the patients shall not be mentioned. Every practicing physician is compelled by the Act to notify the secretary of the County Association of every case, or suspected case of tuberculosis that comes under his notice within one week of seeing the patient. Specimens of the sputa shall be obtained and forwarded from time to time to the Provincial bacteriologist until definite results are obtained. When the case is confirmed precautionary measures must be taken by the board, and all possible means adopted to help the patient and prevent the spread of the disease.

The bill was given its first reading, and will come up for full discussion next week.



GENERAL BOOTH SAILS.

Says Army's Work Is Misunderstood In Canada.

London, Feb. 23.—(C. A. P.)—General Booth has stated the Army is receiving enquiries for emigration to Canada at the rate of 2,000 a day; 10 per cent. were of unsuitable ages, boys ranging from 7 to 18.

General Booth, who sailed for New York yesterday, interviewed, said the Army was still misunderstood in parts of the Dominion.

"We are opposed, not because our methods of work seem irrational or unlikely to succeed, but simply because they are novel. What we preach even the drunkard and semi-idiot can understand."

General Booth added, though, that the Army now stood very high in the estimation of the Canadian people. It was generally hoped to make arrangements between the home and colonial Governments to transfer pauper and deserted children before they had time to contract bad habits.

NEWSPAPER BURNED OUT.

Quebec Telegraph Gutted—Employes Have Difficulty Escaping.

Quebec, Feb. 23.—The Daily Telegraph offices were totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning, together with the whole block of buildings in which it was located, that were owned by Frank Carrell, who suffers a loss of $75,000, fully covered by insurance.

The entire staff was at work at the time, comprising about fifty hands, including a dozen young women employed in the bookbinding department, who had all they could do to make their escape from the building.

Fireman Donnelly had his hip broken by falling debris. The following is a partial list of the insurances: North British and Mercantile, $8,000; Aetna, $4,000; Manitoba, $3,500; Western, $2,000; North American, $1,000; Atlas, $2,000; Royal, $5,000; Queen, $4,000; Quebec, $4,000. Total, $33,500.

PROTEST TO LORD ELGIN.

Upper House, Newfoundland Legislature, Condemns Modus Vivendi.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 23.—The Legislative Council, the Upper House of the Newfoundland Legislature, adopted by a vote of 11 to 2 an address to Lord Elgin, British Secretary of State for the Colonies, protesting against the modus vivendi last October between the British and American Governments for the regulation of the herring fisheries on the west coast of the island.

The Lower House adopted the same address last week by a vote of 23 to 3.

The address, sets forth that the modus vivendi was agreed upon by the two Governments without the British officials consulting the Newfoundland Government or endeavoring to learn the views of the residents of the colony.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for, as a matter of fact, they sap the vitality of mind and body and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, stinging sensations of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes, stubborn disease.

Engineer Seriously Hurt.

Sarnia, Feb. 23.—Engineer Joseph Daniels met with a serious accident last night. He was bringing a westbound freight train into the tunnel yards and had his head out of the cab window when it came in contact with a small shanty, the force of which pulled him through the window and he fell within a foot's distance of the wheels of the train. The fireman brought the train to a standstill. Daniels was found unconscious. By noon yesterday he was in a partially conscious condition, and there is some hope of recovery.

Terrorists Rob Postoffice.

Warsaw, Russian Poland, Feb. 23.—The postoffice on Wapolna street was attacked at noon yesterday by a band of terrorists, who shot and killed the postmaster, two postal clerks and two soldiers guarding the place and wounded a score of bystanders. The terrorists robbed the safe of the cash and stamps and escaped in cabs.

The robbers belong to the organization known as the Fighting Socialists and displayed a red flag while making their escape.

British Consul Resigns.

New York, Feb. 23.—Sir Percy Sampson, who has been the British Consul-General in this city for about 13 years, has forwarded his resignation to the Foreign Office, to take effect in April. During his tenure here he has become a well-known figure, both in the commercial and social life of the metropolis. Sir W. Ward, now at Hamburg, is believed, is next in line of promotion.

May Address Commons.

London, Feb. 23.—(C. A. P.)—Henniker Heaton on Tuesday asks the Premier whether he will take steps to invite the Premiers of Canada, Australia and New Zealnd to address the Commons from the bar of the House on a question affecting our relations with the colonies.

THE MEDICINAL VALUE OF FRESH FRUIT JUICES

One of the Greatest Wonders of the Age.

Hundreds Have Been Made Well by Taking Advantage of an Ottawa Physician's Discovery.

Everyone knows how beneficial fruit is, when eaten regularly. Fruit is nature's laxative—the finest kidney regulator—and the ideal skin tonic. Unfortunately, the medicinal principle of fruit occurs only in minute quantities. In order to consume enough fruit to relieve Biliousness, one would also consume a large amount of woody fibre or pulp, which would upset the stomach and impair digestion.

An Ottawa physician discovered a way to get around these difficulties. He pressed the juice from apples, oranges, figs and prunes—and then forced one more atom of the bitter principle from the discarded orange peels, into the concentrated juices. This formed a new compound, having all the curative effects of fresh fruit—and in a highly intensified degree. Then valuable tonics and internal antiseptics were added and the whole pressed into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives" the wonderful Liver Tablets you hear so much about. "Fruit-a-tives" cure the most obstinate cases of non-action of the bowels, biliousness, headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness, kidney trouble, rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia. They are the greatest blood purifying medicine in the world, while their action on the skin, in clearing and beautifying the complexion, is nothing short of marvelous. Ask your druggist for "Fruit-a-tives" and see that you get them. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. By mail, postpaid, from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa. 112

THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

It is hoped that the agitation now on foot to reorganize and resuscitate the Peterborough Historical Society will prove successful. For nearly three years the Society has been dormant and it is time that it was awakened. The present [illegible] several years, but it is felt by the members that the honor is not a monopoly or permanency. There are other gentlemen who are eminently well fitted for the distinction. They have worked diligently for many years in the interest and welfare of the organization and are entitled to promotion. The Society has done a good and useful work. It has, with the assistance and collaboration of many kind friends, gathered material, curios, relics, virtu bric-a-brac, records and rare and historic articles from far and near, placed them in the museum at Inverlea Park, and the collection is a most creditable and educative one. The museum has proved an attraction of great interest to many citizens, but it has been somewhat neglected. There has of late been no proper classification of relics, curios and specimens sent to the Society and this is a matter which should not be overlooked. To the organization have been handed many precious articles of historic or family association and it is important that these heirlooms should be well taken care of and carefully preserved.

Some improvements could be made to the local museum, more curios added, records preserved, and the work generally enlarged. A reorganization is certainly needed, and a little more activity, now evidenced on the part of the members, is a hopeful sign. Let the good work go ahead

Peterborough county is rich in historical interest and there is no reason why the local branch of the Historical Society should not flourish and be fruitful in result in preserving the records of the past.

THE USE OF PROFANITY

A number of journals are calling attention to the growing practice of profanity. Whether there is an increase in this city we do not know, but we do know that the practice is too prevalent among us. On our streets, in bar-rooms, and where men are at work or engaged in business, oaths and other unnecessary expletives may be frequently heard. And the words are not always uttered when the speaker's temper is hot, but in an undisturbed atmosphere when no provocation is present to indulge in other than clean speech.

There is a law against the use of profane speech, but it is very imperfectly enforced. Something may be done towards suppression of the vice by bringing offenders before the courts and giving them an experience of the penalty provided for the offence. But more can be done in the line of prevention by teaching in the home, and the public schools. It ought not to be difficult for parents, in particular, to so influence their children that clean speech would characterise them through life.

In this connection the Protestant Observer, published in London, has the following timely article;

When Sir Sandford Fleming, the noted English engineer, inspected the proposed route of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1883, he was accompanied by the Rev. George Monro Grant. The party encountered the usual hardships of travelling through a wilderness, but had many interesting experiences. One of these says Mr. Grant's biographer, was meeting the different parties of engineers stationed along the way.

The most picturesque person associated with this exploration of the mountains was Major Rogers, the discoverer and engineer of the pass through the Selkirks. Rogers was an energetic man, renowned for unconventionality, but exceedingly profane. The engineers who were [illegible] on the eastern [illegible] of the mountains were in a state of great expectancy at the prospect of the hard-swearing Rogers being [illegible] to a clergyman.

Rogers at first was under the impression that Grant, who was addressed as "Doctor," was a medical man. The day after the first meeting was Sunday, and Fleming proposed that Grant should hold divine service.

The major took the suggestion as a joke, and with great energy drummed up his men. Doctor Grant preached at length and dexterously brought the subject round to profane swearing.

Avoiding any appearance of aiming at any one hearer, he pointed out the uselessness of the habit, and incidentally noted its gradual disappearance from the conversation of gentlemen.

He had observed with accuracy one salient point in Rogers' character. The man was passionately determined to live like a gentleman, and to have his men regard him as a gentleman. The discourse struck home. Then and there Rogers resolved to abstain.

Once at least during their stay with him his guest's pity was excited by his heroic suppression of his vocabulary at a trying moment. Something went wrong with one of the canoes. Rogers opened his mouth, but in the nick of time remembered his resolve, and stood helpless.

Grant laid his hand on his arm. "Major, if you got to get rid of it go behind a tree and say it."

Sir William Van Horne was fond of telling of his first meeting with Rogers after this affair. After some talk, Sir William said;

"What's the matter with you Rogers? You haven't sworn once."

"Well, Mr. Van Horne, Fleming brought a person up here named Grant. He gave us a sermon on swearing, and he made out that it wasn't gentlemanly to swear so I stopped."

PEN POINTS

All honor to Peterborough's expert curlers. They came out of the bonspiel with flying colors and a few prizes too.

Hyman has again been nominated in London, but will not be present during the campaign. He will therefore not be directly concerned in any bribery.

We have been inclined to smile at the cold weather in the West, thinking that in Ontario we would escape. It is dangerous to grin now however, as one's face might easily be frozen.

The budget will be brought down in the Ontario House next Thursday. It will make pleasant reading. The province is at the flood-tide of prosperity under the Whitney Government.

Mr. E. J. B. Pense, M.P.P., has quite naturally been appointed the financial critic of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature and will reply to the budget debate—possibly referring to pounds, shillings and Pense. It is a great thing to have a monetary cognomen, although it may at times prove ex-Pensive.

Congratulations to the Toronto Globe upon its support to Mr. Whitney's move to secure provincial rights, even though the move has been forced by the actions and inactions of the Dominion Government. The press ought to have more respect for itself than Parliaments and Legislatures generally show at present, permitting the party lash to hold them in such abject slavery, ninety-nine out of a hundred, that the hundredth man who dares so much as four votes against his leaders in as many years must be read out of the party.—Ottawa Journal.

In a household where a child is asked to wipe the dishes, she will say that is her sisters work, and will refuse. Likewise, her sister, when asked to perform a certain duty, will complain that that is not her work. It is unfortunately true that the habit of turning down task because it is the work of someone else, also prevails in business houses. And when a clerk in a business house refuses to do a certain thing because it is the duty of another clerk, it means he will never climb any higher. There are certain marks which are as plain to read as a sign board.—Atchison Globe.

The book sellers of Ontario will put up a strong fight against the proposition to have school books handled directly by the Government. A notice has been sent out to the trade, which says, in part; "The Ontario Government are committed to a policy of Government distribution of school books. In a few days a measure will be brought down providing for this. The only way to prevent its adoption is to raise opposition to it among the individual members of the House. The measure will injure the bookselling interest of the country, which are a strong factor in the welfare of the people; that it will substitute for a satifactory system of distribution, a more expensive and less satisfactory system; in fact that it will be to the public interests to maintain the present system."

In answer to the deputation which [illegible] Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance asking for a repeal of the three-fifths clause, Premier Whitney frankly told the members that he did not deem the clause necessary for the proper enforcement of the act, but to the permanency of public sentiment. The Government was fully in accord with the principles of the temperance movement and was anxious to lessen the evils of the drink traffic. The Premier plainly and frankly told the deputation that the temperance cause had received a set back for years from the uncharitableness, lack of united effort and broader outlook which should characterize its devotees. He unhesitatingly said that the Government did not purpose making any speedy change in the clause in question. It had been in force only a little over a year and should be given a fair and honest trial before being altered. The Premier left no doubt as to where he stood on the question. He did not hedge, make any false promises, misleading statements or indulge in any illusive or imaginative word pictures.

A petition is being circulated against the proposed revenue stamp on patent medicines. The News sums up the matter as follows; "However much in favor the manufacturers may be of the proposed Government measure to tax proprietary medicines, the retail druggists are unanimous in opposing it. Numerous interviews of city druggists discovered no exceptions. Summarized, their contentions are;—That the proposed stamp tax is absolutely certain to fall on the retailer, and the retailer alone, or in other words the druggist is charged with the cost of protecting the public from preparations put up by someone else. No matter to what extent the manufacturer may raise the wholesale price, the retail price must remain the same, they say. Then the drug business is a form of skilled labor, and as such should not be taxed. Some four years of preparation are spent at college and in training, and when established, the druggist pays an annual fee to the Ontario College of Pharmacy, whereas a man who puts up a proprietary medicine, pays nothing but what he may spend in advertising. Also since the bill applies to simple preparations put up by the retailers themselves, these would have to be discontinued, they claim, giving the makers of patent medicines the field.

Rents Still are Firm in Tendency

Not Likely to Advance But on Sign of Coming Down

"Are there many houses to rent in the city," was asked a real estate agent this morning.

"Oh, not a great many," he replied. "There are always some at this season of the year, but you would be surprised how rents keep up. They show no sign of decreasing and a house may remain vacant for months yet a landlord will not take less than the figure he has set upon it. I know a semi-detached house, which has modern conveniences, but no furnace. The owner wants $18 per month. It has been idle for a long time. A client of mine offered $16 payable each month in advance, and was refused. I consider that $16 would be a good fair rent for the dwelling. I know of several other places like that—so you see rents are not being reduced. I have also sold a number of fine properties of late. Many people are desirous of buying their own home, and it is a laudable undertaking. A city where each workingman owns his little home is the most substantial and well kept and the man with some stake in the municipality, makes the best and most satisfactory citizen.

Doctors Tried for 8 Years to Cure Me

BUT I AM WELL NOW AND BELIEVE I OWE MY LIFE TO

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

There is a remarkable cure described in this letter which should prove of vital interest to anyone suffering from derangement of the kidneys.

Mrs. Dave W. McCall, Lombardy, Leeds County, Ont., writes,—"I desire to acknowledge the benefits I have received from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I was troubled with kidney disease for eight years and doctored with several doctors to no avail until my husband got me Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Words cannot express my praise for them, for I believe there is no medicine so good for kidney and liver disorders."

In the treatment of Bright's disease or inflammation of the kidneys, the first consideration is rest for those filtering organs and this can only be obtained by quickening the action of the liver and bowels.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills succeed [illegible] because they act promptly and directly on the liver, take the work off the kidneys and then by their invigorating action on the kidneys restore them to health and vigor.

Because of the intimate and sympathetic relation of the liver and kidneys, it is useless to treat them independently of one another. This fact was in the mind of Dr Chase when he prepared the formula of his celebrated Kidney-Liver Pills and the phenomenal success of this great medicine has proven his wisdom.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively cure liver complaint, biliousness, constipation, backache and kidney disease. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his medicines.

When Your Health Fails, What Then?

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for the strong and alert—for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigor and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health, and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

AMUSEMENTS

THORNS AND OANGE BLOSSOMS.

"Thorns and Orange Blossoms," the attraction at the Grand opera house last night was greeted by a large audience. It was worthy of the patronage it received and if ever the company returns to Peterborough it will undoubtedly be met by a full house. The drama itself is familiar to the majority of the reading public. The story is about the home life of high society in England and the serious misunderstanding between husband and wife which often result in separation. Thorns and Orange Blossoms is a very strong play and the company which put it on were the company which put it on well represented the characters. In many parts there was just enough sensation to arouse the enthusiasm of the audience and to maintain the keenest interest throughout. There are also many sad moments in the lives of some of the characters and not a few in the audience was moved to tears. The whole production was well staged and the people of Peterborough were well pleased.

Third prize — [illegible]wood, lead; W. H. Hare, second; F. Hare, vice; T. H. McMurtry, skip.

The above are the completed results of the Peterborough bonspiel, which was brought to a close last evening when first, second and third places in the consolation were decided by a game between R. M. Waddell's rink and Geo. Fitzgerald's quartette.

The score was 22 to 7 in favor of Waddell and as a result his rink takes first place in the consolation and Fitzgerald gets second. McMurtry of Oshawa won the third prize.

The prizes were as follows,—

Primary—First prize, 4 sets of curling stones.

Second—Four Romaud Gold Clocks.

Consolation—First prize, four Suit Cases.

Second—Four pairs of Gold Cuff Links.

Third—Four Fountain Pens.

Eighteen ends were played in the Waddell-Fitzgerald game yesterday and the contest was witnessed by a large number of spectators. Waddells' rink secured a lead early in the game and increased it as play continued. The losers tried hard but could not catch up.

The bonspiel of 1907 will go down in the annals of the Peterborough Curling Club as the most successful ever held. Never were there more interesting and exciting games and never a better display of the spirit of sportsmanship, which should prevail in all contests of this kind. To those in charge of the arrangements great credit is due.

Peterborough Club's Claims

The Statement Sent to the O. H. A.—A Reasonable Request

The Toronto Telegram of yesterday says;

The Peterborough Hockey Club this morning sent to the O. H. A. its reasons for asking for a further chance to win their district. They say that it was manifestly unfair that the Kingston-Midland game in Toronto should count two wins for Kingston.

Secretary Graham says; "There is no doubt of the fact that neither Kingston nor Midland could have won against the other on their opponents' ice, in which case Peterborough would have been a tie with them for the district.

"We would like the committee to make an arrangement by which we will be given a chance on the ice to decide this district. If they cannot do that we would like a chance to play off with the winners of the match between the east and the west.

"It was understood at the meeting of the District Committee when the schedule was drawn up, that in case the fact of the game between Kingston and Midland being counted as two games should affect the standing of any of the other clubs, that then they were to play home and home games."

Won Prizes at Horse Show

Mr. Hassard, of Millbrook, Exhibiting Valuable Animals at Toronto

It will be interesting to many to know that Mr. T. H. Hassard, of Millbrook, has been very successful at the Ontario Horse Breeders' Association's Exhibition in Toronto this week. Mr. Hassard is a well known breeder of Clydesdales and he has many valuable animals. His wins were: Clydesdale stallion, foaled in 1904—Prospector got 7th place; mares, foaled, previous to 1904—Meg, 1st place; stallions, foaled in 1905, First Baron took second place.

HOCKEY

Hamilton Herald; "If the O.H.A. continues to be busy, it may disqualify Stratford, Kingston, Peterborough and Midland and give a Toronto team a chance to win the senior championship.

The Toronto News last night contained a cut of the Peterborough Hockey Club.

FANNING'S WON.

Fanning's boarders defeated a septette from Fowler's boarding house at Brock street rink after the Peterborough-Crescent game last night. The score was 3-1 and the game was an interesting one. The combination of Fanning's forward line was one of the features of the match. The winning team lined up as follows;—goal, Bruce; point, Clough; cover point, O'Connor; rover, Best; centre, McNern; right wing, Stratton; left wing, Heard.

STRATFORD JUNIORS WON.

Stratford Midgets defeated St. Michael's College juniors in Toronto last night, 9 goals to 1. The Toronto team was outclassed in all departments. Stratford's victory gives them the round by a big l[illegible] and as Lindsay should win the round from Collingwood, it looks like the two "Midget" teams for the junior finals.

LOOKS LIKE STRATFORD.

In the first of their home and home games for the championship of the western group of the O.H.A. senior series, Stratford put it over the St. Georges last night in the Classic city. The score was 10—2, and the game was all Stratford. With the lead obtained, Stratford should win the round.

BERLIN'S INTERMEDIATES.

Berlin intermediates defeated Goderich last night in the Dutch stronghold by 14 goals to 8. This gives Berlin the round. Watson, formerly of Peterborough played centre for Berlin.

MICMACS WON.

Smiths' Falls defeated Cobourg last night in the second of their home and home games by ten goals to 3. The easterners had much the better of the play and won handily. Smith's Falls are now winners of groups 1, 2 and 3.

An Excursion to Guelph in June

Decided on by Farmers' Institute Executives To-day

At a meeting of the executive committees of the Farmers' Institutes of East and West Peterborough and East Durham, held at the Munro house this morning, it was decided to hold the annual excursion to the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, in June. The exact date has not yet been decided upon but this will be arranged later. Those present at the meeting were,—

West Peterborough—Pres. Telford and Secretary Collins.

East Peterborough—Pres. Birdsall, Secretary O'Reilly, and Mr. Hawthorne.

East Durham—Pres. Kelly and Secretary Ellis.

A meeting of the board of directors of the West Peterborough Institute was held this afternoon to arrange for the annual meeting and dispose of several other matters. It was decided to hold the annual meeting in the City Council chamber, Peterborough, on June 15th.

Ernest Thompson Seton yesterday showed Earl Grey at Rideau Hall the methods of Indians, giving demonstrations in his Excellency's wigwam on the grounds.

Locals Nearly Doubled Score on the Crescents

Peterborough Won From Crack New York Team by Seven Goals to Four—One of the Most Interesting Games of the Season.

Peterborough hockey team defeated the New York Crescents at Brock street rink last night by 7 goals to 4. The match was one of the best from a spectator's point of view seen here this year, and the six hundred people who witnessed the game certainly got their money's worth. The half time score was three all, but in the second period Peterborough drew away, scoring four goals to their opponents one. It was strenuous hockey and after the contest was over several players carried scars as souvenirs of the occasion. Wallie Parnell had his nose broken, but he pluckily stayed on the ice and did not seem to be handicapped by his injury.

The ice was in good condition and the game was fast throughout. In fact the pace was about the liveliest seen here this season. The New Yorkers, early in the game showed a tendency to mix things up, with the result that the game was anything but a pink tea affair and Ernie Wasson, who acted as referee was called upon to impose frequent penalties. Heavy body checking seemed to be the favorites, and several times players were winded by being thrown against the boards.

The Crescents played good hockey, although weak on combination. A two man rush was their limit in this line and even this style of play was not frequent. Individual rushes were mostly in evidence on the part of the Gotham players, and in these they showed up to advantage. The septette are all good stick handlers and fast skaters but last night gave an exhibition of the habit which seems to possess many sportsmen from over the line, that of trying to tell the official in charge how the game should be run. Referee Wasson let the visitors down easy in the matter of penalties and was lenient in regard to their offside play, but still the New Yorkers persisted in protesting every time one of their men was ruled off. Instead of allowing the captain to do the talking to the referee they all chimed in at once and handed out advice with much freedom as beer is distributed at a German festival. The referee was much stricter on the home team than on the visitors and the numerous protests were not in good taste. Had it been the Kenora Thistles or some other team that luminates in the hockey world it would not have been so bad, but it seemed rather out of place for a team from New York, where only second-rate hockey is played should try to tell an experienced Canadian referee how the game should be played.

The Peterborough team played fast clean hockey until the visitors started to mix it up and then of course, they retaliated to some extent and checked the Crescents closely in every department. The visitors have played against the crack Montreal teams frequently and [illegible] the effect of their eastern training in their desire to play strenuous hockey.

Liffiton, captain of the Crescents, who played centre for his team, was the star of the visitors. He is a member of the famous Liffiton hockey family, and has all the earmarks of a No. 1 hockeyist. He is fast on skates and a finished stick handler. Three of the four goals scored by the New Yorkers were the result of his efforts. Kennedy, who played left wing got the other one. "Herbie" O'Flynn, the Madoc boy, and a former member of the Peterborough Athletics, did effective work for his team at point. He played clean hockey and broke up many dangerous rushes. Nicholls was strong at cover-point. He is a big fellow and used his body to advantage on the light Peterborough forwards. MacKenzie proved himself a first-class goal tender, and stopped and relieved well. Dobbie at rover, Scheibler at right and Kennedy at left wing all did good work but could not get in on the Peterborough defence.

Miller was the shining mark of the Peterborough team. He was right at home as rover, and scored six of the seven goals tallied for Peterborough. Frequently he carried the puck through the whole Crescent team, and shot with splendid effect. If he could only keep up the pace struck last night, he will soon be one of the best forwards in the O.H.A. Moore, Parnell, and Graham all did their share in landing the victory. Parnell had a hard row to hoe in watching Liffiton, but he did it well and kept the crack New Yorker from doing much damage. Moore's checking back was one of the features and it was seldom that his man got away from him. Graham watched Scheibler closely and worked well with the other forwards. Glover and Crowley were as effective as usual, both in defensive and offensive work, making some fine rushes into their opponents territory. Lang had many shots to stop and relieved cleverly on many occasions.

THE TEAMS.

The teams were as follows,—

Crescents		Peterborough
MacKenzie	Goal.	Lang
O'Flynn	Point	Glover
Nicholls	Cover	Crowley
Dobbie	Rover	Miller
Liffiton	Centre	Parnell
Scheibler	Right Wing	Graham
Kennedy	Left Wing	Moore

Referee—W. E. Wasson.

SUMMARY.

1. Crescents, Kennedy.
2. Peterborough, Miller.
3. Peterborough, Miller.
4. Peterborough, Miller.
5. Crescents, Liffiton.
6. Crescents, Liffiton.

(Half-time)

7. Crescents, Liffiton.
8. Peterborough, Miller.
9. Peterborough, Miller.
10. Peterborough, Miller.
11. Peterborough, Moore.

Play started off at a lively clip and both goals were in turn besieged. Liffiton was the first man to be penalized, his offence being, smashing a man into the boards. He protested strongly, but at last reluctantly got off the ice. Moore soon afterwards was charged with a similar offence, and got a minute on the fence. The first goal went to the visitors, Kennedy beating Lang on a neat shot from the side. Dobbie was hit by the puck and a short delay ensued until he secured a bandage for his head. Miller scored for Peterborough after a nice criss cross rush. Crowley was penalized for two minutes for a trip, and while he was off Miller scored again on a pass from Parnell from behind the nets. He also got another one a minute later, which made the score, Peterborough 3, Crescents 1.

Liffiton and Kennedy made a fine rush and the former scored after [illegible] in on Lang. Just before half time he put in another [illegible], while Miller was off for a minute for slashing. This was all the scoring in the first half. The New Yorkers got their fourth and last goal 3 minutes after the second half commenced, Liffiton doing the trick. Parnell was hurt in a collision and had to retire for about five minutes, Nicholls going off to even up. Miller scored three in succession for Peterborough and Moore got the last one five minutes before time was up. Miller, Moore, Crowley and Nicholls were penalized during this period.

The first half was played under O.H.A. rules and the second under New York rules, which are similar to those of the Eastern Canadian league and do not permit skating a man on side. The difference was hardly noticeable to the spectators.

The rooters of the New York team including a number of ladies, occupied a portion of the reserved seat section, and rooted lustily, sang parodies and gave their team every encouragement.

Strike Leader At Buckingham Was Incensed At the Maclarens.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—Monday will probably see the end of the Buckingham manslaughter charges against Alex. Maclaren, Constable Kiernan and Bailiff Cummings.

Yesterday Richard E. Birtch, a Salvation Army man, testified that the deceased strike leader, Belanger, told him he would blow all the Maclaren mills up, and was not going to leave one Maclaren alive.

"No man," said Belanger, "had a right to be rich and the rest poor."

The witness wrote warning letters to the Maclarens, whom he did not know. It is estimated that the Buckingham riot cases will cost fully $6,000.

REAR END COLLISION.

Trainmen Lucky Enough to Escape In Montreal Smashup.

Montreal, Feb. 23.—A rear-end railway collision occurred between 1.30 and 2 a.m. yesterday near the residence of Mr. Terroux at St. Lambert.

A Grand Trunk freight train from Montreal, bound south, going at a fast rate around the curve, ran into another slower freight train ahead, smashing the van and two freight cars to kindling wood. The wreckage caught fire from the locomotive of the rear train.

The crew of the fast freight saw their danger in time to jump and saved their lives. Nobody was hurt.

The lines were blocked for some time.

Colonial Fear of Lawyers.

In the columns of the New York Gazetteer of Sept. 8, 1786, there was a paragraph lamenting the increase of lawyers as threatening to the future prosperity of the community and degrading to freemen. "An honest trade in former days," said the writer, "was all that people of common ability and education were ambitious of, but now no profession is genteel but the lawyer and the merchant. The lawyers are now creeping into every post of importance and thrusting themselves wherever there is a vacancy. Our congress, our assembly, are crowded with them, and even in our great commercial convention there are five lawyers to one merchant."

Curing the Bad Boy.

You remember the old fashioned woman who when she heard her young son swearing or using naughty words washed his mouth in soapsuds. There is an Atchison boy who could not be reformed in this way, so his father took him in hand. Every day his father called him in and said: "Now, your [illegible] you use, but I, being a man, like them. Go over the list for me." The boy promptly complied at first, but in a few days he tired of the words and has now given up his list entirely.

6714, 6715.—A PLEASING FROCK IN TAFFETAS.

The small figured taffetas make very fetching toilettes in both simple and elaborate styles. One of the new gowns and one of unusual grace is shown here. The deep pointed yoke and fichu effect is most fetching, while the natty short sleeves are quite in keeping with the smartness of the whole. The waist closes in the front and crosses in surplice style. The skirt is fulled a bit about the top and finished with four deep tucks at the lower edge. A gown of this kind might be made up in any of the softer silks or crepe de chine and prove very attractive for nice wear. For the medium size 10 1-8 yards of 36 inch material are needed to develop the dress.

Two Patterns.—6714—Sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure. 6715—Sizes, 20 to 30 inches waist.

The price of these patterns is 20c, but either will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

Well-known Douro Farmer Expires

Death of Mr. Garret J. Galvin Aged 73 Years

Mr Garret J. Galvin, a prominent and highly respected farmer of Douro township passed away last night after two weeks' illness from pneumonia. The deceased was 73 years of age and was born in the township of Smith. In 1868 he removed to Douro, lot 15, concession 7, where he passed away. He resided in the township thirty-nine years. He was for many years secretary of the Lakefield Dairy Company and was its salesman on the Peterborough Cheese Board until two years ago, when he resigned. He was an enthusiastic member of the Board and enjoyed the confidence and esteem of all its members. In 1860 the late Mr. Galvin was married to Miss Hannah Garbutt, who predeceased him sixteen years ago. A family of five children out of eight, are left. They are J. Edward Galvin, on the homestead; Mrs. Frank Adams, Peterborough; Miss Ada Galvin, at home. Isaac Galvin of Antler, Sask. and Gordon Galvin, of Carstairs Alberta.

The deceased also leaves one brother, William in Houston, Texas. In politics the late Mr. Galvin was a Liberal and in religion a Baptist being a member of the Lakefield Baptist church. Many friends will sympathize with the members of the family in the loss of a kind and loving father.

THE STORE THAT NEVER DISAPPOINTS

The Harbingers Of Spring

KEEP YOUR EYE on this Store and visit it daily to inspect our comprehensive display of New Spring Dress Fabrics. The new materials and accessories are daily putting in appearance and are perfect triumphs of the weaver's skill—the color artists have excelled themselves in blending such beautiful and harmonious color and shade effects—such perfect taste and such pleasing conceits are only possible with this Store's aggregation of everything in Dress Needs that charm the feminine mind. We have tried strenuously to gather together the world's prettiest and nattiest and most exclusive creations of loom-craft, and our endeavors are crowned with success, at least we think so, and have no hesitation in emphasizing the fact, and and we leave the verdict with you, the most discriminating and exacting, who demand the most correct and up-to-the-minute ideas of Dressology.

Whether you want a Gown for street wear, evening wear, social functions or for any occasion, and above all, your Easter Gown, rest assured that the correct thing is here judiciously displayed and economically priced. Have a look, whether you intend purchasing now or later.

The 'Model' Spring Corsets

When Paris dictates and Canada adopts a new fashion, a standard is definitely established which women must regard, or abandon all pretence to stylish dressing. We highly recommend the D & A Model Corsets to give you that distinguished appearance, perfect ease and perfect grace that most corsets fail to give. The New Spring Models are here.

The Dress-Making Pariors

Our Miss Wesley and her staff of experienced Modistes, will reopen our Dressmaking Parlors the First Monday in March. Place your orders NOW for your Easter Gown, so that you'll not be disappointed in your "turn."

We need not tell you of the superiority of the work turned out by our Dressmaking Staff—that is known to you already. Only perfect workmanship is allowed to leave here. Each garment is minutely examined by Miss Wesley herself before it is delivered to your home as it should be, and that is PERFECTION.

Wednesday Bargain "Annex"

We like to remind you of the BARGAIN ANNEX that holds forth every Wednesday. To-morrow's Ad. will tell you all about it. The Dodger Man will also bring the "good news" to your home.

CAR SHORTAGE IS NOW SERIOUS

Peterborough Cereal Company is Tied up—No Wheat Coming In

In speaking to the Peterborough Cereal Co., it was learned that they too are greatly tied up on account of the car shortage. They have not received a car of wheat from Manitoba this winter. If they had not stored a large quantity last fall at the lake ports, the flour mill here would have been closed down. Of course there is a lot of Ontario wheat, but most of that grade received is shipped right out again as it is not used in making the best grade of flour. As for oats, the manager of the company said they could buy nearly enough locally to keep them going. On Saturday a long line of sleighs were waiting their turn to unload oats at the mill. Every day in the week the same sight may be seen. The greatest trouble is to get cars for shipping the produce out. Very often goods are piled up in the mill for days before an empty car can be secured. This is a great inconvenience to the manufacturers as well as a serious loss.

PROGRAMME FOR TEN DAYS

The programme for the Gigantic Sale Extension for the next ten days at the B. Y. Moyes store, is a bunch of bargains such as have never before been offered to a Peterborough shopping public, and include all new goods too, bought for the spring and summer trade. Now, take a little good, sound advice. Get busy, and join the crowds that are flocking to this store. Remember, these goods must be sold, and you might just as well get in on some of them as anybody else. "Enough said." B. Y. MOYES, 408 George street.

Nearly Collided With Ambulance

A lively runaway took place this morning about nine o'clock, when one of Mr. H. P. Kennedy's delivery rigs made a dash for liberty. The driver was taking orders up near Auburn. While he was at a door, the horse, being untied, took advantage of the opportunity and started off at a lively pace. They started near Nichol's Oval and came down Concession street and ran considerable distance before they were stopped. The Dan Spence ambulance, which was going north on McDonnel street on its way to Nichols Hospital with a patient, had a narrow escape from colliding with the runaway team. Fortunately the driver on the ambulance pulled to the side of the road. There was no damage done to Mr. Kennedy's outfit.

Machine Phones in Brantford

Will be in Full Operation in June Next

The Brantford Expositor says;

"The Canadian Machine Telephone Company will have completed the installation of their plant in this city within six weeks from April 1. The statement was made by a prominent official of the company, who has been engaged for some time in the work of supervising the erection of poles and wires throughout the city for some months past. If the present plans are completed it will mean that the company will have their service ready by June. Asked where the headquarters of the Machine Company would be, the official stated that three options on properties had been secured, and the building would likely be erected on Dalhousie street. It is understood that the building plans of the company are about completed and a definite decision will be arrived at shortly as to the new company's quarters."

Should "Cut Out" the Charivari

Warkworth Times:—Mr. U. E. Wartman, of Warkworth, and Miss Holmes of Madoc, were united in marriage on Wednesday of last week. They arrived home with his bride on Friday, and as usual the "savages" started that night to make the night hideous with their unpleasant howls and tin horns, as well as smashing picket fences, &c. It is nearly time this barbarous charivari custom was "cut out." It is said that on Saturday night between $75 and $100 damage was done to Mr. Wartman's property, besides the use of obscene language, until the occupant, to release the "hold-up," and save his property, gave the infestors the money they were after. Surely the law will be administered to those who deserve it so richly.

The Saskatchewan Legislature has organized for the session and introduced a bill creating Supreme and Surrogate Courts.

Dyspepsia of Women

Caused by Female Disorders and Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A great many women suffer with a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not seem to yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms seem to be similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines universally prescribed do not seem to restore the patient's normal condition.

Mrs. Henry Beaubien

Mrs. Pinkham claims that there is a kind of dyspepsia that is caused by a derangement of the female organism, and which, while it causes a disturbance similar to ordinary indigestion, cannot be relieved without a medicine which not only acts as a stomach tonic, but has a peculiar tonic effect on the female organism.

As proof of this theory we call attention to the case of Mrs. Henry Beaubien, 58 Sparks St., Ottawa, Ont., who was completely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after everything else had failed. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had been troubled with indigestion and general stomach disorders for nearly a year. I had a soreness in my stomach and was unable to digest my food. I dieted and doctored without success; but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me permanent relief. I used three bottles and it cured me of my stomach trouble and built up my general health. I now enjoy a splendid appetite, can eat all kinds of food, have no trouble with indigestion, and know that I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement, or has such a record of cures of female troubles, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

TRAIN FELL INTO RIVER

Three Pullman Cars Derailed While Going at Great Speed.

Rolled Down a 60-Feet Embankment Into the Water—Fifty-Four Passengers, and a Dozen Trainmen Have Lucky Escape From Death — Cars Turned Completely Over—Accident Was Unavoidable.

Pittsburg, Feb. 25.—A statement issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad Saturday is to the effect that 54 passengers and a train crew of about a dozen persons were injured in the wreck of the Pennsylvania special, the fast 18-hour train on the Pennsylvania Railroad, between New York and Chicago, which occurred at a sharp curve at Black Diamond, Pa., [illegible] miles east of Johnstown early Saturday morning.

No one was killed and all the passengers have been accounted for.

The engine and combination smoking car remained on the rails, but the three Pullmans plunged over a 60-foot embankment into the Conemaugh River. Fortunately, the cars were not submerged.

Scene of Confusion.

A scene of wild confusion resulted. All the passengers were in their berths and were thrown promiscuously around the cars.

Everybody on the train was injured more or less, but with the exception of John F. Kline of Joliet, it is said, none of the injuries are dangerous.

The train was running 50 minutes late and was trying to make up lost time.

Cause of the Wreck.

The wreck was caused by an unavertable accident. The brake rigging on the first Pullman following the combination coach on the train dropped down and tore up the right rail for a distance of 300 yards, but the four Pullmans following ploughed over the embankment to the river bank, 100 feet below, overturning when they reached the bottom. When the brake rigging fell it either stripped the heads off the bolts holding the rails to the ties or tore up the rails themselves.

Thieves Were Busy.

Much disorder followed the accident, which was greatly increased by the attempts of the officials of the railroad to prevent newspaper men from getting the facts. In the midst of the confusion a number of foreigners were detected plundering the Pullman cars. One was arrested and the others were driven away by a display of firearms. Considerable jewellery and valuable wearing apparel will be lost as the result, however.

All the passengers were thankful and happy that they had escaped death, and the Rev. Edward Cope of Philadelphia conducted brief services on the relief train, in which he thanked God for their deliverance.

Wrecked In Yards.

Pittsburg, Feb. 25.—The Philadelphia express on the Pennsylvania, due here at 6.30 last night, ran into an open switch at the yards at 16th street about 7 o'clock last night. Ambulances were hurriedly summoned to the Union Station, but according to officials no one was injured.

The New York express, due here at 7 o'clock, narrowly escaped running into the Philadelphia train, and caused a panic among the already frightened passengers.

One coach on the Philadelphia train was telescoped and two others were derailed. The train was late, and was running faster than usual through the yards.

DIES ON WAY TO CHURCH.

Lieutenant-Governor Snowball Passes Away In the Street.

Fredericton, N. B., Feb. 25.—Hon. Jabez Buntin Snowball, Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick, dropped dead about 7 o'clock last evening.

He spent the afternoon quietly, and at 6.45 he left the hotel, closely followed by his valet, to attend service at Christ Church Cathedral. After having walked a block and a half his honor complained of weakness and turned about to retrace his steps to the hotel. Soon after doing so he grabbed his valet by the arm, and when nearly in front of the Parliament Buildings, he suddenly sank to the sidewalk and expired before several members of the Legislature and employes of the hotel had time to arrive and carry him back to the hotel.

His Public Life.

In 1892 he became Senator, and on Feb. 5, 1902, he was sworn in as Governor of New Brunswick. He acted as inspector of savings banks at Chatham; consular agent for France on the Miramichi; president of St. George's Society, as well as taking an active interest in militia matters. He was captain of a company that was under arms at the time of the Fenian invasion in 1867. He was also drill instructor of the company.

RAID GAMBLING HOUSES.

Hamilton Police Make Sudden Visits and Arrest Fifty-Four.

Hamilton, Feb. 25.—The police made a series of the most sensational raids in the history of the city early yesterday morning, when they made a clean-up of three alleged gambling joints, arresting 54 men and gathering in two or three patrol wagon loads of paraphernalia.

The raid was well planned and carried out without a hitch.

Shortly before midnight all the constables on night duty, numbering about 25, were given instructions to be at one of the three places shortly before 1 o'clock.

At the word of the chief, the constables closed in, battered down the doors and invaded the places, placing everyone present under arrest.

The prisoners were conveyed, ten at a time to the police station.

Those arrested took the matter very coolly. When the officers battered down the doors, marched in, and announced that everybody was under arrest, the men offered no resistance, and they "joshed" each other at the police station while waiting for bail.

TROOPER'S SAD END.

Found Frozen to Death Near Calgary—There Four Months.

Calgary, Alta., Feb. 25.—The body of a man frozen to death was found about five miles out of town on Friday. From discharge papers found on the body it is thought the man is William Hawthorne, who enlisted as a trooper in the Strathcona Horse, and was attested to at Winnipeg on Feb. 9, 1900. He was granted an honorable discharge at Cape Town on the 19th of February, 1901, the reason for his discharge at that place being that he wished to remain and enter into business there. From the position of the body when found, deceased would seem to have been there for four months.

ELECTRICIAN KILLED.

Falls Against Switchboard and Is Electrocuted.

Toronto, Feb. 25.—While on a ladder fixing a wire ne[illegible] lower switchboard of the Electric Co.'s Niagara power station early last evening, [illegible], fell backwards against the switchboard and was electrocuted. The ambulance was immediately summoned and the unfortunate switchman taken to St. Michael's Hospital, where every effort was made to restore respiration, but without success.

Two holes were bored through the right wrist, and the arm was horribly burned.

Mine Explosion In Nova Scotia—One Man May Die.

Halifax, Feb. 25.—Twenty-five men were hurt, five of them seriously, one not being expected to live, and two horses were killed as a result of a miner dropping a spark from his pipe at Meadow quarry, about five miles from Windsor, N. S., at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Five May Go.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—It is understood that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Frederick Borden have taken their passage by the Canadian Pacific R.M.S. Empress of Britain, which sails from St. John, N. B., April 5. They go to London to attend the colonial conference.

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—The trial of Alex. McLaren, Frank Kiernan and J. C Cummings on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the Buckingham lumber strike riots, ended in Hull Saturday evening by the acquittal of the accused.

Judge St. Julien decided that the first shots were fired by the strikers and that the accused merely shot in self-defence.

Will Thaw Trial be Stopped; New Move in the Proceedings

Jerome May Apply For Lunacy Commission.

Story That Evelyn Nesbit Thaw Was Bribed Is Indignantly Denied—Rumor That She Was to Get $300,000 and Divorce—Prospect of Further Revelations—District Attorney Now Believes Thaw Insane.

New York, Feb. 25.—It was reported Saturday that Mrs. Wm. Thaw and other members of the Thaw family are anxious that the trial, with all its shocking revelations, shall stop.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, wife of the man who shot Stanford White for her sake, sadly needed the three days' grace, brought by the holiday, from District Attorney Jerome's searching cross-examination.

Mrs. Thaw looked but a shadow of her former self, and those who have seen her almost daily since the trial began, and who saw her Saturday, said the change was almost ghastly.

Judging from the progress of Mr. Jerome's cross-examination, as so far developed, he cannot possibly finish with the witness under two days.

Thaw a Lunatic.

Saturday reports were revived that Mr. Jerome is ready to bring on his application for a lunacy commission to examine the defendant. The district attorney, it is said, has questioned Drs. J. T. Deemar and C. F. Bingaman, the Thaw family physicians, who were summoned as witnesses for Thaw, and from what he heard from them regarding insanity in the family of Mrs. William Thaw, he has become convinced that the strain has descended to Thaw and that he is now insane.

It is also learned that Jerome is working out a secret plan to discredit the testimony of Evelyn Thaw. In this the prosecutor is being aided by Mazie Follette and Hattie Forsythe, the chorus girls and former intimate friends of young Mrs. Thaw.

Evelyn Thaw has brought in the name of Mazie Follette more than once during the trial, when she whispered secret names to Jerome. The testimony was shown to Mazie Follette.

What she did not know about Stanford White's attentions to Evelyn Nesbit before her marriage to Thaw she has got by correspondence with friends. Every line of correspondence has been turned over to Mr. Jerome.

It is said also that Miss Follette has acquainted the district attorney with brutal treatment of Evelyn Nesbit by Thaw before she became his wife.

Mrs. Thaw's Reward.

Both Thaw and his wife were concerned about a statement printed Saturday, that no matter what was the outcome of the trial, young Mrs. Thaw would receive $300,000 as a reward for her testifying for her husband. It was intimated that soon after her husband's arrest she talked of going abroad, but gave this idea up after it had been arranged that she was to get $300,000. She refused to say anything about the story, but Lawyer Gleason characterized it as "malicious, cruel, false and inhuman."

This statement was given out Saturday by Mrs. William Thaw through her attorneys:

"Mrs. William Thaw desires it understood that the statement that she or any of her family gave any money or any other inducements to Mrs. Evelyn Thaw for the position she has taken is untrue, unwarranted and unjust."

FIFTEEN SURVIVORS OF WRECK; AFTERMATH OF RECENT DISASTER

Dutch Sailors Show Great Gallantry in Rescue Work.

Three Women Were the Last Taken From Wreck of the Berlin—Lifeboat Men Worked In Furious Seas—Watched All Night Before They Could Get Near—Young Lady Becomes Insane From Grief.

Hook of Holland, Holland, Feb. 25.—In the early hours of Saturday morning the three remaining survivors were taken off the wreck of the British steamer Berlin by the same lifeboat crew which has done such splendid work during the past 48 hours. The rescued persons are all women—Frau Weintberger, her 16-year-old nurse girl, Mina Repler, and Fraulein Theile. This brings the total number of saved up to fifteen out of the 143 who were on board the vessel.

Twenty-two bodies were recovered this afternoon from below the deck of the Berlin.

Watched All Night.

The lifesavers watched the wreck all night for a chance to get alongside, but they had to wait until low water, at about 1 a.m., when they put off on board the tug Wodan, which had a raft in tow for the use of the rescuers.

On getting as near the wreck as possible, Capt. Sperling of the lifeboat crew boarded the raft, which was allowed to drift alongside the Berlin, and the captain managed to clamber on board by means of a line. He then lowered the helpless, half dead women, one by one, to the raft, whence they were conveyed to the Wodan.

The last survivors of the wrecked steamer arrived here at 3 o'clock, and were taken to the Amerika Hotel, where they received every attention.

Brave Woman.

"The nurse, Fraulein Repler, insisted that her companions should first be saved before she was removed from the wreck, so I carried Fraulein Theile to the side, fastened her into a rope cradle and lowered her upon the raft. Frau Weintberger was next taken off. She was in pitiful distress, weeping for her husband and child, who were drowned. Finally Fraulein Repler, who was able to walk with assistance, was placed on the raft, which was hauled alongside the Wodan.

"The whole rescue took only half an hour."

Insane From Grief.

Stuttgart, Germany, Feb. 25.—The fiancee of Herr Dara, one of the members of the German Opera Co., drowned in the wreck of the Berlin, became insane when the news was communicated to her.

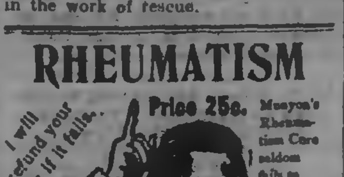
FORTY MEN PERISH.

Austrian Steamer Wrecked Off the Island of Crete.

Canea, Isle of Crete, Feb. 25.—The Austrian Lloyd steamer Imperatrix, while bound from Trieste to Bombay, ran on to a rock on Friday evening near Cape Elaphonisi, and sank soon afterwards.

The latest report received here is to the effect that 17 persons on board the vessel were rescued and that a French cruiser, an Italian gunboat, and a Russian cruiser were assisting in the work of rescue.

RHEUMATISM



I will refund your money if it fails.

Price 25c. Munyon's Rheumatism Cure seldom fails to relieve pains in legs, arms, back, stiff or swollen joints in a few hours. Positively cures in a few days. It does not put the disease to sleep, but drives it from the system. —MUNYON.

It is stated that those rescued are in such an exhausted condition that they are unable to give coherent details of the accident.

Those on board, it is said, numbered about 150.

A letter late yesterday to the company's agent at Canea, from a lieutenant on the steamer, said:

"Twelve persons and myself have been saved; the others are on board the steamer, the position of which is extremely dangerous."

All the passengers were saved, but 40 members of the crew, of whom 32 were Austrians and eight were Indians, perished. Among those rescued are the captain, the doctor and the first engineer of the Imperatrix.

Foreign warships brought 63 survivors to this port and others were transferred to the Austrian Lloyd steamer Castore, which was sent from Trieste to assist in the work of rescue. Several persons, who were injured at the time of the disaster, are being attended here.

It has been learned that the first boat launched from the Imperatrix was swamped immediately.

The bows of the steamer are above water, but her stern is submerged.

He found his brother and his wife and children unconscious, and carried them out, but they were so severely burned that they had to be sent to the hospital, where they lie unconscious. The rescuer was also burned in the hands and face, and his feet, having no shoes on, were frozen.

Premier McBride, of British Columbia, will retain the Victoria City seat and resign his Dewdney seat immediately.

ARRESTED FOR BIGAMY.

Detectives Just Too Late to Save Young Woman.

Montreal, Feb. 25.—Jacob K. Swartsward, alias John C. Gordon, alias J. W. Miller, of Norwich, Conn., is detained at police headquarters on a charge of bigamy.

Swartsward was married Thursday to Miss Catherine Davis, cashier in the dining-room of the Queen's Hotel. His young bride has preferred the charge against him.

Not only does Swartsward have a wife and five children in Norwich, but the probability is that very soon he may be charged with another offence.

He has been quite busy making proposals of marriage since he arrived in the city, and this was the cause of his arrest, but the police officers were just 24 hours too late to prevent his marrying Miss Davis.

Swartsward admitted to Chief Carpenter that he had a wife and five children and did not seem at all worried.

"It is not a case of murder," said he, "and I can't be hanged for it."

Arraigned on the bigamy charge before Judge Piche, the prisoner did not wish to plead until he had seen counsel.

Bigamy In Hastings.

Belleville, Feb. 25.—A case of bigamy is reported from Bancroft, the contracting parties being James Hawley of Monteagle and Mrs. Fred Lott of Bancroft. The woman is about 22, and was married about four years ago to Fred Lott, who, it is said, deserted her about a year ago.

ACTRESS AVERTS PANIC.

With Fire Beneath Stage She Starts a Song.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 25.—A panic in the audience in the auditorium Saturday night during the grand opera performance of the San Carlo Co. was averted by the presence of mind of Miss Alice Nielsen, who was singing the prima donna role.

A small blaze underneath the stage caused the stage manager to order the stage fire curtain to be lowered. The sight of the barrier, and the smell of smoke brought the audience of 4,000 persons to their feet in alarm.

A dash for the exits had already begun when Miss Nielsen darted under the descending curtain and called to the orchestra conductor: "Play the Star Spangled Banner.'" Her voice rose over the tumult and stilled the panic before she had finished the first verse. Then the curtain was raised, firemen appeared on the stage and reassured the audience and the opera was resumed after an outburst of cheering.

During the confusion some one entered the dressing-room of M. Constantino, leading tenor of the opera company, and stole a diamond pin which had been presented to him by the King of Spain.

EXPLOSION IN TUNNEL.

Workman Accidentally Strikes Stick of Dynamite With Pick.

New York, Feb. 25.—A premature explosion in the Belmont tunnel of East Forty-Third street, Saturday, killed one workman and injured 20 others, two of the latter seriously. The accident occurred in a lock 175 feet below the surface of the East River, where 30 men were employed.

While the gang was working with picks, John Johnson, aged 30 years, colored, accidentally struck a stick of dynamite that had been placed in the earth wall. In the explosion that followed, Johnson was instantly killed; Harry Douglas, aged 25 years, colored, sustained a broken wrist and lacerations, and Alexander Thompson, 28 years of age, also injured, was badly torn about the body. The two latter were removed to a hospital.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH.

Found Dead By Neighbors With Broken Lamp Nearby.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 25.—Mrs. Amelia Case, wife of John Case, was burned to death Saturday evening.

She had been alone in the house, when neighbors thinking they smelled smoke, went up to investigate. Mrs. Smith, one of the party, fell over an object, which proved to be the body of Mrs. Case. Her clothing was all burned off and she was quite dead. At her feet were the fragments of an oil lamp. Mrs. Case was about forty-five years of age. She is survived by her husband.

LINKED BY FATE

BY CHARLES GARVICE

"I—I congratulate you," he said, simply, and not even Vane could appreciate the effort, the words, the tone, cost him; but perhaps Nina could.

She laid her hand on his arm and looked up at him through a mist of tears.

"We—we—owe—our happiness to you," she whispered. "But for you I should not have come back to the island—"

Sutcombe patted her hand in silence for a moment, then he said:

"We must go back to my sister; she is anxious."

"Yes, let us go," said Vane.

Sutcombe would have preceded them, but Nina walked resolutely by his side; and so, all together, they came to Vivienne in the saloon. Nina flew to her and hid her face on her bosom, and Vivienne stared over her at the tall, rough-looking man whose grave face had already the glow of his new found happiness in it.

"Vivienne—oh, Vane, I can't tell her! You!" she broke down.

Vane came forward.

"It is soon told," he said, gently. "This lady to whom you and your brother have been so good—God bless you for it!—and I are husband and wife. We were married on this island a long time ago. My name, her name, is Mannering. I am Vane Mannering—"

He stopped, aghast, at the slip of the tongue, and was more aghast still when he saw the brother and sister exchange glances. He was glad that Nina had—like a good housewife—turned to the fire to see after the supper.

"Vane Mannering!" exclaimed Sutcombe. "Are you related to the Lesborough family? There was a Vane Mannering—the last earl, who perished in a fire at Lesborough Court—"

Vane signed to him warningly, and Sutcombe, embarrassed and speechless, stopped and stared at him. Vivienne made a show of helping Nina, and presently Nina shyly invited them to supper. They sat down, and Vane told the Sutcombes of the wreck, and the story of the marriage, Nina sitting near him with bent head and face that grew hot and pale by turns; and the Sutcombes listened with an amazement which grew still more intense when Vane abruptly said, as if he had suddenly arrived at a decision:

"And now for something else. Just now you asked me if I were connected with the Lesboroughs. I am. I am the man who was supposed to have been killed by the fire at the Court!"

"Supposed! Then—then you are Lord Lesborough!" exclaimed Sutcombe.

Vane stretched out his hand and got Nina's and held it tightly, and looked tenderly and reassuringly into her startled eyes.

"Yes," he admitted gravely. "It is a strange business. Listen!"

Amidst their breathless silence he told them the story of the accident, the sacrifice he had made for Julian.

"What was the use of the title, the estate, to me?" he said, simply. "I had lost Nina forever, as I thought; for even if she were alive, I thought she had risked death rather than remain alive with me. Life was over for me; such a life as that which I should have had to lead was impossible. And Julian would make a ten thousand times better Lord of Lesborough—it was only pushing the clock on a little, I thought! I should never marry—even if I had been free to do so, for, you see, I loved my wife here, wife or no wife. And so I disappeared that Julian Shore might reign in my stead! It wasn't much of a sacrifice; and it was lessened by the fact that the poor soul, the poor deaf and dumb woman, who was so devoted to him, had given her life to save mine. It was some kind of a return, acknowledgment of her heroism. I could make the master she loved rich and happy. You see? You think I was mad; but—I hadn't found my wife again," and he colored and looked round. "She is my wife, Lord Sutcombe. Tell her so!"

Sutcombe nodded gravely.

"Yes," he said, "I am a barrister, though I've never practiced; and, strangely enough, while I was reading for the bar, I studied the marriage laws. The marriage was legal!"

"Thank you!" said Vane, with his eyes on Nina's face. She rose, and without a word Vivienne and she left the saloon. At the door she paused for an instant and looked at Vane. He had started to his feet, but, before the look in her eyes, he sank down again.

"She is not satisfied," he said, almost inaudibly, as the door closed on them.

Sutcombe shook his head. "It is only natural. You must be married in due form. Though, mind, this one is legal and absolutely valid!"

"But—but—there is another matter," continued Sutcombe. "Do you mind telling me again about the—accident, the fire? It is a painful subject—but I have a reason for asking."

Vane repeated the account of that awful scene in the Wizard's or Witch's Room, and Sutcombe stopped him now and again to ask for some detail; then he said, very gravely:

"And you call it an accident?"

"Certainly!" responded Vane, with surprise. "The poor woman upset the stove, furnace, whatever you call it, and the burning spirit ran over the floor and caught."— He shuddered.

"The fire? Yes, that was an accident," said Sutcombe, still more gravely, his face pale, his eyes fixed earnestly on Vane. "But the fumes which nearly suffocated you? The door was locked—"

"It locked with a spring—"

"The ropes of the ventilator gave way in your hands. Your cousin, Mr. Julian Shore, did not return—"

"Good God! What is it you are suggesting?" cried Vane, white to the lips, not only at the suggestion, but at his own vague sense that it might be true.

"Murder," replied Sutcombe.

Vane fell back and regarded him with horror-stricken eyes.

"Murder! Julian—Julian plot, plan my death! Oh, you don't know him! He is incapable of—" The sweat stood thickly on his brow.

Sutcombe looked at him steadily.

"You had never met your cousin before that day at the lawyer's; knew nothing about him," he said. "I know more than you!"

"You!" said Vane.

"Yes; because I have not come under the spell of his presence, that peculiar charm of which you tell us. I, unbiassed, untrammelled by the influence of his personality, can view his actions with a clear judgment. Wait! Think how much he had to gain by your death! A peerage, the estate, the woman he loved!"

"But—but," stammered Vane, eagerly, "I was not in their way! She did not care—I did not care for her. She knew it!"

Sutcombe smiled grimly. "She had cared for you; I am not so sure, from all you tell me, that she did not still care. At any rate, he thought so. You were terribly in his way, Lesborough, and he—tried to remove you! Why did that poor woman come back to that infernal room, and by the other door? She suspected her master, as I suspect, and she came to save you from death and him from—murder!"

Vane sprang to his feet.

"My God!" he cried, "I can't, I won't believe it! I dare not! Julian, my own flesh and blood!"

"More kith than kind!" murmured Sutcombe. "Heaven grant that you may be right and I wrong. But your duty is clear. You must go to England and discover the truth for yourself. Go secretly, concealing your identity—"

"I will!" said Vane, resolutely. "And I'll prove you're wrong! Yes, I'll prove it to your satisfaction. Julian try to—to murder me!" He laughed, but the laugh had a note of dread and doubt in it.

They sat and talked for some time; then Vane said he must go.

"I can't leave the boat; I'm not certain of the tide," he said. "I'll come around to-morrow, and we'll talk it over. Of course, not a word to the ladies!"

They shook hands and parted, but neither slept. Vane lay awake looking up at the stars and thinking of Nina, and Sutcombe paced the saloon and carried on the fight with his disappointment and loss.

Going to the spring quite early the next morning, he was surprised to find Vivienne seated on the beach a little way from the ladies' hut. She beckoned to him, and when he came within hearing held up her finger warningly.

"Hush!" she whispered. "She is asleep. She has been awake all the night, but has just fallen off. We have been talking: she has been telling me everything, and I have been thinking. Sutcombe"—she paused and bit her lip—"you are sure the—the marriage was quite legal?"

"Quite," he said, gravely, and looking away from her.

"Then bend down, I—I want to whisper, Sutcombe."

With her face against his, she whispered something in his ear. He started and drew a long breath, then nodded assentingly.

"Yes!" he said, in a low voice. "We will do it. It—it is a clever idea of yours, Vivienne. How did you come to think of it?"

"I am a woman, dear!" she said. "But you will have to be quick—there is no time to lose."

"I will manage my part, if you will do yours," he said, and he laid his hand on her shoulder. "To see her happy—it is all I ask!"

The tears came to her eyes and she put up her hand and caressed his, with the familiar gesture. It was not necessary for her to say anything.

It was late when Nina awoke—awoke to find that her dream that Vane was restored to her was true! —and Vivienne was standing beside the bed with a cup of tea in her hand.

"You lazy bones!" she said. "We've all had breakfast, and Sutcombe has gone off to his work—how pretty you look when you blush, Decima, for it must be 'Decima' for me still! At any rate, until I can get used to the 'Nina.' I like the way he says it—Nina, Nina!"

Nina hung her head and blushed all the rosier.

"Mr. Mannering, or, rather, Lord Lesborough, has gone back to the boat to mend a sail, or something of the kind. And Sutcombe says, do you mind making some bags for him this morning? He particularly wants them at once!"

"Why, of course!" said Nina, eagerly. "Give me the stuff! I'll begin them this very moment. Are you sure everything is right in the saloon?" she asked, like a careful housekeeper. "What are you doing?"

"Quite sure!" replied Vivienne. "What am I doing? Oh, only tidying up a little. Shall we take the bags down to the clump of trees in the hollow? Or, perhaps you'd rather stay here, in case he should come!"

Nina jumped up with suspicious promptness.

"Come along, it will be shady there," she said.

They went to the spot of which Vivienne had spoken: It was a little dip in the valley, from which the coast line could not be seen; and as they worked Vivienne enticed Nina into again telling her the strange story of the wreck, and all that had followed it; and they were so absorbed in the recital that, though Nina glanced round occasionally rather wistfully, the morning slipped away. Presently there sounded a step; but Nina's eyes did not brighten; for it was not the one for which she was waiting—and longing. It was Sutcombe.

"Done some the bags? Thank you very much, Lady Lesborough," he said, cheerfully.

Nina started and colored.

"I—I— Oh, you call me that!" she said, half proudly, half doubtfully.

"Yes; it is your name, your title," he said, gravely. "But—but sometimes—often—I shall think of you as Decima."

She held out her hand, and he took it and pressed it.

"Lord Lesborough is busy with the boat," he said. "When you've finished the rest of the bags—if you're not tired of them already—"

"No, no!" she said, with unnecessary earnestness.

—"Perhaps you'd bring them down to the saloon, if you don't mind. Vivienne, I want your help for a while."

They went off, but when they had gone a little distance Vivienne paused, and, coming back, stooped and kissed Nina. There did not seem anything in the moment especially appropriate for the caress, but one woman is never surprised when another kisses her, and Nina took it gratefully, and returned it. After they had gone she worked until the last of the remaining bags were finished, then she arose, and with an unconscious sigh of relief, went towards the saloon. As she did so she looked round a little fearfully and yet a little wistfully, but there was no one in sight. Nor was there any one in the saloon; and, putting the bags on the table, she went towards the beach. As she reached it she looked seaward, and to her surprise saw a vessel in the offing. It was the Ariel, and she remembered that it was the day appointed for its return. She was gazing at it when she was startled by discovering that it was going from the island, instead of making towards it. She ran down the beach to the cove where one of the Ariel's boats had been anchored, and was more than startled to find that it had disappeared. What could it mean? She gazed at the receding vessel for a moment or two, then ran up the beach, calling for Vivienne.

Vivienne did not appear, but a stalwart figure came swiftly from the saloon. It was Vane. She stopped short, and, panting, looked from him to the Ariel.

"What is the matter? You were calling, dearest?" he said.

"Yes!" she responded, anxiously. "I was calling Lady Vivienne. I can't find her or Lord Sutcombe. And the Ariel—that is the Ariel sailing away from the island!"

He shaded his eyes with his hand and looked at it. Then he looked at her, a curious expression in his eyes, a dawning joy.

"I found this in the saloon," he said, holding out a note; "perhaps it will explain—"

She took the paper—it was folded in a lover's knot—and, opening it, read:

"Dear Nina,—Forgive me! It was my wicked plot! And mine alone. It occurred to me while we were talking last night. We have gone for a cruise—for a fortnight—when we will come back to see if you are still here. But Lord Lesborough has his boat, and you may both decide to spend the rest of your honeymoon elsewhere. If we do not find you, we will go to England and wait for you in the old rooms at Everleigh Court. Till then, and as long as I live, dear, I am Yours, VIVIENNE."

"They've—gone!" he said, in a low voice. "And—left us alone! Nina, my wife!" and the next moment his arms were round her and her face hidden on his breast.

One morning, a month later, the wintry sun stealing faintly through the blinds of the breakfast room at the Court fell upon the black garbed figure of Julian, as he sat at the table, looking distastefully at the good food set out for him. In his morning suit of black serge his thin figure looked thinner than of old, but just as graceful. His face was pale; indeed, looked almost as bloodless as the hands that broke the piece of toast on his plate. Beside it was the post-bag, and every now and then he took up a letter, opened it and eyed it listlessly, then dropped it as listlessly on the table.

"Shall I give you some fresh tea, my lord?" asked Prance, in a subdued voice—all the voices at the Court had become subdued of late, since, in fact, the fatal accident which had killed the late earl.

"Eh? Ah, yes, thanks," replied Julian. "Is Mr. Holland here?"

"Yes, my lord. He is in the library with Mr. Tressider."

Julian nodded. "You can go. I don't want anything more, Prance. Tell Dodson to have a carriage ready —a close carriage—at eleven."

"Yes, my lord," said Prance, in the same low tone.

When he had left the room Julian turned to the letters again, and suddenly the gloom in his eyes gave place to eagerness. He had found a letter that interested him. He tore it open and read it, with a red spot on his hollow cheeks:

"Do not come to see me. I am not well enough to see any one. I will write when I am stronger.

"JUDITH."

He twisted the note in his nervous fingers, staring reflectingly at the opposite wall meanwhile; then he tore the note into small fragments, and threw them on the fire. For some minutes afterward he sat, his eyes fixed on vacancy; then, with a start, he rose and went into the library. The steward and the lawyer were seated at the table, with some account books and papers before them. Both men were in mourning. They had been talking about the new earl.

"Just the same, Mr. Tressider," Holland had said. "He seems like a man in a dream, and half dazed and bewildered, as if he could not get over the shock of—of that night."

"Well, it's not so very long ago," commented Mr. Tressider, with a grunt.

"Quite so, quite so, Mr. Tressider! I am not saying that it's unreasonable, but, well, after all, he has the title and the estates; and, if I may say so, his lordship doesn't strike me as the kind of man to be so overwhelmed as to lose sight of the advantages which his late lordship's death have bestowed on him."

"No," said Mr. Tressider. "I should not have credited Mr. Julian—pardon! I can never remember to give him his title!—his lordship—the man to forget that he is now the possessor of the title and estates. He doesn't sleep, you say?"

"Fenton told me yesterday that very often his lordship's bed had not been slept in, and that he hears him pacing up and down his room the whole night through."

The old lawyer shrugged his shoulders. "Well! I shouldn't have credited Mr. Julian—tut, tut, I mean Lord Lesborough!—with so much sensibility. But, there, Mr. Holland, the longer I live the more I am convinced that there is one subject you can never learn—your fellow men!"

"Just so!" assented Holland. "Now I should have said that Mr. Julian—there! I've caught it from you, Mr. Tressider!—would have got over his poor cousin's death in less than a month; and yet, you see, it preys upon him and haunts him as if it happened only yesterday. And talking of haunting, the whole house seems as if it were under a ban. Mrs. Field tells me that she can scarcely persuade a servant to stay, and that they who do consent to remain won't go near the ruins of the Wizard's Room— Hush! Here he is!"

They rose and bowed as Julian entered. He went to the table, and, sinking into a chair, looked not at them, but between them.

"You wanted to see me?" he said to Mr. Tressider.

The old lawyer nodded.

"Yes, Mr. Julian—ahem—Lord Lesborough, I want you, please, to sign some papers."

"Is—is everything done—complete?" asked Julian, his white hands fidgeting with a paper-knife.

"Er—well, not quite complete," replied Mr. Tressider. "There have been difficulties in the way, of which the greatest is the difficulty in proving the death"—his voice dropped—"of the late earl."

Julian turned his dark, sombre eyes upon him.

"What difficulty can there be?" he asked, in a toneless voice. "He—my poor cousin was in the room, and though the—the remains were unrecognizable, his coat was identified."

"Quite so, quite so, Mr.—Lord Lesborough," said Mr. Tressider, "but the Court needs rather more solid proof of death than that. At present, at any rate. Later, later they may accept it. Meanwhile, of course, as the next in succession, you will administer the estate. I shall make another application, which, if successful, will place your title beyond dispute. Will you sign this, and this, please?"

Julian drew the papers towards him and signed in his neat hand, "Lesborough," then he glanced at Mr. Holland.

"Do you want me? I am going for a drive."

"No, Mr.—Lord Lesborough. There is a lease or two, but they can wait, there is no hurry."

Julian rose slowly, with the heaviness, the slowness of a man of twice his weight.

"You are having the Wizard's Room bricked up, as I ordered?" he said, with his hand on the door.

"Yes, Lord Lesborough. The men are working steadily at it."

Julian nodded, held the door for a moment or two, then went out. The two men exchanged glances.

"Queer," said Mr. Tressider, pursing his lips.

"He is always like that—like a man in a dream!" said Mr. Holland, with a shake of the head.

Mr. Tressider shrugged his shoulders. "It is to be hoped that he will wake up," he said, resentfully, "or it will be a bad thing for Lesborough. Ah, poor Vane Mannering! He was the man!"

"And yet he didn't seem particularly happy, Mr. Tressider," remarked Holland.

The old lawyer grunted. "Seems as if there was a curse on the place—and the race," he said.

Julian went into the hall, and a footman brought his hat and overcoat. But when he had got them on Julian stood looking round him vaguely. It was down those stairs Judith Orme had come with white face and horror-stricken eyes the night—

"The carriage, my lord," said Prance.

Attended by a couple of footmen, Julian got in; but as the carriage turned the corner of the lawn he pulled the cord; and as the horses came to a stop, got out and slowly, with bent head, went round to where the masons were at work bricking up the Wizard's Room. He stood and gazed at them for some minutes, then he re-entered the carriage and it drove on.

Just as it was passing through the lodge gates, with the lodge keeper's wife curtsying obsequiously, an open carriage entered. It pulled up, and Julian, looking from his window, saw Lord and Lady Fanworthy.

His thin face drew into a scowl for a moment, then he forced it into a smile, and, stopping the brougham, he alighted.

"How do you do?" he said, suavely. "Were you going up to the Court? I'll turn back."

"No, no! Don't, Lesborough," said Lord Fanworthy. "I was only coming to ask you if you'd made up your mind about the hounds. Poor Vane, you know, was very interested in them—"

Julian stood beside the carriage, with his hat in his hands, "like a foreigner," as Lady Fanworthy would have said.

"I'm considering the matter," he said. "You are sure you won't let me turn back?"

He addressed Lord Fanworthy, but he was conscious of her ladyship's notoriously keen eyes. They seemed to pierce his brain.

"No; no; thanks."

Julian waved his hat and backed towards his brougham; but Lady Fanworthy's voice arrested him.

"Oh, I wanted to ask you—you won't think me guilty of vulgar curiosity, Mr.—Lord Lesborough—" It was strange that she should share Mr. Tressider's difficulty in addressing his lordship by his title—"but have you heard anything of that strange servant of yours, Deborah? The woman who disappeared the night—the night—"

Julian lifted his pale face, his dark eyes veiled by their heavy lids.

"Deborah?" he said.

"Yes; you know she left the Court the day of the—the accident," said the terrible old lady.

"I know," replied Julian. "Oh, yes! She went to attend the sick-bed of a sister. I expect her back every day. So good of you to ask for her! Are you sure you won't let me turn back with you?"

"Quite sure!" said her ladyship, as suavely.

As the Fanworthy carriage turned Lord Fanworthy remonstrated with her ladyship.

"'Pon my soul, don't you know! Rather unfeelin', eh, dear? What on earth made you drag up that awful business?"

Lady Fanworthy smiled for a moment; then became suddenly grave.

"My dear, I did it with an object. I want to find that deaf and dumb woman."

"Want to find her! Good heavens! What, for?"

"Simple curiosity. I liked the woman," said Lady Fanworthy, after a pause.

CHAPTER XXV.

One evening Sutcombe came home—he had been down to the Momus—just in time to dress for dinner; and Vivienne, hearing his footsteps, called him into the dining-room to look at the floral decorations.

"Aren't they pretty, Sutcombe?" she said, in the softened tones which come so naturally to most women when they are speaking of flowers.

"Very," he assented. "Is it a special occasion?"

"Why, yes. The Letchfords are dining with us to-night. Had you forgotten?"

"Ah, yes!" he said, apologetically. "I've been busy and— Any news, Vivienne?"

It was the question he always asked when returning home, however short his absence.

Vivienne shook her head, and, as he sighed, she asked:

"Why are you so anxious, dear? Nothing can have happened to them."

He looked doubtful and troubled. "I don't know. Sometimes I'm afraid— It was an open boat; and—I should have thought one of them would have written."

Miles of Walk For This Year

Board of Works Will Have Busy Season—Work Left From Last Year

Speaking to the chairman of the board of works on Saturday, it was learned that he was up to his neck in work. There is so much ahead that it is hard to know what to do first. One big item is the cement walks. Last year over six miles were laid, which was the largest year's work ever accomplished. But even at that there were applications in for four and two-thirds miles which were not touched. Naturally these should be done first. But there is every indication that there will be applications put in for as much more granolithic sidewalk this year. The board will endeavor to do all that it is possible and all that money will allow, but even then there will be lots of sidewalks for next years' board to build.

The policy to be adopted by the present board in building walks will be similar to that of last year, viz., to build as long stretches of walk as possible on a whole street, before leaving unless the objection raised is too strong. The most of the season's work will be outlined before the season really opens.

AN UNPLEASANT EXPERIENCE

Tobogganists Ran into Hogshead of Water and Were Soaked

Two young men had a rather unpleasant experience while tobogganing at Jackson Park one day last week. It was in the afternoon and the slide was being sprinkled to put it in shape for the night patrons. Snow had been scattered along the slides and was being sprinkled with water, a large hogshead of which was stationed just at the bottom of the chutes. The two young men got on a toboggan and started to make the descent, but the snow on the slide caused the toboggan to jump from its course and the tobogganists being unable to steer it any longer it headed straight for the hogshead of water and collided with it with great force. The toboggan was broken to pieces and the two riders were soaked with water that splash- from the big barrel. It was fortunate indeed that they were not injured as they were travelling at a high rate of speed at the time.

CONTRACTS FOR NEW BRIDGES

Board of Works Will Soon Have to Take up This Work

One matter which the board of works will have to take up in the near future, and the sooner the better, is the rebuilding of the King street bridge. The structure is now almost a complete wreck, and it will be surprising indeed, if the spring freshets do not carry it,, or some part of it away. At any rate it will not be possible to use the bridge for general traffic for any length of time. As it is it is not safe for a heavy load to go over it, and the chances are the street will have to be closed up. Even if the contracts were let now for the reconstruction it would be several months before it would be completed. It will be remembered, the fate which met the Charlotte street bridge. The contract for the steel superstructure was let last spring and the contractor was given until the fall to do the work. The steel is not here yet and not likely to be for some time. All the bridge companies are so busy that it is almost impossible for any contractor to get any orders filled. It requires at least six months, although the work necessary on the steel for a bridge the size of the King street one is not very much. Still the companies have a great many orders in ahead. As things look now it will be next fall before the bridge can be built if the order was placed in a week or so. Then the board has also the bridge at Dalhousie street to make permanent, the one on Brock street to rebuild entirely, and the one on Reid street to retop. The bridge work alone this year will be a big item, although the chances are part of it will go over until next year.

G. T. R. Toronto Train Delayed

Engine Broke Down Near McDonnel Street

The engine on the G.T.R. morning train from Port Hope to Toronto, via Lindsay, broke down at McDonnel street this morning, just as the train was getting up speed after pulling out of the station here. A shunting engine went out from the yards and pulled the train back to the station. The engine that had brought in the Belleville train was attached to the Port Hope-Toronto train, and it continued on its journey after about a half hour's delay.

After repairs had been made to the broken engine it went on to Lindsay. It was not seriously damaged and it did not take long to repair it.

Should Organize Branch Here

Of the Royal Astronomical Society—A Timely Suggestion

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Having noticed recently an agitation started recently to revive the Historical Society, I wish to say that it is the right thing to do. It should be alive and kept alive, which can be done by a little effort. I also think, in a city the size of Peterborough there should be a branch of the Royal Astronomical Society. The time is opportune, when we have so near, such a leading Fellow of that society, in the person of Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, who is to lecture on "A night in the Skies," in the Charlotte street Methodist church school room on Tuesday evening. This is a study that might be called a recreation, a pastime, instead of a task. So let a good crowd greet this famous astronomer on this occasion, and let us form a Royal Astronomical Society here. Thanking you, I remain, Siding to Kinnear's Warehouse To Extend to Peter Hamilton Co's.

Proposal Made Which Will Overcome Present Difficulty and Open a Lot of Property for Wholesale Houses—Siding for Peter Hamilton Co. Also

His Worship Mayor McWilliams has been for some time past figureing on making Peterborough a wholesale city. Since T. Kinnear & Co. erected their handsome warehouse near the C.P.R. station, the general feeling has been that all the property between Peter Hamilton Co.'s foundry and the C.P.R. should be built up with wholesale houses. The land is well adapted for that purpose and several good buildings would be of inestimable value to the appearance of George street. The idea has forcibly impressed itself upon the mayor since Messrs. Kinnear & Co. have made application for a siding from the C.P.R. It is impossible to run a track from the Quaker Oats Co.'s spur on account of the steep grade and the large amount of filling required. Then to run a siding from the main line into Kinnear's would be too sharp a curve and the cars would have to be pulled by ropes, which would make it very impracticable and expensive. The wholesale grocers would like to cross George street from the Central Milling Co.'s siding, but this the city would not allow.

To overcome the difficulty the mayor has done considerable figuring. He has an idea that a spur could be run down Water street from the Peter Hamilton Co.'s factory, past the old bridge works and run behind the Canadian Canoe Co.'s factory, across Dalhousie street to the rear of Kinnear's and tap the main line at the back of the old Oxford Hotel. This spur would come within a few feet of Kinnear's. The company would have to cut a door in the back of their building, but that would only be a small matter, and would keep George street free of railway crossings. It would also open up a lot of property for warehouses, which is now vacant, and yet the spur would not interfere with the traffic on Water street at all, as the tracks would not be on the roadway. If the scheme was carried out, there is no doubt but that several large wholesale houses would locate here. They will have to come in the near future as the city is growing so rapidly and the whole country between Montreal and Toronto is developing at such a rate that the houses in those cities will not be able to handle the trade. Since Kinnear & Co. started here, they have worked up a very profitable business, and it is still growing with leaps and bounds. In fact it is as yet only in its infancy.

As a matter of fact, the present premises of the wholesale houses now in the city will all have to be enlarged within the next two years. The manufacturing interests of the city are being constantly enlarged and the population of Peterborough should be doubled before 1910.

MANY STILL FIGHTING FOR JOB OF INSPECTOR ON THE ARMOURIES

Once again the scene has changed and the Grit office-seekers are up against another scheme, designed no doubt to do one of them out of a job. Last week reference was made to the jobs of inspector and clerk of the work on the new armoury. At first it was decided to have only an inspector, but there were so many qualified and unqualified heelers after the job, that the patronage handlers upon second thoughts considered it advisable to have two officials. One of the jobs was offered to one of the aldermen, but he would not hear of it at the price. This made the men at the wheel sit up and do some more thinking. Today the Review is informed on good authority that there will be only one office, known as clerk of the work. He will also fill the duties of inspector. The salary will be a good one and the job will last for two years or more. This action has been taken in order to get the right man for the position and to cut out all heelers who are howling and snarling around the Grit camp.

The competition is very keen and the patronage men are endeavoring to settle the matter at once before any breach is made in the ranks. The alderman who was first offered the job has again been requested to take it at the increased price, and it is stated by one of the ring that he will likely accept.

NO AGREEMENT YET BETWEEN OTONABEE POWER CO. AND CITY

Company Refuses to Accept the Council's Proposition—Will Drop the Whole Thing and Pay a Higher Rental for No. 4 Dam--Government Takes Action.

Word comes from Ottawa that the lease of No. 4 Dam on the Otonabee River will not be effected. The company will not accept the resolution passed by the city council and will not consent to it being put in the lease. The company are willing to sell the city 500 electric horse power at $15 for a stated number of years, But the company will not hold 500 horse-power in reserve, or idle, for the city to take or leave alone, as it may see fit. The company wants the money.

It is claimed that the proposition the city is making would simply mean ruin to the company's prospects. The management would not accept $5,000 and hold 500 horse-power idle for the city. But just the minute the city is prepared to pay the company for the power when it is ready, the company will do business.

The government has also taken a hand in the matter. The department will not rent the dam at the price put in the company's tender. It is too low and the only thing which would let the government out at all would be the agreement between the company and the city.

On the other hand the company states that there was no intention of asking the government to put the deal through at the tendered price unless the city got 500 horse-power at the reduced price. But as the city will not come to terms satisfactory to the company, the latter is prepared to pay the government an increased rental.

The city council will take the matter up tonight when the aldermen will pass the resolution now prepared and send it to Ottawa. On that resolution depends the action of the Otonabee Power Company. Unless an amendment is made in the copy of the resolution sent to Ottawa the deal will be declared off and the council will have to look elsewhere for electric power for the Coates Company.

THIS WOMAN HAS TWO HUSBANDS

A case of bigamy is reported from Bancroft, the contracting parties being Jas. Hawley, of Monteagle, and Mrs. Fred Lott, of Bancroft. The woman is about 22 years old and was married about four years ago to Fred Lott, who, it is said, was a worthless character and deserted his wife about a year ago. He is said to be now serving a term in jail for robbery. Proceedings will be taken to prosecute the alleged bigamists.

MEDICAL MEN AT ST. JOHN'S

Canon Davidson Preached Interesting Sermon Last Night.

A large number of members of the medical profession of the city availed themselves of the invitation to be present at the service in St. John's church last evening, when the rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, preached an interesting sermon on the relation of medical science and Christian Science to religion. In the course of his remarks the preacher expressed his high appreciation and admiration of the members of the medical profession, instancing their enthusiasm for their work, splendid fight to overcome disease and their generosity in oft-times placing their services at the disposal of the poor, when they knew there would be no recompense.

The hymns sung during the evening were appropriate for the occasion.

At the conclusion of the service the visitors were invited into the Guild room where a profitable half hour was spent in discussing the subject of the evening, while refreshments were being partaken of. Before dispersing Dr. Halliday, on behalf of the medical men, expressed their pleasure at having an opportunity of hearing Rev. Canon Davidson preach upon this subject and referred to the mutual benefit to be derived.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

Men Receive Raise in Wages

Bricklayers Will Get Forty Cents an Hour During this Season

At the meeting of the Bricklayers' and Masons' Union held on Saturday night, it was decided that a request should be made, for forty cents an hour This is an increase of five cents per hour. The employers have agreed to the request, and this summer the minimum wage will be 40 cents. Many men were obtaining this last year, although the minimum wage was thirty-five cents. The working day will remain the same as formerly—nine hours.

This increase goes into effect on June 1st.

FOURTH "POP" HELD AT Y.M.C.A:

Interesting Programme Was Provided on Saturday Night

The unfavorable weather no doubt interfered with the attendance at the pop on Saturday night, although there was a goodly number present to listen to the lecture.

Mr. Duncan Walker, I.P.S., presided in a very happy manner and explained that the lecture had to be changed owing to the loss of the Mss. of the "Rhine Tour." Mr. Langfeldt had consented to give his new lecture on "Success" instead.

Miss Maud Crothers gave an admirably well rendered selection on the violin and was accompanied by Miss Crothers on the piano.

The lecture on "Success" was greatly enjoyed by those present and it abounded with good advice, which, if followed, will surely bring success.

The lecture had in it a good deal of humor, and it claimed the hearty applause of the audience.

MORE PARENTS WERE WARNED

Regarding Non-attendance of Children at School

Truant Officer Geo. Cochrane this morning notified about ten families regarding the non-attendance of their children at school. Last week about twenty parents were warned. Each Monday morning Mr. Cochrane is given a list of the parents of children who are not attending school, by School Inspector Walker, and they are then warned by the officer. It is already apparent that the appointment of a truant officer was a step in the right direction.

CRUELTY TO THE DUMB ANIMALS

Humane Society Watching for the Driver of a White Delivery Horse

Complaint has been made at this office and also to the Humane Society that a few of the young men driving delivery horses, are always abusing the animals. The parties making the complaint referred especially to the driver of a white horse which belongs to a George street merchant. It is said this young fellow is continually jerking his horse's head and see-sawing and otherwise making the animal's life miserable. The Humane Society has the matter in hand and as the particular offender referred to above, has already been warned, he will be prosecuted if he does not cease his cruelty.

It might also be mentioned here that drivers should be particularly careful to always blanket the horses well when standing. It is not only a necessity of the law, but is a mark of kindness to the dumb brutes.

Digging Sewers in Mid-Winter Troubles With Quick Sand

Board of Education Connecting King Edward School With Romaine and Aylmer Street Sewer—Slow Work—Sand inthe Sewer Pipes.

The contractors who are doing the plumbing for the board of education at the King Edward school have troubles of their own. Last week they started men to work on the sewer connection. The city laid the main along Aylmer street, and the board of education will make the connection. The distance across the school property is about 150 feet, and under ordinary circumstances the job should last only a few days. But that whole section of the city seems to be undermined with quicksand. The contractors on the school met with difficulties on this account. Now the sewer men are up against it. Very slow progress can be made and the work is very dangerous. Quicksand and water seem to fill the trench up as quickly as it can be dug out. Although several days have been put on the job, only fifteen or twenty feet have been dug, and it will take some time before the work is completed. In fact satisfactory progress can not be made until the fine weather sets in. The Romaine and Aylmer street sewer was completed about the middle of January. Mr. Wm. White, who had charge of the job for the city, says he never had such a hard job before. He is an old sewer contractor and has had lots of experience, but the quicksand and water were hard enemies to overcome. The sewer was built by day labor and for the first time in the history of day labor in this city, the actual cost was greater than the estimate. So far, however, the cost has not been very much more. The reports of $1.25 and $1.50 a foot are away out. The figure is not nearly that, in spite of the hardships encountered.

The Romaine street sewer is not yet ready for use and it will be some time before it is. During construction a lot of sand got in the pipes. It was impossible to keep it out. This will all have to be removed before the sewer can be used, and it will be a big job, too. Mere flushing will not do. The water will wash the sand through for a short distance, but then it will start to pile up and will be worse than ever. A rope or an iron rod will have to be run through the pipes from one manhole to the other, and with a man at each end of the rope or rod to twist it around and keep the sand stirred up. At the same time the flushing will be carried on. It is a slow process, but the only sure one and unless it is done right and all the sand taken out, the sewer will be a source of constant trouble.

PHOTO FRAMES.

Instead of throwing away the silver corners of old pocketbooks or selling them for old silver and securing thereby a painfully small sum of money clever women are now using them for making most attractive picture frames. These corners are indeed easily stripped from an old pocketbook and mounted on a velvet background conforming with their size and shape. The opening for the photograph can naturally be made small or large. It is the outside of the frame alone which is controlled by the silver corners.

When the old pocketbook has but two silver pieces they should be put on the diagonal corners of the velvet frame. In such cases it can be made to fit some particular picture, as the corners are then but a decoration and without effect on the size of the frame. Of course a prettier frame can be made when the old pocketbook has four silver corners. Cardcases, portfolios and men's notebooks have usually this number.

Dark maroon and peacock blue are attractive colors on which to mount massive, heavy corners of pocketbooks, while turquoise and apple green make daintier backgrounds for light, open designs in silver. The reason velvet is chosen as the background is because the metal sinks into its depth and therefore appears better than if mounted on satin or some other materials of smooth surface.

Heavy cardboard is first of all used, being covered with the velvet, and in doing this work a strong glue is essential. The silver corners are also held to the frame with glue.

FOR THE CROUP.

A Simple Remedy That Is Said to Be Very Effective.

When a doctor cannot be secured promptly in an emergency it is necessary to have a good remedy always on hand when children are inclined to be croupy.

A mother who will provide herself with half a pint of raw linseed oil can fight the worst case of croup she may meet with. It is said to be an unfailing remedy, and for quick results it beats anything else which can be given for that dread disease.

Half a teaspoonful is a dose unless the child is choking very badly. Then give a teaspoonful.

It acts two ways. In the first stage of croup, where there is not much mucus, it is loosened and carried off through the bowels.

In the second stage it causes vomiting; but, unlike ipecac, it leaves no soreness of the throat as an after difficulty.

It is rarely necessary to give more than one dose, when the child will get relief and go to sleep again.

This simple remedy is one that is within the reach of every mother and one that can be kept in the house at all times, and while it is in the house the dread membranous croup need cause no terrors.—Boston Traveler.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Leftovers of cold chicken make delicious fritters when mixed with an ordinary fritter batter and fried in deep fat.

Melted butter used for basting is used in the proportion of one tablespoonful of butter melted to one cupful of hot water. Keep hot while using.

Celery salt is nice with fried apples, and so is a bit of onion. Use this dish as a vegetable, relish or appetizer with cold meat and bread and butter. It can be quickly made.

For a savory potato dish slice uncooked potatoes thin, sprinkle them lightly with minced onion, cover with milk, season with salt and pepper and bake until very tender, adding milk from time to time as it boils away.

An excellent way to bake codfish, which breaks into flakes so readily, is to butter a sheet of white paper, lay the steak on it, butter it, sprinkle it with lemon and onion juices, salt and pepper, wrap securely and bake on the rack of the fish pan for half an hour.

A Useless Door.

Where there is a useless door, which for various reasons must be continually closed, its unsightly appearance may be artistically treated by nailing burlap across it, selecting a color harmonising as closely as possible with that of the wall paper in the room. When this has been put in place put shelves across for books, so filling up the entire doorway. By allowing the top shelf to project beyond its fellows a rod may be put across below it and curtains hung to the floor, the wider shelf also permitting a row of ornaments or jardinieres to complete the cabinet effect. In a bedroom a closed door to another apartment may be converted into a wardrobe by nailing a shelf above the lintel of the door and putting hooks underneath this and also along the closed door beneath. Hang cretonne curtains from the shelf to the floor and tack them on the sides to the door jambs to keep out the dust.

To Whiten the Hands.

This is a liquid whitener for the hands: Take one quart of water, previously boiled and strained; alcohol, thirty drops; oxide of zinc, one ounce; bichloride of mercury, eight grains, glycerin, twenty drops. Take four ounces of the water and heat it to boiling, dissolve the bichloride of mercury in this hot water and add the alcohol. Mix the zinc and glycerin together in a bowl, pour the larger portion of the quart of water in, stir, then add all the diluted bichloride of mercury and alcohol. Bottle and shake always before using. Apply the liquid with a small soft velvet sponge.

New Cereal Known as Corn Flakes Made by Peterborough Cereal Co.

Will be Put on Market in a Few Days—Made From White Corn and Put Through a Special Process—Most Delicious of All Breakfast Foods

In about two weeks' time another cereal will be put on the market. The Peterborough Cereal Co. is installing the last of the machinery necessary for making Corn Flakes, which is a new and delicious and appetizing breakfast food. Corn Flakes are made from white corn. The flakes are of good size, round and flat in color they are a delicate brown, and they have a very fine flavor, found in no other cereal. Being extremely thin and light, the new cereal makes a delightful dish for a light luncheon.

Corn Flakes will fill a place all its own in the market. It will not effect the sale of Canada Flakes at all, but should sell well with them. To manufacture Corn Flakes a lot of special machinery has to be used. The most important of these are the immense rolls which flatten the grains. For most cereals small rolls [illegible] to curl, a feature not desirable in Corn Flakes. The big rolls are made especially for this cereal, and the company had to go to a great deal of trouble to have them made. The design and dimensions in full detail had to come from the United States, where the Sanatas Ceral Co., of Battle Creek, Mich., make and use them. Those for the Peterborough Cereal Co. were the first and only ones made in Canada.

To make Corn Flakes the grain is put through a somewhat different process than when making other cereals The first step is cleaning thoroughly, then it is made into hominy, then cooked and flavored, and then put through the big roots. It is a long process, and consequently the finished article is a little more expensive than other cereals. Still, the company feel confident that there will be a big market for it, and are preparing to do an extensive business.

Former Directors of the Ontario Bank to be Sued

It is practically a certainty that the former directors of the Ontario Bank will be sued for the recovery of the amount of Charles McGill's speculative losses in New York stocks, and also for the dividends paid when the bank was not in a position to pay dividends.

The Star was assured by one of the shareholders of the bank that the probability is that the directors will take action against the old Board of Directors, and if the directors don't do it the shareholders will. The losses of bank funds aggregate approximately $1,250,000.

Shareholders are becoming impatient at the long delay in beginning action against the old directors. One man, who bought 100 shares just before the crash came, on the strength of the old directors' action in increasing the dividend from 6 to 7 per cent., writes insisting that action be taken.

Another says; "It is peculiar to me that the Ontario Bankers' Association has not taken action, if only for the sake of the integrity and honesty of the banking profession."

Messrs. Bicknell, Morine, and Bain it is said, are preparing evidence for the prosecution and Accountant Langton will be one of the chief witnesses.—Toronto Star.

An Employer's View of The Wage Increases

An employing mason when asked by the Review as to the result of the demand for increased pay by men in his line of work, said: "One certain result is this: The good men are pushing up the wages, and if they don't get the advance they will leave Peterborough contractors to deal bye and bye with inferior workmen only."

"What do you mean?" said the Review.

"Just this, that the better mechanics, not finding work here at the advanced wages, will pack up their kits and go elsewhere for work. The culls will remain, and they will either have to get the highest wages asked by their superiors in skill, be dissatisfied, or walk idly about."

"This advance in wages has two sides," he went on after a pause. "Under the old system of fair wages, it was customary for an employer to keep his men throughout the season. Between jobs there would often be a few days when there was little to do. Yet the men who kept at work doing odd jobs, gathering up the loose ends, as it were, and getting their wages as usual. But with the increase in pay, contractors find that the better way is to employ the men only when you absolutely need them, and discharge them at once when you can get on without them."

THE LATEST DEAN PATTERN.

One of the New Pleated Skirts.

The separate skirt is to be very popular during the coming months and its most fashionable guise is a multitude of pleats. Here is a skirt rather unique in style and yet not difficult to fashion. There are eleven gores, the extra fulness let in at flounce depth being arranged in side pleats with inverted pleats at front and back. This insures a perfect fitting upper portion and plenty of fulness at the lower edge. Checks and stripes are very smart for these odd skirts and either might be used here while one of the many plain materials would also prove pleasing. For the medium size 7 1-2 yards of 32 inch goods are needed.

2442.—5 sizes, 22 to 30 inches waist measure.

The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

Leave your order and ten cents at the REVIEW OFFICE, and pattern will be sent you by mail.

2432.—5 sizes, 4 to 12 years.

The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

SALE OF PUBLIC LANDS

Another of the Western land deals which have such a queer look about them, has come to light in the transaction by which a little family group of Liberals have succeeded in making the neat haul of $22,000. It is a smaller affair than the irrigation deal or the Saskatchewan Valley transaction, but the principle in all these cases seems to have been the same. In each case the properties had a business value, and that value went to middlemen instead of to the Government. Surely it is high time that these proceedings were stopped, says the Guelph Herald, and the value of land belonging to the Dominion placed in the public treasury, instead of going into the pockets of supporters of the Liberal administration.

Briefly summarized the facts of the latest "deal" show that on December 24th, a closed, irrevocable grazing lease was issued to H. P. Brown, of Montana, at a half-yearly rental of $600, payable in advance. Brown never signed the lease not paid a dollar of rent. For 18 months the Government held the lease for him, barring out all other settlers and ranchers, all efforts to obtain a reply from Brown in the meantime being unavailing.

In July, 1905, A. J. Adamson, M.P., for Humbolt, appeared with a transfer of the lease from Brown to the Galway Horse and Cattle Company. The transfer was dated Sept. 17, 1900, a date at which Brown had no lease, and the company had no corporate existence. In spite of this the Government recognized the transfer and granted a new, but revocable lease for 21 years from August 1, 1905.

Then Mr. Turriff, M.P., brother-in-law of Mr. Adamson appeared on the scene, and the revocable clause was struck out by the Minister, although he had previously demanded arrears of overdue rental amounting to $2,400 for an irrevocable lease.

The Galway Horse and Cattle Company, which never owned a head of stock and which consisted of A. J. Adamson and two relatives, hawked the lease about and finally disposed of it to John Gowdry, of McLeod, for $22,000.

PEN POINTS

Only three more days of February —thank goodness.

If you want a new concrete sidewalk send in your petition to the city clerk at once.

It may not be generally known, but it has been decided that any merchant, while selling goods by weight, who weighs paper or wrapper with the article sold is liable to be punished for so doing. The courts have held he can be properly convicted for selling light weight.

A discreditable scene occurred in the Ottawa House last week when certain members accused each other of working schemes of graft, says the Bobcaygeon Independent. In one sense it is well that the veil should be drawn, and the public see exactly what sort of men they elect as their representatives. It is a sorry sight some of these members make when the outside coverings are torn off. It is little wonder that corporations can obtain from our Legislatures, almost anything they wish to dictate. The capitalistic gang only has to say, "Hustle now, we can't wait," and the Parliament of the people hustles.

Stratford has made a good showing with municipal undertakings. During the past year the total income of the Stratford waterworks was $23,914, and the working expenses $7,757. This left gross earnings of $16,157. The interest and sinking fund amounted to $9,811. Several hundred dollars was paid over to the City Council as office rent and the balance was spent in extensions to the system. Since their purchase by the municipality, the waterworks have not cost Stratford a cent, and now the citizens look for lower rates and a greatly extended service.

Love your enemies.—When Great Britain and France conquered Russia, they carried away trophies and planted them all over their empires. We have some Sebastopol guns here and are proud of them. This is the usual method. The conquerors crow on their own high places and erect memorials to their own dead. There is a joint monument in Quebec, which all Canadians love to look upon; but it was the work of neither party, but of the children of both. Japan has outdone Christendom in magnanimity in erecting two monuments upon conquered territory, one to the Japanese who fell in taking Port Arthur, and one to the Russians who died in its defence. This will surely do away with much bitterness and prove a bond of affection between the Russian common people and the Japanese, whom in their protracted struggle they learned to esteem.—Montreal Witness

COMPLAINANT DID NOT APPEAR

The case brought up by an Italian residing at Lakefield against a Peterborough man for using abusive language, was to have come up before County Magistrate Edmison this morning, but the complainant failed to appear. It seems that he has left Lakefield and gone to Montreal to work. Under the circumstances the magistrate dismissed the case.

Excited Nerves, Twitching Muscles

SYSTEM EXHAUSTED BY WORRY AND LOSS OF SLEEP—PERFECT HEALTH THE RESULT OF USING

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Such cures as this make it impossible to doubt the restorative influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. E. J. Vanderburgh of Eastern Welland avenue, St. Catharines, Ont., states; "For twenty-one years I was badly afflicted with heart trouble, nervousness and cramps in the limbs, also twitching of the muscles and nervous headaches. I became weak, debilitated and emaciated. My condition was distressing and I was made worse through worry and loss of sleep.

"I tried a hundred remedies in vain and reading about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I decided to try it. After having used half a dozen boxes of this preparation my old trouble had entirely vanished and I was enjoying better health than I had since girlhood. I am now past middle life and am in perfect health. I would not take worlds today and go back to my former state."

There is more or less mystery and doubt as to the specific action of many drugs, but it is positively and definitely known that iron forms new red corpuscles in the blood, or, in other words, makes the blood rich and nourishing.

But iron alone cannot be taken into a delicate stomach. The great secret of the success of Dr Chase's Nerve Food is in the way iron is combined with certain other restoratives so as to make a preparation that can be used with the greatest benefit by even the most weak and delicate person.

Dr Chase's Nerve Food is also slightly laxative as well as tonic in influence, and while building up the system insures the regular and healthful action of the digestive, filtering and excretory systems.

If you would enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and replace weakness and disease with health and vigor, use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food; 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50 at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Called to Preach Funeral Sermon

Rev. A. H. Brace left this morning for Hamilton, having received a telegram Saturday night, calling him to preach the funeral sermon of an old friend, Mrs. Isaac Butler. It is only three months since he was summoned to preach the funeral sermon of her husband.

Character in Medicine

In medicine, as in every sphere of human action, it is character that tells. Every prescription that Dr. A. W. Chase gave to his fellowmen is full of character, full of the honest, sterling character, which made the grand old doctor respected, admired and loved by all who knew him. The integrity of Dr. Chase is shown in every one of his famous family medicines.

Rev. Mr. Mackay May be Called

By the Presbyterian Church at Madoc

It is stated that Rev. W. M. Mackay, formerly assistant pastor of St. Paul's church of this city will be extended a call by the Presbyterian congregation of Madoc. Mr. Mackay preached at that place yesterday and it is said that the Presbyterians of that town are anxious to secure him for their minister.

TO BREAK UP A COLD IN 24 HOURS AND CURE ANY COUGH THAT IS CURABLE

Mix one-half ounce of the Vrigin Oil of Pine (Pure) with two ounces of Glycerine and half a pint of good Whisky. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

A famous throat and lung specialist, who established a camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine, and whose wonderful cures there have attracted the attention of the civilized world, declares that the above formula will strengthen weak lungs, relieve the cough, heal the bronchial tubes and cure any case of lung trouble that is not too far advanced, providing the patient will assist by taking plenty of outdoor exercise, inhaling long deep breaths every few minutes.

It is said the mixture will break up an ordinary cold in twenty-four hours, and, being free from opiates and drugs, is far preferable for use among children to the ordinary cough mixtures.

The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost and easily prepared in your own home.

Inquiry at the prescription department of one of our leading druggists elicited the information that Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up only in half-ounce vials, securely sealed in a round, wooden case, with engraved wrapper, showing the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont., plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), which are being put out under similar names and style of package. Never accept these as a substitute for the Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) as they will invariably produce nausea, and never effect the desired results.

A local physician who is familiar with the treatment, says it is undoubtedly the most effective known to medical science at the present time, and save for the open air life in the forest, would prove just as effective if used in the home. He says the formula given above is the one used in the pine woods, and that it has the unqualified endorsement of the leading physicians of the country.

The physician added, if this formula was known and used generally by the people, throat, lung, and bronchial affections would rarely reach an acute stage.

The Pure Virgin Oil of Pine is also a neutralizing agent for uric acid. A few drops taken on sugar night and morning will heal and regulate the kidneys and relieve the most obstinate case of rheumatism, if caused by uric acid in the system.

St. Paul's Congregation Will Vote on Most Important Matters

The members of St. Paul's congregation will vote upon the following questions during the coming week. The ballots which have been sent out are returnable by Monday, March 4th:—

No 1.—Do you believe it to be in the best interest of St. Paul's church that Dr. Torrance be continued as pastor of the congregation?

No. 2.—If so, do you approve of an increase in his stipend?

No 3.—If your answer to question in No. 2 is "Yes," then what increase will you make in your contribution to current expenses?

No 4.—If your answer to No. 1 is "Yes," then are you in favor of engaging an assistant pastor?

No 5.—If your answer to No. 1 is "No," then what do you propose?

THE REASON.

In connection with the foregoing the committee appointed by the Session and Board of Managers has sent out notices which read in part as follows:—

To the members and adherents of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Peterborough Ont.:—

Owing to the discussion that has arisen to the relationship between Dr. Torrance and the congregation of St. Paul's church, and also as to the advisability of employing an assistant pastor, the office bearers are anxious to obtain an expression of opinion from the members and adherents of the church upon those important questions, and with that in view you will find enclosed five questions which you are earnestly requested to answer. * * * you may or may not sign the ballot papers, as you please.

Inspiring Service at Park St. Church

Y. M. C. A. Male Quartette Gave Valuable Assistance

The male quartette of the Y.M.C.A. was greeted by a large congregation at the Park street church yesterday, and sang two numbers with much efect, and a third by special request. The pastor's subject for the evening was: "Does God Keep His Word?" and took the form of a responsive public exercise on the promises, some fifteen or twenty taking part. Rev. A. H. Brace was in charge of the meeting. This was a most inspiring service, calculated to do much good, and will be repeated in the near future. This ends the February programme.

Strangers Tea Held at Y.M.C.A.

The monthly stranger's tea at the Y.M.C.A. last night was very largely attended. Many points in central Canada was represented as well as one from the U.S.A., and several from the Old Country.

Mr G. L. Galley, Vice-President of the club presided.

All the visitors paid a high tribute to the work of the Association on their behalf.

An example of the effect of the work was told by one young man who had been given a visitors ticket by his employer, who was a director of the association. The young man is now one of the leading workers of the association.

The tea was provided by the ladies of George street church, Mrs. Geo. E. Elliott being convenor of the committee.

Song Service at George St. Church

The song service at George street church last evening proved most enjoyable. The different numbers were splendidly given and much appreciated. The following were the selections,—

Anthem, "The Dawn of Hope," Krogman, Choir.

Mixed quartette, "Over the Line," Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. Dodge, Mr. Walton and Miss E. Chasty.

Anthem, "Lay Hold on the Life Line," Choir.

Solo, "At the Feast of Belshazzar," Saukey, Miss Reesor.

Able Address on "Life of Chance"

Rev. J. R. Webb Continues His Sermon to Young People

A large congregation assembled last night at the Murray street Baptist church to hear the sermon on the "Life of Chance." This was the second of a series addressed by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb, particularly to young people from two texts, Luke 31, "By chance there came down a certain priest that way," and 33, "But a certain Smaritan as he journeyed." The life of chance and that of purpose were contrasted by the speaker. After picturing the aimless life—the man who built without plans, who is a log of driftwood on the river of his age. Mr. Webb dwelt upon things that educate the young to disregard the small possessions of the present in the hope of securing some large thing easily in the future. "I am convinced," said he, "that carelessness in detail is responsible for nine-tenths of the poverty of old age."

The man who lives a life of chance finds it easy to shift responsibility. He "passes by on the other side." He reasons that some one else will pass that way, and someone does, but it is someone of similar calibre and so the sufferer bleeds until someone comes not by chance but by intention.

The idea of chance finds its way into the realm of our most sacred interests. "I expect," says the man of chance, "to be saved sometime and somehow." What reason have you to expect it? asked the preacher. "My presence in this world, with power to reason, power to love, power to hate, power to choose, tells me that I have a creator. I didn't come here by chance. If I have a Creator, has He left me in this world without any guide! Without any revelation? If He has given me a revelation and this Bible is not it—where is it? If it is this Bible and I refuse to heed it, what hope have I?

The musical service was of a very high order, a male quartette assisting.

The third sermon of this series will be given next Sunday evening, the subject being "Legitimate Ambition."

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper, which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable or more gloomy and discouraged than liver complaint and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 samples of seed grain will be distributed by the Experimental Farm in answer to inquiries received from all over the coutry.

Wanderers Were Defeated by T.C.S.

Interesting Game Played in Port Hope Saturday

The "Wanderers," a junior team of this city, journeyed to Port Hope on Saturday, where they played a hockey septette from the Trinity College School. The Peterborough boys were defeated by the score of 8 goals to 1. The Trinity College School bunch were much heavier than their opponents, and having considerably more practice than the "Wanderers," they outplayed them in many ways. Mr. Allan Campbell, of this city, but who is attending the Trinity College School, referred the game to the entire satisfaction of all the players. The "Wanderers" lined up as follows:—Goal, Conroy; point, Borradaile; cover point, Fox; centre, B. Wade; rover, G. Campbell; right wing, Geale; left wing, G. Long.

Another Cup For the Curlers

Will Likely be Competed for at Next Year's Bonspiel

It is said that at next year's bonspiel of the Peterborough Curling Club a cup will be offered for competition among rinks entered from various clubs. The proposition is to have each club in the district enter its best rink in the competition for this cup, which would be offered perpetually, that is, it would not become the permanent possession of any one club, but would have to be won each year.

It is understood that a subscription list will be circulated in the near future for the purpose of securing funds to purchase such a trophy. It would no doubt be an interesting feature of the bonspiel, which is rapidly becoming one of the best in the Dominion.

The Championship Will be Decided

The city league championship will be decided on Thursday night when the Strathconas and Charlotte street septette who are now tied for first place, will meet. Great interest has been aroused and the admirers of both teams are confident of victory. On form shown in recent games, it's just a toss of the coin as to who will win. Both teams are strong in all departments and can be depended upon to keep up the pace from the beginning of the game, until the bell rings for the finish. The attendance will be the largest of the season.

POINT GAMES NEARLY OVER

Fourth Round Must be Completed by Saturday

The fourth round of the single points competition at the curling rink must be completed before Saturday, March 2nd. In the junior competition Maitland is drawn against R. Talbot, and Stevenson against Wiley. The winners of these two games will remain in the contest, along with J. H. Ferguson, T. Merrett, R. N. Merret and A. Webb, who have yet to be defeated.

In the senior points those still in the running are C. Rutherford, T. J. Wallace, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, T. Brightman, W. J. Thompson, J. Stanger and T. F. Matthews. Rutherford won from J. A. Cameron by default. Wallace is drawn against Fitzgerald, Brightman against Thompson, and Stanger against Matthews.

Cover point, McWilliams.
Rover, Loomis.
Centre, Goselin.

YOUNG STEER GOT COLD FEET

A well fed young steer created a lot of amusement on Water street in front of McCollum Bros.' livery barn this afternoon. The animal was on the way to Kennedy's and it suddenly took a notion to stop. It got cold feet and refused to move a step. Every means possible was tried to force the stubborn brute to move, without avail. Finally a sleigh was secured and the steer was led onto it and drawn the rest of the way.

LOVE CHARMS.

Some of the Queer Superstitions That Live in Sicily.

The love charms of Sicily are many and curious. One, very popular and considered very powerful, is to put into an eggshell a few drops of the blood of the longing lover. The shell is exposed to the sun for three days and to the dew for three nights. It is then placed on hot ashes until calcined, when the whole is reduced to a fine powder and administered secretly in a cup of coffee or a glass of wine to the object of affection.

Another charm is for the witch to undress at midnight and tie her clothes up in a bundle which she places on her head. Then, kneeling in the center of her room, she pronounces an incantation, at the end of which she shakes her head. If the bundle falls in front of her, it is a good sign; should it fall behind her, the charm will not avail.

Yet another is worked in the following manner: Pieces of green, red and white ribbon are purchased in three different shops, the name of the persons to be charmed being repeated mentally each time. The shopkeeper must be paid with the left hand, the ribbon being received in the right. When all the pieces are bought they are taken to a witch, who sets out to find the person to be charmed. On finding him or her the witch mutters to herself, "With these ribbons I bind you to such a one." Then she returns the ribbons to the purchaser, who ties them beneath his or her left knee and wears them at church.—Macmillan's.

DIED A BEGGAR.

The Pathetic Career of John Stow, the English Antiquary.

John Stow, the celebrated English antiquary, was a remarkable man. He was born of poor parents about 1525 and brought up to the tailor's trade. For forty years his life was passed among needles and thread, but in the few leisure hours which his trade allowed him he had always been a fond reader of legends, chronicles, histories and all that told of the times that were past. By such reading he grew to be so attached to old memoirs that when about forty years of age, he threw down his needle, devoted himself to collecting them and followed his new profession with the faith and enthusiasm of an apostle. Short of means, he made long journeys afoot to hunt over and ransack colleges and monasteries, and, no matter how worn and torn might be the rags of old papers which he found, he kept all, reviewing, connecting, copying, comparing, annotating, with truly wonderful ability and good sense. Arrived at fourscore years and no longer capable of earning a livelihood, he applied to the king, and James I., consenting to his petition, granted to the man who had saved treasures of memoirs for English history the favor of wearing a beggar's garb and asking alms at church doors. In this abject state, forgotten and despised, he died two years later.

From the Beautiful East.

A small proportion of the flora is indigenous. The majority came from the east, like all the great ideas on which our culture is founded, and were developed and improved on this classic soil. Italy received the lemon and the orange from the Semites, who in their turn had obtained them from India. The olive, the fig, the vine and the palm were grown by the Semites long before their cultivation penetrated to the west. The laurel and myrtle, indeed, are indigenous in Italy, but their use for ceremonial purposes came across the Mediterranean from the east. The home of the cypress is not in Italy, but in the Greek archipelago, northern Persia, Cilicia and Lebanon.—From Strasburger's "Riviera."

The Difference.

Small Boy—Pa, what is the difference between a pessimist and an optimist? Pa—Well, let me see if I can illustrate. You know I am often discouraged, and things don't look to me as if they'd ever go right. Well, at such times I can be said to be a pessimist. But years ago, when I was a young man, everything looked bright and rosy, and I was always hopeful. Then I was an optimist. Now, my son, can you understand the difference between a pessimist and an optimist? Small Boy—Oh, yes; one is married and the other isn't.

Cause of His Joy.

"What are you looking so happy over, old man?"

"I am rejoicing over the birth of twins."

"Great Scott! I congratulate you!"

"Don't congratulate me. Go and congratulate Evans. He's the lucky man. I never did like him."

Stole His Livelihood.

Tattered Timothy—I hate doctors. Tiepass Thomas—What fur? Tattered Tim—One of 'em cured me o' fits w'en I wuz a kid. Gee, I cud work up some sympathetic crowds if I c'd have one right now!

She Was the Girl.

The Widower—I've always said that if I married again I should choose a girl who is as good as she is beautiful. Miss Willing—Really, this is very sudden, George, but I accept you, of course.

When money does not talk too much it may properly be termed a modest sum.—Nashville Democrat.

MIXED MARRIAGES.

Cases In Which Legality of Unions With Foreigners and English-Speaking Girls Is Questioned.

Only too often do girls in English-speaking countries in their ignorance contract marriages with foreigners with whom they have fallen in love, and live to find that in the eyes of their husband's countrymen they have, after all, not been wives at all. It would be a difficult and a lengthy task to arm the public and particularly the ignorant parent and the unsuspecting girl against the dangers of these mixed marriages, says a correspondent of the London Express, but in the space I have at my disposal I should like to point out the salient facts to be ascertained before such mixed marriages can be at all reasonably safe. And first I may say that generally all foreigners who marry English girls in England can only do so legally by the laws of their country when they have first complied with all the requirements of their own country in the matter of an intending marriage. And the chief of these requirements are (1) that they should publish in their country the notices of such intending marriage as required by law, and (2) that they should obtain the consent of their parents to the marriage if they are under a certain age—which varies from 21 to 30.

In Austria, after the intending bridegroom or bride is 24 years of age, no parental consent is necessary. But if the man is in any way still connected with the military service he must have the consent of the military authorities.

In Belgium the law allows a Belgian to marry a foreigner abroad according to the laws of that foreign country, but the marriage will not be valid in Belgium if he is under 21 and has not obtained the consent of his parents. If between the ages of 21 and 25 he must make a "respectful and formal request" for his parents' advice, and if the parents object they may apply to a court of justice and state their grounds for refusal, and such refusal may be upheld. If the son or daughter be 25 years of age no consent is required.

In Denmark any person contracting a marriage, whether there or abroad, requires the parental consent when under the age of 25, and a widower must not contract a second marriage within three months of the death of his wife.

By the law of France no man may contract a marriage under the age of 25 without the consent of his parents. From that age until he is 30 he will be required, as in Belgium, to perform the "acte respectueux," and his act differs from the Belgian in that he has to perform it three times over at monthly intervals, and it is not until a month has elapsed from the third formal request that he will be allowed to contract a valid marriage. Orphans must not marry without the consent of that Continental monstrosity, the family council. In all cases of a Frenchman marrying a foreigner abroad the usual notifications must be posted at the mairie of the commune in which he last had his abode.

In Germany consent of the father is required until the son is 25 and the daughter 24 years of age, and if either is an orphan the consent of the legal guardian is needed. The publication of an intended marriage of a person abroad must be made in the place where he last dwelt in Germany two weeks before the marriage and it must also be made by advertisement in the domicile of a foreigner, though in this case a declaration from foreign local authorities that no impediment exists is accepted as an alternative. Any person wishing to marry a second time must show that a legal settlement has been made on the children, if any, of the first marriage.

By Italian law an Italian who marries a foreigner abroad in compliance with the laws of the foreign country is legally married, but here again it is conditional on his also complying with the requirements of the Italian law. To marry without parental consent a man must exceed 25 and a woman 21 years of age, and they must publish the usual notices of the marriage in the commune in Italy, where the Italian party was last domiciled.

In the Netherlands persons under 21 must not marry without the consent of the parents and between 21 and 25 they must perform the acte respectueux to which I have referred. Over 25 years of age neither consent nor acte respectueux is required. In Spain for civil marriage consent is required until the man is 23 and the woman 25; in Sweden and Norway consent is not necessary after 21, but widowers must not re-marry until six months after the death of their wives, and if a man seduces a woman under promise of marriage she is held to be his legal wife.

In Russian law the marriage, if between a male Russian and a female foreigner, must be celebrated in a Russian church or by a Russian priest and an undertaking must be given that the children will be brought up in the Russo-Greek faith; while in Greece the law is so unfriendly to mixed marriages that I would advise any young woman contemplating marriage with a Greek to make him become a naturalized Englishman first.

This, briefly, sums up the preliminaries which the Continental nations desiderate before recognizing a mixed marriage. There are in addition important considerations affecting the re-marriage of divorced persons, widowers and widows, and there are many minor points which would need attention.

Union In the East.

Church Work, a Church of England journal, published in the Maritime Provinces, urges the creation of a new Synod or ecclesiastical Province, consisting of the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland. The proposal is interesting as showing the trend of feeling in the Provinces down by the sea toward a union rather than a division of their forces. It is in line with the proposal to have but one Maritime civil Province, which is now being agitated by the younger men of that part of Canada, and there is also no little significance in the fact that a closer union is growing between the churches in Canada and Newfoundland.

JOE HOWE'S POPULARITY.

Based Upon An Infinite Knowledge of His Province and Its People.

He became familiar not only with the Province and the character and extent of its resources, but also with every nook and corner of the popular heart, our ways of looking at things, our feelings, prejudices, idioms, till at length he was able to play on every string in our hearts as it suited him. He graduated with honors at the only college he ever attended—what he called "the best of colleges—a farmer's fireside." He was admirably qualified physically and socially for this kind of life. He didn't know that he had a stomach; was ready to eat anything and to sleep anywhere. These were strong points in his favor; for in our hospitable country, if a visitor does not eat a Benjamin's portion, the good woman of the house suspects that he does not like the food, and that he is pining for the dainties of the city. He would talk farm, fish, or horse with the people as readily as politics or religion. He made himself, or rather he really felt, equally at home in the fisherman's cabin or the log house of the new settler, as with the substantial farmer or well-to-do merchant; would kiss the women, remember all about the last sickness of the baby, share the jokes and thoughts of the men, and be popular with all alike. In those days when there were few roads in the Province, or when bridle paths were dignified with the name of roads; when the fishermen and farmers along the coast did their business with Halifax by semi-annual visits in their boats and smacks; when the postman carried Her Majesty's mail to Annapolis in a queer little gig that could accommodate one passenger; when the mail to Pictou and the Gulf of St. Lawrence was stowed away in one of the great-coat pockets of a sturdy pedestrian who kept the other pocket free for the partridges he shot on the way, we can fancy what an event in almost any part of the Province the appearance of Joe Howe must have been. He came along fresh, hearty, full of sunlight, brimming over with news, fresh from contact with the great people in Halifax—and yet one of themselves, hailing them Tom and Jack, and as happy with them as if in the king's palace. "Joe Howe came to our house last night," bragged a little girl as she skipped along to school next morning, "he kissed mamma and kissed me too." The familiarity was seldom rebuked, for his heartiness was contagious. He was as full of jokes as a peddler, and had as few airs.—From Principal Grant's Sketch.

Practical Forestry.

The Canadian Dairyman is pressing strongly upon the Ontario Government the need of a forestry policy for the older counties. It says: "Recent trips through considerable sections of Hastings, Northumberland and Norfolk Counties, in each of which dairying is the main agricultural pursuit, revealed the fact that hundreds and hundreds of acres of land, fit only for wood lots, have been cleared of all timber and brush and now are practically useless for any other purpose. Much of this land is composed of high sandy knolls, on which practically all vegetation has been destroyed by the fierce heat of summer and lack of moisture. Winds blow the sand from these hills, and in some cases make nearby roads almost impassable. In other cases the timber has been removed from the low, swamp lands, with the result that streams are drying up and hundreds of farmers suffer from the effects."

The Dairyman urges the Government to adopt the suggestion of Dr. Judson Clark, the forestry expert, to lend municipalities any money that might be required to purchase such waste lands and reforest them. In ten or fifteen years the timber would be able to refund the loan with interest. In Germany, where this policy has been carried out, the revenue derived from some of the municipal forest is sufficient to meet the local taxes and leave a small bonus for each ratepayer.

Boys Outnumber Girls.

When one gets down to cold-blooded statistics, many old beliefs perish. There is the general belief that there are more women than men in this country. The census knocks out this belief by showing that in Canada there were at that time 2,751,708 males and 2,619,607 females. That this proportion is being maintained is shown by the fact that there were 68,464 male children under one year of age and 66,116 female children of the same age. Another persistent belief was that the excess of girls would be found in the older and more settled parts of the country, and the excess of boys on the frontiers of settlement. The facts are the reverse of this, as the following figures of population under one year will show:—

	Male.	Female.
British Columbia	1,274	1,290
Manitoba	3,674	3,575
New Brunswick	4,092	3,902
Nova Scotia	5,108	4,991
Ontario	23,600	22,813
Prince Ed. Island	1,068	1,006
Quebec	25,242	26,100
Alberta and Sask	2,333	2,356

What Killed the Ducks.

This is not just the time of the year for hunting stories, but here is one from The Hanover Post that all good sportsmen will read with pleasure. The story is told of Mr. Ralph Brunt: "Sitting on a log near a bay out West several years ago, he chanced to notice six fine teal coming along in a straight line, one after another. They were coming straight for him. Quick as a flash Ralph raised his gun, and with unerring aim, fired at the foremost bird. The teal getting the benefit of the full charge dropped dead, and the other five coming up behind it at tremendous speed, were unable to swerve or dodge, and the terrific impact against the dead body of their leader broke the necks of all five birds. The thing happened so quickly that Ralph couldn't credit it till he saw the six dead birds in a heap. Local sportsmen declare that the incident is unique, and in fact, say that they would never have believed it had not Ralph Brunt himself vouched for the truth of the story."

The fifteen months' old daughter of Henry Hanna, of Hamilton, was drowned in a cistern yesterday.

BIBLICAL MYRRH.

You May Buy It and Frankincense In the Drug Stores—Manna, Too, May Be Purchased At the Same Place.

A druggist recently gave a Sunday school teacher a shock that he is not likely soon to forget. While seated at the soda fountain the teacher was delivering a lecture concerning how much the world had forgotten since ancient times and how well it would be if we could learn something more about the articles of everyday use, for instance, mentioned in the Bible. "Now, there's gold, frankincense and myrrh," he said, "that the wise men brought from the east. Of course we all know about gold, but who knows anything about frankincense or myrrh?"

"We've got 'em for sale right here," said the druggist, reaching for a bottle, which he placed on the counter before the astonished lecturer. "Here's your frankincense, and," setting down another bottle, "here's your myrrh. Now, while I think of it," bringing a third bottle, "here's your manna too. They are all gums. Myrrh is the dried sap of a genus of trees and shrubs growing in Arabia, Persia and India; incense is composed in great part of the olibanum gum, the sap of a tree which grows in Arabia all along the Red sea coast, on the east coast of Africa and in great abundance in India.

"To make the incense used in the churches the olibanum is sometimes mixed with myrrh, cascarilla and storax, also an oriental gum. The shrubs producing myrrh are found all around the Mediterranean, the best qualities coming from Sicily. The manna of the drug store is also a kind of gum, an exudation from several varieties of small trees and shrubs growing in Arabia and here and there through southern Asia. The monks of Mount Sinai pack 600 or 800 pounds of manna every season.

"Both myrrh and manna are often used in compounding prescriptions, and incense, of course, is in constant demand in the churches. It is rather curious, however, that during all the centuries from the time when the Jews marched out of Egypt myrrh, incense and manna have year by year been collected and sent to Europe from the same countries in which they are first mentioned and that the incense burned in our churches to-day is of the same kind and comes from the same places as that which smoked in Aaron's censer."

Figures concerning the students matriculated at Cornell in the last twenty years indicate that 42 per cent have come from private schools and 58 per cent from public schools. Of private school pupils 153 were dropped after the first term and 111 from public schools, and the percentage of failures among the public school graduates is much lower than those of private schools. Consequently the Cornell faculty favors withdrawing the privilege of admission by certificate from private schools.

New England Lost Argentina.

"Had it not been for General Whitlock's disgraceful management of the English army in 1806 Argentina, in which £350,000,000 of British capital is invested, would have been a portion of the British empire," said Major General Sir A. B. Tullock at a meeting of the Royal United Service institution held the other day in London.

GENERAL BOOTH SAILS FOR CANADA

Great Salvationist Will Not be Able to Visit Peterborough.

Wrinkled with age but with enthusiasm undiminished, Gen. Booth, of the Salvation Army, left London Sunday morning to board the Atlantic Transport Line steamer Minneapolis at Southampton, bound for New York, whence the General will proceed to Canada and the Far East. He will spend two weeks in New York before proceeding to Canada to take the steamer Minnesota April 1 for Japan. While in Ottawa General Booth will be the guest of the Governor General, Earl Grey. After traveling through Japan, the General will go to Pekin and expects to be back in London by July and commence another "automobile campaign" through the British Isles. He will celebrate his 78th birthday, April 10, in the middle of the Pacific, while on his way to Japan, and hopes to be received in audience by the Japanese Emperor. General Booth will not visit Peterborough. He will speak in only five cities in Canada—Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Rate War on the Meat Market Big Drop in Prices on Saturday

Messrs Kennedy, Gordon and Porter Bros, it is Rumored, Will Endeavor to See Who Has the Most Money--Mr. Gordon Wants the Corner Store Opposite the Bank of Nova Scotia.

There are rumors of war on the meat market and the butchers are sharpening their knives and grinding their axes ready for the fray. Messrs. Porter Bros. have moved down town and are opening in the old King Edward restaurant across from the market, George street. They intend to out in on the business of Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Gordon, and will open a modern butcher shop.

Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Gordon will meet Messrs. Porter Bros.' opposition and Saturday next will see a big drop in the prices of meat. It is stated that the drop will be sensational and for the next few weeks the people of Peterborough will be able to purchase meat cheaper than in any other place in Canada.

Mr. Gordon, whose shop is now in the market building, it is rumored is endeavoring to secure the lease of that handsome store at the corner of Charlotte and George streets. If he can do this he will open up one of the finest butcher shops in Canada. A better location could not be secured anywhere in the city. The corner is an ideal place for almost any kind of a business, and as time goes on it will be more valuable than ever. The business of the city will be forced to go down Charlotte street sooner or later, because it is the south end that is growing the most rapidly, and even today there are more people travelling Charlotte street than any other one street in the city, except George.

Mr. Gordon will endeavor to get into the corner store as soon as possible and he will then be in a position to display the excellent quality and large quantity of meats he handles, and will be able to meet any kind of competition.

The war in the meat market threatens to be disastrous to some one. One butcher stated he was going to put another man out of business, while the latter states he is able to stand a strain as long as the next one, and will be to the fore in the fight for business. In the meantime the public will sit back and wait for the prices to begin to drop, and will then get busy and shop early.

St. Luke's Guild Met Last Night

At the Residence of Mr. W. J. Scott, Mark Street

The fortnightly meeting of the Young Men's Guild of St. Luke's church, was held last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Scott, Mark street.

A large number of the members were present and a pleasant and profitable evening was spent.

The business of the Guild was considered during the early part of the evening, the most important being the taking of steps in the preparation of a grand concert to be held under the auspices of the guild after Easter.

After the business of the evening a social time was spent in playing games, and refreshments were partaken of. Before departing a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Scott for their hospitality.

ILL-TREATMENT OF HORSES

Complaint Made That Dumb Animal Receive Bad Usage.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—In last evening's issue of the Review I noticed an article referring to the alleged ill-treatment of a George street merchant's horse. This practice of abusing dumb animals is altogether too common in the city. Almost daily I have noticed a well known milk dealer beating and driving his horse unmercifully along the streets and have heard many protests against his cruelty by those who witness his actions. Is there a Humane Society in Peterborough? If not, I think the time is opportune for the organization of same.

Yours, etc.,

MERCY.

Deputation Strongly Opposes Proposal to Tax Gas Wells

Minister of Lands and Mines Places Principle Before Politics.

Hon. Frank Cochrane Protests Against Vote-Getting or Vote-Losing, as Arguments—Will Do His Duty Regardless of Consequences—Deputation Against Proposed Tax on Natural Gas Wells, Want Bonus.

Toronto, Feb. 26.—Interest yesterday afternoon centered less in the comparatively prefunctory short session of the Legislature than in the more interesting and significant proceedings which were transpiring simultaneously in the reception room. Thither had gathered a large deputation, representing all the natural gas districts of the Province, to protest to Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands and Mines, against the proposed tax on natural gas wells.

Duty to the State.

"I had hoped that the day was past in Ontario when the argument of vote-getting or vote-losing was supposed to outweigh with a Minister of the Crown what he believed to be right and in the best interests of the whole Province. Up in the north, in my own constituency, among my own people engaged and interested in the mining operations, they do not feel kindly to the mining tax, which you endorse. I don't think it is a vote-getter for me. I know it is not. It is because we think it is in the interests of the whole Province that we submit it to the Legislature. It may not be good politics. I do not suppose it is. But will we be any the worse for trying principle, instead of politics, for a while."

Principle Before Politics.

Such was the essence of the earnest and outspoken response that Hon. Frank Cochrane left with the visitors who had urged that the tax would prove anything but "a vote-getter" in their districts. It bespoke the passing of the old regime and the advent of the new, the placing of principle before political exigency in the conduct of the public business of the Province by the Whitney administration.

The deputation was an exceptionally large one, filling the reception room. It was headed by Messrs. F. R. Lawler, M. P., of Haldimand; W. T. Henderson, of Brantford, and Lewis Wigle, of Essex.

Tax Would Mean Hardship.

The various speakers put up a vigorous case. They claimed that with the exception of two large companies, all the natural gas wells were in the hands of small owners, upon whom the tax would fall and be a hardship, and contended that the industry was rather entitled to a bonus than a tax.

They also took the ground that gas was as important for generating as was Niagara power, whereupon the Minister pointed out that Niagara power was taxed so much per horsepower.

Scores of Dry Mines.

The claim that the enterprise was speculative and that many borings proved to be dry wells, Hon. Mr. Cochrane met by the observation that in the north country, where they were anxious for the mines to bear all the taxes, there were scores of "dry mines."

"Let me ask you one question," he exclaimed. "Are you in favor of the mining tax on the mines?"

The deputation unanimously declared that they were.

"I thought so," responded the Minister. "And do you not think, then, as Canadians, you can well afford to bear your moderate part of the taxes as well as the men of the north?"

Everybody Should Pay.

"The Government takes the stand that, as good citizens, all deriving special benefit from the natural resources of the Province should put up their share—and be willing to do so." Continuing, Hon. Mr. Cochrane said there was some force in the argument that the tax should be put on the profits of the companies operating as well as on the well-owners.

The deputation pointed out that the northern mining country had had the advantage of a railway built by the Province, but the Minister maintained that the railway was built to serve the great clay belt before the mining discoveries were recorded.

Will Pay For Railway.

"In any event," said Mr. Cochrane significantly, "the Province is certain of getting enough out of the portion it has reserved to pay for the railway in its entirety. It will cost you nothing."

Concluding, the Minister of Lands and Mines added that an inspector would be appointed to look into conditions in the natural gas regions and asked the deputation to put in writing what they deemed the proper and fair method of dealing with the taxation of these properties.

In the House the proceedings were exceptionally brief, in fact but two Liberal members were in their seats when it assembled, Messrs. Graham and Preston.

The Three-Fifths Clause.

Hon. Mr. Whitney made an explanatory statement which may indicate that the Government has not determined upon the much-discussed three-fifths clause as a permanent enactment.

It was an inaccurate editorial quotation in a morning paper from his reply to the Alliance deputation, that brought the Prime Minister to his feet. He pointed out that the inaccuracy was proven by the news report in the same paper, which was correct. The former quoted Mr. Whitney as saying the Government did not propose to make any change in the present legislation, while the latter, which the Prime Minister declared was correct, read that the Government did not propose to make any hasty change.

Mr. George Kidd (Stormont) secured an order of the House for a return of all estates now unsettled, upon which succession duty was claimed by the Treasury Department, where the due date was on or before Jan. 1, 1905, and the estimated amount of the duty due and the reasons why it was unsettled.

STOLE $173,000 FROM TREASURY.

Chicago Officials Now Under Surveillance Pending Solution of Robbery.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—Somewhere between $175,000 and $200,000 was stolen from the local sub-treasury last week.

The loss was discovered on Tuesday.

All the money taken was in bills of the denomination of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000.

At first it was believed that there must be some error in the bookkeeping. It was thought to be impossible that such a large sum of money could have been abstracted.

Every employe of the office is under surveillance day and night, and should one or more of them prove to be the thief or thieves escape will be impossible.

When interviewed yesterday, Mr. Boldenweick admitted that a theft of $173,000 had been perpetrated, but refused to go into details.

REVOLT IN CONGO.

Twenty Killed In Attack By Natives On Villages.

Brussels, Feb. 26.—Mail advices received here from the Congo Independent State, say that the natives of Cubanghi are excited over the taxes imposed upon them, and that the Bourjos are on the verge of revolt for the same acuse. Some villages have already been attacked by turbulent natives, and a score of persons have been killed.

Water Tower Collapsed.

Pittsburg, Feb. 26.—Fire yesterday gutted the Derby Desk Building in Liberty avenue, and spread to the buildings adjoining, the Seventh avenue Hotel being scorched.

The water-tower of the fire department collapsed, wrecking the windows in the Academy of Music and tearing down electric wires. During the fire one woman and two men were slightly injured.

The loss will reach $350,000.

Nearly An Accident.

Kingston, Feb. 26.—An axle on the Bay of Quinte train broke as the Kingston station was reached yesterday.

If the accident had occurred while the train was at high speed disastrous results would have followed.

MRS. THAW EXPLAINS.

Money and Cablegram Incidents Put Her Husband In Better Light—Thaw Said Cash Was Poison.

New York, Feb. 26.—Except for one brief moment Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw had a decidedly easy day of it yesterday during the continuation of her cross-examination by District Attorney Jerome. When adjournment was taken the prosecutor announced that he had practically concluded with the witness.

Mrs. Thaw was in much better spirits when she took the witness stand yesterday and looked decidedly better physically than she did last week.

Should Be Considered.

Instead of further hurting the cause of her husband, Mrs. Thaw managed to make two decided gains. When court adjourned last Thursday it appeared from her own statements that she used a letter of credit from Stanford White while traveling in Europe and turned the latter over to Thaw. Yesterday she explained that Thaw took the letter of credit from her, saying the money was "poison," that neither she nor her mother must touch it, and that he would provide them with funds. Whatever of the money was spent, she declared, was for her mother.

Thaw's Cablegrams to White.

The second point Mrs. Thaw made was concerning the cablegrams Thaw is said to have sent to Stanford White from London. It appeared Thursday that these cablegrams were requests to White to use his influence to keep Mrs. Nesbit from "raising a row" and interfering with her daughter in her continuing in company with Thaw.

Mr. Jerome took up the subject again yesterday, but his questions elicited the information that the letters did not concern Mrs. Thaw at all, but related to a man—a secretary of the American embassy—in London, who Mrs. Thaw said "sneaked up to mamma's bedroom and insulted her." She said the man also insulted her, and that Thaw went in search of him, but failed to find him.

ACCUSED OF SLAUGHTER.

Evidence May Be Lacking, No Ante-Mortem Statement Taken.

Berlin, Feb. 26.—Heuser and Reitz, the two men who are charged with manslaughter, in having caused the death of John Orazek, came up for their preliminary hearing yesterday, and were sent up for trial.

Orazek's death is said to have been the result of a cruel beating administered by the two prisoners during a row in the American Hotel.

Orazek died in the hospital last Monday night, and, it is alleged, that no ante-mortem statement was taken by the attending physician, Dr. Lackner, before death, nor was the chief of police notified of Orazek's approaching end, although it was known for days that he could not recover.

SENATOR GOWAN ILL.

Barrie's Aged Legislator Has Resigned From the Senate.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—Senator Jas. Gowan, of Barrie, aged 92 years, has placed his resignation in the hands of the Government. Sir James was appointed in 1885, and up to a couple of years ago had been one of the most active members of the Upper Chamber. He has been prevented on account of physical infirmities, from attending the Senate for the past two sessions.

When a law student Sir James figured in the rebellion of 1838, and was present in the fight against the rebels at "Gallows Hill." He was later colonel of the North York Regiment.

BIG STORM DOWN EAST.

Blizzard Ties Up Traffic In Vicinity of St. John.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 26.—A terrific storm raged here all yesterday, and street cars are stalled all over the city.

Last night the snow stopped falling, but a blizzard, piling huge drifts, is threatening to paralyze traffic completely.

The like has not been known here in years. All I.C.R. trains from the north are held up on account of the drifts.

CANADA ALONE OPPOSED.

Hen-and-Chicken Imperialism and Colonial Democracy.

London, Feb. 26.—(C. A. P.)—The Morning Post points out that practically all the colonies except Canada favor an Imperial Council. It remarks that nothing is more discouraging to a great movement than an ill-judged advance which ultimately involves a greater retreat. Hen-and-chicken Imperialism does not fit in with the modern instincts of colonial democracy.

Charge May Be Revived.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—The charges against Messrs. MacLaren Kiernan and Cummings, who were dismissed in the Buckingham riot case on Saturday, may be revived.

The crown prosecutor has appealed to the Quebec Government as to the illegality of trying but three out of nine prisoners.

Music Hall Burns.

New York, Feb. 26.—Five thousand persons were driven into the snow-covered streets early yesterday by a fire which destroyed the new Irving Music Hall in Broome street, and spread to several tenement houses at the rear and either side. No lives were lost.

200 Killed in Cyclone.

Madrid, Feb. 26.—A telegram from Manila announces that the southern Philippines have been ravaged by a cyclone, that 200 persons were killed, and thousands of others render homeless.

Earl Grey's Aunt Dead.

London, Feb. 26.—(C. A. P.)—Mrs. Geo. Clive, the aunt of Earl Grey, is dead, aged 91.

Premier McBride of British Columbia will retain the Victoria city seat, and resign his Dewdney seat immediately.

THE BRITISH ARMY

Secretary Haldane Outlines Many Changes to Be Made.

Troops To Be Divided Into Two Bodies For Field and Home Service—Territorial, or Home Force, to Consist of 300,000 Troops, Patterned on the Formation of Regular Troops—Militia Principle to Govern.

London, Feb. 26.—The latest scheme for the reorganization of the British army was unfolded by War Secretary Haldane in the House of Commons yesterday.

It contemplates dividing all the forces into two categories, a field force and a territorial or home force.

The former with 160,000 officers and men is to consist of four cavalry brigades and six infantry provisions, with a full complement of horse and field artillery, all to be ready for immediate mobilization on the outbreak of war.

The territorial force, totaling 300,000 men, shall be a complete army in itself, and as nearly as possible of the same pattern as the regular troops.

This plan would unite all the present auxiliary forces, yeomanry, militia and volunteers, with a complement of regular artillery, into one homogeneous body, all to be paid at service rates during the time they are used.

The territorial forces would be so trained and organized as to enable their immediate mobilization simultaneously with the field forces.

The present militia principle of the county organization would govern the whole home army organization, with the army council in supreme control.

MAY BE GENERAL STRIKE.

Expiration of Three Years' Agreement Next Week May Result In Cessation of Work In Coal Mines.

Regina, Sask., Feb. 26.—Word has been received here of the prospects of a coal strike and the general tie-up of the mines, which may be expected at the termination of the three-year agreement between the operators and miners, which expires on March 4 next.

This strike would affect every coal mine in the mountains, Alberta and Saskatchewan. The tieing up of the Crow's Nest would mean the closing down of the supply on which the C. P. R. depends for operating their engines between the mountains and Fort William.

The men are demanding higher wages, a uniform eight-hour day and fortnightly pay rolls, none of which the operators are inclined to concede.

Unless a settlement is reached before March 4 a complete tie-up of all the western Canadian coal mines must result.

COLONIAL CONFERENCE.

Defence and Emigration Primary Subjects For Consideration.

London, Feb. 26.—A parliamentary paper was issued yesterday containing a despatch from Lord Elgin respecting the agenda of the forthcoming colonial conference.

He says that in future conferences on preferential trade, defence and emigration may be regarded as primary subjects for consideration, and advocates that certain subjects should be separately discussed with the Minister of the State primarily concerned.

He expresses the hope that the questions of universal penny postage and imperial cable system will be discussed in this way, and suggests three sittings of the conference each week, and the conference may be expected to last three weeks or a month.

Referring to reciprocal admission to certain professions, Lord Elgin says the question of reciprocity in professions is complicated by technical considerations and it is doubtful whether the discussion could result in anything further than an academic resolution.

It had been found impossible, he says, to overcome the difficulties in regard to a uniform system of patents and public opinion in this country was not ripe for the adoption of the metric system.

Alleged Gaming House Raided.

Toronto, Feb. 26.—Staff Inspector James Stephen, new head of the Morality Department, raided last night Alexander Burns' store at 657 Yonge street, and placed five men under arrest. In the Police Court yesterday Burns was charged with keeping a common gaming house, and Thomas Lane, Thomas Bligh, Clarence Vinsen, Herbert Raymer and Benjamin Wase were charged with being frequenters. They all pleaded not guilty and were remanded for a week. The defendants were admitted to bail in one surety of $200 each.

Canada's Enterprise.

London, Feb. 26.—(C. A. P.)—Ex-Provost Fleming of Aberdeen, on a lecturing visit to Canada, said what impressed him most was the virility and enterprise of the people. The magnificence of the public buildings made him think "we are not so extravagant here after all."

Canada's Invitation.

London, Feb. 26.—(C. A. P.)—Austen Chamberlain, speaking at the Jewelers' Association banquet at Birmingham, said the Canadian introduction of an intermediate tariff was an invitation to negotiate to every country which desired to do trade with Canada.

New Land Office At Regina.

Regina, Feb. 26.—Messrs Darling & Pearson of Winnipeg and Regina have received instructions from the Provincial Department of Public Works to prepare the plans for the proposed new land titles office to be erected in Regina at a cost of $100,000.

At Chambersburg, Pa., Rev. John Dixon, for many years a Bishop of the United Brethren church, died in his 86th year.

BODY MAY BE EXHUMED.

Further Startling Developments Likely to Take Place In Canfield Alleged Murder Case.

Cayuga, Feb. 26.—Mrs. Perkins continues much more cheerful, and is seemingly satisfied that her case rests in good hands. She spends her time in writing, but makes no mention of the case. But despite her tranquility, the Crown case is strengthening instead of weakening.

It is rumored that the body of Henry Perkins' father will be exhumed this week. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins, senior, resided on their farm in North Cayuga, near Canfield, Henry Perkins and wife living with them. Mrs. Perkins, senior, died rather suddenly some few years ago, and it is nearly two years since her husband died, after having been troubled with supposed cancer, his death at the last being also somewhat sudden. The farm then passed into the hands of his son, the late Henry Perkins. Should the body be exhumed and death found to have resulted from anything but natural causes the case will become much darker.

The case will be called on Wednesday, but it is stated positively that there will be another remand.

GAS EXPLODES—BIG FIRE.

Three Storey Building a Complete Wreck—Laundry Girls In a Panic—No Lives Lost.

Sandusky, Ohio, Feb. 26.—Accumulated gas in the basement of the Bittner building, a three-storey brick structure on Market street, in the heart of the city, exploded with terrific force yesterday. The building and the big stock of furniture of Dilgart & Bittner, retail dealers, is a total loss. Hundreds of dollars' worth of glass was shattered throughout the city by the explosion.

Thirty girls employed in Beilstein's laundry next door were thrown into panic. Several of them fainted and had to be carried out. No lives were lost. The flames, which the firemen were unable to combat on account of low water pressure, was being swept toward other buildings at the side and rear, and the whole city square opposite the Federal building seemed doomed.

BIG BLAZE AT FALLS.

Damage Estimated At $800,000—Man Killed By Falling Wall.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Feb. 26.—The plant of the Acker Process Co. was destroyed by fire this afternon.

Henry S. Fairchild, an electrician, was caught under a falling wall and was killed.

Buffalo firemen came down with two engines, but the fire was out when they reached here.

Several cables from the power houses were torn down by falling walls.

The loss is $800,000.

The company manufactured bleaching powder, caustic soda, tin oxide and other products.

C. E. Acker, who started the plant, withdrew from the company two years ago.

There was a wild scramble for the several exits, and 300 partly-clad men rushed and jostled one another in their endeavor to save themselves, many leaving their street clothing inside.

A fireman named Donohue was badly hurt about the body by falling debris and taken to the hospital.

Henry S. Fairchild, an electrician employed in the plant, mounted a ladder that was thrown up against one of the walls, saying, "Let me see how things are in here." No sooner had the words left his lips than the brick wall against which the ladder was leaning collapsed. Fairchild was pinned beneath the falling debris.

LINKED BY FATE

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Vivienne smiled reassuringly. "I'd trust them in a cockle-shell, Sutcombe!" she said.

The Letchfords came up to time. They sat down to dinner. Strangely enough—and yet not so strangely, for the Letchfords often thought of their dead friend—the conversation strayed indirectly toward the subject of Vane's death and Julian's succession.

"I met Sir Chandos Orme to-day—you know him, I think, Sutcombe?" said Letchford.

Sutcombe nodded. "A little; who doesn't?"

"You'll be sorry to hear that he is breaking up—at last! I saw him in St. James Street, and scarcely knew him; and he did not know me at all. He was tottering along like an old man, his wig all askew, the enamel, or whatever it is, cracked and in blotches on his face, and his lips twisted into a fatuous, senile grin. A most dreadful wreck, poor old chap! What you call an awful warning and example. I crossed over and got hold of his hand—it shook with palsy—and contrived, after some minutes, to make him recognize me. I wanted to enquire after his daughter, Judith."

"And how is she?" asked Lady Letchford, gravely.

Her husband shook her head.

"Very bad, I gathered. She has never got over the shock of"—his voice dropped—"of that terrible tragedy at Lesborough. I don't think you know much of my poor friend, Vane Mannering, Sutcombe?"

Sutcombe colored and fidgeted. He had not been authorized to proclaim that Vane still lived.

"I—I have met him," he said.

"An awfully good fellow—one of the very best," said Letchford, with a deep sigh. "He had a very short innings; and they weren't particularly happy ones. There was some cloud— There's a kind of ban on the Lesborough family, and I'd hoped he'd broken it; but he didn't and the present man doesn't look as if he would."

Sutcombe looked up quickly.

"You don't like him?" he said.

Letchford colored at the direct appeal.

"Well, n-o," he replied, reluctantly.

"There was never any doubt of your Lord Lesborough's death, I suppose?" asked Sutcombe; and it was now Vivienne's turn to frown at him.

"Eh? What?" said Letchford, much startled. "Why, no; how could there be? We saw—or as good as saw—him die." There was a moment's pause, then he added: "By the way, now you ask the question, there is one person who refused to believe that he was burnt—old Lady Fanworthy. But, then, as everybody knows, she is the most eccentric woman in the kingdom."

"I'm not sure that her incredulity in this case proves her eccentricity," said Sutcombe.

"Eh? What?" repeated Letchford, [illegible] when the terrible affair happened—"

"And saw Lord Lesborough's body?" put in Sutcombe.

"No; no one could see that," replied Letchford, in a low voice. "But there was enough to identify him. There was the coat, a fragment of it, and the buttons—"

"He might have left the coat there," suggested Sutcombe. "Or"—he paused impressively—"or he might have lent it to some one."

Letchford stared; then he shook his head and sighed.

"No good, Sutcombe! I wish it were! If my poor friend wasn't burnt to death that night, what became of him; where is he?"

Sutcombe leaned forward, and, with all eyes, Vivienne's fearfully, fixed on him, he retorted:

"I'm lawyer enough to remind you that you have to prove that he is dead. See, now, Letchford; you say that there was a cloud over his life; that he had once before disappeared and been lost to his friends; that, although he had succeeded to the title, and was well off—a rich man—he was still unhappy. How do you know that he didn't disappear again; that, for reasons you and I cannot guess, he did not yield to a desire to surrender the title and the money to his cousin, the heir, to whom he was, I believe, much attached—"

Letchford sprang to his feet, his face aglow.

"By heaven, Sutcombe, you—you know, you have heard something!" he exclaimed.

Sutcombe crimsoned, then turned pale.

"I—I"—he stammered; but before he could say any more the servant came to the door.

"Would you step into the library, my lord?" he said, very gravely.

Sutcombe, glad to escape, rose promptly. "Excuse me a moment, will you?" he said. "Some business connected with the theatre, I suppose."

He went out, covertly wiping the perspiration from his forehead. He had gone further than he intended, and the interruption came at a lucky moment, and would give him time to think over some way of explaining away the impression he had created. He entered the library, then started back with a low cry. For Vane and Nina stood there.

He closed the door sharply, then got hold of a hand of each, and all of them were talking at once, the two men laughing in the nervous way in which men try to conceal their emotion, and Nina standing silent, but with the happy tears in her eyes.

"When did you come back?" Sutcombe was at last able to enquire.

"To-day—this moment. We sent the luggage to the Carlton and came on here. All the dinner eaten?"

"No, no!" said Sutcombe, still ringing his hand. "Just at it. And Vivienne! Can't you guess how delighted she will be, De—Lady Lesborough! And we were just talking of you! But when aren't we! But, oh, by Jove!" He stopped aghast. "There's—there are some people here you know—the Letchfords!"

Vane's face lit up, and he nodded and turned to Nina. "She knows them, though she hasn't seen them; don't you, Nina?"

"Yes," she murmured; for how often had she not listened to his story of the Letchfords' goodness to him?

"Come on," said Vane. "We're not in evening dress, but"—

"But they think you're dead," said Sutcombe, ruefully. Then his face cleared. "No, by Jove! for as luck would have it, I've just been preparing them for the fact that you are still alive—"

"And kicking!" Vane finished. "Lead on, Macduff! Poor, dear, old Letchford, how glad he'll be!"

"Give me a moment—just two moments. You stay outside the door till I give the word; you'll know when to show up!"

When he returned to the dining-room Vivienne saw from his face that he had "heard news," and she uttered a low cry. But he addressed himself to Letchford.

"You asked me just now, Letchford, to tell you where Lesborough is, if he was not killed that night, as you concluded; I couldn't tell you a few minutes ago, but I've heard news, and I can now!"

Vivienne rose, supporting herself by the table.

"Sutcombe! You have seen them! Oh, where are they?"

"Here, Lady Vivienne!" came Vane's voice in response, as he and Nina entered; Nina with a cry, that was followed by one of amazement from the Letchfords and delight from Vivienne, into whose arms Nina had glided.

For hours these good people talked, one against the other, in a state of excitement which threatened to exhaust the ladies, who, after a time retired to the drawing-room and left the three men to more serious conversation.

"The question is," said Sutcombe, gravely, "Did Julian Shore know the truth?"

"I say 'No!'" responded Vane, stoutly.

"And I— Dash it all, I wish I could!" said Letchford. "But don't be guided by me. I'm prejudiced, I never liked him."

"There is only one course to follow," said Sutcombe. "You must go down and confront him, Lesborough. You will see in a moment whether he is as guilty as I deem him. Take him by surprise, and you will find—"

"That you have wronged him!" broke in Vane. "I'll go down to-morrow. If I find that he is innocent, then I will share half the estate with him, with my wife's full and free consent. I can't give him the title; that"—he paused—"is not mine to give. But anything else— You will find I am right, Sutcombe!"

CHAPTER XXVI.

The following day Julian Shore was sitting in the library. Though the weather was warm, a fire had been lit, and he had pulled the arm-chair close to it and was crouching over it, with his thin, white hands held to the blaze. If there were, indeed, a ban on the house of Lesborough, that ban was resting very heavily on the present bearer of the title; for Julian Shore looked the most wretched and unhappy of men.

It was of Judith, and almost only of Judith, he thought as he bent forward, his dark eyes fixed gloomily on the fire. Of Vane he thought not at all. Vane had been in the way both of his passion and his greed for rank and wealth and power, and—Vane was removed. Judith, only Judith, sat enthroned in the mind behind the sombre brow.

Even Lady Fanworthy's enquiry, almost anxious enquiry, for Deborah did not trouble him. Deborah had disappeared on the day of the fire; but her disappearance had not moved him. It was probable, he thought, that the reason for her absence which he had given was not far from the truth; she had, in all likelihood, gone to a relative. The loss of her services was felt by him occasionally, he missed her now and again; but he was as indifferent to her fate as he had been to that of the cat he had suffocated, as he had been to the death of Vane.

Judith; how to force her to keep her pact. He was now the Earl of Lesborough, or, at least, would soon be the acknowledged master, where once he had been the dependent. He had performed his part of the contract; how should he force her to fulfil hers? His mind was at work on the question all day, and every day, and his thin, bloodless lips now formed her name inaudibly. He rose, presently, his lips twitching, and, taking a spirit stand from the sideboard, he poured out some brandy, and drank it slowly, meditatingly.

He paused, and looked towards the door, and muttered in quite a matter-of-fact voice:

"That was like Vane's. Strange!"

He sank into the chair and leaned back, with closed eyes, the white lids gleaming in a ghastly fashion from the dark shadows which encircled his eyes; but suddenly the lids flickered. The door had opened, and a step—so strangely like Vane's—was heard in the room. He raised his lids, heavy with insomnia, and, without moving his head, turned his eyes.

Vane stood looking down at him with an anxious, doubtful, troubled enquiry.

"Julian!" he said, gravely, gently. "Don't be frightened. It is I!"

Julian regarded him with lack-lustre eyes.

"Too much brandy; no sleep," he muttered to himself. "I expected this. How like! It might be Vane himself."

"Don't you know me, Julian?" said Vane, still more anxiously, with a look of greater doubt and trouble in his face. "I have just returned to England. I came to tell you that I am alive. Get up, old fellow! Give me your hand, your congratulations! What is the matter? Julian, are you ill?"

"His voice, exactly!" muttered Julian, almost with admiration. "A perfect illusion, optical and aural. This is interesting; very!"

"No, no! You can't make your touch felt, you know. Ghosts can't materialize to that extent! No, no! So you are going to haunt me? I think not! I can lay you, my good cousin, as I raised you, with this!" He lifted the glass and drank a long draught. "It is only a question of quantity."

As Vane stood, regarding him with sad sternness, a foreboding of what was to follow, Julian went on:

"Not gone yet? What do you want? The orthodox, the regular thing—a confession? Take it, then, and be off, good ghost. And you are good, excellent! The very image of my dear, noble cousin. Won't that well-merited compliment send you back to Hell—oh, no, good men like you go to Heaven. I forgot! Pardon! Not gone? You will have that confession?"

His lips writhed into a mocking smile. "You insist? With all my heart. Well, then, my dear Vane, I laid the little plot which transported you to the good man's eternal reward. And you must admit that it was as neat and finished as any that even a Borgia could conceive. Come, now! confess that you had not the least glimmering of an idea that the laboratory was prepared for you; that the ropes of the ventilator had been neatly frayed, almost to parting point; that the combination of aconite and ammonia had been calculated to a nicety; that I had tried the fumes on a cat—poor, innocent cat; that I had the key of the door in my pocket, and kept it there while I lingered about the hall, until—well, until the fumes had done their work!"

Vane shrank back from the now glittering eyes, glittering with exultation over the fiendish work, the fluent words that left, gloatingly, the livid, working lips, shrank back with manly shame, as if he were the guilty one, and not the intended victim.

"Good God!" he gasped. "Are—are you mad, Julian?"

"Mad? Not a whit, thanks, ghost of my dear Vane!" retorted Julian, with a laugh, as he turned to the decanter of brandy. "I am the sanest of the sane; for I am one of those men who know what they want—and get it! I wanted your title, the Lesborough estates. I nearly had them, for you were supposed to be dead; but you were fool enough to come back to the land of the living, and robbed me. I could have killed you there at that old idiot's—Tressider's—and later that day at my own rooms. But you didn't see it. Not you! You are one of those blind fools who are called honest, honorable men!"

The sweat stood thickly on Vane's forehead; the horror of the scene was almost intolerable. He tried to end it.

"Julian!" broke from him. "This is madness—stark, raving madness. You—you could not have done it!"

Julian took the glass from his lips to laugh derisively.

"Couldn't I? Not for the title and the estates, perhaps. I wanted them badly enough, but I—don't—think, I'm not sure, that I'd have murdered you for them. Murder's a serious thing, after all. But I wanted something more badly than I wanted the title and the estates. Can't you guess? You dull ghost, you obtuse phantom! I wanted the woman you once loved, and who still loved you—Judith!"

"Judith!" echoed Vane, in a horrified whisper.

Julian laughed.

"Judith! Why is she not here? I want her! She will not deceive me, will not rob me of my prize, herself, her love! No, no! The compact was too serious. Murder! Yes, it was murder. And did I shrink from it? And am I to be robbed—robbed—robbed—"

He staggered, and making for the chair, fell into it, his head sunk on his breast, his long, thin hands extended as if to clutch at something.

"Vane!" he cried.

"Murderer!" said Vane, sternly.

Julian struggled to his feet and held out his hand, with a quivering laugh.

"Is it you? No ghost, but yourself!" he faltered, thickly.

"Yes, it is I!" said Vane, sternly, and yet with the pity one extends to the insane, criminals though they may be.

"Then—then you escaped?" said Julian. "How? I am glad, very glad! But—how?"

"Deborah, the deaf-mute," said Vane, huskily. "She saved me—I wrapped my coat round her— You hound! The woman who was devoted to you gave her life—"

"Deborah! I never thought of that. I thought she had fled—in horror! Deborah! Poor woman! Oh, poor woman!"

His voice broke, then he laughed the laugh of the insane.

"And I have shown your ghost—you, in fact—the whole bag of tricks. I have given myself away? Yes?"

Vane's stern eyes answered him.

"Well? What are you going to do?"

He had the best of it, as Vane felt.

"I ought to strangle you, kill you by any means; you—you traitor!"

Julian smiled. "My dear Vane, I wish I could set your mind at rest on that point; but I can't. I don't say that Judith was aware, fully aware, of the modus operandi, that she knew exactly how I was going to—remove you; but I'll swear that she knew you were to be removed! If you have listened attentively to my confession you must have gathered that fact."

"Liar! Murderer!" said Vane.

"Murderer—well, yes, I admit; but a liar—I never lied yet. Lying is vulgar—and useless. But Judith. Oh, yes, 'when you are master,' etc. Oh, she knew! I saw it by her face that night, heard it in her shriek. And, mind you, Judith must abide by the compact. Judith is mine! Mine, by the right of the price I have paid for her! Not yours!" He advanced threateningly, his hand upraised, his fingers clutching at the empty air. "Not yours! You would not have sinned as I have done for her. You—"

His voice sank, and he laughed.

"Pardon! You will admit my claim to her. I am going. You will not see me again. When a man loses, as I have lost, after such a struggle, effort, he should efface himself. I admit that I am going, and you will not see me or be troubled by me again."

He walked, quite steadily now, toward the table.

"Will you allow me to use a telegraph form? Thanks."

In horrified silence Vane drew back and watched him. He took a form from the stationery stand, and, after a moment's thought, wrote a message, very plainly and distinctly.

When he had finished he rose, looked at Vane with a calm, cool, indeed critical gaze, then with a smile said:

"Thanks! Goodbye!"

Vane watched him as he went out of the room, then sank into a chair—not the chair in which Julian had sat—and buried his face in his hands. How long he sat he knew not then or ever; but, suddenly remembering the unhappy wretch, he sprang to his feet and hurried into the hall.

He almost ran into the arms of Prance, who uttered a yell of amazement and fear, calling on his name:

"Lord Lesborough!"

"Mr. Julian!" cried Vane.

"Mr. Julian! Lord Lesborough! His lordship went out a quarter of an hour ago! But—but—oh, lord, who are you, sir? Oh, my lord, is it you; is it you?"

The whole household was in confusion. The clamor of tongues, the cries and screams and tears of relief and thanksgiving so confused Vane that he was thwarted in his intention of following the unhappy man. But at last he got a carriage and drove to the station, to find that Julian had departed by the train which had left a few minutes before Vane arrived.

CHAPTER XXVII.

"Decima!" screamed Polly, when, with the merest apology for a knock, Nina entered the familiar rooms in Percy Street, the room in which she had found loving shelter in her time of need, the room in which she had trimmed hats and bonnets, and afterwards—oh, great achievement!—written plays for the members of Mr. Harcourt's company! "Decima!" and Polly, with the tears in her eyes, hugged her dear friend, never dearer than in this moment of her return. "How well you are looking, and how—how— Decima, something has happened to you! Something that's altered you in a way that I can't describe. You never looked so happy, and with such a light in your eyes, not even on the first night of the play! Sit down! Take your things off! Let me give you another kiss, you dear, sweet thing! And now tell me all about it! The voyage! The adventures you hinted at! Did you find that mysterious island—why didn't you tell me more about it? Did you find it, and is that what makes you look so heavenly radiant and running over with joy?"

"Yes, I found it, Polly," replied Nina, "but it was something else I found that makes me so happy. You'll never guess! Come closer and I'll—I'll whisper!"

AGAINST 2-CENT FARES

Premier Opposes House Going Into Committee on the Bill.

Mr. Emmerson Admits Discrimination—Would Not Add to the Freight Rates Says Mr. Maclean—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Prefers to Keep Old Fashioned High Fares—Six Months' Hoist Is Voted.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—The bill introduced by W. F. Maclean (South York), to amend the Railway Act by establishing a minimum passenger rate of two cents a mile, came up in the House last night upon the adverse report of the railway committee.

Mr. Maclean pointed out that during the past week the two-cent fare had been established in seven states of the American Union, and it was in course of adoption by eight other states. In all some twenty Legislatures have had the question up this winter.

No farmer present made any objection, yet members of Parliament here were constantly moaning, as friends of the farmer, that any reduction in passenger fares would add to the freight rates and greatly injure the farming community.

Duty of Parliament.

They should enjoy the same fare to be fixed by Parliament, effective everywhere in Canada. It was the duty of Parliament to shoulder this responsibility, not to evade it, or to try to hide behind a commission. The people of this country demand relief. The two-cent fare affects every citizen, it affects his pocket, it is a live question.

Admit Discrimination.

Mr. Emmerson said that the bill had been defeated in the railway committee. He admitted discrimination by the G.T.R. against the country east of Toronto, as in favor of the country west of Toronto. The conditions, he said, were different. The company could not afford to carry the traffic east of Toronto any cheaper. It would be unjust to ask them to carry passengers at two cents a mile.

Premier Stands By Committee.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier reminded the House that the bill had been sent to the railway committee and that the committee had recommended that the bill be not passed. It was the policy of the Government to sustain and report from a select standing committee. There was no reason to make any exception in this case.

He found no argument in the action of the American States. He compared such legislation to American spelling and declared that the old-fashioned spelling was good enough for him. In a word, he preferred to keep the old-fashioned high fares.

R. L. Borden pointed out that the action of the Government in refusing to permit the House to go into committee was unprecedented.

E. M. Macdonald (Liberal) did not astonish the House by opposing. He moved the six months' hoist. The House divided and it carried, yeas 80, nays 37.

Without debate the House divided upon the resolution of R. L. Borden to appoint a select committee to examine into the labor question and adopted the substitute offered by Ralph Smith, declaring no investigation was needed, but asking for legislation to present strikes and lockouts. Mr. Smith's amendment carried, yeas 78, nays 40.

Mr. Hyman's Resignation.

When Mr. Hyman's sponsors tell the people of London that Sir Wilfrid Laurier could not do without him in the Cabinet, they are evidently going beyond record.

When the House met yesterday Dr. Sproule brought the matter up, saying: "I find it reported in the newspapers that 'Sir Wilfrid Laurier sent a letter to Mr. Hyman insisting that Mr. Hyman should take back his resignation, because the Premier could not do without him in the Cabinet.' As the correspondence which has been brought down does not contain any such letter, I would ask the right hon. gentleman if there is any reason why it should not be laid on the table with the others?"

"All the correspondence I had with Mr. Hyman has been brought down," replied Sir Wilfrid.

Mr. Ames was informed that the total amount of bonds issued by the G. T. Pacific and guaranteed by the Government on the western division was £3,200,000. There was but one issue, on Oct. 1, 1906.

Prize Orators.

London, Feb. 26.—(C. A. P.)—The Chronicle, referring to the question of allowing the Colonial Premiers to address the House of Commons, is hardly likely to be answered in the affirmative, remarks that such an oratorical afternoon would certainly be interesting, as two of the coming guests, Laurier and Deakin, are among the most eloquent speakers.

Ice Bridge At Quebec.

Quebec, Feb. 26.—The St. Lawrence River was frozen over Saturday night and an ice bridge was formed at Cape Rouge and below the city. The ferry boats manage to keep a narrow channel clear opposite the city.

It is the first time in years a good bridge has formed, and many skaters are out on it.

He was listened to with profit and pleasure at both services. Mr. Bright will occupy the pulpit again next Sunday.

SEVENTEEN AND A HALF MILL RATE WILL BE STRUCK IN PETERBOROUGH FOR 1907

Committee of the Whole Passed the Estimates--Only a Few Small Changes Made --Increased Revenue From the Assessment and $6,000 Surplus From 1906 Kept the Rate Down--Rate for School and Local Improvement Debentures Increased Half a Mill—No Provision Made for Collegiate or North Ward School Debentures.

The rate of taxation this year, will be 17 1-2 mills on the dollar, just the same as last year. Such was the decision of the committee of the whole council last night. This rate has been struck in face of the fact that the demand for school and other debentures has increased half a mill, and also the great need for increased work on the city's streets.

The Finance Committee spent a lot of time getting the business for the business for the year figured down as fine, but it was the special desire of the Mayor, the Finance Minister and a number of the aldermen, that as the Mayor and several of the chairmen and aldermen were new, to keep the rate the same.

This rate of course, makes no provision whatever, for the $25,000 debentures which will have to be issued for the north ward school, and the $61,000 debentures for the Collegiate Institute. These will, if at all possible be left over until next year, and an overdraft carried in the bank to meet the payments as the work on the schools proceeds.

The Committee of the Whole Council, spent over an hour on the estimates. The Finance Minister read the figures which had been prepared and which let the council out with a 17 1-2 mill rate. Then Mayor McWilliams took considerable time in going over the details and pointing out the financial condition of the city at the present time. He explained how the finance committee had been able to give the different departments as much or more money than last year, how the increases from uncontrollable expenditures were met and still have a 17 1-2 mill rate. In doing this there was the $6,000 surplus from 1906, and several thousand dollars increase in the revenue from the assessment.

It is felt by the finance committee that the appropriations made, will see the council through this year, and also that all branches of the work will have ample funds. A good sum has also been set aside to meet unforeseen expenditures, so that on the whole, the council should, with economical and wise management, pull through with a balance and still make a very creditable showing.

While the full financial statement cannot be made at this time on account of a few changes which will have to be made before the estimates are passed by council next Monday night, the following totals will be of interest; and will give practically a correct statement of the finances.

Building Contractors Will Make Plasterers Supply the Lumber

And Other Material Necessary for Lathing if the Later Persist in Doing the Lathing--Plasterers Waste Much Good Material.

The plasterers have made a new move in this city by deciding to act in on the lathing work also. This the building contractors do not appreciate and they intend to make a change in the conduct of affairs this year. In the past the plasterers have been in the habit of using the rough lumber belonging to the contractor for the purpose of making mortar pits, for piling stuff on and to walk on. They also use the contractors horses and scantling and very seldom, if ever, return anything. It is invariably left on the spot and in a useless condition.

One contractor said that he had always figured on a thousand feet of rough lumber to be wasted by the plasterers, and it always was wasted. "If you had a pile of good, clean pine lumber, you had to watch it like a cat watching a mouse, or the plasterers would have it all used up in no time."

"I have," said another contractor, "got several thousand feet of good lumber piled up at my house which is no use whatever for building. It has all been destroyed by the plasterers, and I never got a cent for it."

In future, said several of the men who are building houses, if the plasterers continue to take such aggressive steps and if they are going in to lathing, they can buy their own nails, scantling, lumber and wooden horses and furnish all their own material. After they have paid for the stuff they have been in the habit of wasting for so many years, they will not think there is so much money in lathing. All the plasterers furnish is a trowl, a pair of overalls and a hoe. The contractor is supposed to furnish the rest. It will not be so this year.

ROUNTREE WILL SELL GROCERY AND RETAIN LIQUOR BUSINESS

Will Vacate Present Premises About the Middle of April—Will Open on Water Street Opposite Post Office—China Hall Will Move Into Mr. Rountree's Store.

Another transfer of stores has taken place, which will make a difference in the appearance of George street to some extent. Mr. Arthur Rountree has decided to dispose of his grocery business and for the past two days he has been stock taking. Mr. Rountree bought out Mr. Ed. Brown's business about two years ago and has since carried on a very successful business. But owing to the change in the liquor license law, which will not allow the two lines of goods to be carried as one business, Mr. Rountree has decided to handle only liquors. This is the last of the combined grocery and liquor stores in the city and henceforth they will be conducted as separate businesses.

Mr. Rountree will remain in his present premises until the middle of April, when he will move into his own building on Water street, now occupied by the Big Dipper Gold Mining Company, about opposite the post office. Mr. McFarlane Wilson has taken Mr. Rountree's lease of the George street store and will move the China Hall from the premises north of Brock street as soon as the store is fitted up.

A purchaser for the grocery business has not yet been found although there have been several bids for it and a deal will be closed in a few days.

After the new premises for the China Hall are fitted up, Mr. Wilson will be in a better position than ever to meet the requirements of the public. The lease taken in the three stories and the basement. The main floor will, of course, be used chiefly for show room purposes. The second floor will also be fitted up as a show room. Thus the China Hall will have nearly double the space it had in the old place at the corner of George and Simcoe streets. The basement may be fitted up as a burning room, or for side lines as well as store room, as will also the top flat. The people in the city will generally feel pleased to know that Mr. Wilson has been able to secure so favorable a location. It was feared at one time that he would have to close down, or conduct a very small business, but the new store will be equally as good a site as the old one.

Carpenters Will Demand 30c Per Hour As Minimum Rate

It is Understood That This Was Decided on at Last Night's Meeting--Secrecy Preserved as to What Was Done.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners held a meeting last night, but today they refused to give out anything for publication. However, it is learned that a proposition to demand an increase in carpenters' wages was considered and a decision reached to hold out for 30 cents an hour. At present the minimum rate is 25 cents but it is stated that fully two-thirds of the members receive more than the minimum rate, a number getting 35 cents and in some cases they receive as high as forty cents. The proposition is to demand 30 cents an hour as the minimum rate and it is understood that the carpenters will hold out for this figure.

The report of the Building Trades Council, composed of representatives from the United Brotherhood and Amalgamated Society, was also considered last night, but it could not be ascertained what decision was reached. This report embraced what are known as building rules to govern the building trade so far as it relates to the carpenters and joiners of this city. The rules will be considered at a meeting of the Amalgamated Society next Friday night.

Kingston Gets The District

But Peterboro' May Play the Winners of Kingston-Stratford Games

The Peterborough hockey team will not be given a chance to meet Kingston for the championship of this district. Although the locals have outscored every team in the group, it looks as if they were going to be handed a lemon by the O.H.A. Their only hope of showing what they can do lies in the decision of the O.H.A. executive, which may order the winner of the Stratford-Kingston game to play off with Peterborough for the championship. In connection with the matter a Toronto despatch says:—

"President Darroch has ruled that the original O.H.A. executive decision, made before the playing season, that the Kingston-Midland game in Toronto, should count two games, shall stand. Mr. Darroch does not think that he is warranted in going behind that ruling, so Kingston will now meet Stratford in the finals.

The Peterborough team's only chance now lies in their appeal to the O.H.A. executive to exercise the power which it has of giving any team the right to play for the championship with the winner because of some exceptional circumstance. Nothing has been done as yet, however, to call a meeting of the executive, though that may be done any time."

Secretary Graham, of the local club, received word last night that an executive meeting would be held on Wednesday evening to deal with the matter.

HOCKEY

KNOCKERS WERE WINNERS.

An interesting game of hockey was played last night between ten and eleven o'clock at the Brock street rink, when an east city septette clashed with the Knocker's fast bunch, and were completely knocked out, being defeated by the score of six goals to nothing. The Knockers have had considerable more practice than their opponents and outplayed them in many ways.

Mr. Leo Derocher made a capable referee.

NEWSY ITEMS AROUND CITY HALL OF INTEREST TO RATEPAYERS

It was twelve o'clock last night before the Committee of the Whole Council, arrived at the Coates agreement. This was one of the important features of the meeting, or at least, was to have been. As the details are not yet ready for publication no information is forthcoming. But the committee discussed the different clauses for an hour and adjourned at one o'clock, feeling that they had earned their salary for the night. Another meeting will be held to complete the agreement.

At last Mr. Jas. Bogue has agreed to leave the difference between himself and the city over the payment of the Ashburnham outfall sewer to arbitration. The council passed a bylaw authorizing the city to enter upon arbitration. It will be remembered that last spring, summer, fall, and again this winter, Mr. Bogue and the city have been at loggerheads. The trouble arose nearly a year ago, when Mr. Bogue did certain portions of his sewer contract without notifying the city engineer or the city's inspector. He then put in his bill for the work and the engineer refused to pass it, and consequently the money has never been paid. Mr. Bogue threatened a suit but after long conferences the board of works came to an agreement with the contractor to leave the whole thing to arbitration. Mr. Bogue was given his own choice of the engineer who would make the award, and he chose Mr. Spence. Later, the contractor kicked over the traces and refused to sign the agreement. The board of works this year stood by the committee of last year and would not hear of any change. Last week Mr. Bogue signed the agreement and the trouble will be settled in a short time.

A communication was received by the council from the board of education, asking the council to provide for $25,000 for rebuilding the north ward school. The board of education is now prepared to let the contract for that work, and it must be carried on this year. No action was taken, but it is understood the money will be forthcoming at the bank and debentures will be issued next year.

It will be interesting to the ratepayers to know that last year's council with all its faults, and in spite of the exceptionally good year's work it accomplished, closed its accounts with a surplus of $6,000. This was due in a large measure to the very efficient management of Mr. E. F. Mason, then Chairman of the finance committee. In addition to the surplus and the big year's work, the council also reduced the tax rate from 18 mills in 1905 to 17 1-2 mills in 1906. This should be very gratifying to the citizens and they should extend their hearty thanks to the council of 1906.

Lucky for This Family That a Visitor Called

Only the timely call of Mr. E. J. Waterman, dealer in second-hand furniture, at 492 Aylmer street, this morning, prevented a serious fire. As it was, considerable damage was done and great excitement ruled for a time. Mr. Waterman had purchased some furniture at the above number, and this morning called there in order to secure his property. When he was admitted by the lady of the house at the front door, he at once noticed that the upper part of the house was filled with smoke, and, of course, gave the alarm. Rushing upstairs he found that a wood box beside a stove was on fire, and the flames were making rapid headway. A few pails of water extinguished the blaze, but if it had been allowed to go unchecked a few minutes longer, it would not have been such an easy task to put it out. The box was situated very close to the stove, in which a brisk fire was burning, and the flame must have been started in this way.

The occupants of the house were in a room down stairs, somewhat removed from the hall and had not Mr. Waterman called in all probability the fire would have had a good start before it was discovered.

Peterborough-Lindsay Cup

Curlers Will Play for it Next Week

The annual match between the Peterborough and Lindsay Curling Clubs for the Peterborough-Lindsay Cup, will be played next week, if weather permits. The exact day for the game has not been set, but arrangements are now being made.

Four rinks from the local club go to Lindsay, and four rinks from the Scugog town will play here. Peterborough won the cup last year, and will strive hard to retain it. On the other hand, the skill of the Lindsay curlers is well known, and they can be depended upon to put up a great struggle.

Band at Street Railway Rink to-night.

HOCKEY

DENY THE REPORT.

The Charlotte street hockey team wish to emphatically deny the rumor on the streets last night, that they were endeavoring to bring F. C. Waghorne from Toronto to referee the game on Thursday night between the Charlotte street team and the Strathconas. They state that they have never at any time made a kick against the work of Mr. Geo. Lynch as referee, and are quite satisfied with his refereeing. They do not wish for any other for Thursday night's big game.

The employees of the Bell Telephone Company, challenge the employes of the Machine Telephone Company to a friendly game of hockey to be played at Brock street rink, some time convenient to both teams.

CRESSSMAN'S AGAIN.

Last night at the Brock street rink Cressman's won their third successive victory, defeating Turnbull's aggregation, strengthened by Hall's fast centre, McNichol, by the decisive score of 5—1. After the first five minutes, the winners were all over their opponents and showed their superiority at every stage of the game. For the losers, Maude played a great game until he was handed that "lemon" which greatly impaired his usefulness. For the winners, Chic Anderson at cover-point played a regular "Woodstock" game and on the forward line, everybody was good, while Darling and Koen at point and goal, certainly caught on.

The teams lined-up as follows,—

Cressman's		Turnbull's
	Goal.
Koen		Storey

Labor Conditions in Peterborough; Mills and Factories are Busy

Much Building Will be Undertaken This Summer—Manufacturers are Rushed With Orders—Outside Work Inactive Owing to the Severe Cold Weather

Ald W. J. Johnston, the local correspondent for the Labor Gazette, sends the following encouraging report from Peterborough for the month of January;

Labor conditions during January were exceptionally active in mills and factories. Outside work has been suspended owing to the cold weather. There were many houses under construction, which were being rapidly pushed to completion. A number of mechanics were overhauling stores. Work on the new King Edward Public School was being pushed along. January custom receipts up to the 18th were $22,000, an amount that has never been reached during the same time before. Repair and construction work at Young's Point and Burleigh is now under way; the Government is spending $5,000 on various improvements. A new steamer 100 feet long and 23 ft. beam is being constructed to ply between Peterborough and Idyl Wyld. A new tug and two new scows are being built for transportation purposes. The contract for the new Normal School has been let at $53,800. A bylaw to provide for a new Collegiate Institute was carried at the recent municipal election. The building will be constructed this summer. Wholesale and retail trade has been good. The rates of wages remained unchanged. The labor market was free from all unrest and industrial troubles.

At a recent meeting of the contractors of Peterborough it was unanimously decided to form a builders' exchange for the protection of local contractors. It was considered that with the great demand for building material of all kinds the exchange would be of valuable assistance in helping to keep lumber, etc., from being exported to outside places. By so doing the local men will have a better choice and get lumber of all kinds when wanted. It would also assist local contractors in securing local contracts. It would establish and maintain uniformity in wages, give valuable business information, avoid, if possible, and adjust trade difficulties and misunderstandings, and promote good feelings amongst all engaged in the building trade.

CONDITION OF LOCAL INDUSTRIES.

Agriculture. — The farmers are being educated in procuring the best class of cows for dairying purposes. There is a strong movement on foot between dairymen of Eastern and Western Canada to establish a dairy show to be held once a year. In Lindsay a dairy association has been been recently formed.

Port Perry Winter Fair was a great success, all kinds of farm produce and stock were exhibited, and good prices were given. In Lindsay a poultry show was held; over 1,000 birds were shown from different sections of the province. The farmers' institutes are also taking up the matter of better dairying equipments throughout the district of Peterborough.

Fishing.—Conditions were dull.
Lumbering.—Very dull.
Manufacturing.—Very busy.
Mining.—Dull.

Manufacturing. — Mann's planing factory and cheese box mill were very busy. This firm has procured a large tract of land (wooded) and is busy getting timber into its mill and having it cut into lumber of all dimensions. It is also doing a large custom trade with farmers who have logs to cut. The Rapid Tool Co. has got its factory in order now. It has from twenty to thirty men employed, fifteen of whom are local and the others experienced men brought from other places. The J. J. Turner Co. was very active for this season of the year; large orders for export trade are always on hand. This firm has bought out the Grand Opera House and will run it in conjunction with its business. All other industries in Peterborough were running full time. The Wm. Hamilton Co. was running over-time in part of its foundry. The Madison-Williams foundry of Lindsay, is now in running order. The Port Perry Canning Co. is increasing its capital stock to $40,000, shares to be $40 each. This firm employs during the canning season 90 female and 50 male employees, pays in wages, $10,000, pays to farmers for produce $16,000 and manufactures 40,000 cans during the season.

CONDITION OF PARTICULAR TRADES.

Building. — Bricklayers and masons, gas and steam fitters, stone cutters and builders' laborers were dull, Carpenters and joiners, lathers and plasterers, painters and paperhangers and plumbers, were active.

Metal, engineering and shipbuilding. — Iron moulders' workers and helpers, machinists and engineers, and steam engineers, electrical workers and tool sharpeners were active. Linemen, brassworkers, blacksmiths, boiler makers, ship workers, sheet metal workers, horseshoers and jewellers were busy, with bicycle workers dull.

Woodworking and furnishing. — Woodworkers, upholsterers, varnishers and polishers, carriage workers, car builders, on repairs, and pattern workers were busy. Coopers were dull.

Printing and allied.—These trades were busy.

Clothing. — Journeyman tailors, garment workers, boot and shoe workers were busy. Hat workers were very dull.

Food and tobacco preparation. — Bakers and confectioners, butchers and meat cutters, ice cutters and drivers were busy. Cigar makers and tobacco workers were active.

Leather. —Leather workers, harness workers and collar makers, were busy.

Transport.—Railroad workers of all classes at this season of the year were busy. All classes of steamboat workers were very dull. Street railway employees were busy. Cab drivers and hackmen were very busy. Carters and draymen were active. Teamsters were dull, but expressmen were busy.

Unskilled labor. This class of labor was dull.

DISTRICT NOTES.

The hauling of wood, hay, straw and grain to the markets and making general renovations for spring formed the principal work among farmers in the district. General stores were doing a steady trade. Saw mills and grist mills were doing a good business. Trade of all kinds throughout the district is enjoying a good measure of prosperity.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper, which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable or more gloomy and discouraged than liver complaint and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

Ladies Will Give Birthday Party

At a regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. held last evening, Mrs. E. F. Mason, the president, presided. It was decided to hold a birthday party on Tuesday, March 19th. Pretty little silk bags will be sent out to many ladies in the city and it is expected that each bag will be returned by the date mentioned—March 19th—with as many cents as each recipient is old in years. By this means the members hope to receive a large sum in the aggregate and thus avoid taking up subscriptions for the work as in former years. At the birthday party there will be music and refreshments.

Mrs E. F. Mason and Miss Nina Davidson, delegates to the recent convention in Toronto in connection with Ladies' Y.M.C.A. Auxiliaries presented interesting reports of the meeting.

Rev. George Wilkinson, missionary to the Jews in London, Eng., died on Feb. 12th. He was well-known in Toronto.

Butchers.

Trade was good for best butchers', of which there was not enough to supply the demand, and dealers had to go to the export class to get enough good cattle.

Several loads exporters bought for butcher purposes cost $5.15 to $5.25, which were bought by the Levack Dressed Beef Company: Best butchers', $4.75 to $5; good butchers', $4.40 to $4.65; medium, $4 to $4.35; common mixed, $3.25 to $4; cows, $3 to $4.50 per cwt.

Montreal Live Stock.

Montreal, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Cable advices from Liverpool and London on Canadian cattle were stronger, and prices showed an advance of ½c per lb., with sales at 11½c. Exports last week from St. John, N.B., and Portland, were 2947 cattle and 1400 sheep.

At the Montreal stock yards' west end market, the reports of live stock for the week ending Feb. 23, were 3239 cattle, 1008 sheep and lambs, 1941 hogs, 340 calves, and the offerings to-day for local consumption were 650 cattle, 30 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs and 80 calves. There was no important change in the condition of the market to note from a week ago. The gathering of butchers was larger, and it is now almost assured that the trading at this market will be one of the leading features of the live stock business in the very near future. Altho the Lenten season is now in full swing, it seems to have but little effect upon the consumption of beef, as the demand from butchers was good, and an active trade was done. There was also some demand from exporters, but the volume of business done on this account was not as large as a week ago, owing to the fact that the quality of stock for this purpose was somewhat scarce, but they bought a number of bulls, for which 4¼c per lb. was paid. Supplies of butchers' cattle were not in excess of the requirements, and in consequence prices were well maintained. Choice beeves sold at 5c to 5¼c; good, 4½c to 4¾c; fair, 4c to 4¼c; common, 3½c to 3¾c, and inferior, 2½c to 3c per lb. There were no new developments in the hog situation. Cable advices on Saturday from the leading foreign markets were easier, and in some instances noted a decline in prices of 1s to 2s per cwt., but this fact did not seem to have any influence on the local hog market, it being offset to a great extent by the continued good demand from dealers for supplies, and prices ruled steady, but packers state at present values for hogs there is no money to be made in exporting bacon; however, an active trade was done here in hogs at $7.40 per 100 lbs. for selected lots, weighed off cars, and at $7.25 for lower grades. There was considerable enquiry for sheep and lambs, but owing to the limited offerings trade was quiet and prices firm. Sheep sold at 4¼c to 4½c, and lambs at 6c to 6½c per lb. The quality of the calves offered was only medium, and sales were made at prices ranging from $3 to $10 each.

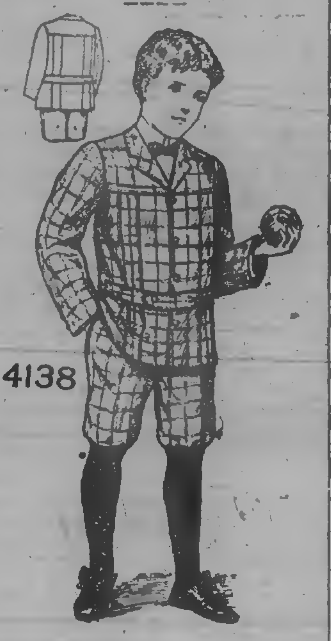
6829.—A SIMPLE BUT EFFECTIVE SHIRT WAIST.

For home making there is nothing prettier than tucks and insertion and a model which is much liked is shown. The front closes with a small vest effect which may be of any trimming material and the same may appear again in the cuffs and collars. Two tucks enclose the front panel while groups of narrower ones run over the shoulder. The sleeves may be in full or shorter length, the latter being finished with bands of embroidery or lace. The waist is one easily made and suited to any of the seasonable materials, silk, a light cloth or washing fabric being excellent. For the medium size 3 yards of 27 inch material are needed.

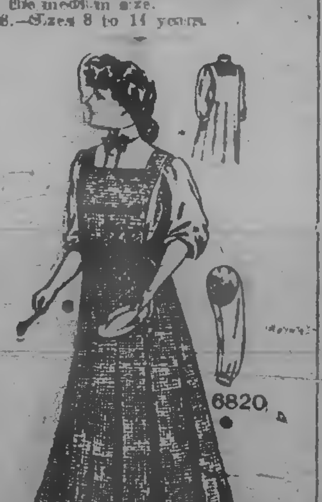
6829.—Six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.



4138.—A NORFOLK SUIT FOR THE BOY.

It sometimes happens that one of father's [illegible] material to make the small descendant one and no better style for such can be found than the Norfolk pictured. The pattern for it is simple to put together and very popular with boys and their mothers. The knickerbockers are full enough to endure all sorts of hard wear and all kinds of boyish contortions. The yoke style is preferred to that without because it does away with all bunchiness at the shoulders. The suit may be developed in cheviot or serge and requires 2 1-2 yards 54 inches wide for the medium size.

4138.—Sizes 8 to 14 years.



6820.—A PRACTICAL WORKADAY APRON.

There is nothing so indispensible to the housewife as the big apron which may be slipped on over any frock and serve for any kind of work. The one shown is very serviceable, because of the detached sleeves which may be donned only when needed. The apron is in two pieces requiring only the underarm seams to be sewed. The pocket is a convenient feature and one or two may be applied. The sleeves are of bishop style fastening snugly about the wrists so as to protect the dress sleeves. Buttonholes are worked in their upper edges so that they may be buttoned on to the shoulder section of the apron. Percale or another material may serve of which 4 1-8 yards 36 inches wide are needed in the medium size.

6820.—Sizes small, medium, large.

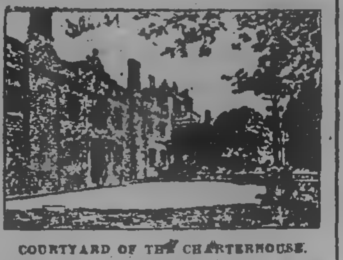
CHARTERHOUSE, MOTHER OF SCHOOL ON SURREY HILLS.

An Offshoot of Establishment Founded By St. Bruno For Carthusian Monks, It Fell From High Estate Under Henry VIII.—Many Strange Sights Have Been Seen In the Old Hall In Days Gone By.

Charterhouse, mother of the great school on the Surrey hills, has had a chequered career, which contrasts quaintly with its repose of to-day. An off-shoot of the many establishments founded for Carthusian monks in France by S. Bruno, it was built about the time of the Norman conquest, and slumbered through the passing of many Sovereigns, till it was rudely awakened by the persecutions of the over-gallant Henry VIII.

Charterhouse, having thus fallen from its high estate, was presented by the King to his courtier Lord North, whose son disposed of it to the Duke of Norfolk for the sum of £4,500, but the said duke, a victim to the bright eyes of Mary Queen of Scots, lost his head in the Tower of London as a penalty for having lost his heart. His ghost is said to nightly descend the oak staircase that once was his. The traitor's property was confiscated at his death, but was restored to his son, and he disposed of it to Thomas Sutton, a man who combined an extraordinary piety with an extraordinary aptitude for business.



COURTYARD OF THE CHARTERHOUSE.

In the year 1611 this good merchant attained to his life's desire, and founded Charterhouse, which was to maintain 40 boys and 80 old men; and there for many years youth and age flourished side by side, till, in 1872, Canon Haig Brown, the headmaster of the school, removed the 130 boys to Godalming, in Surrey, and, 34 years later, left them—now 560 in number—to return to the scene of his early labors and to take office as Master of Charterhouse, London, which now exists solely to shelter the Carthusian brothers. At the time of the division some portion of the school grounds was sold to the Merchant Taylors Company, but the greater portion still remains.

Except for the fact that the Statutes ordain that preference should be given to men wounded in His Majesty's wars, no indication has been handed down as to what should be the social status of those seeking to join the Poor Brothers of Charterhouse. Each governor has in turn the right to nominate whom he likes as vacancies from time to time occur—no candidate must be married, be under 60 years of age, nor have an income exceeding £30 a year. When once he has been elected a member of this time-honored body the Carthusian brother's life is indeed a happy one, though perhaps not always free from a looking back into the "happier things" of the past years; and the rules that he has to obey are not irksome: he must attend chapel and dinner every day, and must be within the gates by 11 o'clock at night, unless he has received permission to stay out from the master; otherwise he is free to come and go as he likes. He receives an income of £36 a year, has two rooms to live in, is provided each day with bread and butter, and dinner at two o'clock in the great hall. Moreover, a month's holiday is granted every year, with an additional allowance to enable him to maintain himself by the sad sea waves or in the wilds of the country.

What strange and various sights the old hall has seen! Here Norfolk revelled, and here now the old pensioners dine, and but lately the ceiling rang with the sound of amateur theatricals, or an Old Boys' dinner, and again here scarlet coats and pure white frocks danced out the old and danced in the new century. From the hall to the chapel is but a short step through a passage of gravestones marking the last resting places of Havelock, Thackeray, Leach, and other military or civil heroes. The chapel is rather quaint than beautiful but its old-fashioned pews are charming and the tomb of the founder is fittingly majestic. A visit to the governor's room, where Queen Elizabeth once slept, the tapestry room, and the terrace which looks on the Merchant Taylors' playground, and our journey is almost done. There remain but the pensioners' sumptuous library and the old cloister remnant of the former monastery to be seen, and we step out once more into the roar and bustle of the streets with a feeling that within those ancient walls at least old age is honored.

Potash From Granite.

It is reported that the United States Department of Agriculture, through some of its agents, has discovered that it is practicable to secure an inexhaustible supply of potash at a cost of only 1 cent a pound by simply reducing ordinary granite to a powder. Thousands of dollars are now expended for potash brought from foreign countries to be used in the manufacture of fertilizing material. The imported article costs about $100 a ton, or 5 cents a pound, but with the Rocky mountains to draw on the country need not fear an inadequate supply of this material now that it has been shown that it can be produced from the foundation rock of this mountain system.

Jay Hunt, 28 years of age, and unmarried, broke through the ice near Ridgeway, Ont., and was drowned.

Gladstone as an Orator.

It was a budget last night—about a page of a morning paper spoken in two hours by Mr. Gladstone, and he hardly referred to a note, never paused a moment, broke through cheers, dashed over interpellations—logic, figures, illustrations, extracts—all pellmell, with a whirl and fury that took the breath away. And he did it all with the utmost ease and got to the end without turning a hair. Mr. Gladstone took it all quietly and did it quietly and left the house and went home quietly, probably mentioning to Mrs. Gladstone as a reason for being rather tired that he had been saying a "few words" that evening.—From Whitty's "Parliamentary Retrospect."

Temperatures of Flames.

According to the results of experiments, the flame of acetylene is perhaps the hottest known except that of the electric arc. The following figures have been given: Bunsen burner, 1,871 degrees; acetylene flame, 2,548 degrees; alcohol flame, 1,705 degrees; Denayrouze burner—half alcohol, half petroleum—2,053 degrees; hydrogen flame in air, 1,900 degrees; gas jet flame with oxygen, 2,200 degrees; oxyhydrogen flame, 2,420 degrees. These are all centigrade degrees. One degree centigrade equals 1.8 degrees F.

Too Fast.

"For going fast?"

"No; quite the opposite."

"I don't see"—

"For stopping fast. He had to hire a farmer to haul him home."

POSTAL DELIVERY

It is understood that it is the intention of Hon R. Lemieux, Postmaster-General, to shortly confer upon several of the smaller cities the benefits and conveniences of a street delivery of mail matter, or a postal delivery as it is frequently called. This will apply to all towns and cities where the gross revenue exceeds $20,000 annually. In Peterborough last year the total income was several thousand dollars over this mark.

The congestion at the local office, especially on Saturdays and the hours from 12 to 1, and 6 to 7 o'clock, on ordinary days reminds one of a crowded auction room. The space is too limited, the waits too long and there are too many people to serve. An essential point in street delivery is the numbering of houses so that citizens may be readily found by the letter carriers. All, or nearly all the houses in Peterborough are numbered and there would be no delay on that score. Peterborough is ready for the new system just as soon as the department at Ottawa is prepared to inaugurate it and that can not be too speedily. It may be explained that under a postal delivery system, all drop letters, that is, all leters addressed to the local office, would require two cent stamps instead of one, as at present. To the merchants and business men who send out accounts and circulars this would probably be a disadvantage, but it would result in merchants enforcing cash payment more and more, which it is admitted would be a benefit to all concerned, and which is the rule in most of the large mercantile establishments even at the present time. The extra postage on drop letters might be felt for a time, but the benefits would outweigh that disadvantage. Merchants when sending out letters or accounts to a certain street and number on the street, would be sure of the proper persons receiving the missives. Residents away from the central portions of the city would find a delivery system of great service in getting their mail to their homes regularly without necessitating coming to the post office. The congestion at the general delivery wickets would be relieved immediately the system went into force, and there are other advantages which will be quite apparent.

A postal delivery system will be greatly favored by the citizens generally.

Seventeen and a half mills.

Get ready to say goodbye to February!

There is evidently no danger of Peterborough city council running short of business. The civic fathers are as busy as many of the city's manufacturing establishments.

It is announced that Sir James Gowan, K.C.M.G., will resign his seat in the Senate on account of ill-health. This is a vacancy that some Peterborough gentleman should fill. Now let half a dozen of the local aspirants after senatorial honors again get busy.

Senator J. V. Ellis is likely to succeed the late Hon. Jabez Snowball, Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick. Senator Ellis is a veteran newspaperman and his many journalistic confreres hope that they may soon have the pleasure of extending congratulations on his appointment to the guberuatorial position.

The eternal fitness of things is strikingly evidenced in the fact that the Laurier Government has been buying ties for the Intercolonial from a lawyer. This is in keeping with its plan of giving contracts for dredging to a carpet manufacturer. It is the funniest business administration Canada ever saw, says the Montreal Gazette. First thing you know it will be buying leather from a butcher.

There is no accounting for the restlessness of human nature and the ever present desire to roam. Despite the good times, many people and especially farmers are selling out and going west. The idea seems to grow that the west is the place for money. Perhaps so, but it takes money to buy fuel, comfort and luxuries. Money isn't everything. Contentment is a virtue that too few possess.

An American exchange says: "Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw is the woman in the case. Here is a little bunch of femininity tipping the scales at 110 pounds—a fuss of feathers, a hank of hair, a frivolity of fringe, a pair of big eyes, such as artists like, and a smile that means everything or nothing. For this woman the life of one man was sacrificed. For this woman the life of another man is in jeopardy. Is the game worth the electric chair?"

The trip between Parkeston Quay, Harwich, England, to the Hook of Holland, where the steamer Berlin and over 150 people went to destruction, is usually made in about seven hours, Rotterdam being reached in a sail of an hour longer. It is always looked upon as being in bad weather one of the most trying trips the continental tourist has to encounter. Accidents of any kind have, though, been very infrequent.

The new railroad opened for traffic across the isthmus of Tehuantepec, will be, for the time being, available for the transportation of United States domestic traffic only. The first steamship connections are provided by the American-Hawaiian Company. About 300,000 tons of of sugar will be shipped annually, via Tehuantepec, to New York, Philadelphia and New Orleans. The distance from New York to Honolulu, via Tehuantepec, is 5,609 nautical miles, while the distance, via Panama, is 6,668.

People blame the newspapers for much that they do not deserve, and it is encouraging to hear a frank, fearless opinion once in a while. Rev. Frank O. Hall, of New York, believes in giving the press wide latitude. He said: "Newspapers should not be ashamed to make public that which the public is not ashamed to do in private. If men are taking girls to the brink of hell and then pushing them in, let us have the facts." In closing he said that the public is more afraid of the newspapers than of the police.

The new Liberal leader in the Ontario House seems to possess a great many after-thoughts and a fair share of hind sight. He sat for years in the Legislature, without noticing that there was anything wrong with the public service. In his new role he is out for civil service reform. A taste of opposition made him virtuous. It often so works on Liberals, says the Montreal Gazette. It is not too much to expect that before a great many moons grow old, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding may be going to the country, urging economy in the national expenditure.

Dr. Grenfell's Work in Labrador

Of Dr. W. T. Grenfell of the Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, who is well known in Peterborough, the Outlook for January has the following:

"For the first time, so far as we know the King of England has given one of the birthday honors to a man as a reward for heroic missionary work. It is true that the man could hardly be regarded as a conventioanl missionary, for Dr. Grenfell, who is now a companion of St. Michael and St. George fills many offices on the Labrador coast as readers of the Outlook know. He is a surgeon, master-mariner, a magistrate, an agent of Lloyds in running down rascals, who wreck their vessels for the insurance, a manager of a string of co-operative stores, a general opponent of all fraud and oppression, a fighter against the drink evil, which finds peculiarly helpless victims among the fisher-folk, an upholder of all good, and a friend and comrade to everybody who comes in contact with him. He takes his new honor with a characteristic spirit for he values it not as a tribute to himself personally, but as a sanction which will give him power in his struggles with unscrupulous traders, heartless dealers in rum, and all sorts of malefactors who find on that coast easy prey and safe quarters. He is now planning to introduce reindeer into that country. These animals will furnish food, clothing and transportation in place of dog-teams, material for manufacture, and consequently new opportunities for industrial development for all the people. Dr. Grenfell has already received several hundred dollars for this purpose. A hundred dollars will purchase and transport a deer, about five thousand dollars will furnish him a herd to begin with. The main part however, of Dr. Grenfell's work is his bearing of health and strength to the sick and injured by means of medicines, surgery and nursing. He has charge of four hospitals and by means of his hospital ship and his dog teams makes his rounds among the sparse and needy population, and everywhere he goes he carries with words and better still, by his life the message of his simple, genuine and methodical religious faith."

Had a Nasty Bronchial Cough

AS AN AFTER EFFECT OF PNEUMONIA—NOTHING PROVED EFFECTIVE UNTIL WE USED

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

Many a mother can say, as does Mrs. Harker in the following letter, that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has proven a friend to her in time of colds with the little ones.

Mrs. Walter Harker, Sydenham, Frontenac county, Ont., writes;

"Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has proven a friend to me in times of colds with my little ones I have tried many others, but have found none just as good. My little boy, about a year old, had pneumonia, and was left with a nasty bronchial cough, but Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is helping him wonderfully, and I am sure it will cure him.

"We have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with splendid results and have great faith in all of Dr. Chase's medicines.

It may not have occurred to you that both bronchitis and asthma are diseases of the nerves of the bronchial tubes and lungs, and that is why severe attacks of coughing are brought on whenever these nerves are irritated by changing temperature, the breathing of dust, or emotional excitement.

It is by its remarkable facility for soothing the nerves and sheathing the delicate membraneous linings with a protective coating, that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has proven so thoroughly effective as a cure for bronchitis, and asthma. Its power in these diseases is unquestionable.

Relief from coughing comes almost immediately and by persistent use, cure is gradually and certainly brought about.

When the system is greatly run down it is advisable also to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in order to assist in restoring vigor to the wasted nerves.

AMERICA'S EX-CHAMPION WRESTLER says:

"After my great wrestling match with J. Mellor, of Staleybridge, at the Crystal Palace, England, for the International Championship, I was covered with cuts and bruises. I applied my favorite balm, Zam-Buk, and in a marvellously short time the abrasions and cuts were healed, and I was fit and well again. At another time I had a piece of flesh almost torn completely off my arm above the elbow. I anticipated being unable to do anything with the arm for a long time; to my delight, however, Zam-Buk closed up the wound in two days. In three days it was covered with new skin, and a few days after there was no trace of the injury. I recommend Zam-Buk for cuts, bruises or skin injuries of any kind.

Automatic System at Saskatoon

How no "Central" Phone Outfit Works in Saskatoon

A Saskatoon despatch says. — The business section of the Hub is now enjoying the use of the city's new waitless, cussless, out-of-orderless, girlless telephone. And to this might be added, the new ceaseless 'phone, for once started the new service will be on duty twenty-four hours a day, and seven days a week, the year around.

Few people realize that the 'phone system on which the Saskatchewan Telephone and Electric Supply Company have spent thousands of dollars during the past few months, is perhaps the most thoroughly modern system in Canada, and certainly there are none more so. In Chicago is being completed the installation of just such a system; in New York one has been installed; in Cleveland, Toledo, Los Angeles, and other American cities, the automatic system, identical to that put in in Saskatoon are in use or are being installed. Arrangements are being made to [illegible] in the near future.

When the day's work is done and —it may be five or six o'clock—the telephone building may be locked up without man or maid in charge, and the 'phone will work on through all hours of night and day, for the subscriber is his own operator, and can call just when he pleases. No one but the person he wishes to speak to will know what number he calls nor can an intermediate party possibly hear a word of what passes in conversation. In fact, there cannot possibly be an intermediate person. So, in addition to previous mentioned excellent qualities of the new system, may be added that of absolute secrecy in conversation.

HOW SYSTEM WORKS.

In the office or home of each subscriber is being placed a square box about the size of the lower part of the old telephone apparatus now in use. On the face of this box is a dial and a small electric button; at side a receiver hangs but no more the crank for ringing up the central office.

The dial above mentioned has ten small finger holes and opposite these are ten numerals. The operation of the 'phone is simple. First of all, the receiver must be removed from the hook. To call, say No. 138, insert a finger in the hole in the dial opposite the first numeral, swing the dial to the left until the finger touches a point indicated, a finger-stop, it is called. Remove the finger and let the dial return of its own accord, and repeat by placing the finger the next time in the hole opposite the figure 3, and the third time opposite the 8. Connection is then complete with the number desired, and by pressing the small button, the bell at the other end rings and may be kept ringing as long as desired. The receiver should be placed to the ear as soon as the last numeral has been called. If there is a buzzing sound, then hang up the receiver for that is the "line's busy" signal of the automatic 'phone. A special busy signal is one of the cute contrivances of the new system. To call over again, the procedure above described must be repeated and that after the receiver has been placed on the hook for disconnection. The calling of any number is the operation of an instant, only.

At present the limit will be 200 'phones, but facilities for adding 100 more are being added, and will be in place before many months.

O. O. Winter, C. P. R. superintendent at Brandon, has been given an executive position on the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Some Seasonable Lacrosse Gossip

A few more weeks and lacrosse will again be the foremost topic in sports. Hockey at present holds sway but it will soon have to give up its supremacy, and in its place as the centre of attraction for the lovers of manly sport will be the national game of all Canada—lacrosse.

The season of 1907 promises even more of the game than did 1906. Last year was accounted the best since the first adoption of lacrosse as a sport. In the big league both the Tecumsehs and Torontos had to prove themselves as worthy of worthy foes. They have surely done so, and will jump into the race this year the proven equal of any of the eastern teams.

In the C.L.A. there is every promise of an increased activity. There is a possibility of a senior series, with Buffalo as one of the competing teams—a move that ought to greatly increase the interest in the series, as Buffalo have shown themselves no mean opponents. It is altogether likely that St. Catharines will dig up their battle scarred veterans and be ready to meet all comers. Brantford, Hamilton, Toronto, Buffalo and St. Catharines would make an ideal league, and one that ought to prove equally as interesting as the N.L.U.

In the intermediate series there is alredy great interest being taken. In fact all winter pennant-aspiring clubs have been looking out for men with reputations as players. This was a test series last year, and anyone who followed lacrosse will know that it was a great success.

In the junior C.L.A., the class for the beginers—and without these lacrosse would soon die a natural death—the greatest of rivalry is promised. Towns that never previously had a lacrosse team will witness many a good game this year, while the old lacrosse centres are making every effort to get their last year's players out, and as many neww ones as possible.

On Good Friday the annual convention will be held in Toronto, and it is a safe prediction that more clubs will be enrolled in the "Canadian Lacrosse Association," than were ever enroled before.

McDonough, of last year's Orillia intermediates, will wear a Tecumseh uniform this year.

Lorne Rowntree of last year's Junction intermediate champions, will likely sign with the Young Torontos. Lorne is living in the city, and Rosedale will be more convenient.

Ben Law, who managed the Junction team in 1905, is spoken of as the manager of a Toronto team this season. It may be the senior C.L.A. team.

There will possibly be a three-cornered fight for the presidency of the C.L.A. Mr. Harry Cameron, of Beaverton, who was defeated last year, will again see election, while Mr J. D. Bailey, of Toronto, he 1st vice-president, and Mr. Brown Jackson, of Seaforth, will both try for the highest office in the gift of the association.

Mr. John Miller says it is nice to have been the president of such a larg esporting body as the C.L.A., but he hails with delight the approach of Good Friday, when he will be freed from the office, and will be for all time to come with the past presidents on the free voting list.

Already many changes are spoken of in the ranks of the Tecumsehs, [illegible] last year's runners-up for the championship will wear the uniform when Chief Querrie issues his call to arms. More than one position can be greatly strengthened, but just when the axe will fall would probably be telling too soon. But it is safe to say that well known figures in lacrosse circles will have to play in the senior C.L.A. or go down and out for good.

Keene Residents Ask Otonabee Council to Pass Necessary By-law

A meeting of the Otonabee council was held on Feb. 18th. All the members were present. The clerk was instructed to notify pathmasters to improve the ditches and sides of the roads where required so as to make them fit for winter travel. This is considered necessary on account of the high grading of the roads. The country being cleared, causes the snow to drift off the roads.

J. H. Taylor was present, re Mrs. McDermott's unwillingness to be removed to the House of Refuge. He and Mr. Stewart were appointed to interview Mrs. McDermott.

One copy of the Municipal World was ordered for the office.

A petition was presented, signed by a majority of the ratepayers of the village of Keene, asking the council to pass a bylaw to prohibit horses, cattle, sheep and pigs from running at large in the village, to be in force day and night from the fifteenth of October to the 15th of May, and from the 15th of May to the 15th of October during the night, and to appoint an officer to enforce it. The clerk was instructed to prepare a bylaw in accordance with the petition.

A deputation from the Agricultural Society was present, asking the council to purchase a new gate to replace the one between the town hall and the skating rink, and two bags of cement to be used to keep the posts in place, the society to procure posts and place them. The request was granted.

Patrick Doherty was present to interview the council with regard to damages for his brother Timothy's broken leg. The reeve was appointed to see the township's solicitor with regard to it.

Edwin Braden applied to have two pine trees cut down on the road opposite his farm. Mr. Miller was appointed to view the trees, and if an injury to the road, to advertise and sell them.

The clerk was instructed to ask for tenders for 2,000 feet of eight inch cedar, sixteen feet in length.

The auditor's report was presented and on motion was received and adopted, and the treasurer's accounts finally audited.

John Mather was present, asking for compensation for a sheep that was killed by dogs. The council explained that the bylaw in force in the township did not provide for paying for damages, the dog tax being all applied to the general expenses of the township.

On motion the following accounts were passed: Mrs. Pue $5, for five weeks' keep of Miss Metcalf and conveying her to station on her way to House of Refuge; Adam Pimmett, one cord two-foot wood 5.00; W. Wedlock, one cord wood, 3.50; D. Hayes, gravel damages, 4.00; W. E. Wood, do., 4.00; James Stewart, drawing culverts, 2.50; Shearer and Drummond, making cement culverts, 113.85; R. Hope, repairing water trough and drawing culverts, 3.00; J. J. Moore, auditing, 6.00; J. C. Hope, do., 6.00; Peterborough Hardware Co., nails, 1.16; E. J. Lynch, Otonabee's portion of repairing scrapers, 1.45; W. T. Mather, repairing account, 24.15; J. M. Drummond, salary, 275.00, balance of account, 7.00.

The treasurer reported that he received from the provincial treasurer a cheque for $93.96, being Otonabee's portion of the provincial tax on railways, after deducting ten cents per day for township's patients in the asylums, whose friends contribute less than $1.50 per week; from the county treasurer, $8.00 for cement culvert, for repair of approach to Allandale bridge; from Chas. Thomson, cement culvert, $7.00, refund wood re W. Bateman, 3.87. The council adjourned until March 18th.

An Increased Salary and an Assistant for City Engineer

Mr. T. A. S. Hay Gets $200 Advance—Hard Fight Made by Ald. Johnston—T. Q. Quartermaine Will Help With Assessment of Sewers and Sidewalks.

The city engineer, Mr. T. A. S. Hay has been given an increase of $200 per year in his salary and he will also be given assistance with his work. The Committee of the Whole Council decided to grant the increase last night after a hard fight on the part of Ald. Johnston who realizes, as well as every alderman who ever worked with Mr. Hay, that he is underpaid and overworked. The mayor and some of the aldermen were afraid the tax rate would have to be increased half a mill if the engineer were paid more money.

The engineering department in this city has been grossly neglected by the council for several years. The work has been rapidly multiplying year by year and not a move was made to relieve the engineer. He has worked incessantly night and day in an effort to keep up, while the council has kept adding new duties and no help. But this year it was absolutely necessary to enlarge the staff of the department and allow the engineer a larger stipend

Ald. Johnston brought up the question. The engineer is receiving only $1,200 per year now, said the alderman, and his work is increasing so rapidly that he is away behind and it will take him two months to catch up, which is at the present time impossible. Ald. Johnston also thought that the engineer should also have assistance in his office One man cannot possibly do the work of the office alone. Other cities about the same size as Peterborough pay a larger salary and give the engineer one or two assistants.

Mayor McWilliams said that as yet the council had not considered an increase in salary for the engineer But as for assistance, he thought that the council should engage a man for a month or two to help Mr. Hay out of the present difficulty.

Ald. Johnston moved that City Engineer be given an increase in salary from $1,200 to $1,500.

Ald Leary said that in seconding Ald. Johnston's motion he considered that Mr. Hay was a very much overworked man and a much abused man. But he was too much of a gentleman to resent any of it.

Ald Phelan said that if the increased salary were granted the 17 1-2 mill rate idea of the finance committee would be knocked out.

Ald. Wilson did not think the council could afford to pay the engineer any additional salary and hold the rate at 17 1-2 mills. He did favor giving him assistance.

Ald. Johnston said that if the council were going to use the engineer's salary as an excuse for keeping the rate at 17 1-2 mills, the same excuse could be made every year, because each year there are half a dozen new members.

Mayor McWilliams then added a rider to Ald. Johnston's motion, that the $300 increase be taken out of the Board of Works' expropriation. This certainly defeated the motion, because all the members of the Board of Works objected to the rider.

The aldermen then were of the opinion that it would be cheaper to employ an assistant and relieve the engineer of a lot of work. The vote was taken after.

The first vote was taken on the motion and the mayor counted only four each way. That left three who did not vote. A dispute arose and the mayor counted five for the motion and four against.

At this point Ald. Wilson strongly objected to any alderman not voting on a question of this kind. He claimed that no member of the council had any right to sit in the council and not vote.

The mayor then took a third vote and the motion carried by seven to five.

Ald Johnston agreed to put the engineer's salary at $1,400 if that would meet with the council's approval.

Ald. Duncan and Ald. Morgan moved in amendment that the engineer be furnished with an assistant.

Moved by Ald. Wilson and seconded by Ald. Leary that $200 be taken out of the fire, water and light committee's appropriation and added to the board of works to pay the engineer's assistant.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Johnston that T. Q. Quartermaine be employed to assist the engineer getting out the assessment reports at $2.00 per day. Ald Elliott seconded the motion and it carried.

Ald. Johnston made a motion in matter of publishing the assessment roll for 1907. He said it would cost about $500 and he thought provision should be made for it in the estimates.

Mayor McWilliams strongly objected to any increased expenditure as it was desired to keep the rate the same as last year, viz., 17 1-2 mills.

Ald Johnston strongly supported raising the rate and doing the work of the city properly. He had talked to many ratepayers about the matter and they were all in favor of the rate being raised so that the streets would be put into good condition and other necessary expenditures made.

There was no seconder for the motion and it was lost.

Council Passed Resolution Agreeing to Lease of No. 4 Dam

To the Otonabee Power Company, Providing That Company Furnishes 500 Horsepower to the City—Still One Clause of Resolution Objectionable

A report from the special power committee was read by Ald. Stevenson at last night's meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council. The report was merely reading the letter from the Otonabee Power Co., offering the city 500 electric horsepower at $15 per horse power and the conditions the company requested. Ald. Stevenson explained the situation as the matter now stood. He said that the Otonabee Company had offered to reserve 500 horse-power for the city at $15 and that the committee had undertaken to draft a resolution according to the offer.

Now the company wanted to change the original offer, or at least change the impression which everyone took from the original offer. But all the objections have been been overcome, except clause No. 7 which provides that the company hold the 500 horse power for two years from the time it has been developed. If the city has not applied for all of it in that time then the company is at liberty to sell it to any other new industry, or any part of the 500 horse power which the city has not applied for.

The company is asking the city to take the whole of the 500 horse power from the time of development. In other words the company says the city should hold the power and not the company.

However, the resolution was passed by the Council and forwarded to the Government and if the company does not accept it, but pays a higher rental for the dam, the city will have to look elsewhere for horse power for the Coaton Co.

The agreement, as outlined by the city is as follows;

1. Whereas the Otonabee Power Company Limited, has applied to the Hon. the Minister of Railways and Canals, for a lease of Dam Number Four on the Trent Canal on the terms and conditions set forth in its tender sent in pursuant to an advertisement of said Dam No. 4; and whereas the Corporation of the City of Peterborough is interested in securing the supply of cheap electrical power for the purpose of encouraging the establishment of new industries in and adjacent to the City, and has received an offer from the Otonabee Power Co. to supply at any time during and for the ensuing twenty-one years to the Corporation, or at the request of the Council, to any new industry established in or near the City of Peterborough, electric power up to at least 500 horse power at a rate not exceeding $15.00 per horse power per year provided said Company should acquire a lease of Dam No. 4 on the Trent Canal.

2. Now, therefore, the Corporation of the City of Peterborough resolve that the Hon. the Minister of Railways and Canals be, and he is hereby, respectfully requested to grant such lease of said Dam No. 4 to the Otonabee Power Company, Limited, provided such lease contains the several clauses set forth in the paper writing hereto attached together with such other reasonable terms and conditions as shall commend the Otonabee Power Company, Limited, to proceed with all due speed to develop to its full reasonable capacity the said water privilege at said Dam No. 4.

3. It is further agreed between the Lessors and Lessees that the Lessees during the term of the lease hereby granted, shall reserve for the use of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, five hundred electrical horse power and shall, during the said period furnish to the said Corporation or to any new manufacturing industry or industries which the said Corporation may indicate, the said five hundred horse power or such parts thereof (in units of not less than fifty horse power) as the Corporation may from time to time demand at the rate of fifteen dollars per horse power per annum, for a twenty-four hour service delivered to the consumer for such term or terms of renewals thereof as shall not extend beyond the terms hereby demised.

4. The said Lessees shall not be called upon to deliver said power or any part thereof at any place distant more than one quarter of a mile from their then existing main or distributing lines.

5. The said Lessees shall deliver said power at a pressure of 2,240 volts or thereabouts.

6. The total power to be supplied shall be the sum of maxima as determined for each consumer; the maximum in each instance being ascertained by taking daily readings of the power used during one month in each year, such readings to be made at ten minutes' intervals during the hour of maximum consumption, and the average power as calculated from said readings being taken to be the maximum for such consumer. The Lessees are to have the right to select and vary the month and hour at will.

7. Provided that after the expiration of two years from the date said power is ready for delivery from said Dam (notice whereof shall be given to the Corporation in writing) the Lessees shall have the right to dispose of said power or such part thereof as shall not have been applied for by the Corporation, to new industries at the price and on the conditions herein mentioned, and that any such power so disposed of to new industries shall be deducted from the five hundred horse power agreed hereby to be reserved.

8. It is further agreed that the said Lessees shall not be liable to any new industry for any damage or loss which such new industry may sustain through the non-supply of power from time to time for any cause or reason other than misfeasance or negligence on the part of the Lessees; but an abatement pro rata of the rent to be paid for such power shall be made during the time when the said power is not available for said new industry.

9. It is further agreed that the Lessees shall furnish to the said Corporation, or to such new industries as they may designate, any additional power which the said Lessees may have from time to time developed and unused on the same terms and subject to the same conditions as apply to five hundred horse power reserved herein.

10. It is further agreed that such other and additional reasonable terms and conditions may be inserted in the power lease or leases between the said Lessees and the new industry as may be agreed upon and in the event of dispute, such reasonable terms and conditions shall be defined by the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals.

Board of Works Recommended That the Request of Mr. Green be Granted—Objections Were Made and Council Referred Matter Back—Mr. Green Refuses to Accept the Street Now.

The City Council turned down Mr. G. Walter Green's request for a piece of Gilchrist street, which he claimed woul dnever be used as a public thoroughfare. The Board of Works recommended that the street be closed and the land be sold to Mr. Green. But Ald. McIntyre flopped over with the members of the council who upheld objections, and the clause of the Board of Works Committee dealing with the matter, was referred back to the committee on a vote of 6 to 5.

Those voting for the Board of Works recommendation were: Ald. Wilson Duncan, Leary, Johnston and Morgan.

Those voting to refer it back to the committee were Ald. Phelan, McIntyre, Bradburn, Stevenson, Elliott and Tovey.

It was generally felt before the Council met that the Board of Works recommendation would be passed, as a majority of the Council had been acquainted with the facts. But when Mr. Quinlan, Mr. O'Connell, real estate agent; Mr. E. A. Dixon, and a few others objected to the street being closed, a couple of the aldermen changing their views.

The Board of Works report was read by Ald. Duncan. Clause 2 of the report was as follows:—

"That steps be taken to close Gilchrist street, from the south side of McDonnel street, to the north line of the Grand Trunk Railway property, and that notices be given that the Council will, on the evening of April 1st, 1907, at 8 o'clock, consider a by-law for that purpose and to convey the part of the street so closed to G. Walter Green."

Ald. Stevenson asked if this was the proper time to discuss the resolution. He personally did not know enough about the matter to vote intelligently. But upon general principle, it was a serious matter to close a street

Mayor McWilliams stated that all the objections which have been fyled by property owners, had been considered by the Board of Works, and that the Board had decided that no property owner would be materially injured. This resolution, however, was only the preliminary step, and there would be lots of time to make objections before the by-law was passed at the first meeting in April.

Ald. Johnston said that as some of the gentlemen objecting were present, they might be heard.

Mr. Quinlan was the first speaker, and he merely reviewed what he had said to the Board of Works some two or three weeks ago, outlaying his objections.

Mr Thomas Scott said that it was the unanimous opinion of the residents of the district the street should not be closed. He thought, in the nea rfuture there would be a foot bridge over the creek.

Mr. J. J. Lynch did not have much to say, but he thought it was a serious matter to close up Gilchrist street He thought it would not be long before the street would be opened up right through.

Mr. A. E. Dixon stated that Mr. Quinlan was the owner of the property south of the creek, and that he had a deed and that it was registered. Personally he thought it would be a very serious matter to close Gilchrist street, and if such a thing was done Mr. Quinlan would certainly be entitled to heavy damages.

Mr Green said he had nothing to say, except that he wanted to get Gilchrist street, but if the council thought the objections amounted to a row of pins, or were valid, or if the street was at any time likely to used, he did not want it, as he said when he first appeared before the Council. He also pointed out that, although Mr. Quinlan claims the propperty is worth $2,000, only $3 big dollars are paid in taxes. He wished to publicly inform Messrs. Quinlan O'Connell and Dixon that they could not force him to buy their property by blocking his request at the council. He would never buy property from these gentlemen. There was lots of other property he could buy an dnot be held up for it.

Mr. J. T. O'Connell spoke in opposition to the closing of the street.

Ald. Tovey said he personally objected to closing up any more streets.

Ald. McIntyre thought that Mr. Green's request should be shelved, under the circumstances.

Ald. Wilson stood by the action of the Board of Works. He was in favor of it at first because he he could not see that that portion of Gilchrist street would be of any use as a public highway. He thought Mr. Green certainly should be assisted. He never had asked for any favors.

Ald Leary favored giving Mr. Green the property because the city never will put a bridge over the creek at that point.

Ald. Stevenson moved that clause No. 2 be referred back to the Board of Works Committee. Ald. Phelan seconded the motion.—Carried.

Before going home Mr. Green addressed the council, and stated that so far as his request for Gilchrist street was concerned, it need be considered no further. He did not want it now and would not accept it. He could not afford to dilly-dally for six months over so small a matter. He would purchase other property.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

Noted Speaker Will Visit City

Mr. F. D. Monk M. P. to Give Address Before Young Conservative Club

The Young Conservative Club has received a letter from Mr. F. D. Monk, M P., Jacques Cartier, Que., and he will be pleased to give an address in Peterborough at a date to be arranged after the prorogation of parliament. Mr. Monk's cleverness, amiability and geniality, make him a decided favorite with all. His command of the English language is equal if not superior to that of the late Sir Adolphe Chapleau. His coming is a decided catch for the club, and no doubt the occasion will be made a red letter day. Sufficient notice will be given to enable the people of East and West Peterborough, to take advantage of Mr. Monk's visit and hear this distinguished gentleman on the political issues of the day.

A euchre party will be held in the club rooms on Thursday night of this week. It is expected there will be a large attendance.

Banquetted by Several Friends

Mr. Clarence Webber's Departure From City is Regretted

Mr. Clarence Webber, who has been a resident of the city for the past few months and who during that time has made a large number of friends, was tendered a complimentary banquet at Hooper & Long's last night by a number of his well wishers. Mr. Webber is leaving the city to accept a good position in Toronto and before his departure a number of his friends took advantage of the occasion to show their esteem. The banquet was a very enjoyable little affair and was a success in every way. After the good things had been disposed of, there were several informal speeches in which regret was expressed at Mr. Webber's departure from the city. All were unanimous in the hope that success would attend him in his new field of labor.

AMUSEMENTS

MARKS BROS.

It was standing room only at the Grand Opera House last evening, when Marks Bros.' Dramatic Company opened a week's engagement presenting an exceptionally good melo-drama, "The Ragged Princess." The audience was pleased beyond measure and the applause was frequent and prolonged. The company is one of unusual merit and every part was splendidly portrayed. There was humor, pathos and heart interest in "The Ragged Princess" and the different roles could not have been better taken. Grace Marks portrayed the leading feminine character and showed much ability. She was a great favorite with the audience. H. Maxwell Wilgus made a capable villain, while Joe D. Herbert as Jack Merry was all to the good as the hero. M. S. Goldonie gave a fine representation of an old Kentucky soldier in the role of Col. Silverthorn and W. F. Crockette in the make-up of a tramp showed that goodness sometimes dwells beneath rags. The other members of the cast gave good support and the exciting climaxes which wound up each of the four acts made a great hit with those present.

Good specialties were introduced between the acts. They included some new illustrated songs sung by H. M. Wilgus, Jesse and Beatrice Sours, contortionists and aerial artists and the musical Nalou, who produces music from many queer instruments.

Marks Bros.' will be the attraction at the Grand all week and are worthy of crowded houses. Tonight they will present "The Mountain Maid," which is said to be an unusually good melo-drama.

TAILORED SUITS AND COATS—The first word of Spring. It hints of all sorts of pretty, new Talored effects. It brings costumes and frocks that you'll love and buy. The fabrics of the Suits are the first charm, plaids, stripes, checks—all hinted; some few Shepherd's checks are shown. Panamas, Broadcloths, Coverts, Worsteds and Voiles, too, are the fabrics of some beauties among the Suits.

The COATS are short, either semi-fitting affairs or Pony Jackets. But that's not quite a fair statement: for some snug-fitting Coats are shown, too.

Among the demi-mode Tailored Suits, preference is shown for the Etons and "ponstas." Skirts are all pleated with inlaid treatment, braid trimming is used in abundance. Sleeves almost as you please. You forget the price when you see the real worthiness of material and tailored effects.

The Murder Was Not Committed

A Mistake Made is Selling Cartridges to a Foreigner

A few days ago an attempted murder created a sensation in Goldie & McCulloch's works in Galt. The affair was the result of a quarrel between two foreign employees of the company. The man who attempted to shoot his companion was prevented only by a mistake of the man from whom the revolver was purchased. The day of the shooting the offender bought a centre-fire revolver fro Mr. George McFarland, manager of the Galt branch of Mr. C. R. Banks' sporting goods store. McFarland made the mistake in giving the foreigner rim-fire cartridges, and, of course, they would not explode in the gun. Mr. Banks was in Peterborough opening up the new store here at the time. Had he been in Galt he would probably have waited on the would-be murderer, and the mistake in the cartridges would probably not have been made, and there would have been a new face in the other world.

WILL NOT HOLD A GRAND CAMP

Proposal Abandoned by Knights of the Maccabees.

A convention of the Toronto district of the Knights of the Maccabees will be held in St. George's Hall, Toronto on Friday for the transaction of general business. A banquet will be held at night and addresses will be delivered by Mr J. A. Patterson, K.C., Mr. R. W. Trusler, Mr. John Bennett and Hon. D. P. Markey, Port Huron, Mich. Mr. E. H. Wooley, district superintendent will occupy the chair. Delegates will be appointed to attend a meeting of the provincial convention of the order in Brantford on March 5th and 6th. At a meeting of the Advisory Council of the order held last night it was reported that the referendum, which was being taken among the members of the order on a proposal to organize a grand camp for Ontario, had been defeated by a four-fifths majority. The members took the ground that, owing to the high salaries which would have to be paid to the officers, the innovation would be too expensive.

Backache, "The Blues"

Both Symptoms of Organic Derangement in Women —Thousands of Sufferers Find Relief.

Anna R MacNamee
Mrs J.P. Oakes

How often do we hear women say: "It seems as though my back would break," or "Don't speak to me, I am all out of sorts?" These significant remarks prove that the system requires attention.

Backache and "the blues" are direct symptoms of an inward trouble which will sooner or later declare itself. It may be caused by diseased kidneys or some derangement of the organs. Nature requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years and the ablest judges agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.

Read the convincing testimonials of Mrs. Oakes and Mrs. MacNamee.

Mrs. J. P. Oakes of Prince of Wales Hotel, Head of St. Margaret's Bay, near Halifax, Halifax County, Nova Scotia, Canada, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"After what your Vegetable Compound did for me, I am a firm believer that it is a wonderful medicine, and that any woman who is troubled with any of the ills we suffer from should try it and she will soon be convinced of its worth. Six bottles changed me from a peevish, despondent, sickly, ailing woman to a sweet-tempered, healthy one, who rarely ever has a pain now, and who before was rarely without one. As a regulator, strengthener and a tonic, I think it has no superior and I certainly endorse it."

Mrs. Anna R. MacNamee of corner Queen and Wellington Streets, Kingston, Ont. writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done all the good in the world for me. I suffered with irregularities, backache and severe pains all through my body, and was very nervous and blue. I think I used a dozen different kinds of medicines, some prescribed by the doctor and some recommended by friends, but one bottle of Vegetable Compound was worth more to me than all the other medicines put together. My general health began to improve as soon as I began to use the Compound, and in three weeks I was a perfectly well woman."

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacements or ulceration, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the female organs, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. No other medicine in the world has received this widespread and unqualified endorsement. Refuse to buy any substitute.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. Her advice and medicine have restored to health innumerable women. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The Finances of the Province; 1907 Estimates Brought Down

Provincial Surplus For Past Year Is $429,299.32.

Business-Like Methods of Government Have Had Splendid Result—Surplus Exceeds All Expectations—Many Notable Developments Are Foreshadowed — Comparison With Last Year's Figures.

Toronto, Feb. 27.—Ontario's Provincial surplus for the past year is $429,299.32. Such was the satisfactory statement presented to the Legislature by Hon. A. J. Matheson, the Provincial Treasurer, at yesterday afternoon's session when he laid the Public Accounts of the past year on the table of the House. It bespeaks the exceptional prosperity of the Province and the enterprising and business-like methods which have characterized the conduct of its financial affairs by the Government, in a year presenting many exceptional and heavy calls upon the Treasury for public development and improvement. The size of the surplus surpasses even the optimistic prophecies of the speakers on the address from the throne at the opening of the present session.

Expenditure $6,519,131.08.

With the public accounts, the main estimates for 1907 were also presented. These provide for an expenditure of $6,519,131.08, of which $5,586,485.28 is asked for current expenditure, $634,335 on capital account and $298,311 for other purposes. With the advantage of two days' study of these two volumes before them the members of the House will be in a better position to follow Hon. Col. Matheson in the budget speech, which will be delivered Thursday.

Educational Developments.

The estimates this year include nothing for the University of Toronto beyond the statutory grant of $7,000, as the finances of that great provincial educational institution are now provided for under the University Act of last session. The estimates foreshadow further notable developments, particularly along educational lines. The work of some of the present officials has been recognized by increased salary and provision made for such increases to the staff as the greatly expanding business of the departments has warranted. There are no increases for the Ministers, however.

Comparison With Last Year.

Taking the items in bulk and comparing them with the actual expenditures of last year, the comparison is as follows:

	Estimates 1907.	Expenditure 1906.
Civil Gov't.	$530,988	$428,280.46
Legislation	294,500	215,185.36
Education	1,396,266	1,270,921.71
Administration of Justice	612,382	544,826.60
Maintenance of Institutions	1,640,058	957,347.35
Agriculture	485,453	432,296.90
Colonization and Immigration	46,065	35,350.86
Hospitals and Charities	303,663	334,169.56
Government and Depart'l Bldgs.	89,795	76,488.22
Public Buildings— Repairs	$ 45,760
Capital Account	493,935	368,846.75
Public Works— Repairs	$ 21,200
Capital Account	140,400	85,117.29
Colonization and Mining roads	298,311	219,559.37
Charges on Crown Lands	525,800	476,660.81

Railway and Municipal Board.

Among the details of interest in the estimates are the following in the Attorney-General's Department: $3,000 for the salary of a solicitor, which is a new office, and $64,462 for the Railway and Municipal Board. In 1906 the vote for the Board, which did not come into existence until the last half of the year, was $30,210.

Fish and Game.

In the Public Works Department estimates indication is given of the coming legislation to combine the fish and game branches, provision being made for a superintendent of fish and game at $1,800 a year, with a fish and game inspector at $1,400. No deputy commissioner of fisheries—a position now in existence—is provided for. Mr. Edwin Tinsley, formerly chief game warden, for which office there is no vote this year, has been in charge of the two departments since the departure of Mr. S. T. Bastedo, the former deputy commissioner of fisheries.

For Medical Health Department.

A vote of $1,000 is asked in the Treasury Department estimates for an accountant to the succession duties branch. The Provincial Secretary's Department's estimates provide two votes of $1,200 each for extra clerks and $9,500 for contingencies. For the Board of Health, which is in this Department, the following are among the new items of estimated expenditure: Assistant bacteriologist and assistant chemist, $900 each; tuberculosis exhibit, $1,000; to cope with outbreaks of communicable diseases and to make sanitory investigations, $5,000. The items under the head of Legislation comprise indemnity to members, including mileage, $102,000, compared with an actual expenditure in 1906 of $100,901.40. For the administration of justice in the various sections of the Province, as distinguished from the organized sections of Ontario, there are increases in most cases.

Grants to Rural Schools.

As before noted, and without regard to the University of Toronto, there is a great increase in the amount of money asked for education, viz., $1,396,266.27, compared with an actual expenditure last year of $1,320,921.71, the latter including $123,837.91 to the university. The increase is due to the larger grants to the rural schools announced by the Prime Minister, Hon. J. P. Whitney. One of the items, indicating a new departure, is $6,000 "for agricultural training in the high schools," a valuable innovation by which students may be trained in agricultural pursuits.

The grants to rural continuation classes are also increased from $31,785 to $40,000; $2,000 is provided for assistant departmental examiners and $5,000 for the expenses of the Advisory Council of Education. For the school of mining at Kingston, which last year received $29,500 for maintenance and $7,500 for equipment, the amounts asked for this year are $34,500 and $7,500 respectively, in view of the great development of mining and the need for Ontario's young men to have technical training.

Estimates for Agriculture.

The estimates for agriculture include those of the Ontario Agricultural College, in which provision is made for a professor of English at $2,000 per year and for several assistant demonstrators in various departments.

Children's Shelter and Refuges.

The sum of $10,000 goes to the Children's Shelter and revotes of $4,000 each are made to the County Houses of Refuge in Hastings, Prescott and Russell and Peterboro. Another $100,000 is provided for the new normal schools and the alotment for colonization roads and for forest ranging and forest reserves increased.

To Work Gillies Limit.

Under the head of mining development there are estimates which foreshadow important improvements and work upon the public-owned Gillies' Limit. One item is $60,000 for preliminary operations, including surveying, purchase of machinery, mining, treatment of ores, etc., and another $25,000 for a sampling plant, a total of $85,000, compared with an expenditure last year of $19,159.48. The sum of $3,300 also appears in this portion of the estimates for an assistant geologist. A clerk of geological explorations is provided for, $3,000 being asked for salary and expenses.

Miscellaneous Estimates.

Among the miscellaneous estimates are the following amounts: Statue to Hon. John Sanfield Macdonald, $10,000; to Batoche column, $200; South African monument, $2,500, and to Bell Telephone memorial, Brantford, $2,000

Division on Prison Labor.

The Legislature sat until 7 o'clock, when the first division of the session occurred on the resolution of Mr. T. H. Preston (Brant) calling for an immediate termination of the Central prison labor contract. The Government majority was 37, Mr. Studholme, the Labor member for Hamilton, voting with the Opposition.

An Unwelcome Legacy.

In the debate Hon. Mr. Hanna made a vigorous address, declaring that the prison labor contracts were one of the unwelcome legacies left by the former Ross Government and outlining the present Government's plans to place prison labor on road, farm and general outdoor work. Mr. Hanna was accorded an ovation by his fellow members on resuming his seat.

MANY EVILS; NO REMEDIES.

Report of Insurance Commission Presented to House Yesterday—Investigation Was Justified.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—The report of the Royal Insurance Commission, together with the evidence taken before it, was laid on the table yesterday a year to the day from the appointment. The evidence has been printed and the report soon will be out as presented to the House yesterday afternoon. It consists of 500 pages of typewriting. This report has already gone to the printing bureau and some days may elapse before the public is fully seized of all its contents.

Charges Are Proved.

One thing at least is evident. Every charge for the investigation of which the royal commission was appointed, has been fully proved, and every abuse (except political contributions) found to exist in the United States is found by the commissioners to also exist in Canada. Unfortunately the physicians who diagnose the disease are unable to suggest a remedy. They pronounce against state insurance and profess to find but slight promise of relief from any possible action by the Government. A draft bill is presented, but it does not promise any radical legislation.

The commissioners subscribe a draft of new insurance list, which is much wider in its scope than the present bill.

There is of course no chance of the bill being dealt with by Parliament this session. The only use to which the report will likely be put on at the present time is that of party politics.

Mr. Preston Holds Seat.

Toronto, Feb. 27.—The Court of Appeal decided the Rainy River election case yesterday, dismissing H. W. Kennedy's appeal from the judgment of Justices Anglin and Teetzel, giving the Conservative member, W. A. Preston, the seat.

Justice Clute stated that it appeared a rather startling proposition that upon scrutiny an alien who has voted can be struck from the list of votes cast. He, however, refers to the object of the voters' list to settle in a cheap and satisfactory way the list of those entitled to vote, to avoid the ruinous expense formerly incurred in a scrutiny.

Cured of Lockjaw.

Peterboro, Feb. 27.—A remarkable cure of lockjaw is reported at Nicholls' Hospital.

John Harris received a trivial injury some 15 weeks ago and complications set in. For 8 days his jaws were tightly locked and his only sustenance was in liquid form, taken by a tube inserted where a tooth had been removed.

Circulation of the blood was also stopped for some time and his death was expected at any moment.

Yesterday Harris resumed work as foreman polisher in the Peterboro Shovel Factory.

Canada's Strong Man Dying.

Montreal, Feb. 27.—Louis Cyr, the noted heavyweight lifter, who has had the reputation of being the strongest man in the world in his time, is dying of dropsy at his home, in a suburb of this city.

Schooner Probably Lost.

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 27.—It is believed the schooner Hilda, which left Philadelphia Feb. 3, for this port, coal laden, has been lost.

She had a crew of nine men.

William Gray and Mayor Judd, of London, are mentioned as possible Conservative opponents to C. S. Hyman.

Outside of 14 extra choice steers belonging to the estate of the late George T. Blackstock, there was not a straight load of export cattle on the market. Mr. G. H. Waller had charge of the 14 steers, that weighed 1400 lbs. each, and, not being able to dispose of them at what he thought was their value, he decided to slaughter them for his own use. WIND UPSETS HEARSE.

Mourners, Badly Frightened, Return Home, Leaving Corpse.

Montreal, Feb. 27.—The fierce storm yesterday broke up a funeral and so badly frightened the followers that they scattered in a few minutes and returned home, following the hearse no farther.

The body of Mme. Emmanuel Menard was being taken to Ile Perrot, when a sudden gust of wind upset the hearse. The coffin broke through the side glass of the hearse and rolled down into the ditch where it remained partly on end. The glass was broken and the few followers of the hearse saw the face of the dead woman.

A few were persuaded to remain to right the hearse and prevent a repetition of the disaster.

Farmer Hangs Himself.

HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Two Men Killed In Train Smash At Brookfield.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 27.—A head-on collision took place at Brookfield, 50 miles from here, on the I.C.R., last night, between the Boston express, from Montreal and No. 9 passenger train, which left here at 9 last night, bound west, as a result of which two men were killed outright and one fatally injured.

The Boston express, which was two hours late, should have waited at Brookfield to cross No. 9, but failed to do so.

The killed are: Fireman Luther Hill, Halifax; Samuel Keith, baggagemaster, Sussex, N. B., Injured fatally, John J. Flavin, Halifax.

Passengers on both trains were uninjured.

Twenty Lives Lost.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 27.—Twenty negro passengers were drowned or burned to death and a dozen more are missing as the result of the burning of the steamer Marion at Hart's Landing, on Wadmalaw River, about 40 miles from Charleston, Friday. There were seven white passengers and about 50 negroes.

The great loss of life seemed to have been owing to the negroes having become terror-stricken and neglecting to get life-preservers, of which there were 350 on board.

TRACK COLLAPSES.

One End of Car Drops to Street, Six Persons Being Hurt.

New York, Feb. 27.—Several persons were injured by the collapse of a portion of the Third avenue Elevated Railroad track at Chatham square, in the lower east side yesterday.

One end of the rear car of a train which was passing over the collapsed section fell into the street. The other end of the car hung to a part of the track, which did not fall. The car was almost on end.

Six passengers in this car were injured.

MRS. THAW'S ORDEAL ENDS.

Attorney Jerome Finishes His Cross-Examination—School Girl Diary Produced—Now Approaching the End.

New York, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's long ordeal upon the witness stand at the trial of her husband for the alleged murder of Stanford White came to an end yesterday, when Mr. Jerome finished his cross-examination. The re-direct and re-cross-examinations yesterday afternoon were of the briefest character and just prior to adjournment it was announced that the district attorney will begin his cross-examination of Dr. Britton D. Evans, one of the alienists for the defence.

Said Thaw Beat Her.

The completion of Mrs. Thaw's examination followed an unsuccessful effort of the prosecution to draw from Abraham Hummel certain facts relating to the affidavit which Mrs. Thaw is said to have made in Hummel's law office. In this affidavit it is declared there was an allegation that Thaw had beaten the girl while abroad in 1903, while she told him there was no truth in the story about her relations with Stanford White.

Mr. Delmas, counsel for the defence, blocked practically every question put to Hummel. The witness got no farther than saying he knew Mrs. Thaw; that she came to his office Oct. 27, 1903, and that he dictated to a stenographer while she was there. Justice Fitzgerald held that under the rules of evidence covering Mrs. Thaw's testimony the introduction of collateral facts was not permissible.

Jerome Handicapped.

Mr. Jerome said in open court that he realized that even if he could show Stanford White was in Europe the night Mrs. Thaw declares she was assaulted by him, he would not be allowed to introduce it as evidence.

It was reported that Mr. Jerome has much testimony to offer in rebuttal, but as it is nearly all of collateral character he will not be allowed to place it before the jury.

Mr. Jerome introduced in evidence her schoolgirl diary, and read certain extracts from it.

The Final Question.

Replying to a question, Mrs. Thaw said she had several times noticed signs of irrationality about Thaw. One night in a Broadway cab they passed White, and Thaw "had a fit," sobbing, crying, biting his nails and talking rapidly. The next time they saw White in a theatre. Thaw again became affected similarly.

Thaw told her White and others persecuted him by circulating stories about "us," and having things put in the papers. White, be told her, kept him from being elected to the Knickerbocker Club. Mr. Jerome asked his last question:

"Did Thaw recollect having seen White after these outbursts?"

"Yes."

Always Went to Sunday School.

Pittsburg, Feb. 27.—Chas. Holman, Mrs. Thaw's brother, issued a statement last night stating that Evelyn attended Sunday school from the time she was 15 months old as long as her mother "had control of her," and saying:

"Her mother never left her daughter in care of any man at any time. The public has heard but one side of the story. They have no right to express an opinion. Furthermore, Mr. Jerome has no affidavit from Mrs. Holman."

Man Didn't Know.

Brantford, Feb. 27.—The case of P. Maul, alias Babcock, charged with drawing a forged cheque in company with Elvira Gottschalk of Seaforth, was yesterday dismissed on the ground of insufficient evidence.

Babcock was not aware of the forgery, the girl not having told of her scheme to get money. She stated she acted under threats from Babcock.

LINKED BY FATE

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Polly knelt beside her, and Nina, blushing like a schoolgirl, whispered one word, at which Polly shrieked:

"What! A husband! Decima! Who—who is he? Tell me quick, quick!"

And when Nina had told her that, and a great deal more—in fact, the history of the wreck and her strange marriage—Polly, all a-heap on the floor, could only stare at her open-mouthed with wonder, delight and awe.

"Married, married all the time! And to an earl! And you are a countess! Lady Lesborough! Oh, poor Lord Sutcombe!" Nina laid her hand on Polly's lips. "A countess! and been one all the time! And here was I treating you as if you were a mere nobody, just like myself! And yet, somehow, I always suspected—"

"That I was a princess in disguise! 'Changed at my birth with the rightful owner,' as the Irishman said. You dear, foolish Polly! As if it made any difference who and what I am! And—and I think you will like my husband, dear."

Polly emitted an "Oh! Like him. I—shall be afraid. An earl; a real English earl. De—I mean, Lady Lesborough!"

"You dare! 'Decima,' if you please. Oh, no, you won't be afraid of him. What nonsense! You are not afraid of Lord Sutcombe!"

"Oh, but he's only a viscount, or whatever it is, and yours is a real, belted earl!" explained Polly, with delicious naivete. "What is he like, Decima?"

Nina laughed softly, and her eyes grew dreamy and fond.

"He is tall and very straight, with broad shoulders; and he is very strong and good-looking; quite bronzed and tanned, with eyes that—" She broke off with a laugh at herself. "Oh, he is a son of the gods—not our gallery gods, Polly, but the Olympian ones: 'a model of grace, and full of virtue;' but his chief one is that he condescends to love poor little me!"

Polly looked up at the radiant face, the graceful figure, and, laughing, tossed her head scornfully.

"As if he could help it! I'd like to see any man who could! Married!" Then she sighed. "You'll write no more plays, Decima; that's sure and certain! It's a pity, for 'Twixt Love and Love' is doing so very well!"

"It's not at all sure and certain," said Nina. "Why shouldn't I? No one will know that 'Herbert Wood' is Lady Lesborough; and if they did! But you must talk it over with my husband when you meet him to-night."

"To-night!"

"Yes," said Nina, laughing at her tone of awe. "Here is a note from Lady Vivienne. She wants us all to go to the Momus to-night, and come back to supper with them. I am looking forward to it so much!"

The play went splendidly that evening, and Nina, sitting well behind the curtain of the box, was all aglow with pleasure and honest pride in her [illegible] Vane applauding and looking round the delighted audience with glowing eyes, as if he were saying: "Clap away; shout your hardest, good folk; my wife wrote this play."

They went home to Eversleigh Court, where the Sutcombes had provided a supper, which, if it had not been so substantial, would have been suspiciously like a wedding breakfast; and at Vane's warm greeting and the friendly look in his frank eyes all Polly's awe and nervousness fled.

"I little thought, Miss Bainford, when I was watching you act, with the greatest admiration, that I was looking at my wife's dearest and best friend," he said, as he held her hand in his warm grasp. "I can't tell you how often she and I have spoken of you, or how much I have wanted to see you and—thank you! I hope you will share your friendship for her with me. Will you?"

It was a very happy little party, though every now and then a shadow stole over Vane's face. He could not altogether get rid of the memory of Julian—of the white, livid face, with its black eyes gleaming from their dark hollows.

"What do you think will become of him?" he had asked Letchford and Sutcombe earlier in the evening.

"He'll leave England," said Sutcombe. "Has gone already, no doubt."

"And will drink himself to death or get killed in a drunken row in the slums of Paris or Vienna," Letchford had suggested.

"He must be found," Vane had said, quietly. "He must be found and—provided for."

"We'll put Tressider onto him," was Sutcombe's idea. "He will know better how to track him down than you can."

Vane tried to get his unhappy cousin out of his mind, and, as the supper progressed, had nearly, in some measure, succeeded, when Sutcombe's man came to his master's side and said something in a low voice. With a murmur of apology Sutcombe rose and left the room, and presently he returned and quietly beckoned to Vane. Vane went out to him, and Sutcombe shut the door and drew him towards the library.

"I'm afraid something's amiss, Lesborough," he said. "Poor old Chandos Orme is in there. He tells a rambling, incoherent story. He wants to see you, and, hearing you were here, has come on after you."

They entered the library. Sir Chandos was seated at the table, a glass that had contained brandy, which Sutcombe had given him, already empty. He rose and held out a shaking hand to Vane.

"How d'ye do, Vane?" he stammered, uncertainly. "Thought I should find you here. I say, you—you—know—" He paused to shuffle his false teeth into place. "What's the meanin' of all this? I—I don't understand it, don't you know!"

"All what, Sir Chandos?" said Vane, gravely. "Is anything the matter?"

"Anything the matter? Dash it all, you ought to be able to answer that question! Sutcombe, for God's sake, give me another drink! I'm—I'm so upset and shaky that I can scarcely know what I'm sayin' or doin'! Thanks! a little more. I—I like it strong. No—no water. Water's no good; it's the brandy I want!"

They watched him as he drank the neat spirit—he reminded Vane of Julian—spilling some of it on his quivering chin and down his shirt-front; then he turned to Vane and, in a somewhat firmer voice, repeated his question:

"What's it mean?" he demanded. "Must say it's a deuced queer kind of business; not at all the kind of conduct befittin' a gentleman, to say nothing of—personal friend, and a fellow one has trusted—"

"Tell me at once what you mean, Sir Chandos," said Vane.

"I'm talking about Judith; you know that well enough," retorted Sir Chandos.

"About Judith?" Vane's heart began to sink with a dark presentiment. "What about her?"

"Where is she? What have you done with her?" asked the old man, in a peevish tone.

"I!" Vane started. "I can't tell. I've not seen Judith since—for many months."

"Oh, that's all tommy-rot, you know!" snapped Sir Chandos, with impatient irritability. "That dog won't fight. You sent for her—"

"I!" said Vane. "No, no; you're mistaken!"

"No, I'm not!" snarled the old man, fiercely. "It's no good your standing there lying about it. I've—I've got the proof in my possession. You sent for her; you know where she is! And I shay itsh not the straight thing between gentlemen, between you and me, who ought to be father-in-law—son-in-law—"

He looked helplessly round and [illegible] Vane caught his arm.

"For God's sake, try to explain what you mean!" he said, earnestly. "You say that Judith is—missing. When—where—how did she go?"

"Oh, drop it, Lesborough! You've got the gel, right enough. If you mean well by her, if you want to marry her, why not say so—why not do the whole thing in an open and proper manner? Is there any more brandy in that decanter, Sutcombe?"

Vane still held him by the arm.

"Presently, presently!" he said, anxiously. "Sir Chandos, on my honor, I do not know where your daughter is—"

Sir Chandos drew himself up with the shadow of his old dignity.

"That's a lie!" he said. "And this proves it!"

As he spoke he fumbled in the pocket of his dress-coat and drew out a telegram and extended it with a shaking hand; Vane seized the telegram and read it—aloud

"I am alive and well," it ran. "Forget and forgive the past! I want you Come to me at 24 Ponson Street, Chelsea, this afternoon, five o'clock. Vane."

He stared at the words in silence, and uncomprehendingly, for a moment; then he uttered a cry and drew Sutcombe out of the room, closing the door after them.

"My God!" he said, in a whisper. "I did not send this! Don't you see who did! He asked for a telegram form, wrote this message, and must have sent it from the station. We must go at once—at once! Send Letchford in to keep the poor old man quiet till we return! Come! There's not a moment to lose! Five o'clock! Hours ago! Time for—for anything to happen! The worst!"

In five minutes, or less, they were in a cab and on their way. They reached the house—Vane recognized it at a glance—and found it apparently empty. The heavy door at which they knocked remained closed to them.

Vane hailed a policeman. "There is nothing else for it!" he said. In a few words he explained his fears, and the policeman, climbed to the lower window, forced an entrance. He opened the door to Vane and Sutcombe, and, by the light of his lantern, they rushed up the stairs. As they did so a strong odor of chemicals met them.

Vane groaned. He knew that odor!

"There's a fire somewhere, sir!" said the policeman. "Curious kind of a smell; quite suffocating! Seems to come from this room. Door's locked!"

"Force it, force it!" cried Vane, hoarsely.

They set their backs to it, and presently the lock gave and they almost fell in. The lantern was raised and its light flashed round the sombre room, in which Vane had eaten his first meal with Julian Shore. The room was so full of the pungent smoke, the horrible mist, that for a time they could not discern anything; then, as some of the fumes escaped by the open door, they saw two figures. One was that of a woman, lying back in one of the antique chairs. The form was motionless, the face white, the eyes wide open and staring. At her feet was stretched out the figure of a man, his face white as hers, his eyes staring upward at the face of the woman whom he had loved and—slain!

They bent over these two awful objects in silent horror, then the policeman shook his head.

"Lady's dead, gentlemen," he whispered.

The man lying at her feet was dead also, his fingers closed in a steel-like grip on her skirt.

Vane staggered to the door of the laboratory. A small flame was still flickering in the spirit furnace, and the deadly fumes were still issuing feebly from the last dregs of the infernal compound in the iron crucible.

Sick and faint, half choking—as he had choked in the Wizard's Room!—Vane knocked the pot from its place and, staggering to the window, broke some panes of glass. Then he sprang back to the two motionless figures in the vain hope that the policeman might be deceived.

"No use, sir," he said, with a shake of the head. "They're both dead—dead as they can be. Awful kind o' death, too! An accident, I suppose, in the other room."

"Yes, yes!" Vane got out, hoarsely. "I—I know the man—the lady. It is an accident while experimenting with chemicals—you can see them there."

The policeman nodded, and, going to the window, blew his whistle.

"I must have some help, gentlemen. You'll stay here, please, till my mate comes, and we can send to Scotland Yard."

The friends of Lady Lesborough—and how numerous they are!—are never tired of dilating upon the romance of her life. And yet none of them, excepting the Letchfords and the Sutcombes, those friends of friends, whose lips are closed, know the whole of the story of her life. Few, for instance, are aware that Lord and Lady Lesborough, before they came to live at the Court, were re-married quietly in the quietest of country churches; few know the real story of Julian Shore's crime, and the tragedy at the gloomy house in Chelsea. And, though they know that the Lesboroughs and Sutcombes draw vast wealth from the Great Fairy Isle Gold Company, they do not know the real reason why the earl and countess nearly every years spend some weeks in the island from whence the [illegible] are perhaps the happiest of their happy lives.

It was Lady Fanworthy who summed up the case of Vane and Nina so neatly.

"You see," she said to Vivienne one evening, when they were seated on the terrace at Lesborough, and both the ladies' eyes were half absently watching the earl and countess as they strolled to and fro across the lawn, talking together, like sweethearts, "you see, they are so old-fashioned."

"Old-fashioned?" echoed Vivienne, waking from her reverie.

"Yes. That's why they are so happy. It is very old-fashioned to be in love at all; it is hopelessly old-fashioned to be in love with your husband or your wife; and, if you are so unfortunate as to be so, it is, so I am told, criminally old-fashioned to own up to it. I, myself, prefer the old fashion to the new; but, then, I'm eccentric—so I hear. Nina! Come off that grass; it's damp. Vane, bring her in at once."

THE END.

Publication of Assessors' Roll

Taxpayers Not Satisfied With the Way the Council Turned it Down

Last night several prominent gentlemen, who are also heavy tax payers, were discussing the reports of the council meeting of Monday night. One mentioned the fact that the council had again turned down the proposition of publishing the assessment roll. He said it was a very funny thing that a lot of men who are supposed to represent the people, deliberately go against the people's wishes, and then hand out the excuse that they wanted to keep the tax rate down to 17 1-2 mills.

If the publication of the assessors' roll would cause the tax rate to be raised half a mill, then it was up to the council to raise the rate. The people want the roll printed, and have clamored for it for years. The matter of a low rate this year is purely sentiment on the part of some of the council. The people never asked for it. Very few expected it. Generally it was a great surprise.

The people figured that if the assessors' roll had been published, even at the expense of the whole of half a mill, the city would have saved that much or more on the increased assessment, which would be brought about by the adjustment of the roll. Even if that were not correct, and the city gained nothing by the expenditure, the council would have been justified in catering to the wishes of the people.

NEW MILKING MACHINE READY

Will Soon be Put on the Market—Will Supersede all Other Makes

Great interest has been taken in this neighborhood for a long time in milking machines. Mr. Thomas Hunter, one of the well known farmers of North Monaghan is particularly enthusiastic over the invention. In fact he favors any device or machine which will save labor and money and make life in the country even more pleasant than life in the city seems to be.

At the present time there are many different milking machines and cream separators and other mechanical devices for use in the dairy, but Mr. Hunter claims he has them all beaten. He has recently purchased a large block of stock in [illegible] ed. This firm will put on the market one of the most complete machines ever invented and it will only be a short time when not only every farmer, but every man or woman, who owns a cow, will be using it.

In speaking of this new machine the O. A. C. Review says;

"A new milking machine has just been invented and is in successful operation in Dayton, Ohio. It is an electric motor, which fastens to the rump of the cow, the electricity being generated by a small dynamo attached to her tail. She switches her tail, the dynamo starts, and by means of a bevel gear and block and tackle, the milk is extracted, strained, and the pail and strainer hung up to dry. A small phonograph accompanies the outfit and yells "so" every time the cow moves. If she lifts her foot to kick a small dingus slides over a whatnot, and the phonograph says "d—— it." If she continues to kick, a hinged arm grabs up the milk stool and "jams" her on the back until it loosens a patch of skin the size of a dust pan."

And Caused His Mother an Anxious Hour or Two

A four year old toddler, Eddie Mull, left his home yesterday afternoon at the corner of London and Division streets, and caused his mother a couple of hours worry.

The little chap was suddenly missed from the house, which he left without coat or hat. He wondered up London street, across George to Water and was noticed by several persons. He was asked his name but could not tell where he lived. The half frozen child was finally taken into a Water street residence, and the police notified of the lost one. His mother, who was almost distracted in a vain search for her baby boy, finally located him and carried the youthful innocent and helpless wanderer home.

John McMurray's brick residence, near Frome, Ont., was completely destoyed by fire on Sunday night.

Mr. F. A. Acland, western editorial representative of the Globe, has been appointed secretary of the Labor Department.

Premier Tweedie, Hon. L. P. Farris and Senator Ellis are mentioned for the Lieutenant-Governorship of New Brunswick.

TRENTON SURE OF THE CANAL

Supplementary Estimates Will Contain Sum for the Immediate Prosecution of the Work

An Ottawa despatch says;

The report of the Government engineers in the northern stretch of the Trent waterway from Lake Simcoe to Georgian Bay, will be ready for presentation to Parliament in a few days, but from what can be learned it is a practical certainty that the outlet will be found by the Severn River. The cost, indeed, of that route is said to be not more than one-half what would be expended if the alternative route were adopted.

However, the Government engineers have made a most careful examination of both routes, and will have their report ready for submission to the Minister of Railways and Canals this week. As soon as this has been done the information will be laid before Parliament. In addition to the data supplied by the engineers, Hon. Mr. Emmerson has had the advantage of a personal inspection of the Trent waterway, and is so thoroughly impressed with the natural advantages of the route that it is understood that the supplementary estimates of the present session will contain an appropriation for this work substantial enough to warrant the vigorous prosecution of the enterprise.

As already stated, the southern outlet of the Trent Canal will be at Trenton, on the Bay of Quinte.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy on Meat Prices

No Rate Was on so Far as He is Concerned

Mr. H. P. Kennedy in conversation with the Review to-day stated that there was no rate war on in the selling of meat so far as he was concerned. He had not entered into any arrangements directly or indirectly in reference to the reduction in prices. "I claim," he contended, "that we have been giving meat to the people of Peterborough at the lowest possible figure consistent with quality of the first order. We have always conducted our own business and made our own prices irrespective of and uninfluenced by others. We do not object in the slightest to opposition and, in our enlarged and well appointed premises, are enabled to take care of our customers in a better manner than ever. We are selling meat from three to four cents lower than the prices that prevail in Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa and elsewhere. Owing to our large wholesale trade we are in a position to do this. If we have sliced prices on certain lines in the past it is because we had an extra large quantity of perishable goods and were willing to take one half the ordinary profit and thus do double the trade. I am always willing to take the public into full confidence. There is no rate war on so far as we are concerned and we have not the slightest intention of entering into one. We regulate our own prices and are not influenced by others. We have, as I said, always sold at the lowest living figure consistent with the superior character of our meats."

Impressions of the Thaw Trial

Former Canadian Speaks of the Scenes in Court

Mr. J. W. Iverton, of New York City, formerly of Trenton, is in the city on business. He was present during the second day's cross-examination of Mrs. Thaw. Speaking to the Review he said;

"I was very much impressed with the court proceedings, particularly with the battle royal between the array of counsel. Unlike our Canadian courts none of the lawyers wear a gown, the district attorney and Mr. Delmas appearing in plain tweed suits, with black ties so that there is nothing to distinguish the lawyers from the array of newspaper reporters who surround the adjoining tables. This, to a Canadian, naturally detracts from the dignity of the court. You forget this, however, when the judge takes his seat, as a hush of silence immediately pervades the chamber.

"The respect paid the judge and the courtesy of the opposing counsel to each other, is very marked. One not familiar with court proceedings, just dropping in, would imagine it was Mrs. Thaw who was on trial, rather than her husband, and to the minds of many it is a question if the district attorney's prolonged attempt to break down her evidence, is helping the case of the prosecution. It is conceded by all that Mrs. Thaw is a wonderful witness, and that her story will not be materially shaken if her strength holds out. As she took her seat in the witness chair, you could not think of her as a woman, as she has the appearance of a mere child, and when Mr. Jerome, with his massive frame and stern countenance, stood before her, plying question after question, a feeling of pity naturally went out for her. The reports of her great beauty are overdrawn; it is more in her personality, her voice, manner, self-control and apparent frankness, that impresses and appeals to the onlooker, and which to a degree baffle the wily attorney. Mrs. Thaw has the sympathy of the best people in New York, but, apart from this, they seem indifferent as to the fate of Thaw.

"Thaw has a strong face, but he seems nervous and restless. He sits between two of his counsel and when any lull in the proceedings takes place, talks incessantly to one or the other. The jury is a fine, intelligent looking body of men, fully capable of bringing in a just verdict. The cost of the trial, it is estimated, will be at least half a million dollars."

The cattle, horses and hogs sold, realized $3,000 and the total amount of the sale was $3,500.

Railway Route Canadian Northern

The Railway Committee of the House of Commons yesterday took up the bill respecting the Canadian Northern Railway branch lines in Ontario.

The eastern lines took up nearly all the morning. As amended one line goes from Washago to Kincardine, another from Pembroke to Cobourg and Port Hope, a third from Pickering to Owen Sound or Collingwood. In the Hamilton district is a line from Toronto through Hamilton and London to Windsor, with branches to St. Thomas and Sarnia and a loop north of Toronto. Another branch will run from near the International bridge, northwesterly through Hamilton to Goderich. All these clauses were passed, but few details were given, the promoter saying the surveys are only being made now. Work must commence in two years.

PETERBORO' CHILD DEAD, PARENTS INJURED IN AWFUL RAILWAY WRECK NEAR GUELPH

Fifteen Month Old Daughter of Mr. H. G. Walker, Commercial Traveller, George St. Among the Three Who are Dead—Father Had His Arm and Side Hurt—40 Passengers Injured—Rev. R. E. Knowles, of Galt, Among the Sufferers—His Fellow Passenger Was Killed—In Taking Sharp Curve Train Was Thrown Over Embankment—Accident Was Caused by Broken Rail—Names of Killed and Injured.

At 3.30 o'clock this afternoon the Review received the following special despatch from Guelph giving the latest information as to the condition of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Walker and family, of Peterborough, who were in the awful railway wreck:

Guelph, Ont., Feb. 27.—Mrs. H. G. Walker, of Peterborough, is at present in St. Joseph's Hospital dangerously low; her head and body injured. She may recover. Her fifteen-months old daughter was killed, being mangled badly. Mr. Walker and young son escaped with slight injuries. All the injured are likely to recover.

A terrible railway disaster on the G.T.R. near Guelph yesterday afternoon brought death and sadness to one home in Peterborough. The fifteen months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Walker, 804 George street, was killed, the father injured, the mother badly shaken up, while their four-year-old son had a very close call.

Three persons were killed instantly in the plunge of the coaches down the embankment, while many passengers were injured. Mr. Walker is a brother of Mr. G. E. Walker, G.T.R. ticket agent of Guelph, and is a furniture traveller. Mr. and Mrs. Walker have lived in Peterborough about three years and have made many friends here, who will deeply sympathize with them in their affliction. It appears that Mr. and Mrs. Walker and family were on their way to Seaforth, Ont., where they intended to spend some time visiting Mrs. Walker's mother.

Rev. R. E. Knowles of Galt, the well-known Presbyterian divine, lecturer and author, who is widely known in Peterborough, had a close call. His shoulder was dislocated. He also received other injuries which will lay him up for some time.

A broken rail is believed to have been the cause of the catastrophe.

The Walker child that was killed was seated beside her little brother, the children being accompanied by their parents. When the cars left the track the little one disappeared from view, and it is thought she went through the window and underneath the car. Her little brother was not seriously hurt. The mother was injured but not badly. She was almost prostrated by the shock of the death of her child.

A Review reporter to-day interviewed an intimate friend of the Walker family, who have been plunged in sorrow by the death of their fifteen months'-old child. The lady was in a very nervous state over the news of the wreck, and more especially on account of her friend being in it.

It was ascertained that Mr. and Mrs. Walker, with their son, Vaughan, aged four, and fifteen months' old daughter, Dwight, left yesterday morning on the 8.20 train for Toronto. From there Mrs. Walker and two children were to go to Seaforth to spend a month's vacation Mrs. Walker's mother.

On March 5th her father and mother will celebrate their golden wedding, and it was for his reason Mrs. Walker went west. Mr. Walker, who travels for a furniture firm, had not intended to go any farther than Toronto, where he left her, but would join Mrs. Walker in a few days.

It would appear from advices received by wire that he had changed his mind and continued the journey with his wife and family.

THE MOTHER SPEAKS.

One of the dead, the fifteen-months old daughter of Mr. H. G. Walker, of Peterborough, had evidently been thrown through the window, as the coach was descending the embankment. When the mother, whose arm was frightfully broken and mangled and who is in a critical condition, was asked if she was badly hurt, she told her rescuers never to mind her but to find her little daughter, who she was afraid had been killed. Mrs. Walker was lifted out of the coach as tenderly as the circumstances would permit and in the meantime the body of her child had been found and had been considerately wrapped in a shawl to hide it from the mother's agonized gaze.

REV. MR. KNOWLES INJURED.

Galt, Ont., Feb. 26. — Among the passengers on the Pullman, of the train wrecked near Guelph this afternoon, was Rev. R. E. Knowles, pastor of Knox church, Galt, on his way back from Ottawa. He was expected to reach home at 3.35. Instead of that, he called up Mrs. Knowles and in a voice which indicated severe suffering told her the harrowing tale of the wreck.

"I was sitting," he said, "beside a gentleman in the chair car, when the accident occurred. The car, with others on the train rolled over the bank. My fellow passenger was picked up dead. I myself am injured."

Rev. Mr. Knowles reached home at 4.30 and was met by Dr. Varden. His injuries consisted of a broken left shoulder blade, a sprained elbow, and severe cuts on the hand. His back is also hurt. The injured clergyman said on being interviewed: "I am more a sufferer from shock than physical wounds. The awful experiences were enough to drive one mad. I scarcely think I shall have nerve enough to board another railway train. The accident was due to the spreading of the rails. I was on board the chair car, that leaves nothing to be desired. The five cars bumped only a short distance along the rail, when they fell over the embankment and rolled to the bottom. Mr. Knowles clung to the chair. When the car stopped it was bottom up, and he crawled out of the door with some other passengers.

Mr. Knowles stated that Rankin, a hockey player of Stratford, who was asleep in the car at the time of the accident, was hurled through a window and instantly killed. A son of G. B. Ryan, back from a tour abroad, was being awaited by his parents at the station. His mother swooned when he was brought out with both legs broken. One little girl was killed and her mother had both arms broken. Mr. O'Donohue, ex-mayor of Stratford, was also a victim. Mr. Knowles will be laid up for a considerable time.

DETAILS OF DISASTER.

A special despatch from Guelph gives the following details of the awful calamity:—

Guelph, Feb. 27.—By the derailment of five cars of G. T. R. train No. 5 from Toronto, in Trainer's Cut, two miles east of this city, at 2.50 yesterday afternoon, three lives were lost and half a hundred passengers more or less injured. A broken rail is held accountable for the accident.

The spot where the derailment occurred is about two miles east of Guelph, where there is a steep embankment 50 feet or more in height. A few hundred yards east of a point where a sharp incline takes the place of the almost sheer declivity and is known as Trainer's Cut.

Had the wreck left the tracks here it is probable that all the passengers would have escaped with a shaking up.

There is but a slight curve at the spot where the run-off happened, the rails inclining slightly to the north and then curving a trifle southward. When the engine reached the break the south rail immediately flattened out, one section or rail being projected about 50 yards to one side.

The coaches jolted along for a few yards until the north rail also spread, and after a stumbling course of about 60 yards along the ties the baggage coach, with two passenger coaches and parlor car, were wrenched away from the express car which clung to the tender, and were precipitated over the bank.

The Grand Trunk Railway issued the following official statement last night:

"At about 2.50 p. m., No. 5, engine 955, Engineer Thompson, Conductor Woods, two baggage cars, two coaches and parlor car left the track on the embankment near Trainer's Cut, two miles east of Guelph. The entire train, with the exception of the engine and tender, went down the embankment. Three passengers were killed, one seriously injured, and 30 slightly injured, the names of whom are given below. Derailment caused by a broken rail.

"Immediately on advice of accident a special train, conveying surgeons, was despatched from Guelph to the scene of the accident, followed by another special corp of physicians. In addition to this a special train of coaches was immediately despatched from Toronto to take care of the passengers; the injured were given prompt medical attention and removed to the hospital at Guelph, where everything was done for their comfort."

Bancroft Times: We have received a couple of anonymous letters lately from some person at Combermere or Burgess, reflecting on the character of a lady living in that neighborhood, and if the writer will send along his name we will give him four inches of advertising for which we will not charge him a cent. The meanest species of the genus homo is the person who anonymously makes wicked attacks on any person in a newspaper, insinuating corrupt conduct or other serious charges that have no foundation in fact. A man does not think much of himself who writes anonymous letters to newspapers attacking those against whom he entertains an imaginary grudge. Such a writer is always a dirty coward and would forfeit everybody's respect if he were to make himself known. However, we have our suspicions that the writer in this case is a woman.

The Young Conservative Club has received a letter from Mr. F. D. Mr. Monk's cleverness, amiability and geniality, make him a decided favorite with all. His command of the English language is equal if not superior to that of the late Sir Adolphe Chapleau. His coming is a decided catch for the club, and no doubt the occasion will be made a red letter day. Sufficient notice will be given to enable the people of East and West Peterborough, to take advantage of Mr. Monk's visit and hear this distinguished gentleman on the political issues of the day.

PORT HOPE WOMAN DESERTS HER HUSBAND AND TAKES HIS MONEY

Man is Now on the Warpath Seeking to Locate His Faithless Companion and Recover the Missing Cash.-Man's Depravity and Woman's Weakness.

Lost or strayed—man and woman—latter is married, about 22 years of age, leaving a husband behind in Port Hope, who is anxious to recover her, or at least the $125 she took belonging to him. Her paramour is about 30 years old, smooth face, small narrow chin, and long thin nose. Both last seen in Port Hope yesterday, when two tickets were bought for Belleville, and two answering the above description got off the train here last evening.

The above tells nearly the whole story of man's depravity and woman's worse than weakness, says the Belleville Intelligencer. The wronged husband arrived in the city on the heels of the runaway pair, and he at once invoked the aid of the police, and in company with a constable they made a round of the different hotels and boarding houses, but no trace of the missing spouse or her companion could be found. The husband of the woman had a photograph of the man who had skipped out with his wife, and he naturally felt his position keenly. He said that he had managed to scrape together $125, which he had deposited in a bank in Port Hope, but he finds that the woman had forged his name and had drawn out the whole amount. Her companion, who had been employed in the Ideal works here, had drawn all that was coming to him, and he then learned that his wife and the man had departed together. He claims that his wife was used well, and he cannot understand her motive in leaving him.

He was around to-day making enquiries, but up to the hour of going to press he had found no trace of his erring spouse, whom he said he was willing to forgive if she would return. The husband is about 38 years of age, and appears to be a hard-working and industrious man.

Mrs. Adair is the name of the recreant wife, and Fred. Gibbs is the name of the man with whom the woman has eloped. They were traced to a couple of boarding houses to-day, where they were refused accommodation. The husband was not on the trail this afternoon.

Adair has been employed in the lace factory for some time, and, to all appearances, is a quiet, industrious man. He is greatly worried about the loss of his fair damsel, and has been engaged since Wednesday trying to locate her. Adair visited Chief Bond about the matter, but did not like the idea of taking out a warrant for her arrest. He is still trying to locate their whereabouts, but from latest reports he is unable to make much headway. A fortunate circumstance of the case is that they have no family.—Port Hope Guide.

How the Winter is Being Spent at Silvery Cobalt

Mr. C. L. Harding Has Returned to Peterborough After a Three Months' Stay in the Great Mining Region—Another Great Rush is Expected in the Spring.

Mr. C. L. Harding, formerly of Dominion Construction Company, who spent several months in Peterborough during the erection of the new transformer building at the C.G.E. last fall, returned to the city yesterday from Cobalt, where he has been since the first of December. In company with Mr. Gus. Morrison, also formerly of the Dominion Construction Company, he has staked out several claims and will return to the land of silver in the spring to prospect them. A claim consists of forty acres. Messrs. Morrison and Harding have one claim about ten miles from Cobalt and several more at Larder Lake, which is about forty miles from the Silver City. Hundreds of claims have been staked at Larder Lake and there are scores of miners waiting until the winter breaks up and the snow disappears in order that they may begin prospecting and ascertain whether their claims are of any value. If any traces of silver are found on a claim the man who has staked it out can stay and work it as long as he likes, but if no minerals are discovered the land reverts to the Government. This work is incharge of Government inspectors, who decide which claims remain in the hands of the miners and which shall revert to the Government.

At Larder Lake there are no houses, no buildings of any kind in fact, and the miners live in canvas tents. With the thermometer 40 below zero and even lower than that at times, this sort of life is not altogether pleasant, but it is healthy at any rate and fortunately there is no scarcity of fuel. The best pine that would bring big prices if made into timber or cut up into lumber is cut down and used for wood.

Mr. Harding says that the snow is deeper at Cobalt than at Peterborough and that the weather is much colder. Forty-six degrees below zero has not been uncommon during the winter, it makes one feel cold even to speak about it.

Cobalt has been quiet during the winter months as the heavy fall of snow put a stop to all prospecting and the winter has been spent by the miners in staking out claims, making arrangements for starting work in the spring and keeping themselves warm. The latter required the preparation of a large amount of wood.

That there will be great activity at Cobalt in the spring goes without saying. There will be another rush to the silver country when the winter breaks up. Cobalt's spring will be a little later than at Peterborough owing to the more northern latitude. It is likely that the snow will be off the ground in this district about two weeks earlier than in the northern part of the province.

Mr. Harding thinks that there is a great future before Cobalt and the majority of things claimed for it are true. Of course, there are a lot of claims that will turn out worthless and money will be lost on them. But there are hundreds of acres of great richness. All the land for miles around Cobalt has been staked out and also at Larder Lake. Building operations have been somewhat slack in Cobalt during the winter, owing to the severity of the weather, but with the coming of spring great activity is looked for.

Mr. Harding will return to Cobalt in about a month. In the meantime Mr. Morrison is looking after his interests there.

Straths. Left Wing Man Was Injured

It is probable that the Strathconas may be without the services of Alex. Weatherstone, their star left wing man, in their game with Charlotte street tomorrow night. Weatherstone met with an accident while at practice last night and it is doubtful whether he will be able to play in the great game or not. His absence from the team would be seriously felt.

The Straths had a good workout last night and are travelling at a lively pace.

Ottawa Council last night voted the Bell Telephone Company an exclusive five-year franchise.

Two Children Taken to Shelter

Removed From a Home on Dublin Street.

Two little girls named Graham were taken from a house on Union street and placed in the Children's Shelter yesterday. One is 2 1-2 years of age and the other is only a baby, being six months old. Their mother is residing with a family on Dublin street, and the father is out of the city at present.

It is said that the children were not being looked after properly, hence the action taken by the Children's Aid Society.

Prepayment Electric Meter Co. Will Erect a Large Factory

Arrangement Made Last Night With Allis-Chalmers Bullock Co., of Montreal, to Take the Full Output of the Company—Make 30 Meters a Day—Employ 75 Hands—Will Make Other Electrical Supplies.

A most important announcement was made this morning by the Prepayment Electric Meter Co., which will be very important to this city. Last night Mr. Milner, general manager of the Allis-Chalmers Bullock Co., of Montreal, was in the city representing his company. A meeting of the Meter Co. and Mr. Chalmers was held in the former's office, Hunter street, and as a result the Montreal firm has arranged to handle the entire output of the Prepayment and Recording Electric Meter Co. The Allis-Chalmers, Bullock Co will place the meter upon the market, and all the local Company will be required to do is to manufacture them as rapidly as possible.

Arrangements have been made to take 30 meters per day, and in the spring the Peterborough Company will erect a large factory. The exact location has not yet been decided upon, but it will be along a railway track. The building will be a large one and will afford accommodation for a much larger plant than will be required for the meters. But the Allis-Chalmers Bullock Co. will make Peterborough their headquarters for the manufacture of nearly all its electrical supplies, of the smaller kind, such as incandescent globes, brackets, etc. These will all be made under the one roof and will be made by the Peterborough Prepayment Electric Meter Co. and sold to the Montreal firm.

To manufacture thirty meters per day will require a force of 75 hands alone but there is every reason to believe that this staff will be greatly increased as soon as the public becomes acquainted with the meter. The other branches of the business will also require a large number of hands and as soon as it is possible to get matters in running order, the new factory will furnish employment for 150 hands.

The announcement is great interest to Peterborough people. Not only does it mean that a local Company will be greatly enlarged, but it also means that to the manufacturing interests of this city will be added a branch of one of the largest concerns in the country, and one which has a great future before it. The demand for electrical supplies is continually on the increase, and all factories doing this kind of business are doubling their capacity.

The Peterborough factory will retain the services of Mr. A. B. Cunningham, mechanical superintendent, and Mr. W. H. Collier, electrical engineer.

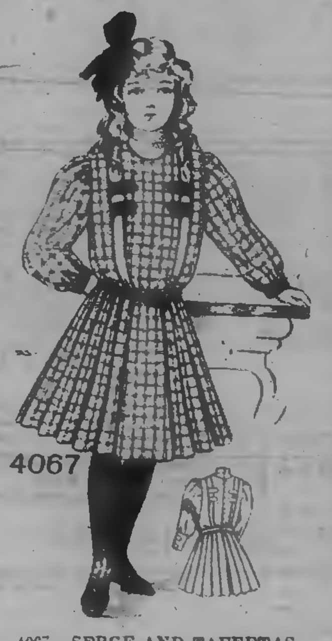
The Latest Dean Pattern

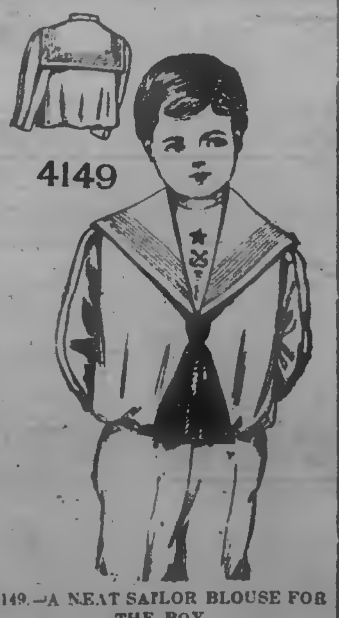


4067.—SERGE AND TAFFETAS.

Quite as much study is expended upon the small girl's dresses as upon any that Dame Fashion creates. An example of clever design is illustrated in the dress shown where the trimming effect is gained by an under and over blouse. The former may be of any washable or contrasting material, and if the pipings are of a color to harmonize the result is fetching. The under blouse might be any guimpe except that it has no sleeves and extends to the waist line. The skirt is side pleated and very graceful for the growing girl. A serge, mohair, or one of the novelty worsteds may be used for the dress, 3 1-4 yards of 44 inch material being needed for the medium size.

4067.—Sizes 6 to 14 years.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.



4149.—A NEAT SAILOR BLOUSE FOR THE BOY.

The blouse in its many forms is the standby of the boy and his mother and nothing is so well fitted for his wear from the time he discards dresses until he is old enough to wear long trousers. A neat blouse of sailor style intended for boys from 4 to 12 years of age is sketched and will be found simple to make and very practical. The broad collar and shield are of the accepted style and generally becoming. The sleeve is a bit unique in its box pleats which retain the fulness at the wrist. These blouses are usually made of a washfabric such as madras, linen or washable flannel. For the medium size 3 1-4 yards 27 inches wide are needed.

4149.—Sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. The price of this pattern is 10 cts.

Twenty Two Children Perished In Most Heartrending Tragedy

Protestant School in a Montreal Suburb Destroyed by Fire.

Was Caused by Explosion of Furnace in the Basement—Lady Principal Dies at Her Post After Heroic Efforts to Save the Pupils—Were 250 in the Building at the Time—Threw Some Out of the Window.

Montreal, Feb. 27.—Twenty-two scholars and their teachers are dead from suffocation as the result of a fire which broke out in the Hochelaga Protestant School, 59 Prefontaine street, yesterday afternoon.

The school was a brick building, about 15 years old, situate at 59 Prefontaine street, on the east side, above St. Catharine street.

The fire broke out at 1.45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, caused by the explosion of the furnace in the basement. It spread very quickly, and the water pressure was very weak.

Relief Cut Off.

Flames sprang up to the roof and burned fiercely on the second floor, completely cutting off the retreat of Miss Maxwell and the children in an upper room. Miss Maxwell herself threw half a dozen of her charges out of the window and only gave up when absolutely helpless.

The children were accustomed to fire drill regularly every week. On discovering the fire the gong was at once rung, but for some reason, not yet explained, did not sound. There were 250 pupils in the school at the time. The bigger boys and girls succeeded in escaping from the school, but it was the little children and particularly those of the kindergarten class who were caught.

Alarmed Older Pupils.

The fire was first seen by one of the scholars, William Gilbert, who had left the class-room to fetch a cake of soap. He saw smoke coming from the cellar and at once ran back to notify Miss Maxwell. The principal gave the alarm in all the class-rooms and ran upstairs to the kindergarten department. There she met her death.

The school is not equipped with fire-escapes, it being an old one, but the system of having large corridors is in force.

Firemen Arrive.

When the firemen reached the school the fire had gripped the upper parts of the building, and smoke was belching from the windows of the first floor. Without a thought for the moment of trying to stop the fire, the men started the work of rescue, and a second alarm was sent in.

Ladders were run to the first floor, and from the class-room on the south-west corner of the first floor, more than 20 children were carried to safety. The men stuck to this work until at last the smoke filled the room to such density that they were driven out and forced to seek the windows for a breath of air.

Meanwhile other men had got into the place from below, and through the stairways and brought out children through the lower exits.

Cause of Death.

The wood filled the place with a pungent smoke, and this was the great cause of death.

The lower flat is practically untouched by the flames, books lying on the desks unscorched, as the children left them. The smoke went up from the basement between the walls and broke out in the top storey, suffocating the children with deadly fumes.

Miss Carley, a teacher, threw herself out of a second storey window. She was badly shaken up, but was taken to her home.

At the morgue at 4.20 p. m., 13 little bodies had been received, and the ambulances were arriving as fast as they could come.

Dr. MacTaggart reported that only three showed small burns, the rest had all been suffocated.

A Heroine.

The school children state that Miss Maxwell was very self-possessed, as she told them to be calm and put on their clothes. There were 150 scholars in the building at the time.

The Rev. Dr. Shaw, chairman of the Protestant board of school commissioners, was early notified of the fire, and was quickly on the scene. He expressed great surprise that so many children should have perished in view of the fire drill system which is in vogue in all the schools under the direction of the board.

Towards evening a number of parents called at the morgue to identify their children. The scene was heartrending.

Instructor Was a Thief.

Moncton, N.B., Feb. 27.—Yesterday it became known that William March, physical instructor at the Y.M.C.A., had admitted stealing large sums of money and valuable articles from guests at the house where he boarded. The thefts have been going on for several months. March paid back as much as possible. No one felt like prosecuting, and March left for his home in New York at once.

He was of great physique, prominent in church work, and was exceedingly popular with the ladies' classes.

DIED IN A VACANT LOT.

Aged Woman Found Frozen In Snow and Covered With Ice.

Toronto, Feb. 27.—The body of a woman that has not yet been identified was discovered yesterday on a vacant lot owned by the C. P. R. She was covered with snow and practically frozen into it. Her clothing was disarranged and near her were two empty whiskey flasks. She was about 60 years old, wore a black velvet hat, black short coat, black skirt and a red handkerchief around her neck. The body was taken to the morgue.

Mrs. Perkin's Trial.

Cayuga, Feb. 27.—The preliminary hearing in the case of Mrs. Mattie Perkins, for the murder of her husband, has been postponed for a week. It is understood that the crown are not yet ready to go on.

It was given out last night that after the magistrate had heard the case, the counsel for the defence would make application for a change of venue, to have the trial take place in Hamilton, or in Toronto. This is due to the feeling that the community here is already prejudiced against the prisoner, and this might affect the result of the trial.

Kills His Benefactor.

New York, Feb. 27.—Thomas Noonan, a factory watchman, was arrested yesterday, charged with shooting his benefactor and best friend. His victim was Philip McNally, night engineer in the factory where Noonan was employed. Noonan admits the killing, but declares that he acted in self-defence.

The Letter A.

The letter A is in Hebrew called aleph, an ox, and the Phoenician character which represents this sound was originally a picture of an ox head; hence the name. The right hand stroke of the A represents the top of the head, the other down stroke the left side, and a line, since fallen out of use, represented the right side of the head, while in very old Phoenician manuscripts two dots above for eyes and two below for nostrils rendered the resemblance complete.

Branch of Astronomical Society Was Organized Here

At a Meeting After the Lecture at Charlotte St. Church Last Night—President, Secretary and Committee Appointed.

A branch of the Royal Astronomical Society has been organized in Peterborough. Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, is president, and Dr. Neal secretary, and a committee has been appointed to act in conjunction with them in completing the details of organization. The local branch of the society is the outcome of the interest aroused in astronomy in this city since the coming to this district of Rev. Dr. Marsh, who is a noted astronomer and a member of the council of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. The organization took place at a meeting after the lecture at Charlotte street church last evening. About thirty remained for the meeting, which was a most enthusiastic one. Mayor McWilliams was moved to the chair and Rev. Dr. Marsh upon being called upon explained the necessary steps for the organization of a branch of the Royal Astronomical Society here, the benefits to be derived, etc. On motion it was decided to organize a local branch and Dr. Marsh was elected president and Dr. Neal secretary. The following gentlemen were appointed a committee to act with the president and secretary in completing the organization details;—Revs. J. G. Potter and H. M. Manning, Messrs. Wm. Pringle, D. Kasson, W. S. Lowry, Dr. McFaul and Mayor McWilliams.

The membership fee will be $2 per annum. One dollar of this will go towards the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, and the other will remain in the local treasury. For the present the local branch will be affiliated with the Toronto branch, which has been existence for many years and is in a flourishing condition, as also is the branch at Hamilton.

The committee appointed will meet shortly to arrange for a place of meeting and complete other details. The other officers will be elected at a subsequent meeting. The society will likely meet semi-monthly when lectures on astronomical subjects will be given the local branch which should have a most successful career. About twenty signed the membership roll last night, but this number will be largely increased immediately.

FISHING PARTY

Will Make the Hunt Club's Cottage Their Headquarters.

A party of enthusiastic fishermen left this morning for the back country to spend a few days fishing for salmon through the ice. The boys were Messrs. Chas. Butcher, Albert Mitchell, Geo. Howey and Barrett, all members of the Eagle Lake Hunt Club and they will make their headquarters at the Club's cottage. It was intended to start, last Monday, but owing to the severe weather conditions it was postponed. But this morning the sports started with their packs on their backs and expected to reach the hut before time to go to bed. They have a good supply of food, and as there are lots of "sticks" in woods the water will not be too bad for drinking. They expect to have a good time and to bring back some large fish.

Full Control of Trent Power

Mr. Culverwell Tells Kingston Council His Company Has Been Promised Monopoly

Kingston, Feb. 26.—When J. A. Culverwell, managing director of the Northumberland-Durham Power Co. of Cobourg, was addressing the city council last night on the company's desire to supply power to Kingston under hydro-electric commission regulations, Ald. Carson intimated that he knew of other parties who claimed that they would get certain rights to Trent River power. Mr. Culverwell declared that if such parties had made the statement his company would make it hot for them. He said that his company had been promised the full control of the Trent waterpower. Ald. Carson replied that he was in Ottawa and knew that others were after the same rights as Mr. Culverwell's company.

POLICE COURT NEWS

For the first time this week there was something doing in police court circles this morning.

Two drunks occupied the prisoner's box and answered the roll as it was called by His Worship Magistrate Dumble.

A young man was arrested this morning about three o'clock, at Lobdou street, in a very drunken condition. He had hardly recovered from the effects of his spree when he appeared in court. He remarked that he didn't remember whether he was drunk or not last evening. He was found guilty and fined two dollars, to be paid in ten days.

John Williams an old man who comes from Lindsay, was the second one to face the music. The charge against him was being drunk in a public place. Yesterday was his birthday, he said, and he came down to this city to see some friends. While here he carried his celebration a little too far. Williams is employed at the Ross Memorial Hospital at Lindsay. He had only 15 cents in his pocket, but he promised to get out of the city, so His Worship allowed him to go.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

Back So Lame Could Not Walk

DOCTOR'S EFFORTS WERE IN VAIN, BUT CURE CAME WITH THE USE OF

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

It is not always the doctor's fault when he tries to give temporary relief instead of lasting cure. Sometimes patients demand it.

The thorough, far-reaching and lasting effects of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are well illustrated in this case, in contrast with the doctor's failure to even bring relief;

Mr Geo. Tryon, Westport, Leeds Co., Ont., writes;—"For two years I was completely laid up with lame back, and could neither walk nor ride. I tried many treatments and the doctor put on a fly blister, which only increased the suffering and did not do me the slightest good.

"A friend told me about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I had not finished the first box before I was completely cured. I have never had a lame back or kidney trouble since, and it has been the means of selling dozens of boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. We are never without them in the house and think there is no medicine like them."

The urea, uric acid and other poisonous waste substances which are left in the blood after the process of digestion has taken place are eliminated from the system by the action of the kidneys.

Failure of the kidneys to perform this important work of filteration means a poisoning of the whole system and consequently the most painful of diseases, such as Bright's disease, lumbago backache and rheumatism.

The cause of such ailments are most promptly removed by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This great family medicine has a combined action on the liver, kidney and bowels which is not possessed by any similar preparation. The whole system is quickly and thoroughly cleansed and the [illegible] ment. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Mons. Mercier left Toronto eight years ago for Paris to study. After three years study he was chosen from 41 applicants to take the leading tenor role in L'Opera Comique, the home of Grand Opera. Mons. Mercier sang in all the principal cities in Europe in Grand Concert as well as Grand Opera and always with the same degree of success. Massey Hall on that memorable occasion will undoubtedly be taxed to its full capacity. In order that all classes might get an opportunity to hear him it has been decided that it will be a popular price concert.

"Night in the Skies" One of Great Profit

Rev. Dr. Marsh's Lecture Was one of the Treats of the Season

It was a "Night in the Skies" and one of rare profit and entertainment at Charlotte street Sunday school hall last evening, when Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, gave an address on the subject quoted above. The speaker of the evening is one of Canada's leading astronomers and has made a name for himself in this branch of science. Not alone in Canada is he known but he ranks among the leading astronomers of the continent.

Last night's lecture, which was held under the auspices of the Young Men's Guild of Charlotte-st. church, was attended by a large number of Peterborough's best citizens, in fact the spacious hall was not large enough to accommodate all those who wished to be present. The Guild is deserving of congratulations for the success which attended their efforts and also thanks for having been instrumental in providing such a rare treat.

The chair was occupied by Mayor McWilliams, who presided very capably and the meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Manning. This was followed by a splendidly rendered solo, "Sunshine and Rain" by Miss Reesor. Mr. Duncan Campbell also favored the audience with an excellent vocal solo, "The Island of Dreams." The accompaniments were played by Miss Clarry.

Rev Dr. Marsh is a lecturer of much ability. He is instructive and at the same time entertaining, humorous without detracting from the effect of his remarks. His address last evening was illustrated by a large number of stereopticon views, many of the plates being made from photographs taken by Dr. Marsh himself and others made from photographs developed from negatives of photographs taken at the leading observatories in the world. With the aid of the views the lecturer showed the position of the earth, sun, moon and other planets in the heavens and also their movements through space. Numerous views were shown of the sun, moon and planets and of the different groups of stars. While these were thrown on the canvass they were explained in a lucid and entertaining manner by Dr. Marsh.

Astronomy, he said in opening, was one of the oldest and most exact sciences, yet one which a great many people had only a hazy conception of. Astronomy differed from astrology. They were two different things The speaker had often been asked if he could tell fortunes by the stars, and if the star under which a person was born had any influence on the life. Dr. Marsh jocularly remarked that he considered the reason why Mayor McWilliams and himself had been so successful was because they were born under all the stars.

Dr Marsh's lecture had to be heard to be appreciated and it is impossible in a short newspaper article to attempt to go into it in any detail. In commencing his address Dr. Marsh explained the derivation of the word astronomy. It is from the Latin words, astronus, a star, and nomer, a name. It was one of the oldest of the sciences, yet one of which very little was generally known, although the heavenly bodies were constantly before our gaze. Speaking of the differences between astronomy and astrology [illegible] omers of the world were nearly all respectable, but he could not say this much for many of the astrologers.

IS MARS INHABITED?

In speaking of the planet Mars, Dr. Marsh dealt with the subject as to whether or not it was inhabited. No one could answer this question. All that could be said was that the conditions on Mars should be favorable for the existence of human beings. The air was much more rarified than that of our earth but experiments had shown that it was possible for human beings to become accustomed to and live without difficulty in air much more rarified than found on certain portions of the earth. The photographs of Mars showed on its surface small lines which some persons had likened unto canals. That these lines are there, there is no doubt, but whether they are canals or what they are, cannot be told.

The views shown were splendid and afforded the audience a grand opportunity of seeing what the heavenly bodies look like from the end of a powerful telescope. Those present were made to realize more than ever before the greatness and sublimity of the heavens and to ponder over the mysteries of the worlds about us and the infiniteness of the space in which they move.

VOTE OF THANKS.

At the conclusion of the lecture a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. Dr. Marsh was moved in appropriate language by Rev. J. G. Potter and seconded by Mr. R. J. Kidd. It was carried amidst great applause as those present were thoroughly delighted with the evening's entertainment.

BRAINS WORTH $50,000

Cleveland Youth is Paid $1,000 for Loss of a Spoonful.

A Cleveland despatch says,—George Bevens was awarded $1,000 yesterday for the loss of a spoonful of brains which he sustained in an accident at the Central High School Annex a few months ago. He sued for $20,000.

George is both disappointed and proud. He is disappointed because the contractors who were responsible for his injury were not forced to pay him the full amount for the brains he prized so highly. He is also proud because at the rate the court set as a standard his entire brains are valued at about $50,000. The judgment was rendered against George A. Cook, contractor.

Character in Medicine

In medicine, as in every sphere of human action, it is character that tells. Every prescription that Dr. A. W. Chase gave to his fellowmen is full of character, full of the honest, sterling character, which made the grand old doctor respected, admired and loved by all who knew him. The integrity of Dr. Chase is shown in every one of his famous family medicines.

THE TAX RATE.

The city council deserves credit for fixing the tax rate at the same figure as last year—seventeen and a half mills. This is probably the lowest rate of any city in Ontario and evidences wise, progressive and economical management on the part of the council of the present and past years. The levy of 1906 is being maintained without any branch of the civic service being stinted or insufficiently provided for. Ample provision has been made for the board of works, fire and light, property and other committees, and a reasonable sum set apart for contingencies. True, the expenditure in a large and growing centre like Peterborough, will be more than last year, but the increased demand is met by the extra revenue from the augmented assessment and the $6,000 surplus of 1906. The gain in assessment was about $400,000 and this will yield a tax income of $7,000 or over, so that the council of 1907 has really about $13,000 more at its disposal. The Board of Works has been given an appropriation of $17,400, the fire department $6,500, the Public schools, $35,000, the Separate schools, $6,150, and the Collegiate Institute $9,500. The assessment of the city for municipal purposes is $6,862,591. The property valuations in Peterborough, while they may be comparatively high, yield ample revenue at 17 1-2 mills for all the demands likely to be made upon the city this year. If the council can now administer the affairs of Peterborough during the coming ten months, so that there will not be a deficit at the end of 1907, the members will have done remarkably well. No provision has been made this year for setting aside a sinking fund and interest for the Collegiate Institute and North Ward school debentures. The bonds will likely be carried over until next year as it is not expected these buildings will be entirely completed this term, and, therefore, provision for this outlay may very properly be left over until 1908.

WORK TO DO

It is high time in a city of the size and importance of Peterborough that a branch of the Royal Humane Society was established. Complaints are frequently made of the ill-treatment and cruelty of horses and other animals. True, the police discover a number of such cases and prosecutions are made, but it is too much to expect constables to detect all the cases which have been reported of late. The practice of abusing dumb beasts has become altogether too common and should be checked. Examples should be made of a few constant offenders and then such scenes will not be almost of daily occurrence. An active, aggressive Humane Society would be helpful in seeing that the law was enforced, and there are legal gentlemen in the city who would gladly undertake the work of assisting in bringing culprits to time. As it is now, the ordinary private citizen is loath to lodge a complaint, and what is everybody's business is too often nobody's business. The quality of mercy can well be exercised. The horse is man's best friend, and inhuman and callous drivers often do not evidence as much sense as the equine itself. Boys frequently whip horses when there is not the slightest excuse or justification for the use of the lash, and even older men make the poor beasts draw far too heavy loads, work them when they are very lame, or suffering from sore and galled shoulders. A man, who is not merciful and considerate of the comfort and proper feeding of a horse is not worthy to own a dumb animal. The horse is a servant of man, but, unfortunately, cannot turn on its tormentor when goaded almost to desperation by beating or abuse. The world judges a man to a large degree by the treatment he accords his horse or cow. The time is certainly opportune for the organization of a branch of the Humane Society in the city. It is a movement worthy of every support, and should enlist the active sympathy and earnest co-operation of all who believe in the words of William Cowper:

"I would not enter on my list of friends,
Though graced with polished manners and fine sense,
Yet lacking sensibility, the man
Who needlessly sets foot upon a worm.
An inadvertent step may crush the snail
That crawls at evening in the public path.
But he that hath humanity forewarned
Will tread aside and let the reptile live."

THE MARKET BUILDING.

The time is coming—and is not far distant either —, when Peterborough will find it necessary to have a covered or sheltered square for the farmers, if the prestige and popularity of the Peterborough market is to be maintained. Farmers, who drive many miles to reach the city, do not relish having to stand out in the snow, rain or scorching sunshine, while disposing of their products. They should be afforded some shelter and the city council might well consider some proposal with this end in view. It appears also that the butter market was not properly heated on Saturday last, which was a bitterly cold day. Farmer's wives, who reached Peterborough in a half frozen condition, thoroughly benumbed with cold, had to enter shops and offices to get warm. Of course, the temperature was low and those responsible for heating the building, probably did not consider in time the severity of the weather. It is hoped that any cause for complaint will henceforth be removed. It is not possible to heat the large building and make it as comfortable as a private house, yet the atmosphere inside was almost as frigid as it was outside last Saturday. The market structure should be warmed so that the women selling butter and eggs can remain in it and not suffer. It is hoped that the experience of a few days ago should be repeated and that in future greater care and foresight will be exercised.

PASTEURIZATION

Ottawa Journal

Just at the moment while the milk supply and the purification of it is occupying so much attention in Ottawa it may be timely to remark upon the view advanced by a correspondent of the Journal the other day, that all milk must be pasteurized to be absolutely free from disease germs.

Many scientists have given much of their time to inquiry concerning the milk question and many, as a result of their observations, oppose pasteurization. They class pasteurized milk with canned foods, or embalmed beef without the chemicals. One eminent New York physician claims that to advocate pasteurization of milk is to acknowledge our inability to be clean and raise healthy cows, producing clean, healthy milk.

When people come to know that pasteurizing milk is simply a process designed to kill the disease germs, which at the same time, destroys the vitality of the milk, lowering the nutritive value of this fluid very materially, and when they come to understand this proposition as a truism, they will agree that the most rigid inspection of dairies possible, is the best step towards purification of the milk supply.

The members of the newly organized Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomical Society are not necessarily moonshiners.

Some of the new members of the astronomical organization may perhaps tell us when the sun dogs are barking or the moon goes off and gets full.

It appears that the railways are going to eliminate all cheap fares on Civic Holiday. We will have to get Mr. W. F. Maclean, of two cent a mile fame, to take up our grievance.

Quill Lake, Sask., is a flourishing little town, yet it held its first funeral the other day. Judging by the way it is written up in the Quill, the funeral was quite a novelty.

A peculiarity in the appointment of the new police magistrate for Belleville is that the appointee was not even an applicant. May there be more such appointments throughout the province.—Kingston News.

The wife of a Polish miner at Middleboro, Kentucky, is emphatic against race suicide. She quite surprised her husband by giving birth to five children—three sons and two daughters. All are living, and so was the father at last reports.

Mr. J. P. Downey, M.P.P., has introduced in the Legislature a bill to provide for the creation of county associations to treat tuberculosis. The importance of this bill is readily seen by those who have studied the progress of this disease in Ontario, and the sooner that active steps such as the measure suggests are taken to prevent its spread, the sooner will the people of this province be provided with the protection that is due them.

Fines to the amount of $1,150 have been collected as result of breaches of the liquor act in Cobalt. Provincial officer Morrison raided 22 "blind pigs," and seized large quantities of all kinds of intoxicating liquors. There have been a number of requests for licenses in Cobalt and as much as $10,000 is said to have been offered the government for a license. Cobalt being now an incorporated town, it does not come within the law prohibiting the issuing of liquor licenses within five miles of a mining camp.

Here is a roast for banquets in the Kingston News; Saturday night another "smoker" was held in the cosy quarters of the Masters' and Mates' Association. It was the best held this winter, and the members are wondering how they could be so foolish as to spend $100 or so over a banquet once a year, where all was starch and fuss, eating and drinking in grizzly gravity with a few set speeches, but no fun. A few paid singers, but no real enjoyment. At the weekly smokers, it is very different. Everyone is made to feel it his duty to do something to amuse and entertain his comrades and their friends.

The two cent a mile railway bill introduced by Mr. W. F. Maclean, M.P., may be pusted now by the Commons, but the time will come when both political parties will gladly line up on the side of cheaper fares. Seven states in the American Union have during the past week established two cent fares and it will likely be adopted by several other states. Canadians will remember the days when they paid three cent postage on ordinary letters, but who would think of returning to it to-day. "The world do move," as is evidenced by the ten cent magazine, the cent daily, the automobile craze and the Thaw murder trial.

That a new era has dawned in the politics and administration of provincial affairs in Ontario was abundantly evidenced this week when, in response to a large deputation representing all the natural gas districts of the province, to protest against the proposed tax on natural gas wells, Hon. Frank Cochrane told the members that the Government placed principle before party. It did not matter whether the proposed tax was a vote getting one or not. The Government took the stand that all deriving special benefit from the natural resources of Ontario should be willing to contribute a fair share to the income of the province. The Minister of Lands and Mines plainly intimated that the administration would do its duty, regardless of consequences.

THEY WILL WALK 25,000 MILES

Two Young Men Start Out on a Big Wager.

A London despatch says;

In the same manner in which an ordinary person might announce that they were going home to dinner, two young Londoners announced that they had decided to start out on a trip around the world on a wager that in one year and eleven months they would have gone the 25,000 odd miles.

The men were H. L. Tiffany, whose home is in Delaware and W E. Drayton, who resides at 79 Maple street. Both have lived in this city for some time and have done considerable travelling over the North American Continent as well. These prospective globe - circlers are young men in their prime, each weighing about 160 pounds, and appearing to be in perfect physical condition.

TO LEAVE ON MARCH 5TH

They have been contemplating the trip for some time, and will commence on or about March 5th, leaving London in the early morning and striking for the Western States, making the first point where they will take ship, at San Francisco.

As far as it is possible they will walk the entire distance carrying about 30 pounds of luggage and securing all money only by the sale of picture post-cards.

The wager is for $6,000 and the money is put up by a man named F. R. Thompson, of New York with whom the young men have been in communication for some time. He is an enthusiast on globe circling, and recently made a standing offer of the sum stated to anyone who completed the trip in the time stated, under the agreement that they were to start out without a cent of money and would not be allowed to represent any firm while on their travels.

EQUAL TO THE TASK.

Both appear to be men of dogged, determined characters, and they appear to be equal to the task which they have undertaken.

They were photographed the other day and are making all preparations for the long tramp, studying out various routes and countries diligently.

They will communicate with friends in London at stated points along the road, and by letter report the interesting features of the trip.

GIRLS ENTERING WOMANHOOD

FIND BILEANS A BOON.

Mothers who have daughters just on the critical borderland over which the girl passes into the fuller life of womanhood, will find, Bileans a great boon. They make rich, red blood, and strengthen and invigorate the internal organs involved in the great change. Mrs. T. Beadle, of Home Place, Toronto, says: "My daughter, Elsie (13), was feeling far from well this winter. She complained of frequent headache and was always weakly, tired and drowsy. She seemed altogether without energy or strength. Each morning her tongue was coated and her appetite failed. She was sometimes so dizzy that on stooping she almost fell, and she was also troubled a great deal with constipation. One single box of Bileans made a world of difference in her and so I continued to give her this remedy. Within a few weeks they built her up wonderfully and they are keeping her in the best of health."

Bileans also cure anaemia, green sickness, debility, sick headache, [illegible] sciatica, and all liver and kidney ailments. They tone up the system and enable it to throw off colds, chills, etc. All druggists and stores sell Bileans at 50c. a box or obtainable from the Bilean Co., Toronto, for price. 6 boxes sent for $2.50.

Just to Get Even With Relatives

Cape Breton Man Willed all His Estate to Pigs and Keepers

Just to get even with his relatives who, he declared, had fawned on him for years and derided him behind his back while waiting for him to die that they might inherit his life savings, Robert MacDonald bequeathed everything he owned to his two pigs, says a Cape Breton despatch to the New York World. The estate amounts to about $8,000, and every cent is to go to the porkers and their keepers.

MacDonald had no kin, but a dozen distant relatives kept close track of him, and he declared shortly before his death, that their only interest was his money. This belief soured him against his cousins, but they were not aware of the fact, and when the old man passed away a fortnight ago, they hastened to hear the will read. They were greatly astonished and intensely indignant when they learned of the disposition of the property.

While MacDonald had never been known to keep swine, he no sooner learned from his doctor that he must prepare to die, than he sent to a neighboring farmer and bought two young pigs, a male and a female. These he caused to be placed and fed in a pen at the rear of the house. He then sent for his solicitor and dictated his will, saying that if he gave his fortune of $8,000 to his cousins, it "would be in the hands of pigs who denied their identities" and that he "might as well give it to the porkers which made no pretences."

By the terms of this unique document, the house is to be sold at auction. The funds accruing from the sale are then to be banked and the interest together with the income of all other funds possessed by Mr. MacDonald at the time of his death, is to be used to feed and care for the two pigs. The attendant is to provide a pen at his own expense and receive for rental and care the sum of $2 per week, exclusive of the amount paid for food. The attendant is also to be the executor for which service he is to receive the regular legal fee.

The Broad Church is Progressive

Eloquent Sermon Delivered by Rev. Dr. Symonds in Montreal

The Review has received a neat booklet containing a report of a sermon preached on "The Broad church," by Rev. Dr. Symonds, vicar of Christ Church cathedral, Montreal, formerly of Peterborough. The sermon was delivered on Dec. 30th last and created such a deep impression that it was published by request. The reverend gentleman said in part,—The Board Church then stands for comprehension upon the basis not of any elaborate system of thought or doctrine, nor upon that of uniformity in ritual and worship, but upon the broad basis of personal devotion to a living Christ. At this point it stands related to the Low church school. It regards the person and teaching of Christ as the basis of all Christian thought and practice; it is, too, in accord with the same school of thought in placing the Bible at the head of our religious authorities, "only it insists that the Bible to which we appeal shall be the Bible studied and understood; the Bible in the light of criticism, of science, and of history." On the other hand, the Broad Church school is in touch with the High Church in its emphasis upon the idea of the Church as a world wide religious community. What it desires to show is that it "is possible to have a strong idea of the claims, the mission, the destiny of the Christian Society, without mistaking the Clergy for the Church, and without making the mechanical fact or fiction of the Apostolic Succession into the touchstone of Catholicity."

The Broad Church is progressive in spirit. And herein lies the appropriateness of this subject for the last Sunday of another year. Let us not look too regretfully upon the past, whether it be that of our own individual lives or the history of the Church. Some may sigh for the tone and temper of the 4th century, some may wish they lived in the times of the Reformation, some may think that forty or fifty years ago, when all these troublesome questions were unheard of, that then were the good old times. Ah, think again! Were there no ills in the 4th century? Was it not in those times that bishops kicked each other to death in their councils, and that a band of ignorant monks assassinated the noblest woman of the day!

And as unbiassed historians are setting forth to us the true facts of the Reformation, we find that, whilst it was a progressive age, it was very far from being the golden age of the church.

It is not much more than one hundred years since scores of innocent women were destroyed by grave theologians on the charge of witchcraft. It is the progress of thought that has abolished that ignorant cruelty.

One hundred years ago, one of the best and most learned men of the day (he was not by any means the only one), could say to aproving congregations, that one of the supreme joys of the saved would be the spectacle of the tortures of the damned. We should not like to be told that today.

Whether [illegible]ling forty years ago, over surplices in the pulpit or in the choir? Ah, dear brethren, on this last Sunday of the year, I bid you once more, have faith in God, have faith that the world is growing better. Look forward, not backward; look upward, not downward. Do not let your love or your zeal grow cold. But with cheerfulness, with confidence, with love to God and love to man, let us take up the task that is committed to the Church of the twentieth century, the task of "transforming the modern world into a Christian Society, and together with the scattered forces of divided Christendom into a confederation in which organization will be of less account than fellowship with one spirit and faith in one Lord—into a Communion wide as human life, and deep as human need—into a Church which shall outshine even the golden glory of its dawn by the splendor of the eternal noon."

"Beauty and the Beast" Company Disbanded at Ottawa

An Ottawa despatch says: Philanthropy of an unusual description was displayed by the proprietor of the "Sleeping Beauty and the Beast" company, which closed its career in this city.

The show had been playing to poor business, and after Saturday night's performance it was decided to take it off the road. Instead of disbanding the company right here, each member was given transportation back to New York, the point from which they started.

Had it not been for this kindness on the part of the management, some of the company might have been counting the ties at the present moment.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper, which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable or more gloomy and discouraged than liver complaint and [illegible] and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

MOUNT CLEMENS, MICHIGAN.

Mount Clemens is famous throughout America as an all-the-year-round health resort, and thousands of people bear testimony to the benefits derived from its mineral waters in cases of rheumatism and kindred diseases. For bilious and liver troubles, digestive troubles, nervous disorders, general debility, etc., the efficacy of its waters is wonderful. Seventy-five per cent. of rheumatics are cured, and ninety per cent benefitted. Write J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent, Grand Trunk Railway System, Toronto, for handsome descriptive booklet, telling you all about it.

They do Not Sing Psalm Selections

The Rev. Professor Laird, M. A., conducted both service in the Mill street Presbyterian church yesterday, and received a royal welcome form his many Port Hope friends. Mr. Laird was one of the most esteemed pastors Mill street church ever had, and all are delighted to hear him again, after an absence of seven years. A noticeable feature was the opening of both services by psalm selections. St. Paul's and Mill Street Presbyterians seldom sing the Psalms, but the good old-fashioned Presbyterians still think that the service is not complete without a few verses of the psalter.—Port Hope Guide.

Poor Man's Invention Adds To the Coffers of the Rich

John B. Cline, an Old Cobourg Boy, Invents an Improved Rail Joint, But is Persuaded to Sell Patent Outright, Not Having Funds to Put it on Market Himself.

A Detroit despatch says,—John B. Cline, who was raised in Cobourg, Ontario, and who is well known in London and Toronto, although he invented a rail-joint that is now being manufactured by a $2,000,000 company in Spokane, Washington, is compelled to work at a laborer's wage in this city to keep body and soul together. He received his first patent of the rail joint in 1903, and in 1906 he received two more patents on the same invention. Thinking that perhaps he could interest no railroad man in his invention, he went to work on the Canadian Pacific Railway in British Columbia, leaving his family in London, Ont. While at work there he met a western man who had money, and to whom he explained his patent. The Westerner at once saw the superiority of the invention and offered to take an interest in it. His offer was accepted and the money was furnished Cline to pay the costs of patents in Great Britain, United States and Canada. The two men then went to Spokane, Washington, where a stock company was organized, and preparations made to manufacture a large model rail joint. Railroad men to whom the new device was shown were enthusiastic over it, and experimented with it on their lines. The results were gratifying. The rail joints prevents passenger cars from pounding and jarring the passengers. With the common system now in use the square ends of the rails meet the wheels as an obstacle, causing a certain stoppage, and jolting and jarring is the inevitable result. The Cline rail joint insures a continuous tread of the wheels, prevents spreading, and thereby averts accidents.

The inventor knew that he had a superior article, something every railroad in the world would want, yet when the company was organized at Spokane for its manufacture, the men who were financing the enterprise would not take hold of it, unless he would sell the patent outright. They finally gave him a few hundred dollars for an article which is now making them each independently rich. While these men are reaping their harvest of dollars Cline, the man with the brains that gave the invention is working for a paltry salary.

Peterborough And Lacrosse

What will Peterborough do in the lacrosse line during the coming season? This is a question that is already being discussed, although it will be several moons before the players with the gutted sticks will disport themselves on the green sward. But with the passing of the hockey season lacrosse talk comes to the fore and the prospects of the game are already interesting the enthusiasts. One thing is certain, Peterborough juniors will be again in the field and are going to go strong after the junior honors. The boys in the green sweaters made an excellent showing last year, although many of the players were new at the game, and with the experience obtained should pretty nearly land at the top of the ladder. Nearly all last year's players will be on hand when the grass grows green again in Riverside Park and will again don their lacrosse togs.

It is stated that an intermediate team will also be entered in the C.L.A if a suitable district can be arranged. Last season was a most unsatisfactory one as far as the local club was concerned, owing to the other clubs in the district dropping out of the league. It is hoped that this year a more satisfactory agreement can be made.

FIRST GAMES LAST NIGHT

The opening games in the President versus Vice President match were played at the curling rink last night. Four rinks were played and at the finish the president's side was four up, the score being 40—36 The rinks and scores were as follows;

Final Games in the City Leagne

Will Charlotte St. or Strathconas Capture the Championship?

Great excitement prevails over the final hockey games in the city league contest at the Brock street rink to-morrow night, and particularly in connection with the first one, as it will decide who will hold the cup for the coming year. Charlotte-st. and Strathconas will clash in the first contest and in all probability there there will be a record crowd as this game is the general talk on the streets these days. It will be a keenly contested struggle. The spectators will have something to keep their attention all the time, and it is likely the crowd will be kept in an excited mood from start to finish. The teams are about equal in every respect and it is no easy task to say who will be the winners. Each team has won the same number of games, and two aggregations with such a standing certainly ought to make a good hockey match, and one that should draw a large crowd.

The Orphans and Auburns play the second match and all those who attend will certainly get their money's worth by seeing two fast games of hockey.

'Twill Surely be A Gallant Fight

At ten o'clock this morning the telegraph wires flashed to all parts of the civilized world the news that the date for the annual hockey match between the Review and Examiner has been fixed for Thursday night March 7th, between eight and nine o'clock. The result was wonderful. The German Emperor at once cabled for four gallery seats, Review stock went up in leaps and bounds, while there was a corresponding depression in Examiner holdings and even the Thaw trial was knocked out of business for fifteen minutes, while Delmas and Jerome went around the corner to place some money on the game.

Without any desire to emulate the methods of our back yard contemporary which has at all times shown a proclivity to engage in boastful verbosity (copyright applied for) the Review may say that its team expects to trim Hutchinson, Huston, Craig, Theobald, Clarke, et al, to a standstill and make them look like a back country magistrate's court compared to the Thaw trial.

The admission to the game will be ten cents. Half of the proceeds will go towards the Children's Aid Society and the remainder to the rink management. The newspapermen will refuse to accept a cent for their services.

CAUGHT BY THE GRIP-- RELEASED BY PE-RU-NA.

La Grippe Is Epidemic Catarrh.

LA GRIPPE spares no class or nationality. The cultured and the ignorant, the aristocrat and the pauper, the masses and the classes are all subject to la grippe. None are exempt—all are liable.

La grippe is well-named. The original term, la grippe, is French, but it has been shortened by the busy American to one word "grip."

Without any intention of doing so, a new word has been coined which describes the disease exactly.

The ailment clings to the patient as tenaciously as if some terrible giant had clutched him in a fatal clasp.

Men, women and children—whole towns and cities are caught in the baneful grip of this terrible monster.

Have you the grip? Or, rather, has the grip caught you? If so, read the following letters.

These testimonials will show you the quickest and best means of ridding yourself of this tenacious disease and its after-effects.

Suffered Twelve Years From After-Effects of La Grippe.

Mr. Victor Patneaude, 8?8 Madison St., Topeka, Kas., a well-known carpenter and member of Knights and Ladies of Security, writes:

"Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength—but grew weaker every year, until I was unable to work.

"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my strength so that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again.

"This winter I had another attack of la grippe, but Peruna soon drove it out of my system.

"My wife and I consider Peruna a household remedy."

Pneumonia Followed La Grippe—Pe-ru-na, the Remedy That Brought Relief.

Mr. T. Barnecott, West Aylmer, Ontario, Can., writes:

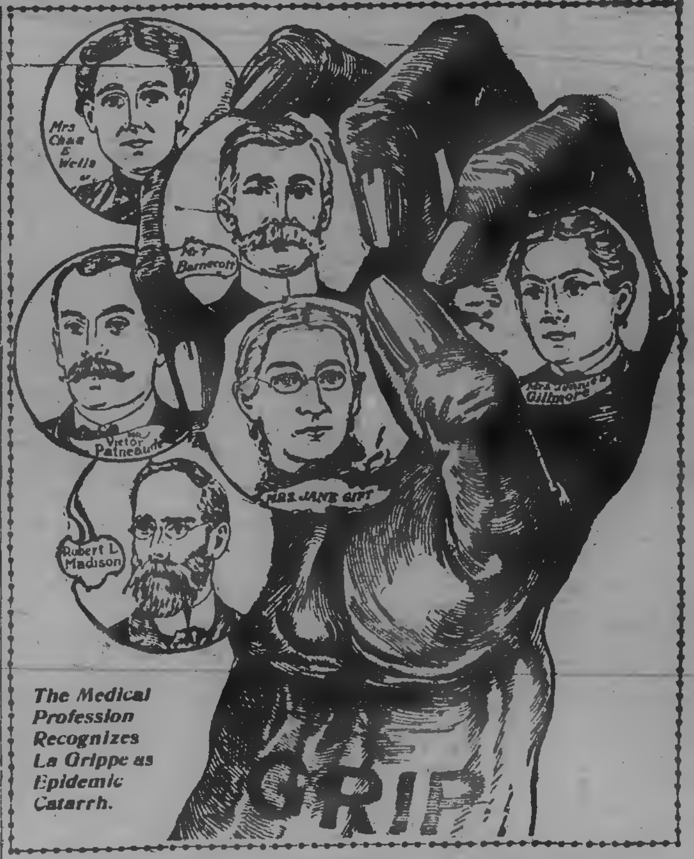
"Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I took Peruna for two months, when I became quite well, and I can say that any one can be cured by it in a reasonable time and at little expense.

"Every time I take a cold, I take some Peruna, which makes me well again.

"I also advised it for my daughter who was so ill with prostration that she could not follow her trade of dress making.

"A bottle of Peruna made such a change in her that she has been able to follow her trade ever since.

"I also induced a young lady, who was all rundown and confined to the house, to take Peruna, and after taking Peruna for three months she is able to follow her trade of tailoring.



"I can recommend Peruna for all such who are ill and require a tonic."

Systemic Catarrh, the Result of La Grippe. Pe-ru-na Receives Credit for Present Good Health.

Mrs. Jennie W. Gillmore, Box 44, White Oak, Ind. Ter., formerly Housekeeper for Indiana Reform School for Boys, writes:

"Six years ago I had la grippe, which was followed by systemic catarrh.

"The only thing I used was Peruna and Manalin, and I have been in better health the last three years than for years before.

"I give Peruna all the credit for my good health."

Pe-ru-na—A Tonic After La Grippe.

Mrs. Chas. E. Wells, Sr., Delaware, Ohio, writes:

"After a severe attack of la grippe, I took Peruna and found it a very good tonic."

Judge Horatio J. Goss, Hartwell, Ga., writes: "I had a severe spell of la grippe which left me with systemic catarrh. A friend advised me to try Peruna. The third bottle completed the cure."

"Most Effective Medicine Ever Tried for La Grippe."

Robt. L. Madison, A. M., Principal of Cullowhee High School, Painter, N. C., is chairman of the Jackson County Board of Education. He has for nearly six years been teaching in Painter.

He is a writer of occasional verse and has contributed to a number of leading papers and magazines,—religious, educational and secular.

In speaking of Peruna, Mr. Madison says:

"I am hardly ever without Peruna in my home. It is the most effective medicine that I have ever tried for la grippe.

"It also cured my wife of nasal catarrh. Her condition at one time was such that she could not at night breathe through her nostrils.

"In consequence, an inflamed condition of the throat was brought about, getting worse and worse, and yielding to no remedy until Peruna was tried."

For special instructions, address Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

HOCKEY

GOOD PRACTICES.

The Charlotte street team practiced from seven to eight and the Strathconas from ten to eleven last evening. The teams had a good work out, and both showed up well in their practice. Both teams are confident of winning and it will be a keenly contested game to-morrow night.

INDIANS WIN ROUND.

St. George's managed to beat Stratford in Toronto last night 8—6 but the Indians win the round by a margin of six goals. They will now go into the finals with Kingston.

TO THE DRY GOODS CLERKS.

The Pill Pounders hereby challenge the dry goods clerks to a game of hockey to be played as soon as the rink can be secured. The counter hoppers should be able to pick out a good team from Hall's, Cressman's, and Turnbull's and make the Pill Pounders travel some to win from them.

A TIE GAME.

COBOURG PROTESTS.

Cobourg has protested Friday's game with Smith's Falls Mic-Macs on the ground that James Leever, of the Smith's Falls team, is not a bona-fide resident of Smith's Falls. The Cobourg club says that he worked in Carleton Place from September until January 9th, when he returned to Smith's Falls. Leever, in reply, admits working at Carleton Place, but claims he was home every Sunday, and often during the week, and that he always regarded Smith's Falls as his home.

TORONTO PROS. BEATEN

Berlin defeated the Toronto Pros, in the Dutch camp last night by 7 goals to 6. It was one of the best games of the season.

O.H.A. NEWS.

The semi-final dates for the intermediate surviving teams in the O.H.A have been arranged. Berlin and Smith's Falls will meet in a sudden death match at Port Hope next Thursday night and Parry Sound will play the winner of the Collingwood-St. George's round at Barrie Friday night. The finals will be home and home, if at all possible, early next week.

There will be no sudden death game to decide the junior championship. Lindsay wanted to settle it at Toronto in one match, but Stratford preferred home and home on the ground that they owed it to their patrons who supported them all winter. And home and home it will be, at Lindsay Thursday and at Stratford Saturday, with Whitehead, of Toronto, as referee.

Stratford had advertised their senior final at home for Tuesday, as fixed and cannot grant Kingston's wish to make it Monday. Hancock will referee both games.

COBOURG PROTEST LOST.

The protest of Cobourg against Smith's Falls for playing James Leaver, who, they said, was ineligible under the residence rule, having worked in Carleton Place, 18 miles away, from Sept. 6 to Jan. 6 was decided in favor of Smith's Falls on the ground that his place of residence had always really been Smith's Falls and because there evidently was no notion of importing for hockey purposes.

At Rome, N.Y., the wire drawing plant of the Wire and Telephone Co. of America, was destroyed by fire on Saturday, entailing a loss of about $100,000.

Stratford Player Killed in Wreck

In the death of Charlie Rankin yesterday afternoon in the railroad accident near Guelph, Stratford Hockey Club loses one of its most valued members. Charlie was well known throughout the O.H.A., hav- ing refereed in almost every town in Western Ontario.

He had only officiated in a few games this season, but was to have handled the bell in to-night's St. George's-Collingwoo match.

Charlie, who had only been married about a month, was the oldest of the Rankin family of hockey fame. His brother, Jimmie, was counted one of the best forwards in the game about seven years ago. Another brother, now dead, played point for the Stratford juniors when they were defeated by Upper Canada College, 11—10, in 1902, in that memorable game when they had to play half an hour overtime. Reg. in goal, and Frank, rover, of the present junior O.H.A. team, are younger brothers of the deceased.

Charlie was about 35 years of age, a [illegible] man of exemplary habits and a quiet disposition. Much of the success of the Stratford Hockey Club to-day can be attributed to him. His loss will be a bad blow to the hockey club.

On board the train were the Stratford Senior Hockey Club, who were returning from the St. George's game game in Toronto Monday night, but all appear to have escaped without injury

As the result of the above, the O.H.A. semi-finals, in which the two Stratford teams are figuring, have been called off, and the dates will be settled by the O.H.A. this morning.

Miss Walker, of George Street School, Honored

Miss Winnie Walker, who has for some two years been on the staff of the Peterborough public schools, and recently accepted a position as teacher in Toronto, was honored by her pupils of the second book classes, in George street school this afternoon.

An appreciative and neatly worded address was read by Master Harold Knapman and a presentation of a handsome gilt clock was made on behalf of the pupils by Miss Maudie Bogue. Miss Walker, who was most agreeably surprised made an appropriate and grateful reply. She will be succeeded on the George street school staff by Miss Stubbs of Lakefield.

REGULATIONS WERE REVISED

Agricultural Society Sub-Committee Met Last Night

An important meeting in conection with the Agricultural Society was held in President R. H. Leary's office last night. It was the Special Committee appointed to revise the rules and regulations governing the society. As a result there will be practically a new constitution, and all members and intending exhibitors will do well to acquaint themselves with them. Those present were: Messrs R. H. Leary, President; Wm. Collins acting secretary; W E Conway, John Garbutt, Sam Redmond, George E. Elliott, G. A. Gillespie and J H. Brooks.

Many changes were made and a report prepared for the next meeting of the directors on Thursday, March 7th. At that meeting committees of management to act during the exhibition will also be appointed, and committees to solicit advertisements for the prize lists and for special prizes will also be selected.

The fair directors this year are adopting plans which will create a general interest in the fair, and there is every reason to expect that the exhibits will be more numerous and of a higher standard, and that the attendance will be larger than ever.

Able Paper Read Before Y.M.C.A. Debating Club by Mr. Shiner

There was a good attendance at the Y.M.C.A. Debating Club last night and the meeting added another to the splendid series held this season.

The Club decided to accept the challenge of St. Andrew's Guild to a debate next month in St. Andrew's hall. Messrs. Shiner and Little will represent the club.

The feature of the programme was the comprehensive paper by Mr. W. Shiner on "Municipal Ownership" — facts and figures from Great Britain.

The subject was handled in a very clear and convincing manner by the reader of the paper.—the weight of evidence going to show the success that had attended the ownership of public utilities by corporations not only in the old country, but in Canada. Failures of some enterprises were also noted but were attributed to bad management in most cases.

The successful management of the local waterworks under the commission in charge of it was pointed out as a good argument for the taking over of electric light and other facilities by the city.

The paper was followed by a discussion in which many of the members participated.

Critic Hodgson in summing up, gave Mr. Shiner much praise for the paper, and complimented the members they had shown of municipal affairs.

The club then adjourned to meet on Wednesday, March 13th, when the subject will be "Resolved that Modern Inventions have not added to the Happiness of the Human Race."

WEAK MEN AND WOMEN

The Most Perfect Restorative Known and Invigorating Tonic Vitalizer —Greatest Health-Renewer

Nature's greatest cure for weak, pale men and women is Ferrozone. It is invaluable for run-down, overworked, delicate people, and will restore them to robust health more quickly, at smaller expense, than any other tonic you can select.

We quote the following cases to show what Ferrozone has done for others. In your case it will act just as efficiently:—

FOR BUSINESS MEN

The Experience of a Well-known Lawyer Proves Ferrozone an Ideal Tonic.

Mr. N. W. Burke, a well known lawyer in Meriden, says:—"When I first took Ferrozone I was in a nervous run-down condition, almost sick enough to give up work. I lacked strength, and felt as if I could not get down to work. Ferrozone at once gave me a good appetite, and drove away the nervous, apprehensive feelings that formerly made my life miserable. As I continued the use of Ferrozone I grew stronger, and am glad to say it has brought me back to perfect health. I know that Ferrozone is an excellent tonic for business men and people inclined to a sedentary life. I can recommend it to such."

FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

Nothing Compares With the Nerve-Strengthening Power of Ferrozone.

Mrs. E. D. Emmerson, of Centreville, says:—"I am glad to think that there is at least one honest remedy for nervous people. No one can imagine what I suffered with my nerves, and I sometimes wonder at the number of useless prescriptions and medicines I took. But Ferrozone acted differently from all the rest. It built up my system, and gradually the irritability left my nerves and I got well. Ferrozone cured me by removing the cause of my trouble, and by giving me enough additional strength to overthrow the attack of nervousness. I can recommend Ferrozone strongly."

THOUSANDS ANNUALLY CURED BY FERROZONE

If you want to get well and keep well, by all means use Ferrozone. If you suffer from insomnia, nervousness, debility, loss of appetite, poor digestion, or any other symptom of disordered blood, nothing will tone up and vitalize your system like Ferrozone. Price 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all druggists, or sent safely by mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

Government Will Inspect Cobalt Mining Claims.

Fish and Game Laws Amended—Will Amalgamate Two Branches of Public Works Department—Inspectors to Be Appointed—Close Seasons Enacted—Must Not Hunt On Sunday—Export Duty On Minerals.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—The legislative session is demonstrating, day by day, the diligence, comprehensive outlook and sound judgment of the present Provincial Government. Important measures, in whose preparation much careful consideration of details and the wide vision of the general interests of the people is evidenced, are being submitted by every governmental department. The last session of the present Legislature was universally recognized to be unique in the quantity and quality of its progressive enactments. The present session indicates no falling off in this direction. Although comparatively yet young, several bills of great public importance are already before the House, [illegible] forthcoming. In the Whitney administration the people of Ontario are having an active, energetic and capable Government.

Fish and Game Laws.

There were two outstanding features in yesterday's session of the Legislature, the introduction by Hon. Dr. Reaume, Minister of Public Works, of the Government bill regarding fish and game, which is in many respects most radical, and the important pronouncements of Government policy by Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands and Mines, while his new mining bills were under discussion in committee.

Inspect Mining Claims.

Mr. Cochrane said the Government purposed setting aside a section of the Cobalt district in which the claims would be inspected before titles were given. This was not necessary generally, but in a rich section, where claims were readily saleable, whether minerals existed or not, this safeguard was deemed necessary. This policy is to be extended to the Larder Lake district, though in all cases, the Minister said, claims that are staked now will come under this plan. Mr. Cochrane also intimated that Prof. Miller, the present Government geologist, and Prof. Brook, of Kingston, will make the inspection for the department.

To Be Amalgamated.

Hon. Dr. Reaume's bill is entitled "An Act respecting the Game, Fur-bearing Animals and Fisheries of Ontario." It will take the place of the Ontario Game Protection Act and the Ontario Fisheries Act, and all amendments to them.

Provision is made for the amalgamation of the now separate fisheries and game branches of the Public Works Department under the title of the Game and Fisheries branch, in charge of a superintendent. Inspectors of game and fisheries, not exceeding three in number, are to be appointed to see that the wardens and overseers carry out their duties properly. The Board of Game Commissioners, in existence since 1892 is abolished. Mr. H. S. Osler, K.C., of Toronto, is the chairman of the present Board.

The present regulations of forest and other Crown reserves are re-enacted.

Close Seasons.

Close seasons are enacted as follows:—Deer, moose, reindeer or caribou, between Nov. 21 and Oct. 19 of the following year, both days inclusive; grouse, pheasants, prairie fowl or partridge, woodcock, black and gray squirrels, between Dec. 15 and Sept. 15 the following year; quail or wild turkeys, between Dec. 1 and Nov. 1 the following year; swans or geese, between May 1 and Sept. 1 the same year; duck of all kinds or any other water fowl, between Dec. 31 and Sept. 1 the following year; snipe, rail, plover or any other bird known as shore birds or waders, between Dec. 15 and Sept. 1 the following year; capercailzie from Dec. 15 to Sept. 15 the following year, but no capercailzie to be hunted, taken or killed before September 1909; hares, between Dec. 31 and Oct. 1 the following year.

Respect For Sabbath.

Hunting on the Lord's Day is prohibited. Licenses must still be obtained to hunt deer, moose, reindeer, and caribou. No gun of the description known as automatic, in which recoil is utilized to reload, can be used, and no person employed in the construction of a railway or public work shall own a gun, rifle or other fire-arm unless authorized by special license.

It shall be an offence for any hotel, restaurant or club to sell as part of a meal any game or fish under any pretended name, or under the designation of anything which might at the time be lawfully supplied.

The cutting of live timber, the property of the Government, by anyone holding a license or permit to fish is prohibited except where absolutely necessary for the purpose of camping, or shelter.

Fines Are Increased.

Any person committing any offence under the Act in respect of deer, moose, elk, reindeer, caribou, beaver, etc., is to be liable for a fine not exceeding $100 and not less than $20, where formerly the figures were $50 and $20. Persons offending against the provisions of the Act as regards other particulars are subjected to a fine not exceeding $50 and not less than $5, where formerly the figures were $25 and $2.

The regulations regarding fish are the same as formerly, the effort having been merely to render the reading more clear.

The bill was given its first reading.

Would Protect Quail.

Mr. Sutherland (South Oxford), moved the second reading of his bill to prevent the shooting of quail for two years. He pointed out that the quail was a valuable insectivorous bird and was rapidly becoming extinct.

Mr. Auld (North Essex) opposed the bill. He claimed the shortening of the season was sufficient protection.

On the suggestion of Hon. Dr. Reaume the bill was given its reading and referred to committee for future consideration.

Mr. Thompson (Wentworth) introduced a bill to amend the Liquor License Law by prohibiting retail liquor stores having an agent outside the license district for which they had a license. It was read a first time.

Trent River Water Power.

Mr. Pearce (North Hastings) drew attention to the danger of land or power owning companies monopolising the water power on the Trent river at Healy's Falls, which was, he said, the Niagara of Central Ontario.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane replied that the question brought up the status of water powers where the land was held by private owners on each side. In these cases he had already told owners they better not build too much on their possession of the water until the whole question was looked into.

Export Duty On Minerals.

Mr. McDougall (Ottawa) suggested that the Government ask the Dominion Parliament to put an export duty on minerals, or, failing that, that the Province should put a tax on minerals and remit it on those refined in Ontario.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane said the Government had their own plans in view. "I venture the prophecy," he observed, "that we will be refining minerals—even nickel—in Ontario in less than two years." (Applause.)

Mr. McMillan (Glengarry) on motion secured an order of the House for a return of copies of all correspondence with manufacturers of woodenware, regarding the intention of the Government to lease the woodworking plant at the Central prison during 1906, or prior to the contract being entered into with Ellen Charlotte Taylor.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

EDUCATION OF THE PROVINCE.

Hon. Dr. Pyne Issues His Annual Report.

The report of the Ontario Department of Education for 1906 has been printed, and forms a bulky volume of interesting statistics. An introduction by Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, reviews the recent changes in the school laws.

The statistics given in the report relate to 1905, as it would be impossible to collect for 1906 the great mass of material used in making up the returns. The report shows that in 1905 there were in Ontario 5,793 Public schools, with 397,170 pupils, 428 Separate schools with 49,324 pupils, and 140 High schools with 28,661 pupils. The respective expenditure for these schools were: Public schools, $5,524,102; Separate schools, $637,134; High schools, $1,004,498. The total expenditure was $7,165,734. The total apportionment by the Government to the schools in 1906 is given at $289,193.

The report shows that teachers salaries in rural schools tend to increase. The average for male teachers in these schools increased from $385 in 1904 to $402 in 1905, and for female teachers from $294 in 1904 to $311 in 1905.

LAVERGNE LOSES FRIEND.

Labor Bill Makes Progress—Auto Cars For I. C. R.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—The House was peaceful yesterday afternoon and promptly went into committee upon the Lemieux labor bill.

Before this there was a brief colloquy in French between Mr. Dubeau (Joliette) and Armand Lavergne. The former complained of a certain article in last Sunday's Le Nationaliste.

Heretofore he had looked upon Mr. Lavergne as his friend. If he was the author of that article he could not so regard him hereafter.

Mr. Lavergne frankly admitted that he wrote the article. It was not written from any personal knowledge, but upon what at the time be believed to be reliable information. He cheerfully accepted the statement of Mr. Dubeau.

Mr. Emmerson stated that auto cars were to be used this summer on the I.C.R.

Upon inquiry by R. L. Borden, Mr. Fielding stated that the printed evidence taken before the insurance commission would be distributed to-morrow.

The House on committee on the Lemieux labor bill made some progress and the discussion was free from any partisan bias.

Old-Age Pensions.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—Sir Richard Cartwright will lay before Parliament a bill to provide old-age pensions in Canada. The matter will not be brought forward as one that has been adopted by the Government, and the bill will not be formally introduced, but will merely afford an opportunity for discussion.

TO DEEPEN WELLAND.

Sir Wilfrid Makes Promise When Funds Are Available.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—An influential deputation, made up of leading business men and vessel-owners from Montreal, Toronto, Kingston and Winnipeg, presented to the Government yesterday the request of the vessel-owners of the Great Lakes, the grain associations of leading centres, and the boards of trade from Sydney to Vancouver, for the deepening of the Welland Canal to 20 feet, so as to accommodate the larger type of vessels now navigating the Soo Canal.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that the matter would have the Government's careful consideration, and that just as soon as the funds could be provided it would be done.

Grey's Welcome.

London, Feb. 28.—(C. A. P.)—The first contingent of Salvation Army emigrants, 800 strong, sailed on the Southwark yesterday. The following message was received by the Salvation Army from Earl Grey: "Bon voyage to the first of this year's shipment to Canada of settlers. They will find here a kindly welcome, new opportunities and new hopes."

Hamar Greenwood wished the party God speed. Nenston, in the name of the Colonial Office.

Canada's Problem.

London, Feb. 28.—(C. A. P.)—The Rev. Hugh Pedley, at the meeting of the Congregational Mission Society, said Canada's great political problem was how to keep the ark of liberty clean from corruption. Also there was the great religious problem in the west. If this country would only realize what was going on in Canada, every $500 given for pioneer Christian work would become $5,000.

Carnegie Library Robbed.

Vancouver, Feb. 28.—Burglars visited the museum in the Carnegie Library here Tuesday night and carried off the collection of coins, the conservative value of which is $1,000. Many of the coins were only lent to the museum by citizens.

Offenders Placed In Chains.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 28.—Disorders have broken out among the convicts at the Akatui silver mines, Southern Siberia, because of the strict discipline. One hundred and fifty high political offenders have been placed in chains.

Hangs Himself In Woods.

Quebec, Feb. 28.—Hanging from a rope, the lifeless body of Joseph Poulin was found in a small shanty in the woods four miles from Ste. Anne de Beaupre Tuesday afternoon.

Shipping interests of the St. Lawrence will petition the Government to have the ocean mails landed at Father Point instead of Rimouski.

SUFFOCATED BY FUMES

Two Firemen Dead and Eleven Rendered Unconscious.

Flames Melted Coupling and Allowed Poisonous Fumes to Esacpe—Men Were Overcome In the Basement—Three Brave Rescuing Parties Entered Fatal Cellar Thus Preventing More Deaths.

New York, Feb. 28.—Two firemen were killed and 11 others rendered unconscious by ammonia fumes at a fire yesterday morning in the basement of a market in Eight avenue. One of those who was made unconscious may die, while the condition of two others is serious. But for the heroic work of three rescuing parties the death list would have been larger.

The dead are Adam Damm and Harry Baker. The had carried a pipe through the basement and into an opening leading to a sub-cellar, when they called for water pressure. However, when other firemen reached the hole to assist them in directing the hose upon the blaze, Damm and Baker were not to be seen. Ammonia fumes poured up through the hole and filled the basement.

The flames had melted the coupling of one of the ammonia pipes connected with the cold storage plant of the market. Rescuing parties were formed of volunteers and Damm and Baker carried up from the hole with difficulty.

Each of the rescuers succumbed on reaching the outer air and writhed on the sidewalk. Roll call revealed the fact that Capt. B. Carlock, of Engine No. 26, was down in the hole where he had gone in search of victims of the fumes, and he was brought to the surface. It is believed that he will not recover.

Damm died in a street car which was utilized as an emergency hospital, and Baker died at a hospital.

The financial loss will be about $2,000.

MATCH CAUSED FIRE.

Blaze Started In Wooden Chute and Fire Drill Failed.

Montreal, Feb. 28.—A match thrown by a school boy into a wooden chute that extended from the top of the basement of the Hochelaga Protestant School caused the fire in which 17 pupils and their principal perished on Monday.

A coroner's jury was sworn to investigate, but, after taking medical testimony showing that suffocation by smoke was the cause of death in each case, the enquiry was adjourned until next Tuesday. At that time, it is expected, evidence will be submitted that the school fire gong was not sounded, the fire drill in which the children were proficient, therefore, failing in its purpose.

Fire Drill Failed to Work.

If the drill had been put into operation, it is contended, the children would have been out of the building safely within five minutes after the sounding of the alarm.

Twelve of the victims are to be buried from St. Mary's Church Friday afternoon, they being Gladys Hingston, Myrtle and Ethel Spragge, Jelmar Anderson, Mary Jackson Andrew, Edith Golson, John Zimmerman, Jas. Lindley, Lily Ridges, Joseph Johnson, Ethel Lambton and John Lomas.

The funeral of Miss Sarah Maxwell, the principal whose heroism saved so many lives, will take place to-day from her mother's residence on St. Urbain street to Christ Church Cathedral.

Describes Teacher's Heroism.

Her work of rescue is described thus by Fire Captain Carson:

"As soon as we formed our line, she passed the children to me and I handed them from man to man down the ladder to the ground. Probably 40 had been saved in this way, when I called to her to come out herself. She refused and went back, saying there were others inside.

"We could not follow her. It would have been simply suicide. A moment later she fell in the thick smoke. It was all we could do, and an hour later her body was carried through the window along with those of the children she had tried so hard to save."

It is probable that both the Protestant and Roman Catholic school authorities will equip all the schools with proper fire escapes immediately.

AFTERMATH OF WRECK.

Inquest Opens Tuesday—Mrs. Doran of Toronto In a Critical Condition.

Guelph, Feb. 28.—The coroner's jury empanelled at the order of County Attorney Peterson to enquire into the cause of the wreck, met yesterday morning to view the remains of Charles Rankin of Stratford. They then visited the scene of the accident, taking note of the position of the several cars and the condition of the track. After returning to the city the enquiry was postponed until Tuesday at 7.30 p.m.

The remains of ex-Mayor O'Donohue of Stratford were taken to Stratford on the 8.55 train yesterday morning.

The body of Charles Rankin left for Stratford yesterday afternoon.

All the injured except Mrs. John Doran of Springhurst avenue are doing well. She was reported last night to be in a very critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The cause of the accident, it has been fully determined, was a broken rail. Perhaps two hundred yards to the rear of where the coaches are lying overturned at the foot of the 60-foot embankment is a bright, clean cut piece of steel, to which the disaster may be attributed.

Gored by a Bull.

Downsview, Feb. 28.—John Aske, aged 21, who works for Mr. Hartley, was fearfully gored by a bull yesterday. He was about to tie the animal and had dropped the stick with which he was leading it, when the bull made a run and caught him on the thigh with his long horns, tearing it from the knee to the groin. Three times the animal threw him in the air before assistance arrived. Dr. Charlton of Weston was at home when summoned and but for his prompt arrival the man would have died from loss of blood. His thigh was completely ripped open and it needed a hundred stitches to join the wound.

Maritime Express Ditched.

Moncton, Feb. 28.—The Montreal-bound Maritime express was derailed at Beresford, six miles north of Bathurst yesterday, the entire train going in the ditch. No one was hurt, but the line was blocked several hours.

Collide During Fog.

Mexico, Mo., Feb. 28.—During a heavy fog yesterday an accommodation train and a freight train collided head-on in the Wabash Railway yards here, causing the death of the passenger engineer, and injuring 20 other persons.

$500 SHOOTING TROPHY.

Earl Grey Gives Prize to Encourage Cadet Training.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—Replying to a vote of thanks at the annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association His Excellency the Governor-General said that every man should be a good rifle shot. He was never prouder in his life than when he wore a rifle marksman's badge of his country on his arm. He asked where were the grants of the millionaires to the association. He was in favor of physical training in the schools and the development of the cadet system. In this connection he said that it was his intention to give a $500 trophy to be shot for annually by the cities of the Dominion having the largest and most efficient number of cadets. The details as to the shooting for the prize would be arranged with the association.

NURSE IN TROUBLE.

Warrant For Her Arrest For Circulating Slanderous Stories.

Port Huron, Mich., Feb. 28.—A week ago Miss Jennie Alexander, a nurse, whose home is in St. Thomas, Ont., came here and threatened to bring suit for heavy damages from some prominent people, claiming that malicious stories had been circulated by them, affecting her character, and that when she protested against the reports, she was hurried off to an asylum in London, Ont., where she was confined for several weeks.

A new turn is now given the case by the issue of warrants for Miss Alexander's arrest because of the sensational charges made by her against some physicians here. Miss Alexander is well known here and has been employed by several prominent families.

Colonial Preference.

London, Feb. 28.—(C. A. P.)—In the House of Commons, replying to a question as to whether his attention had been drawn to a declaration in the Cape Government that the continuance of the preference with Britain was largely dependent on reciprocity, the Premier said the matter was not one which called for a declaration from the Government. As to whether the British representatives would be instructed to keep an open mind upon the subject at the colonial conference, he said Lord Elgin would be fully acquainted with the feelings and opinions of the Government.

In reply to Gilbert Parker, Mr. Runciman stated that the Foreign Secretary had seen in the report of Mr. Fielding's budget speech a reference to the possibility of the surtax imposed on Germany, but it would be hardly proper for him to interpret it. If the hon. member considered any interpretation required; nor could the Foreign Secretary say on what grounds Fielding based the statement, though, he was sure, Fielding had good reason for what he said.

To Disestablish Church.

London, Feb. 28.—In the House of Commons last night a resolution in favor of the disestablishment and disendowment of the church in both England and Wales was adopted by 198 votes to 90.

This is the first time in its history that the House of Commons has adopted such a resolution. The only previous time a similar resolution was pressed to a division was in May, 1871, and it was then rejected by a large majority.

Notable Unionist Victory.

London, Feb. 28.—The bye-election in the Brigg division of Lincolnshire yesterday, necessitated by the resignation of Harold J. Beskitt, because of ill-health, resulted in a notable Unionist victory, Sir Berkeley Sheffield being returned by a majority of 116 over Capt. Guest, the Liberal candidate. This will be the first time since 1894 that a Unionist has held the seat. The Liberal majority at the last general election was 726.

Astronomers' Observations Attracted Much Attention

Curiosity seems rampant in the breast of man. The uncontrolable desire of the playful pup to investigate everything within his reach, and the curiosity that prompts the deer to gaze around to see the object that has disturbed them, before taking to flight, have often been remarked upon, but man, great and intelligent man, is not a whit better in this respect.

An example of this was given last night, when three of the members of the recently formed Astronomical Society took a telescope out into a yard opening on to Water street, in order to gaze upon the moon, which was shining in great splendor last night. The instrument was fixed on a tripod, and it had just been nicely sighted on the great orb in the sky, and one of the party was taking a squint through it, when along came a youth of some fifteen summers. The men in the yard with the telescope attracted his attention. He stayed on the street for a while, but gradually grew in courage, and approached the spot where the instrument was standing. As he appeared deeply interested, he was invited to take a peep at the man in the moon. Having done so, he went on his way, after expressing thanks. His curiosity was satisfied.

Several other passers-by paused to take a look at what was going on, but kept their distance, and asked no questions. But at last one of them could not restrain his curiosity any longer. He approached cautiously, and at last delivered himself as follows:—

"Say, boss, would you mind telling a fellow what you're looking at through that thing, if it isn't no harm to ask."

He was also invited to take a look at the heavens, and appeared delighted. "Say, that's the first time I ever looked at the moon through one of them things. It's a fine sight. One time when I was with a survey party at Clear Lake, we looked at the other shore of the lake through one of them things. It was 2 1-2 miles away, but we could see a woman in a field pulling up potatoes and shaking the ground of them as we did so. I knowed the woman well, and she was as plain as if she was standing along side of me. We could also see two children playing in some sand."

Having delivered himself of this information, No. 2 went on his way with his curiosity satisfied.

More curious astronomers were commencing to loom up, so the men with the telescope were overcome by their modesty and withdrew to the interior of a neighboring building. Judging by the interest taken in moon gazing, as evidenced above, the new Astronomical Society should have a large membership.

The Collapse of Evelyn Thaw When Being Cross Examined

She Fainted and Lay Unconscious For Two Hours.

Mr. Delmas Says Defence Will Be Closed This Week—District Attorney Will Call Howard Nesbit to Discredit His Sister's Evidence—Dr. Evans Says Thaw Was Insane When He Killed White.

New York, Feb. 28.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw collapsed utterly yesterday at the close of the gruelling to which she has been subjected by District Attorney Jerome.

Recalled to answer a few questions, by which Jerome hoped to lay the foundation for evidence in rebuttal to attack her credibility, the frail girl who so bravely has sacrificed herself to save the life of her husband, tottered into an ante-room, fainted and lay unconscious for two hours. She was taken to her apartments in the Hotel Lorraine, a nervous wreck.

May Close This Week.

It was announced by Delphin M. Delmas that the defence probably would close this week, which means that the case should go to the jury by Tuesday; that is, if Jerome fails to carry out plans to demand a lunacy commission, forecasted last week and indicated in his cross-examination of experts yesterday.

Dr. Britton D. Evans, director of the New Jersey Hospital for the Insane at Morris Plains, an alienist for the defence, occupied the stand for the greater part of the day. He had testified that Thaw was suffering from "melancholia" at the time he made his will, and was mentally unsound when he killed Stanford White.

Alienists In Opposition.

Jerome forced him to admit that there was a recurrance of the affliction in at least one-third of such cases. This apparently was to controvert the expert's opinion, that Thaw was sane at present.

Mr. Jerome said he intended calling as a witness in rebuttal Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, the alienist who first was employed by the Thaw defence, but who heretofore has not figured in the trial.

Dr. Hamilton is reported to have said that he thought Thaw was insane at the time of the tragedy and that he is insane at present.

The district attorney also said he would have Dr. Charles F. Bingaman of Pittsburg, the Thaw family physician, testify in rebuttal.

Dr. Bingaman was on the stand briefly, but Mr. Delmas objected to cross-examination as to insanity in the Thaw family, on the ground that the witness had not qualified as an expert. Mr. Jerome thereupon told Dr. Bingaman to hold himself in readiness to take the stand for the state.

Howard Nesbit to Testify.

By recalling Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw to the stand for a few questions, which he had omitted on his long cross-examination, Mr. Jerome indicated that he will call Howard Nesbit, her brother, to contradict her in a matter of credibility.

Bought a Pistol?

He asked Mrs. Thaw if she did not tell her brother that Thaw treated her cruelly while they were abroad, because she refused to tell lies about Stanford White. He also wanted to know if her brother did not buy her a pistol with which she might defend herself against Thaw.

The defendant's wife denied absolutely that there was any truth in any of these statements.

Funeral of the Late T. R. MacFadden Took Place This Afternoon.

The funeral of the late Thomas Reginald MacFadden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas MacFadden, who died on Monday night in Niagara Falls, N.Y., took place from his parents' residence, 203 Dublin street this afternoon to Little Lake cemetery. The obsequies were largely attended. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. Dr. Crothers, pastor of George-st. church. Many kind friends sent floral tokens. The deceased was a member of Court Stanley, No. 199 Canadian Order of Foresters, Kingston, having joined when a resident of that city several years ago.

The late Mr. MacFadden, who was employed by the Hinds Paper Box Co., of Niagara Falls, N.Y., during the past few months, was an esteemed and highly respected young man. His employers were very kind to him during his illness.

Man Shoots Himself.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—An unknown man committed suicide at the Island yesterday morning by shooting himself in the left breast. He entered the lagoon which leads to the pumping station, and went ashore at the landing there. Opening his coat, he placed the revolver against his chest and fired. Engineer McKay, of the water-works, heard the shot and found the unfortunate man. He immediately hastened to secure assistance, as the suicide was not dead. The man was taken directly to St. Machael's Hospital, but expired before he could be placed on the operating table. The remains were removed to the morgue, where they await identification.

Mrs. Perkins, Remanded.

Cayuga, Ont., Feb. 28.—Mrs. Henry Perkins was brought before Thos. Cline, J.P., yesterday afternoon on the charge of murdering her husband. Crown Attorney Murphy was absent, not having returned from Toronto, and by prearrangement with Mrs. Perkins' solicitor, Mr. Grant, the prisoner was further remanded for one week. At the preliminary hearing on March 6th Mr. Cline may have another Justice sit with him on the case, probably Dr. Harrison, of Selkirk. Mr. Cline is a young magistrate, and, owing to the gravity of the case, thinks it advisable to have help.

Bandits Attack Russians.

Radical Change in Nervous System.

STRENGTH OF NERVES AND VIGOR AND HEALTH OF BODY FULLY RESTORED

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The process of revitalizing a nervous system which is on the verge of collapse must of necessity be slow, but the results are certain and highly satisfactory, when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

It took 24 boxes to cure Mr. Branton, but the cure is in many respects a most extraordinary one, as you will realize by the following description.

Mr. Wm. Branton, Victoria street, Strathroy, Ont., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my nervous system seemed all unstrung. I could not sleep, had no appetite, hands and feet cold, my digestion was poor and I had jerking of the limbs. The first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food helped me, and I continued until I had taken 24 boxes. This treatment has made a radical change in my condition, building up the system and strengthening the nerves. I would strongly recommend it to all suffering from nervousness."

Paralysis in some form is the natural result of neglected nerves, but paralysis, instead of coming on suddenly, as is generally supposed, is almost invariably preceded by months or years of warning symptoms.

Sleeplessness, headache, failing memory, loss of vigor and energy, stomach troubles, weakness in the mornings, dizziness, weak heart action or despondency are some of the indications of exhausted nerves which gradually and certainly yield to the reconstructive influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, or if neglected, lead to paralysis, locomotor ataxia or insanity.

New nerve force must be added to the body, and this can best be accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which is sold at 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50 at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Reminiscences of "the Rambler" Peterborough Forty Years Ago

The Multiplicity of the Crowley Family—How the Old Railway Bridge Was Constructed Across Rice Lake—People Never Thanked the Structure That Carried Them Over.

Mr. P. J. Mungovan of the Catholic Register, better known as "The Rambler," in this week's issue continues his interesting series of article on Peterborough. He says,—

The population of the City of Peterboorugh in the spring of 1901, when the census enumerator went on his decimal rounds, putting the usual questions, made and provided, was 10,454. In points of birth and origin this number included 4,032 English, 4,320 Irish, 1,818 Scotch, 44 of various British origin, 692 French, 222 German, 19 Dutch, 6 Scandinavian, 6 Austria-Hungarian, 53 Italian, 5 Belgian, 1 Indian, 5 Chinese, 5 negro, 4 of various origins and 8 whose nationality could not be ascertained and hence remained unspecified. An overwhelming majority of the people have proclaimed themselves as belonging to some religion. Of this number there were 2,690 Catholics, 2,413 Anglicans, 2,041 Presbyterians, 2,955 Methodists, 725 Baptists, 8 Lutherans, 13 Congregationalists, 13 Brethren, 6 Adventists, 3 Jews, 157 Salvation Army, 6 Friends (Quakers), 2 Protestants, 235 belonging to various sects, and 28 who very likely would not touch any form of religion with a forty-foot pole. The population of Peterborough, since the last census, has through the annexation of Ashburnham, as well as through its own lively method of hustling, increased fifty per cent., and there are those who watch the signs of the times, ready to stake their prophetic reputation that when the next enumerator is sent around by the Dominion Government, it will be found that the handsome city on both banks of the Otonabee has within ten years grown to a city of 15,000 inhabitants. Before its annexation to Peterborough there were in Ashburnham 480 people of English birth and origin, 892 Irish, 175 Scotch, 70 French, 16 German, 11 Dutch, and 3 Italian, making a total of 1,647. Religion in Ashburnham appears to have its votaries, 539 professed the Catholic religion, 449 professed themselves Anglicans, 253 are returned Presbyterians, 351 as Methodists, 34 were Baptists, 10 Salvation Army, 8 belonging to other sects, and 3 who have not sufficient confidence in any form of religion to cause them to acknowledge it.

Forty years ago on a pleasant afternoon of the month of May now past, I set out from Peterborough my base of operations being Otonabee township. Crossing the river I found myself in the unpretentious hamlet of Ashburnham, and from here I turned my face southward in the direction of the "Crowley Settlement." Meeting a man whose face was turned towards Peterborough I inquired for the way leading to Mr. Crowley's. "Arrah, a vicko, which Crowley do you want," said he. "Is it Foxy Jim, or Jimmy Davy? Is it Patsy or Yankee Pat? Maybe it is David you're looking for? I bet a [illegible] it is Jim [illegible] you're after." I could not tell him of course and proceeded on my journey, until I reached the summit of a hill where I met a man who was very willing to give me all the information I needed, and would have given it to me did he not stammer and stutter at a rate I never found equalled. "Can you tell me where Mr. Crowley lives?" I asked. "Wh—wh—which Crowley do you want? Is it Fo—Fo—Foxy Jim, of Ji—Jimmy Da—Da—Davy or B—B—B—." "Oh, don't bother me,' said I, and off I started, but before I got to the top of the hill he managed to drop the word "Blossom" in one unbroken lump. I managed to reach the "Crowley settlement" after a few more trifling enquiries, and there I met with "Mr. Crowley," and most of the other Crowleys, amongst whom I spent a few pleasant days, the memory of which will be enduring. They came to Canada on that wave of immigration to which I have referred in a recent communication, and I am pleased to observe that they inherit in a marked manner many of the qualities of the grand old race from which they sprang. Leaving the "Crowley settlement," in the best of humor with myself and with all the world besides I crossed in a southeasterly direction, that my next point of attack would be the "Cork House," owned and occupied by that genial Irishman, James, or as he was more generally called "Jim," Hayes. I was a total stranger in that section, at that pretty early period in my life's history, but the proprietor of the "Cork House," having by some means learned that I was around, that I bore no likeness to a roaring lion, and that I would on a certain day open fire on that well known wayside caravancary—the Cork House—resolved to await my arrival having in his hand, not a gun, but the Cruiskeen Lawn. I soon appeared in front of the Cork House, and after announcing myself his welcomes were numerous, they were hearty and all the more appreciated, because they were given in Irish and in tones sufficiently resonant "to chase the thrush and blackbird from the wilds of Glengarriffe.

The Cork House was one of those isolated Caravansaries which could be frequently met with in days gone by, in various parts of Canada. They were a necessary evil and had their day, and now with the iron horse, propelled by steam power, they have almost totally disappeared, their presence not being further needed, any more than their absence is felt. It was on the line of the Cobourg and Peterborough Railway, at a place called Keene Station, that the thirsty or hungry wayfarers never missed a drink or a meal, and here I may be pardoned a slight digression if I take a brief retrospect of what was without any doubt the greatest monument of human madness in any country or in any age. Over forty years ago the railroa fever was just as acute as it is today and the people of Cobourg and the County of Northumberland having been seized with a violent paroxysm of the raging complaint, sought a cure in the establishment of railroad communication with the town and county of Peterborough. Well, the scheme was so intensely popular that struggling municipalities came down with handsome business, and the work is at once commenced, and in reasonable time completed as far as Norwood, on the southern shore of Rice Lake. Here an obstacle presents itself. Rice Lake at this point is three miles wide and in some places twenty feet deep. What was to be done? Peterborough must be reached by hook or by crook, and they could not think of accomplishing so desirable a project by going around either at the head or the foot of the lake. A bridge across Rice Lake, with its southern end at Harwood, and its northern end at the Indian village of Hiawatha, would bridge the whole difficulty. The erection of a structure of such a character was at once commenced. Pointed sticks of timber were driven into the mud by the ponderous blows of a ponderous pile-driver. And these were fastened securely at the top until everything was ready to receive the rails. The bridge, in due time, became an accomplished fact. The rails were laid and trains commenced to move continuously over it, and at this distant day it can be truthfully said that whatever [illegible] who risked their lives on so frail a structure, at any other time, it was of the most strenuous kind whilst crossing that railway bridge. And when they reached either end they did not sit down to praise the bridge which carried them safely over, as readily as they made a vow never to endanger their precious lives again by adopting so dangerous a mode of travel. Other bridges have become historic because they have been the elements of strife as well as the theatres for the exploits of standing armies; many a student who has entered upon a struggle with geometry has had to assail the "Bridge of Asses," whilst the "Bridge of Sighs" is suggestive of mourning, but surpassing them all, the Rice Lake bridge should have a name and a firmer place in history. Some bridges have capitulated without a struggle, others have yielded to desparate assaults, but it was left to a raging wind-storm in one of its angriest moods, to capture the bridge spanning Rice Lake, fling its timbers on the water's surface, and drop its iron into the mud at a depth of twenty feet. Fortunately the wind took offence at such a bridge at a moment when passengers' lives were not in jeopardy.

Hollow Glass Bricks in Use

They May Work a Small Revolution in House Building

The demand for hollow bricks and building blocks for house construction has induced glass manufacturers to put hollow glass bricks on the market, and they promise to be used extensively for novel and artistic effects. The first glass bricks being solid, proved a failure on account of their cost, but the hollow glass bricks can be made at much less expense. They are lighter and stronger than clay bricks and are such excellent non-conductors that walls built of them are proof against dampness, sound, heat and cold. The bricks are sealed hermetically when hot, and are placed in walls with a colorless mortar made of special glass. The bonding strength of the glass mortar is almost as great as the bricks themselves.—Building Management.

Mr. R. J. Devey presided, supported by Rev. Mr. James of Toronto, Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, Mr. A. Kingdon and Mr. Bennett of St. Luke's and a full muster from the chapters.

A resolution was enthusiastically passed, thanking Mr. J. J. Turner for his generous offer of the opera house for his special services. Committees were also appointed to make all necessary arrangements. In a short address Rev. Mr. James of Toronto, expressed his surprise and pleasure at meeting such a large gathering of men at that late hour, and believed that the united efforts of the three Anglican parishes could not fail to be of far-reaching influence in the city, if all their work was made the subject of earnest prayer and intercession. The closing chapter office was taken by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, the meeting separating shortly before 11 p.m.

OBITUARY

CHARLES BRITTON.

The C.P.R. midnight last night brought the remains of Charles Britton, who died in Detroit on Tuesday afternoon, to the city. The deceased was the youngest son of the late John and Mrs. Britton of this city. He was born and lived here nearly all his life. He was a moulder by trade and five years ago went to Detroit, where he did well and enjoyed good health until about 10 days ago when he contracted pneumonia. He was ill for a few days and was then taken to Harper's Hospital where he died four days afterwards. The remains were accompanied by deceased's brother, Mr. John Britton, of Buffalo, and were brought here for interment. The funeral will take place to-morrow from the residence of Miss Martha Britton, 13 Harvey street, where services will be conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson. Interment will take place at the Little Lake cemetery.

Those left to mourn the deceased's loss are three sisters, Miss Martha, Peterborough, Mrs. Farrell and Mrs. Sutherland, Toronto; and two brothers Thomas, of Bowmanville, and John, of Buffalo.

Dog Was Afraid of Publicity

Heard That a Lost "Ad." Was to be Inserted and Came Home

Mr. G. W. Hatton of this city, owns a small terrier that he prizes very highly. This may not be news to many people, but the fact that the canine strayed away from home a few days ago and was given up as lost by his owner may be of interest.

Last night Mr. Hatton brought a dog lost ad. to the Review office which was to be inserted today. But apparently the terrier got wise to the fact that he was going to be branded as a lost dog in the columns of the city's leading paper and he was staggered by the publicity he knew awaited him. So last night he found his way home and as a result the ad. does not appear today. Who says Review lost ads. do not pay?

The lines involved embrace 55 per cent. of the mileage in the United States and Canada. The Brotherhoods include fifty thousand men and as many more will be affected in the event of a strike.

If the men vote to walk out the greatest railroad tie-up in the history of the country will be precipitated.

Railway Wreck Near Guelph; Mrs. H. G. Walker is Improving

Favorable Despatches Received To-day—Mr. Walker is Now With His Wife—His First Knowledge of the Disaster Was Received Through the Toronto Papers.

The big railway wreck on the G.T.R., just two miles east of Guelph Tuesday afternoon, has been the subject of general conversation in the city. The presence of Mrs. H. G. Walker and her two small children in the wreck brought the affair nearer home. Mrs. Walker has many friends in the city, who were shocked when the report was made public, especially when it was learned that the infant daughter, Eunice, had been killed, and that Mrs. Walker's condition was serious. She was seriously shaken up and her nervous system received a great shock. In addition a splinter of wood entered her arm making a very painful wound which might also cause blood poisoning. Mr. Walker was not on the train, he having stayed over in Toronto on business. He had not heard of the accident until the evening papers were issued and his attention was drawn to the fact. Needless to say, he was horrified, and left on the earliest train for Guelph.

Guelph, Feb. 27.—One of the very saddest stories of the wreck is that of H. G. Walker's family. Mr. Walker formerly lived in Waterloo, but has recently resided in Peterborough. His wife, four-year-old son, and nineteen months' old daughter, were en route west to attend a golden wedding. Mr. Walker, who had business to transact in Toronto, had put them safely on the train. He was coming out of a store in Toronto yesterday when some one said: "Are you interested in the Guelph wreck?" Then he was shown a newspaper extract and learned the dreadful truth. He telephoned to his brother, G. E. Walker, city ticket agent of the Grand Trunk at Guelph, and learned that his nineteen-months' old child was crushed under the wreck, and that his wife's arm was broken. He came to Guelph on a later train, distracted with grief.

Toronto, Feb. 27.—H. G. Walker, of Peterborough, was a guest at the Grand Union and saw the news of the death of his little daughter in the Guelph wreck when he bought a paper on the street. The news had been telegraped to the hotel, and arrangements had been made to break the news gently to him, but in the meantime Mr. Walker had already seen the terrible news. Mr. Walker's wife and family were going on to Guelph, leaving him behind for a day in Toronto. In addition to the girl, who was killed, his boy of five is badly hurt and Mrs. Walker has both arms broken.

Guelph, Feb. 28.—Enquiries at the St. Joseph's Hospital to-day ascertained the favorable report that, while Mrs. H. G. Walker's condition was serious, she was a little better and there were hopes of her recovery. Mr. Walker is with her. The little boy is all right. He was not injured in the wreck. All the injured are doing well and the majority have left the hospital for their homes.

North End Resident Was Assaulted in East City

Set Upon by Two Young Thugs Who Gave Him a Severe Beating—The Assault Was Unprovoked—Police Have Been Notified.

There are a few young thugs in East City that had better pay some attention to their conduct in future or they will be given an opportunity to occupy the prisoners' box at the police court. As it is at present they stand an excellent chance of walking the carpet before the magistrate.

A respectable gentleman who lives in the north end of the city had occasion to visit Ashburnham on Tuesday night and when returning home about ten o'clock he was set upon by two young men and given a bad beating. He was walking along Hunter street east, minding his own business, when the two hoodlums, who were armed with sticks, made an assault upon him. The gentleman, however, did not submit to this kind of treatment without a struggle. He also procured a club and tried to beat them off. In doing so he received a severe gash on the side of the head inflicted by a stick in the hands of one of the toughs. One of them threw a boulder at him, but it went wide of its mark and struck another man who was some distance away. The young hoodlums kept up the assault until the Hunter street bridge was reached and it is said, they tried to throw the gentleman into the river.

Such conduct as this is disgraceful and if the perpetrators of the assault are apprehended they will be severely dealt with. The police have been notified regarding the matter and it is understood they have the name of one of the parties and that action will be taken. Developments are awaited.

There has been considerable complaint for some time regarding the conduct of young men who reside across the bridge. These, of course, do not constitute a majority, but there are too many of them for the public good.

Bright Young Man Has Passed Away

Unusually Sad Death of Mr. John A. MacDonald at Toronto

Almost shocking in its suddenness and from mortal view, most untimely, death brought to a close last night the career of John Allan MacDonald, a Peterborough boy, who bid fair to attain a place of prominence in the world. He passed away about midnight in the Toronto General Hospital, where he was taken a few days ago, suffering from an attack of typhoid fever. Mr. MacDonald was a first year student in medicine at Toronto University, and when he was taken to the hospital a few days ago, nothing serious was anticipated. The attack of fever was not a severe one, and that it would terminate fatally was not thought of. Assuring messages were sent to friends and relatives in this city until a short time before his death, when his condition rapidly became worse. Late last night a message was received here, apprising his relatives to be prepared for the worst and a few hours later another followed with the sad announcement that death had been the victor.

The late Mr. MacDonald was 29 years of age, and was a son of the late Neil MacDonald. He was born in Smith township, but the family moved to the city when deceased was a youth and he received his early education at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. After graduating from the Collegiate, Mr. MacDonald taught school near Lakefield for a couple of years and then continued his studies at McMaster University, Toronto, from which he graduated with the degrees of B. A. and M. A. after a brilliant course. Leaving McMaster he took up post graduate work at the University of Chicago where his course was also characterized by brilliant attainments. Having completed his post graduate course, Mr. MacDonald accepted a position as lecturer in a large college at Canon City, Colorado. Although this position was a responsible and lucrative one, and Mr. MacDonald was meeting with much success in his work, he was desirous of taking up the study of medicine and last year resigned from the College staff and entered Toronto University as a medical student. As in the past, his work there was brilliant to a marked degree and he was making splendid progress. Were it not for the untimely hand of death Mr. MacDonald would no doubt have attained a position of distinction in the world.

The deceased was universally popular in Peterborough and in the township where he was born and on all sides expressions of sincere regret at the ending of such a bright life are heard. Among the young men of the city, Mr. MacDonald had scores of friends. When he resided in Peterborough, he was prominent in athletic circles and was one of the strong men of the Peterborough rugby team at the time they won the intermediate championship of Canada. "Jack" MacDonald, as he was familiarly known, was of quiet disposition, unostentatious in his manner, sincere in his friendship, and of exemplary character. He was a member of Otonabee lodge, I.O.O.F., and also a Mason, having become a member of the A. F. & A. M., when at Canon City.

Mr. MacDonald is survived by his mother, Mrs. Neil MacDonald, of this city, and six sisters. He was the only son. The sisters are Mrs. Wm. Lewis, of London, Ont.; Mrs. John Edmison of Smith township; Mrs. Geo. Brummell of Lindsay, and Mrs. T. J. Stanton, Mrs. Samuel Cottingham, and Mrs. A. Smeaton, of this city. Mrs. MacDonald resides with her daughter, Mrs. Cottingham at 430 Donegal street. The relatives have been plunged in grief by this sad event, which is made unusually so by the death of another member of the family on Wednesday of last week. The late Mrs. Wm. Westlake, King street, who was buried on Friday of last week, was a sister of the deceased. The double affliction makes the sorrow unusually poignant for the surviving relatives.

The remains will be brought to Peterborough this evening and will be taken to the residence of Mr. Cottingham on Donegal street. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

MARKS BROS.

Marks Bros. A No. 1 company appeared at the Grand opera house again last evening in "A Girl from the South." The production was a pleasing one and made a decided hit. There was a large attendance and the specialties were much enjoyed. The Marks Bros. company are certainly putting on a superior class of attractions at popular prices and are drawing big houses.

The production this evening will be "A Limerick Lass."

THE VOLUNTEER ORGANIST.

Wm. B. Gray's beautiful sentimental drama "The Volunteer Organist," will be the attraction at the Grand opera house, Monday, March 4th. The scenes of the play are laid in a small village in the northern part of Vermont, and the story is enlivened by several thrilling and pathetic scenes. One act shows a realistic snowstorm with the snow heaped up in great piles. During the storm a child is seen struggling through the vast drifts and finally falls exhausted by the roadside. Two beautiful St. Bernard dogs appear upon the scene and rescue the little one. Master Willie Nelson and Mellor Newman, who scored such popularity with the audiences last season are still members of the company and appear in this scene.

LOVERS AND LUNATICS.

Pretty girls who can sing and dance, comedians who are funny, costumes that for gorgeousness have seldom been equalled in a musical production, is a brief summary of the many good things to be found in "Lovers and Lunatics," the big musical gaiety that comes to the Grand opera house, March 5th. The presenting company is headed by Joe Morris, who has been eagerly sought for in vaudeville. The comedy is said to be a merry mixture of family troubles and a laugh-maker of the first order. The costuming of the piece is claimed to be the most beautiful ever accorded a like production.

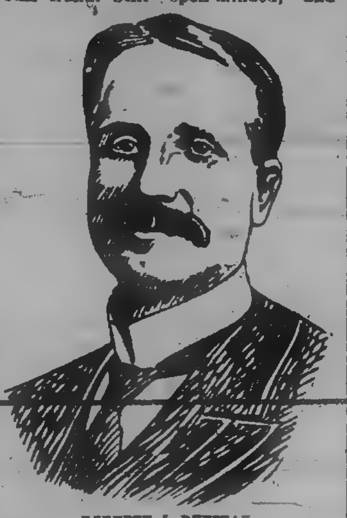
KENNETH J. DUNSTAN.

Toronto Manager of the Bell Telephone Company in Public Eye.

Kenneth J. Dunstan, the Toronto manager of the Bell Telephone Co., is a man of rather kindly demeanor, with eyes which smile quietly and persistently. Persistence, in fact, is his outstanding characteristic. Even to the chance acquaintance, who will find him more than polite, the determined jaw hints that there is resolution behind the smile. His is the face of one apt to despise the bludgeon as uncouth and the stiletto as patently unfair; of one, nevertheless, accustomed to gain his end in an effective though unassuming way. One fancies that if the smile faded it might leave a countenance of almost grim tenacity, writes one who knows him well in The Toronto Star. To men who seek the overthrow of corporations, he appeals chiefly as an opponent—still frank. Still open-minded, and still honorable. He is looked upon, indeed, as one of the ablest of those who might be termed "corporation men." He is impatient with municipal ownership; dubs it the outward swing of the pendulum; prophesies that things will swing back again to a happy mean. "Thus it is through the years," he says, "the pendulum swinging now in this way, now in that. When the limit is reached in one direction, it halts, swings then in the opposite direction When people find the faults of over-municipalization, they will be more open to conviction that municipal ownership is something with bounds, whereat it is well to draw the line."



KENNETH J. DUNSTAN.

Though shrewd enough to be Scotch, the manager is of English parentage. He was born at Hamilton, Ontario, and used to experiment with the 'phone when the instrument was in its infancy. He has studied telephones ever since telephones were. He has had practical experience as an electrician, and is a past-president of the Electrical Association. About eighteen years ago he came to Toronto, and has resided here since that time. He has made many friends socially as well as in a business way; was formerly a member of the Canadian Club Executive, and is a past-president of Ionic Lodge, A.F. and A.M., G.R.C.

Feeling Overcrowded.

It was doubtless Mrs. Howe's "sympathetic nature," to which she constantly referred, that made her carry so many burdens which did not belong to her. Her sufferings were many, but the statement of them often roused her family to mirth.

"How's your head this morning, my dear?" inquired Mr Howe one morning in a properly solicitous tone.

"It's no better," came in a hollow voice from behind the teapot "It won't be any better while I can't get Cousin John's lungs and Mary's china and mother's eyes and Harriet's wisdom teeth out of it for one minute."

O. O. Winter, C. P. R. superintendent at Brandon, has been given an executive position on the Grand Trunk Pacific.

The Legislature of Prince Edward Island anticipates a stormy time when the discussion of the Provincial subsidy comes up. P.E.I. expects an increase in the Dominion subsidy of $70,000, which will make its surplus about $40,000.

Press Game Will be Best of Season

Proceeds to be Given to Children's Aid Society

The public will get a big ten cents worth at the Review-Examiner game next Thursday evening. The admission is ten cents, which includes the privilege to skate after the game which will be over at nine o'clock. The proceeds of the match will go towards the Children's Aid Society.

The Review team will have a workout at Brock street rink tomorrow night between 5 and 6 o'clock. The management is having several large fans installed to carry off the rush of air that will be caused by the speed of the players. The fans are kept busy removing hot atmosphere when the team representing the Grit sheet has a practice. From the Exam. training quarters came word yesterday, that the players are handling wads of gum very gracefully. Manager Craig has ordered seven pairs of pink silk stockings for his team.

O.H.A. Executive Has Not Yet Met

And Local Hockey Club is Still in the Dark

The O.H.A. is still jockeying with Peterborough's request for a chance to meet the winners of the Kingston-Stratford finals. Secretary Graham was in communication with Treasurer MacPherson of the Association this afternoon. Mr. MacPherson stated that a meeting of the O.H.A. Executive was to have been held last night, and that President Darroch was in the city, but for some reason or other did not call it. As a result nothing has been done

The Peterborough club would like to know whether or not they are to be given a game with the winners of the finals. They cannot understand why the executive does not say either yes or no and settle the matter without any more dilly-dallying.

HOCKEY

BOY'S BRIGADE WON.

The Brigade of All Saints' last night won a fast game of hockey from the junior Knockers, on Knox church rink, by the score of 2-1. The game was always in doubt, but the All Saints' bunch livened up in the last half and scored the winning goal. The line up was as follows;

All Saints'—Goal, J. Moore; point, W. Flowers; cover point, C. Armstrong; centre, G. Latimer; rover, D. Layfield; righ wing, M. Armstrong; left wing, E. Lebar.

Referee—A. Gilbert.

THE BAPTISTS WON.

Last night from ten to eleven o'clock, a fast game of hockey was played between the Park street hockey team and the Knox Presbyterian church bunch. From the first drop of the puck both sides played a fast game, but the Baptists scored their first goal in about half a minute. All the players worked hard and at half time the score was two to one in favor of Park street. In the second half, neither side scored, leaving the Baptists winners. Referee Leo Derocher gave entire satisfaction to both teams by his impartial decisions. The line-up was as follows,—

Knox		Park Street.
	Goal
W. Killingbeck		R. Elliott
	Point
H. Webb		P. Johnson
	Cover.
W. Galley		S. Gillespie
	Rover
V. Morphet		B. Bartley

	Right Wing
C. Moore		H Killingbeck
	Left Wing.
R Hamilton		W. Dickson

Timekeeper—Rube Lang.

AN ORDINARY TEAM.

Winnipeg, Feb. 27.—The defeat of Kenora Thistles at Brandon the other night was one of the biggest hockey surprises of the season, but the trimming of the champions at the Portage, while even a greater surprise, leads to the one conclusion; that is, that with the present team the Thistles cannot hope to hold the Stanley Cup. Without a tried point man and without Tommy Hooper in centre ice, the champions are nothing but an ordinary team.

When the Thistles went East after the Stanley Cup, they realized the importance of securing a capable man for the defence. Now that they are back in the West they must either follow the same course again or the cup will surely slip out of their hands.

Not only have the Thistles been weakened by the absence of a reliable point man, but the loss of Hooper has left the team in bad straits. Whitcroft, the new man, has been doing good work, but he is not in the same class with Hooper, and unless there is considerable strengthening done in the Kenora town, the cup will not long find a resting place there

MATCH WILL BE FINISHED TO-NIGHT

Smoker Will be Held at the Curling Rink This Evening

The President's side leads by one point in the President vs. Vice-President match. They went into last night's game with a lead of four, but the Vice-President's rinks were three up at the finish of play, leaving Mr. Matthews' side one point to the good. Under the circumstances tonight's matches can be depended upon to be keenly contested. A smoker will be held in the club rooms when the games are over and a most enjoyable time is expected. Last night's rinks and games were as follows:—

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

The Review-Examiner hockey match takes place on Thursday, March 7th. In view of the interest taken in the game in all parts of the country, the sporting editor of the Review will be pleased to answer all revelant queries concerning the great contest. The following have already been received;

Mary Jane, Chamberlain street, —Did Mr. B. T Huston, who will play centre for the Examiner hockey team ever figure in a league game before?

Answer, Yes. He played in the Warsaw bush league in 1903, but was disqualified for stealing a puck.

Louise, Charlotte street; Is M. J. Hutchison, the (fixed) star cover point of the Examiner hockey bunch the same man as captained the Bowmanville marble team in 1884? Please answer this in order to decide a bet.

Answer; We think not. The Mr. Hutchison who is in the limelight at present left Bowmanville several years before the date mentioned.

Maude; Will the presence of Jas. Clarke on the Examiner team make it necessary for the rink management to secure the ice against damage?

Answer; Don't be foolish, Maude. We would advise you to read Thompson-Seton's book, "Heavyweights I have met."

Annetta, Norwood; To decide a bet would you please state whether Harry Theobald's hair is natural or imitation?

Answer; We never had sufficient pull to answer this delicate question.

Sweet Sixteen; Will Mr. Craig again look nice and cute on the ice like he did last year? All we girls are just dying to know, so answer quickly.

Answer; We have referred this question to the editor of our women's page. Her answer will appear tomorrow.

Tootsie, East City; Is Robt. Long?

Answer; We have known him to be short on several occasions.

The Latest Ideas in the Dean Patterns

NURSERY NOTES.

Irritation on the baby's scalp can be greatly helped by frequent applications of a saturate solution of boric acid.

All children from their infancy should be bathed daily—quite tiny babies in the morning and rather older children at night.

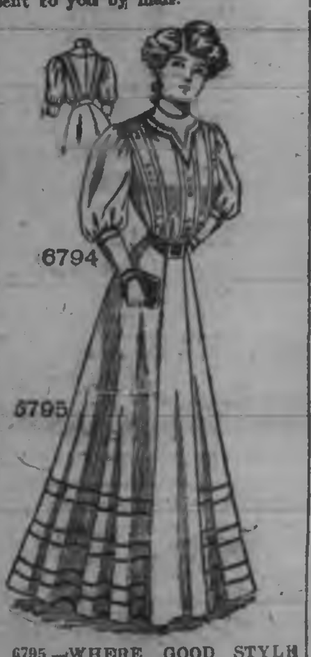
When a child falls on his head, if he should be at all sick, send immediately for a doctor, for serious injury may have been done to the brain.

To keep a baby covered at night sew a large button to each corner of the coverlet and attach a long white tape—this should form a loop—to each corner of the bedstead. Then, after the baby is comfortably tucked in, fasten the loops to the buttons on the coverlet.

Sleepless babies should never be given any of the so called "soothing" aids to sleep. They are extremely injurious. When a child is restless and sleepless it means, as a rule, that its general health is bad. The calm, restful sleep of an infant shows that it is in good health.

THE DEAN PATTERNS

Any of the following Dean patterns may be secured by leaving your order together with 10 cents at the Review Office and the pattern will be sent to you by mail.

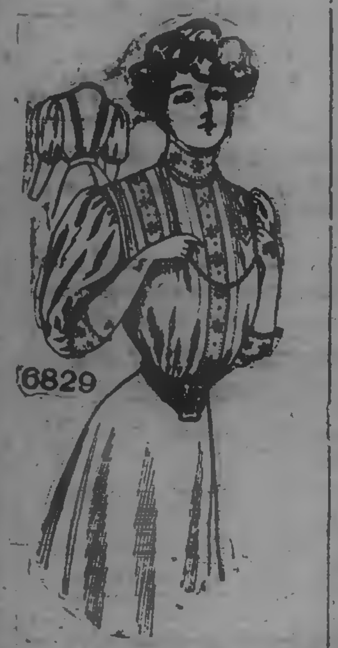


6794, 6795.—WHERE GOOD STYLE AND PRACTICABILITY PREVAIL.

For the woman who seeks a trim, smart appearance, the accompanying design will have much fascination. The double box pleat effect giving fulness to the front without any loose blousing, completed by a big little yoke, bespeaks neatness and careful dressing. It is a gown such as a woman of good taste would admire and look well in. The sleeves may be in full length or shorter as shown. The skirt is a new three-piece model having circular side gores and an under box pleat or habit back, which is very easily made and most graceful in shape, being wide at the hem and close fitting over the hips. A gown of this kind would be smart in chiffon, broadcloth or herringbone cheviot. The skirt might be made of one material and the blouse of another, but they should match or harmonize in color. Bands of cloth or silk may trim the skirt while any of the simple embroideries or velvet ribbon might serve for the waist. For the medium size 5 3-4 yards of 44 inch material are needed for the gown.

Two Patterns.—6794, sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure. 6795, sizes, 20 to 32 inches waist.

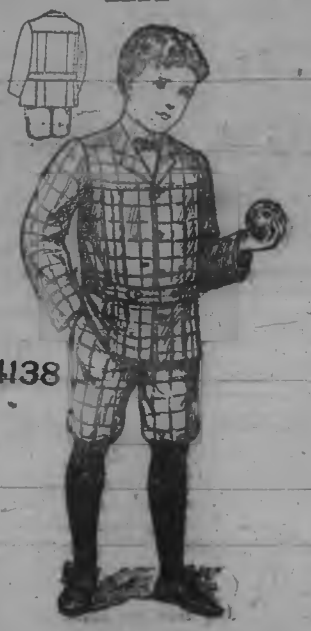
The price of these patterns is 20c, but either will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents.



6829.—A SIMPLE BUT EFFECTIVE SHIRT WAIST.

For home making there is nothing prettier than tucks and insertion and a model which is much liked is shown. The front closes with a small vest effect which may be of any trimming material and the same may appear again in the cuffs and collars. Two tucks enclose the front panel while groups of narrower ones run over the shoulder. The sleeves may be in full or shorter length, the latter being finished with bands of embroidery or lace. The waist is one easily made and suited to any of the seasonable materials, silk, a light cloth or washing fabric being excellent. For the medium size 3 yards of 27 inch material are needed.

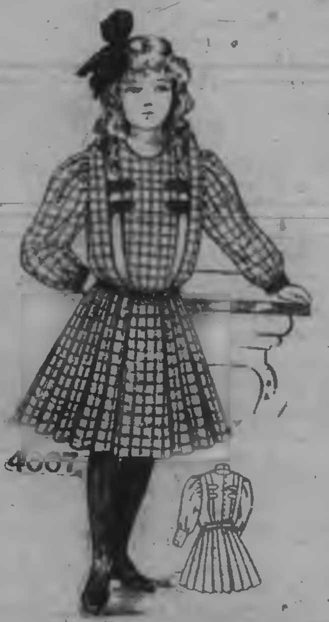
6829.—Six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.



4138.—A NORFOLK SUIT FOR THE BOY.

It sometimes happens that one of father's suits contains enough good material to make the small descendent one and no better style for such can be found than the Norfolk pictured. The pattern for it is simple to put together and very popular with boys and their mothers. The knickerbockers are full enough to endure all sorts of hard wear and all kinds of boyish contortions. The yoke style is preferred to that without because it does away with all bunchiness at the shoulders. The suit may be developed in cheviot or serge and requires 2 1-2 yards 54 inches wide for the medium size.

4138.—Sizes 8 to 14 years.



4067.—SERGE AND TAFFETAS.

Quite as much study is expended upon the small girl's dresses as upon any that Dame Fashion creates. An example of clever design is illustrated in the dress shown where the trimming effect is gained by an under and over blouse. The former may be of any washable or contrasting material; and if the pipings are of a color to harmonize the result is fetching. The under blouse might be any guimpe except that it has no sleeves and extends to the waist line. The skirt is side pleated and very graceful for the growing girl. A serge, mohair, or one of the novelty worsteds may be used for the dress, 3 1-4 yards of 44 inch material being needed for the medium size.

4067.—Sizes 6 to 14 years.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

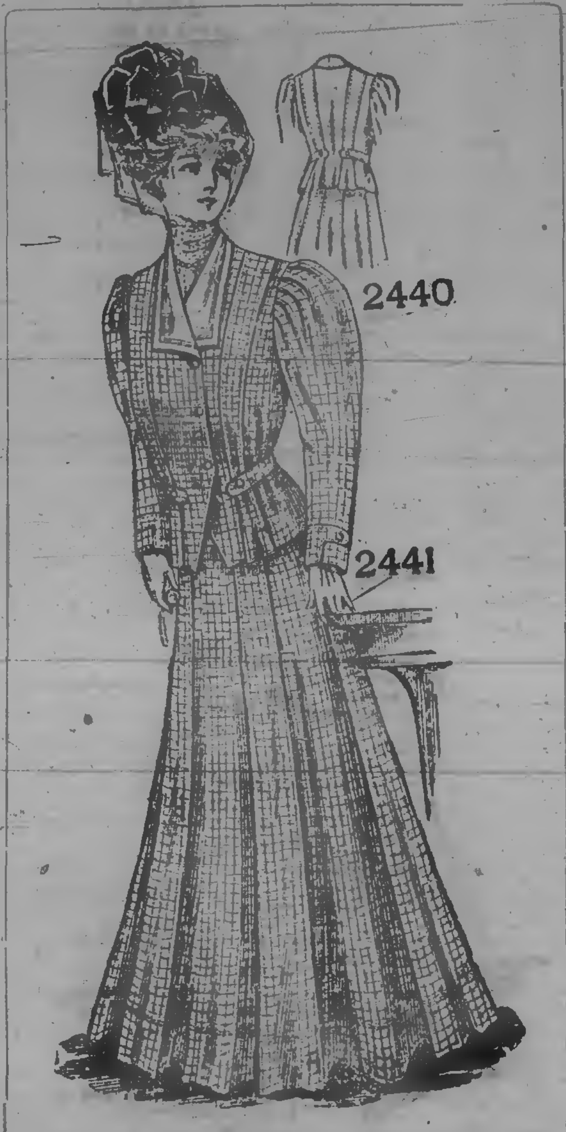
SOME SUGGESTIONS.

If a sheet is hemstitched it should be done at both ends. If only one end is worked the wear will come always in the same place, as the sheet can only be used one way, with the hemstitching at the top.

Skirt linings become soiled, and it is a good plan to go over them from time to time with a cloth well wrung out in warm water. This will remove the dust and freshen the lining.

Rinse flannelette garments in a weak solution of alum and water after washing. This makes the inflammable material less liable to take fire.

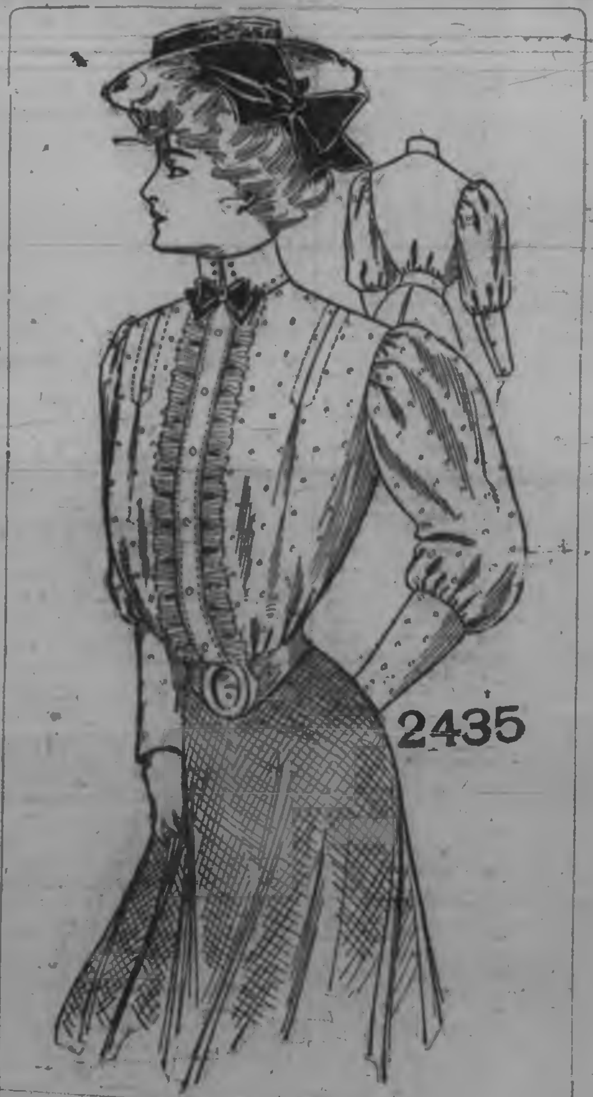
Fifteen minutes' relaxation and rest every day will help to keep away that worn look.



A SMART DEVELOPMENT FOR CHECKED GOODS

Many pleasing new suits are showing small checks and stripes and one which is rather new in style and suited to a variety of figures is sketched. The coat is semi-fitted and has applied pleats to give it chic lines. The collar and front closing are unique in outline, while the sleeves are long as most fitting for a general wear suit. The skirt is an eleven gored one with each alternate gore arranged in a box pleat. For a jaunty knockabout suit to wear during the coming months one could not find a more attractive style. The new materials in checked suiting would make this a most attractive suit. 7 yards of 54 inch material are needed for the medium size.

TWO PATTERNS.—2440—5 Sizes, 32 to 40 inches bust measure. 2441—6 sizes, 22 to 32 inches waist.



A NEAT SHIRT WAIST

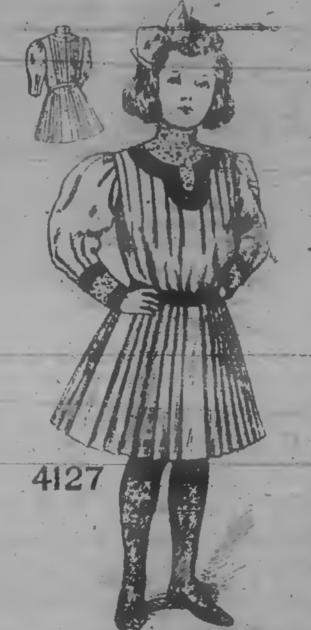
As a change from the much elaborated waists of the past months, Dame Fashion is introducing the trim waist of simple design. The waist shown will commend itself to every woman of good taste because of its trim smartness. It may be very easily made and requires but 3 1-4 yards of 32 inch material for the medium size. For linen, madras or pongee it is excellent, while any seasonable material may be used with success. The pleated frills in front may be replaced by any other adornment or be omitted.

2435.—Six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

JUST ABOUT SKIRT

There is a rumor in the world of fashion that skirts are to be narrow and skimpy. The latest French skirt is cut with a narrow front seam, and this extends above the waist, where it is closely fitted to the figure, the wide seams being similarly shaped and fitted. The back has a plait, corselet style of skirt, which is most becoming to tall, thin women. As it is cut to give an impression of narrowness it is seldom lined, and very little underclothing is worn.

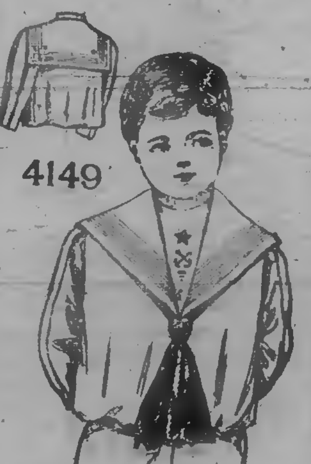


4127.—A CHARMING LITTLE PLEATED GOWN.

Some pretty new models in frocks for little maids are pleated in waist and skirt and the gown shown is a pleasing example. Yokes are always becoming and youthful and are much used in frocks for girls. The yoke in this gown is unusually attractive and improved by the dark trimming band which outlines it. The sleeves in all of the new dresses are long or below the elbow and these may be either. The waist and skirt which are joined at the waist line are fully pleated and very graceful. The fulness of the sleeve is also retained at the elbow in tiny pleats. For developing the model, cashmere, henrietta, pongee or another seasonable fabric might be used. The medium size calls for 3 1-4 yards 44 inches wide.

4127.—Sizes, 6 to 14 years.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.



4149.—A NEAT SAILOR BLOUSE FOR THE BOY.

The blouse in its many forms is the standby of the boy and his mother and nothing is so well fitted for his wear from the time he discards dresses until he is old enough to wear long trousers. A neat blouse of sailor style intended for boys from 4 to 12 years of age is sketched and will be found simple to make and very practical. The broad collar and shield are of the accepted style and generally becoming. The sleeve is a bit unique in its box pleats which retain the fulness at the wrist. These blouses are usually made of a wash fabric such as madras, linen or washable flannel. For the medium size 3 1-4 yards 27 inches wide are needed.

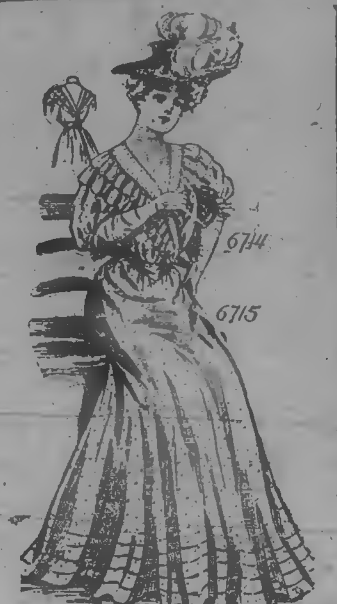
4149.—Sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years.

The price of this pattern is 10 cts.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

Removing the Collar Lines.

There are two ways of removing the dark collar line about the throat. One is to apply peroxide of hydrogen by means of a bit of absorbent cotton or a soft cloth. Apply two or three nights until the stain is bleached off. In a couple of weeks this should be accomplished. The other way is to rub cold cream or vaseline well into the throat, letting it remain all night, then wiping off whatever excess of grease there is in the morning and bathing with soap and hot water. Do this every night for two or three weeks, and the dark line will gradually disappear.



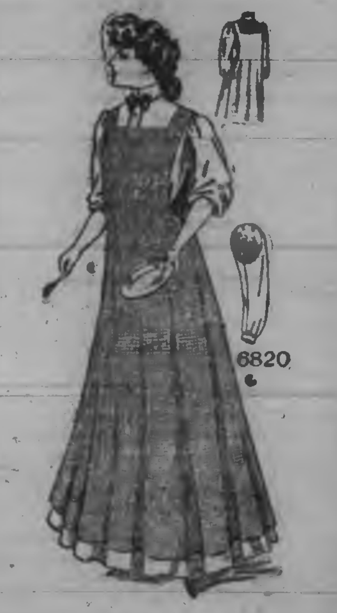
6714, 6715.—A PLEASING FROCK IN TAFFETAS.

The small figured taffetas make very fetching toilettes in both simple and elaborate styles. One of the new gowns and one of unusual grace is shown here. The deep pointed yoke and fichu effect is most fetching, while the natty short sleeves are quite in keeping with the smartness of the whole. The waist closes in the front and crosses in surplice style. The skirt is fulled a bit about the top and finished with four deep tucks at the lower edge. A gown of this kind might be made up in any of the softer silks or crepe de chine and prove very attractive for nice wear. For the medium size 10 1-8 yards of 36 inch material are needed to develop the dress.

Two Patterns.—6714—Sizes, 23 to 42 inches bust measure. 6715—Sizes, 20 to 30 inches waist.

The price of these patterns is 20c, but either will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.



6820.—A PRACTICAL WORKADAY APRON.

There is nothing so indispensible to the housewife as the big apron which may be slipped on over any frock and serve for any kind of work. The one shown is very serviceable, because of its detached sleeves which may be donned only when needed. The apron is in two pieces requiring only the underarm seams to be sewed. The pocket is a convenient feature and one or two may be applied. The sleeves are of bishop style fastening snugly about the wrists so as to protect the dress sleeves. Buttonholes are worked in their upper edges so that they may be buttoned on to the shoulder section of the apron. Percale or another material may serve of which 4 1-8 yards 36 inches wide are needed in the medium size.

6820.—Sizes, small, medium, large.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

ONTARIO'S FINANCES

The estimates for the Province of Ontario have been brought down for the present year, and to-day the provincial treasurer, Hon. A. J. Matheson will deliver his budget speech. The surplus for the past year is considerably over the $400,000 mark, which is an exceedingly gratifying showing. It is a tangible, a palpable surplus—not a mere myth or a fictitious creation by means of mere book-keeping methods. The business like methods of the Whitney Government have had splendid results and this too in a year when very heavy demands have been made upon the treasury for public improvements and development.

The province has been given wise and progressive administration by Mr. Whitney and his colleagues and ample provision has been made for all departments for the coming year. The expenditure will be $6,519,131.08, and while there are increases from last year, these have been rendered necessary by the growth and development of the province; its prosperity, and owing to augmented grants to rural schools; for agriculture, for colonization and immigration, for the administration of justice, for mining development and roads, for the maintenance of public institutions, etc. The more closely the figures are studied the more they reveal the fact there has been no extravagance, that the estimates have been carefully prepared and that full justice is being done all departments. Many important developments are foreshadowed. The future is certainly promising and the outlok unusually encouraging.

The surplus—$430,000—surpasses the most optimistic predictions or any members of the Government and the revenue is increasing by leaps and bounds.

Long may Ontario flourish under the provident and sagacious control and management of the Whitney Government.

FIRE ESCAPES FOR SCHOOLS

How often, in times when most required, the devices which are depended upon for protection and safety, fail to work. In case of fire the hose is rotten, the danger signal does not work and the alarm fails. This was evidenced in the terrible holocaust in the Hochelaga Protestant School, Montreal on Tuesday, when seventeen children were suffocated—all members of the kindergarten department on the second floor of the building. There were no fire escapes on the building and the gong was pulled but for some reason did not sound. Had the fire gong worked when needed and had the building been equipped with proper fire escapes the lives of the large number, who met death, would doubtless have been saved. It appears that fire drills were regularly practiced and no fault can be assigned to the School Commissioners on this score. But what was the trouble with the gong? Had there been any fire escapes every child would have escaped. The Montreal Witness says;

"Here was a building standing completely isolated, accessible from every side, and with two entrances, those entrances being at opposite ends. The building consisted of a basement, two storeys above that, and a small upper storey. The fire started in the basement, at one end, being caused, it is believed, by an overheated furnace. It quickly worked its way up through that end of the building, and, the school being heated by hot air, the heating pipes carried the smoke all over the building. This fact seems the only one which will explain the terrible mortality, for in the blinding smoke the children must have got into a hopeless panic. But even so, it is perfectly evident that had there been fire escapes on the building, as there should have been, on a building of that kind, every child would have been saved.

"It would seem," continues the Witness, "that there were half a dozen contributory causes to this disaster. The building was not fitted for a modern school. The stairways were crooked, the passages narrow, and there were no fire escapes. The firemen say that if there had been a single fire escape no lives need have been lost. Is it not the duty of the building inspector to examine such buildings and compel measures for the safety of the inmates? Then in such a structure and near two furnaces, large piles of wood were stacked. Ought not this wood to have been kept in a separate shed? The hot air system of heating seems to be wonderfully adapted to the immediate distribution of smoke and poisonous fumes when something goes wrong. The question occurs too, why the infants of the kindergarten should be placed on the top floor, where escape in case of alarm was most difficult? This is the case in other schools. If the lack of water had a share in causing the calamity, or if the lack of pressure added to the tragedy, the public will at least know where some of the blame is to be laid. Our waterworks engineer has long been warning us of the danger of a water famine. The need of more pumping power has long been acknowledged."

It is important that the school buildings of Peterborough should be provided with proper fire escapes. The fire drills are faithfully practiced and the children are proficient enough in this respect. A tragedy like that in Montreal may occur in any school. Forewarned is forearmed and an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

A DELIBERATE INSULT

The dignified and the upright, the honorable and the true, often have to submit in this demagogic age to the undue familiarity and patronizing attention of those less worthy and conscientious, those who would presume on friendship and seek to insinuate themselves into the good graces of their superiors. It is part of the exigencies of existence and so long as we remain on this mundane sphere, escape is impossible.

The Review is an exalted institution; it has a high conception of public duty and a noble mission to perform, which work it is faithfully and fearlessly carrying out. Why then should the Review be called upon to pause in its progressive and public spirited career, its great undertaking of social and civil reforms and iconoclastic pursuits, to pay any attention to the empty vaporings and treasonable paragraphs appearing in that benighted and pessimistic apostle of Gritism, that survivor of the dark ages, that semi-civilized and barborous specimen of the fourth estate, that ordinary and very common toleration of ink and paper, to wit—the Examiner—about hockey? For weeks, the Review, which is a powerful and influential exponent of public opinion, which stands for all that is commendable and meritorious has had mean, underhand and despicable epithets hurled at its loyal and devoted head almost daily about its inability and incompetency on the iced arena. This paper does not intend to endure these gratuitous insults any longer. It has determined to terminate such insensate outpourings and sesquipedalian paragraph forever and on Thursday night of next week will wipe that mocking, servile and cantankerous combination out of existence. Then will that jejune journal which has been for weeks circumscribing an atom of hockey ideality in verbal profundity seek refuge in some eleemosynary institution and preserve taciturnity forever on the all absorbing subject of hockey. Bah! What a common place word is hockey. As if life consisted in offsides, combinations, rushes, checking and passing a piece of rubber at the business point of a stick. One is amazed to comprehend any mind so infinitesimally small as to regard this pastime as the supreme object in this great industrial and commercial age. If you desire to witness the bouleversement of our antagonists, the tergiversation after the defeat of these brachycephalous mountebanks, despite their incessant vaticinations of victory—why— in plain English—come to Brock street rink next Thursday night. The sycophantism of our contemporary is nothing but stridulatory in character and will be immeasurably worse after the strenuousness of combat and the disproportionableness of the score in our favor. This disquisition may or may not do our dilettante journalistic hebetudes any permanent good, but let us get at them on the ice. Those pesky, irascible monopolistic and avaricious journalistic conglomerations—the Examiner and its team—will exclaim in one—last long, expiring and agonizing breath, "Better death than this." To die for one's country is noble, to meet a reverse in hockey is ignominious. So let it be.

PEN POINTS

Tomorrow will be the first day of Spring and Old Father Time is not springing it on us any too soon.

What have local Liberals to say about a Senatorship for Peterborough. Now, gentlemen, all you who wish to be styled "Honorable" until the end of your days and enjoy a comfortable berth in a nice, upholstered chair at $2,500 a year, with very little work, speak up.

Peterborough, Ont., holds up a hand for recognition because she shelters a man who was married with a broken leg. That's nothing. If he had been broken with a married leg or lariated with a wooden leg or buried with a broken legg it would have been different.—New York Evening Telegram.

Ald. Johnston, two years ago proposed that a system of issuing building permits should be adopted in Peterborough. It will go into force this year. His proposal to have the assessment rolls published has not been endorsed by the city council this year, but it is bound to come.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper, which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable or more gloomy and discouraged than liver complaint and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly, and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

Cement Supply Contract Let

Peterborough Hardware Co. Modified First Tender—Price is $1.91 Instead of 1.96

The contract for supplying the city with 5,000 barrels of cement was let to the Peterborough Hardware Company yesterday afternoon. The Board of Works held a special meeting at five o'clock for that purpose. Last Wednesday six tenders were received and opened, and the Belleville Portland Cement Co. was the lowest by 11 cents a barrel. None of the committee knew anthing about this company's cement, and it was decided to lay the matter over until such times as information about the concern could be secured. Several inquiries were made in places where the cement is used, and all said it was all right.

In the meantime the Peterborough Hardware Company put in a second tender, or at least modified the first tender. The original price was $1.96, and this was reduced to $1.91, including inspection and storage. The Belleville tender at $1.85, with 2 1-2 cents a barrel for inspection, and 4 cents a barrel for storage, brought the price up to $1.91 1-2 or 1-2 a cent lower than the Peterborough Hardware Company's second offer. Mr. V. Eastwood was present on behalf of the Hardware Company, and after briefly going over some of the conditions, his tender was accepted on motion of Ald. Johnston and Wilson.

The other tenders received last Wednesday were:

CEMENT TENDERS.

The tenders for cement were opened by the Board. There were six tenders in all. Quantity required was $5,000 worth.

The first one was from the Belleville Cement Company, at $1.85 per barrel net. Cotton sacks 10 cents each; returnables at same price; freight prepaid.

Owen Sound Portland Cement Co. f.o.b. Peterborough at $2.37 per barrel, 40 cents off per barrel, including net price, $1.97 per barrel.

Lakefield Portland Cement Co., at $1.90 per barrel, net in sacks, same condition as to return of sacks.

Peterborough Hardware Co., at $1.96 per barrel, unload cars, supply separate storehouse, and supply free inspection.

R. Hicks & Co., at $1.97 1-2 per barrel including storage and testing.

American Portland Cement Co., at $1.45 per barrel, f.o.b., at works. This did not include duty and freight.

The tenders were 11 cents a barrel in favor of the Belleville Cement Co., but as no one present knew anything of the company, it was awarded to the Peterborough Hardware Co.

Character in Medicine

In medicine, as in every sphere of human action, it is character that tells. Every prescription that Dr. A. W. Chase gave to his fellowmen is full of character, full of the honest, sterling character, which made the grand old doctor respected, admired and loved by all who knew him. The integrity of Dr. Chase is shown in every one of his famous family medicines.

AVOID LUNG TROUBLE

Take one-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good Whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours. It is said to break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.

An eminent authority on lung trouble says if this simple and effective formula was known and generally used, throat, lung and bronchial affections would seldom reach an acute stage. Care should be used to select pure ingredients, and to avoid substitution it is best that they be purchased separately and mixed in your own home.

The Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased in the original half-ounce vials put up expressly for druggists to dispense. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ontario,—plainly printed thereon. Only the cheaper Oils are sold in bulk, but these produce nausea, and never effect the desired results.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

Essential of True Christian Character

Rev A. J. F. Cobb Speaks on the Necessity of Kindness

The third of a series of special Lenten addresses was delivered last evening at St. John's church by Rev. A. J. F. Cobb, Ph.D., rector of St. Mark's church, Port Hope.

A large congregation was present and enjoyed the able and inspiring sermon on the subject of "Kindness." The reverend gentleman said that at this season of Lent, it was our duty to try and rid ourselves of those vices which work against our souls and to make an effort to cultivate virtues of a true Christian character. Kindness is essential to a true Christian character, and a virtue of great importance said the speaker. Our Lord referred to it in speaking of the "cup of cold water given in His name, and St. Paul's admonition was "Be ye kind." Kindness went a great ways in making up the beauty and richness of this life. Kind words and deeds are more natural to some than to others but should try and cultivate them. The Christian church was the home of kindness. Kindness should be extended to all classes and especially to those in need. These little acts of kindness should be done in the spirit of the Almighty.

Rev. C. E. Sharpe, rector of St. Thomas' church, Toronto, will be the special preacher next Wednesday.

The Blessing of Contentment

Rev. C. J. James, of Toronto, Draws Lesson From Life of St. Paul

A large congregation was present last evening at the usual Wednesday Lenten service at St. Luke's church. Rev. C. J. James, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Toronto, was the special preacher, and delivered a very able and instructive sermon from the words found in the 11th verse of St. Paul's Epistle to the Philippians: "Not that I speak in respect of want: for I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content."

These words, the reverend gentleman said, were spoken during St. Paul's imprisonment at Rome. The speaker vividly pictured to the congregation St. Paul locked in his cell, and being closely guarded by a Roman soldier. His only hope of release was in God. He said: "Let us enter into the spirit of St. Paul. He had much to make him discontented and unhappy, but yet he said he had learned to be content in whatsoever state he was in. The preacher said there were many that were discontented and continually finding fault with surroundings. Lots of things are sent to us by God for our good, and yet we feel discontented and do not yield ourselves to God's will. He urged the congregation to try and imitate the spirit of St. Paul and live a contented life and take all things for the best.

Rev. Mr. James said at this season of Lent, when it was a time for serious thought, we should look into our hearts and examine ourselves and try and be content. He urged the congregation to put their trust in God, to cling to Him even as St. Paul did, and be content and happy through the strength of Christ. Let not discontent or hate rule your heart, but let God be always there.

Mr James closed his beautiful and inspiring address with an appeal to those present to do all things through the strength of Christ, even as St. Paul had done.

KING OPENS "NEW BAILEY."

Rejoices That Laws Are Breathing a More Human Spirit.

London, Feb. 28.—The new central criminal court, erected on the site of the historic "Old Bailey," was opened yesterday by King Edward, who was accompanied by Queen Alexandra. The function was a semi-state affair.

The King, in replying to the address, referred to the "barbarous penal code" administered within the walls of the old building, and said he rejoiced at the fact that this was being "gradually replaced in the progress towards higher civilization by laws breathing a more human spirit, and aiming at the nobler purpose of reforming criminals by showing mercy to first offenders, which often proves the means of re-shaping their lives."

Trent Valley Canal Committee Reported on the Trenton Route

Importance of All-River Route to Navigation—Nine Feet of Water in Trenton Harbor—Cost of the Different Routes Compared—Capt. Thomas Donnelly Points Out Danger of Navigating the Lake Route.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—A voluminous return giving the report of the Privy Council with regard to the Trent Valley Canal was laid on the table of the Commons this afternoon. The committee recommends the adoption of the report of Mr. E. J. Walsh, engineer in charge of the canal surveys, advising that the Trenton outlet for the southern end of the canal be adopted. Mr. Walsh in concluding his report, says; "After a careful consideration of all the circumstances, and the resulting consequences, I am of opinion that the interests of the country will be best served by the adoption of the Trenton outlet, the "all-river route" with eight feet four inches on the sills of the lock gates; as such depth of water will enormously reduce the cost of transportation and may be had for $455,565 over and above the cost of a six-foot navigation." Acting on his report the Minister of Railways and Canals recommended that authority be given for the adoption of the all-river route with a depth of eight feet four inches, and the government have concurred in this recommendation.

Mr. Walsh submits figures as to the estimated cost of three outlets, viz., to Port Hope, to Cobourg and to Trenton. On the basis of six feet navigation, that in use on the existing portions of the route open to travel, they compare as follows; From Rice Lake to Port Hope, $3,541,917, from Rice Lake to Cobourg $7,906,401; from Rice Lake to Trenton, $3,118,111. On the basis of a depth of eight feet four inches on lock sills the several routes compare as follows; To Port Hope, $3,958,051; to Cobourg, $,236,040; to Trenton, $3,997,482.

EFFECT ON WATER POWERS

Mr. Walsh has in his calculation taken into consideration the value of the diversion of the water so far as it affects the water powers on the Otonabee River and has not considered that any damage would accrue to the water powers below the level of Rice Lake to the level of Lake Ontario is 364 feet. Making certain allowances for losses, an approximated total head of 350 feet will be the full measure of the total powers in the Trent River that would be entitled to ask for compensation. The quantity of water estimated for diversion is 103 cubic feet per second equal to 4,083 gross horse power, which at the customary departmental rental of $2 per horse power equals $8,866 per year. Capitalized at four per cent. this equals a sum of $201,150; and this amount should be added to the Port Hope and Cobourg routes to reach a full and fair comparison.

In regard to considerations of navigation Mr. Walsh declares that the evidence available is in favor of the Trenton outlet, and he quotes an opinion from the marine and insurance authorities.

In regard to water power, he says the Trenton outlet, if adopted, insures the development of an immense quantity of powers alongside an excellent transportation route. The Port Hope and Cobourg outlets will not admit of any power developments. Detailed figures are given as to the cost of construction of locks etc., and as to the water powers affected and all other considerations affecting the cost of the three routes.

TRENTON HARBOR.

In regard to the Trenton harbor the report notes that the least depth at low water was found to be nine feet in the harbor, and in the steamboat channels of the Bay of Quinte twelve and a half feet. The harbor is land-locked and well sheltered. The proposed system of construction for this obviates any damage, to lands by flooding. In considering the cost of operation as applied respectively to the Port Hope and Trenton routes, Mr. Walsh finds that at least from twice to three times the number of employees would be required on the latter as against the former.

In regard to the distance on the two routes he states the distance from the mouth of the Otonabee River to Kingston via the Trenton route and Bay of Quinte is 135 miles; via Port Hope, Lake Ontario, Murray Canal and Bay of Quinte, 134 miles and via Port Hope and the open lake around Prince Edward county 126 miles.

OPEN LAKE NAVIGATION.

In so far as open lake navigation is concerned, the Port Hope route would have superior advantages over its rival in respect to trade to such ports as Lake Ontario as Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara and so forth, but not as regards Oswego, Sackett's Harbor and Kingston. "The chief importance of the canal," says Mr. Walsh, "should be in its utility in facilitating the enormously increasing export and import trade between the Canadian west and Europe. It is therefore apparent that Montreal will be the great entrepot for the canal in Eastern Canada, and therefore the sheltered route via Trent River and the Bay of Quinte should have the preference."

Fire Did Damage to Park St. Bakery

Mr. J. Grady's Shop Destroyed Yesterday Afternoon

A fire which resulted in considerable damage occurred last evening about 5.30 when the brigade was called to 54 Park street, where Mr. J. Grady's brick bake-shop was ablaze.

Mr. J. Killingbeck noticed the flames first and sent in the alarm. The fire started in the shop and the flames were shooting out the windows when Mr. Killingbeck came along. The firemen were soon on the scene, but the fire had gained such headway that little could be done to save the contents of the shop. The entire effects of the building were destroyed and the shop itself was pretty much ruined. But for the excellent work of the firemen Mr. Grady's house would also have been destroyed. The insurance of the shop and contents will about half cover the loss, which will amount to several hundred dollars.

Mr. Grady wishes to thank the firemen and all others who rendered such valuable assistance.

Frank Montgomery, of Parry Harbor, the Purchaser

It is reported today that Mr. Frank Montgomery, of Parry Harbor has purchased the Cavanagh House on Simcoe street. The price is said to be $14,000. Mr. Montgomery came to the city last night and today his solicitors are looking up the deeds and completing the sale. The Cavanagh House belongs to the Phelan estate and Mr Montgomery's purchase only includes the house and property. Mr. Cavanagh has been given a five-year lease and will continue to conduct a hotel business.

MANAGER OF DEMETRE BROS.

Says He Has Not Yet Been Approached in Reference to Real Estate Transfer

The Review has been requested to state that so far as the local management of Demetre Bros. is concerned there is nothing known about the reported negotiations on foot to get the store at the corner of George and Charlotte streets for Mr. Alex. Gordon, butcher. Mr. Andronopolis says he has not been consulted in the matter as yet, and also that he would not consider any proposition to dispose of his lease.

FAMOUS GAMBLERS.

Old Time London Betting Clubs and Their Members.

There were three principal clubs—White's, Brookes' and Boodles'. White's was originally a "chocolate house" in William III.'s time, but became a private club early in the eighteenth century and was used by the Tories. It was a club always noted for high play and betting, and very curious some of their bets were, the old wager book being still preserved. Brookes' was the Whig club and was then conducted by that Liberal Brookes, whose speculative skill,

Is hasty credit and a distant bill;
Who, nursed in clubs, disdained a vulgar trade,
Exults to trust and blushes to be paid.

Among the members of this club were the Prince of Wales, and, of course, his fidus Achates, Sheridan, besides the great Charles James Fox, who here played deeply and whose name is oft recorded in the wager book, which, however, is of older date and was kept when the club was held at Almack's. "Lord Northington bets Mr. C. Fox, June 4, 1774, that he (Mr. C. F.) is not called to the bar before this day four years." "March 11, 1775, Lord Bolingbroke gives a guinea to Mr. Charles Fox and is to receive a thousand from him whenever the debt of this county amounts to £171,000,000. Mr. Fox is not to pay the £1,000 till he is one of his majesty's cabinet." "April 7, 1791, Mr. Sheridan bets Lord Lauderdale and Lord Thanet 25 guineas each that parliament will not consent to any more lotteries after the present one voted to be drawn in February next."—From "The Dawn of the Nineteenth Century," by John Ashton.

HE DIED FIGHTING.

How Prince Louis Napoleon Was Killed by the Zulus.

How Prince Louis Napoleon was killed by the Zulus June 1, 1879, is told graphically in the book by Sir Evelyn Wood, who took part in that war. The little party which the prince accompanied was surprised and attacked. Sir Evelyn writes: "The Zulus in pursuit ran first after the two white soldiers who were on the flanks, three or four men, headed by Labanga, following the prince. His horse had jumped just as he was mounting, and his sword fell out of its scabbard. He was very active and was vaulting on his horse in motion when the wallet on the front of the saddle broke away, and he fell to the ground, being at this time only sixty yards behind the (British) fugitives. There were seven men who actually fought the prince. When Langalebele, pursuing the fugitives, first saw Labanga, he was running away from the prince, who was rushing at him. Labanga, crouching in the grass, threw an assagai at him. The first assagai stuck in the prince's thigh, and, withdrawing it from the wound, he kept his foes at bay for some minutes. In the native's words: 'He fought like a lion. He fired two shots, but without effect, and I threw an assagai at him, which struck him, as I said at the time, but I always allowed Labanga's claim to have killed him, for his assagai hit the prince in the left shoulder, a mortal wound.'"

Some Odd Wills.

One of the oddest documents of the will kind known was that of Queen Austrigilda, consort of King Goutram of Burgundy. The dying princess enjoined upon her husband to slay and bury in the same grave with her the physicians who had attended her. Another will was that of a husband who forbade his wife's marrying on pain of his returning to haunt her. This is quite different from that of a woman who instructed her executors to seek out "some nice, good, pretty girl" who would make an affectionate second wife to her spouse. It is a fact interesting in this connection that the first Napoleon actually bequeathed 10,000 francs to a fellow named Cantillon, who had been tried for attempting the assassination of the Duke of Wellington.

A Problem In Life.

They had met in the subway and in the interval of passing a few stations had fallen to talking of a lovely woman friend who had died.

"How did she die? Do you know?" he asked.

"She nursed a little niece through an infectious disease, then took it herself and died of it," said she.

"A strange Providence!" he mused sadly. "She, lovely, gracious, charming, everything to live for and a blessing to her friends, to die in order that a child might live. A strange and unaccountable Providence!"

DIED

BRITTON. — In Detroit, on Tuesday February 26, 1907, Charles Britton, youngest son of the late John Britton, aged 44 years.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 13 Harvey-st. on Friday, March 1st, at 3 o'clock and proceed to Little Lake cemetery.

The Bradburn estate has decided to continue the stone work, which is being put in the corner by the Dominion Bank to include the door way between the bank property and Matthews' store. This will make a complete corner. In addition to the stone work a handsome new door will also be put in, in keeping with the rest of the building;

DERIVATION OF ASTRONOMY.

The word "astronomy" is derived from the Latin words astrom, a star, and nomos, a law, the word meaning literally "a law of stars." This was explained by Rev. Dr. Marsh in his lecture "A Night in the Skies," at Charlotte street church Tuesday night.

CITY ENGINEER BETTER

City Engineer T. A. S. Hay, although far from being well, was down to the office this morning, and he and Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine are very busy completing last year's work and preparing the engineer's annual report. It is expected that in a couple of weeks the report will be ready and the Council will then be able to proceed with the year's business. Had the city engineer been given an assistant last year, or the year, his work would never gone so far behind.

LODGED A COMPLAINT

A little boy called at the police station this morning and complained of being abused by a lad by the name of Eddie Armstrong, who resides in East City. The little fellow was crying and had a very black eye, the result of a blow from Armstrong. It appears that the boy has been driving a horse for his father during the latter's illness, and he will not let Armstrong ride with him, so Eddie it seems, takes particular delight in attacking and abusing the youthful driver. The complainant did not wish to lay an information against him, but if the attack is repeated, he will do so

Lakefield Residents Desire All Night Telephone Service

Bell Company Willing to Give it on Certain Conditions—Foresters Hold Splendid Concert—Death of Respected Resident—Other Items of Interest.

Lakefield, Feb. 28.—A very pleasant bridge party was given at the residence of Mr. Blomfield on Saturday last in honor of his daughter, Mrs. Weddell, who is returning shortly to her home in British Columbia. The following guests were present,—Mrs. F. J. Tate, Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. B. Dench, Mr. and Mrs. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. Langley, Miss Florence Atwood, Miss Annie Atwood, Miss Strickland, Miss L. Lefevre, Miss Lillicrap, Messrs. Walter Strickland, Grieve, Dela Fosse, S. Fraser and Lewis.

Mr. Butchert spent several days in Montreal last week on business in connection with the cement works.

Rev. W. Creighton gave a highly entertaining address to the Grove school boys on Saturday night, his subject being "Animals." He kept his audience in an hilarious mood throughout by his descriptions and anecdotes.

The temperance wave which is spreading so rapidly through Ontario, and carrying such devastation into the ranks of the hotelkeepers and whiskey johnnies, is merely an exchange of coats. It seems to me a choice between a watery grave and being preserved in spirits.

Mrs. G. E. Atwood is spending a few days in Peterborough this week.

Mrs. F. J. Tate and Mrs. Rollerton are staying at the homestead, as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Strickland.

Mrs. E. R. Tate and Miss Mary Strickland returned to the village on Monday last.

The deaths of Mr. Galvin and of Mrs. Frosyth, two old residents of the village, came as a great shock to their many friends in Lakefield. Mr. Galvin's funeral took place from his residence in Dourq on Tuesday afternoon and was very largely attended. A service was held at the Baptist church, and the remains were afterwards conveyed to the Lakefield cemetery for interment.

The Forester's concert which was held in the town hall on Monday evening was a decided success in every particular and the order is to be congratulated on the energy with which it carries out an event, which is looked forward to year after year with pleasurable anticipation by the villagers. The hall was crowded, not a seat being vacant and many late comers were compelled to pay the penalty of their tardiness by standing throughout the entire program. Mr. Hilliard made a highly acceptable chairman, and gave an excellent example of fitness for the position by making his remarks few and to the point. In this respect certain other chairmen might well emulate his example.

Mr. Carter of Peterborough, has been staying in the village as the guest of his sister Mrs. Andrews. Mr. Carter returned to his home on Monday last.

Great interest is being taken in the approaching visit of Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, who is to give his well-known reading "Jean Valjean," in the village shortly.

Lakefield has a chance of showing that it is progressing with the times. The village is greatly handicapped at present by its inadequate telephone service. A whole night service is greatly needed and the Bell Telephone Co. state that they are perfectly willing to accommodate the public if they can be assured of $300 additional income for the outlay. There are many in the village who could well afford to take a telephone at the low rate of $15, which is the present charge for a private telephone, and they could not show their interest in the village in a more tangible form than by doing this.

A local wit tried to get off one of his jokelets on a deaf person with dire results a few days since. At great pains he had made a riddle, the substance of which was, "what article of domestic use does a man like a bank manager to, who returns his checks marked 'no funds'." the answer was "check damper." He hurled this at an old man of eighty who failed utterly to see the point, and was so concerned as to the sanity of the humorist that he laid it before a brother wiseacre and asked his opinion on it. Their joint opinion was not flattering to the auther—and no wonder. This was the way the old man put the question. "I say old chap why is a bank manager who returns a cheque like a domestic article?" "I don't know," said the friend. "Because he is a cheque stamper." "Do you see where the point comes in?" "No" replied the friend shortly, "Do you take me for a fool?" Explanations were at once given, and as before remarked, the old cronies have one opinion now as to the author of the riddle.

Arnprior Wants Game With Locals

St. George's May Also be Seen Here Soon

The Arnprior Hockey Club, of the Upper Ottawa League, have written the secretary of the local club asking for a game here. It is likely that they will be accommodated as they have a fast team. It is also likely that the St. George's will be seen here at an early date. A game with the Saints would no doubt draw a big crowd.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN CROWE.

The death occurred early this morning of Mary Jane Johnson, relict of the late John Crowe, at her home on lot 22, concession 14, in the township of Cavan. The deceased was 68 years of age, and had been ill only about two weeks with pneumonia. The deceased was a life long resident of Cavan, having been born there. She was married to her late husband, whose death occurred last September, about 32 years ago. The deceased was a member of the Presbyterian church and very highly esteemed by all who knew her.

Two sons and one daughter are left to mourn her loss. The sons are Wm. and John, who reside at home, and the daughter is Mrs. David Lawson of Otonabee.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 from the family residence lot 22, concession 14, to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

Ottawa Council turned down the finance committee's recommendation that Dr. Law, medical health officer, be dismissed.

An Explanation Regarding Names

Mrs Robert Graham, 213 Dublin street, wishes it understood that it was not her children who were taken charge of by the Children's Aid Society. The Review, when writing the item did not make it clear which family was meant, hence the explanation. The Society never had any occasion to look after any of Mrs. Robt. Graham's family.

William Drain, of Rosthern, Sask., license inspector, claims that he was murderously assaulted at Radisson by Thomas Craig, in whose hotel he was spending the night.

The returns at the Peterborough Customs House for the month of February, averaged over $1,100 per day. Several large consignments of goods came through this morning but they were not in time to be credited to last month's business.

Surplus of Over One Million Dollars is Record of Two Years

Hon. A. J. Matheson Presents His Budget.

Good Showing After Two Years' Office—Well-Filled Coffers, and Diminishing Liability—Increase In Municipal Debts—Greater Outlay On Education—Criticises the Ross Government.

Toronto, March 1.—A provincial surplus of $1,050,000 for two years of office was the splendid message Hon. A. J. Matheson presented to the Legislature in the budget speech yesterday.

"We had the money—and we spent it. But we paid it out for the people," was his comment on the increased expenditure.

The Minister's address was undeniably one of his best efforts. He spoke for two hours and held the attention of the House and well-filled galleries, not an easy task when the subject matter so largely dealt with figures. He was in a happy vein. He had a story of good tidings, of well-filled coffers, of diminishing liability, of provincial prosperity and good government.

Yet he sounded one striking note of warning to the municipalities.

Increase of Municipal Debts.

He regarded as a most serious matter the great increase of $5,200,000 in the municipal debts.

"I firmly believe," said Hon. Col. Matheson, "in the municipalities owning a reasonable amount of their public utilities, but are they not going beyond safe financial bounds? They are wasting their money. I believe it to be my duty as Provincial Treasurer to warn them to be careful. Let there be a revival in the public interest in municipal affairs."

At present there was a tendency to reckless and wasteful municipal expenditure in the cities, towns and villages, a carelessness over growing overdrafts and a readiness on the part of banks and financiers to avoid municipal securities.

Spent On Education.

Col. Matheson drew attention to the growth of the province during the past two years. The greater outlay had been largely devoted to education, to the assisting and benefiting of the rural schools and the encouragement of the Provincial university, and to the paying to the municipalities of the railway taxation; the expenditure was being paid to the people.

In detail he reviewed the expenditure and receipts of the various governmental departments, pointing out the great progress which had been made in all lines of effort. In comparison he traced the many peculiar and unexplicable financial transactions which characterized the former Government's regime and boldly characterized them as graft. The cable correspondence between Hon. Messrs. Harcourt and Ross over the English Coates & Co. loan was made public, showing that someone was to receive the "$25,000 commission." "The most charitable construction to be placed upon this transaction," declared the Minister, "is that this commission was to be devoted to the election funds of the party."

Estimated Receipts.

The Treasurer presented the following figures for the estimated receipts for the year, which did not include the revenue to be derived from the proposed tax on mines:

Subsidy	$1,339,287.00
Interest on Trust Funds	80,000.00
Interest on Investments	90,000.00
Crown Lands Department	3,437,000.00
Public Institutions	135,000.00
Central Prison Industries	60,000.00
Education Department	45,000.00
Provincial Secretary's Department	175,000.00
Agriculture	74,000.00
Casual Revenue	140,000.00
Succession Duties	700,000.00
Supplementary Revenue Tax	640,000.00
Tavern and Brewers' Licenses	550,000.00
Law Stamps	80,000.00
Algoma Taxes	2,000.00
Fisheries	65,000.00
Total Estimated Receipts	7,612,287.28
Cash Balances 31st December, 1906	3,497,239.62
Total	$11,109,526.90

Money to Burn.

Mr. E. J. B. Pense, of Kingston, who essayed the task of financial critic, did not attempt to criticize. He realized to the full the great prosperity which had been reported. He even declared there was "money to burn" and recommended additional expenditures, but claimed that his party when in office had laid the foundation and builded for the present prosperity.

Mr. J. B. Lucas, Centre Grey, followed with a particularly bright and capable address, reviewing the progressive legislation which had characterized the Whitney regime.

Disowned the Statement.

Mr. C. N. Smith, Sault Ste. Marie, was under the necessity of calling on the well-worn excuse that he had been misreported in a speech he made in the West Middlesex, and which was brought to the attention of the House by Hon. Mr. Hanna.

Mr. Smith was reported as having said that Government Accountant Thorne was a partner in the Charlotte Taylor prison labor contract, a statement he promptly disowned when Mr. Hanna confronted him with it.

Fatally Injured.

St. Thomas, Mar. 1.—E. Snider, an M. C. R. brakeman, was crushed while coupling cars at Welland last night, and it is feared that he sustained internal injuries which may result fatally. He was brought to the Amasa Wood Hospital in this city.

Bureau Gets Seat.

Montreal, March 1.—The Hon. Jacques Bureau, Solicitor-General, was returned yesterday by acclamation in Three Rivers and St. Maurice.

In Richelieu, Adelaid Lancelot, who was chosen by the Liberal convention, was nominated, and is opposed by C. A. Rondeau, Independent-Liberal.

In L'Assomption, the Conservatives nominated Eltie Lemiere, while Dr. Laurier, Conservative Liberal, and Joseph Archambault, Liberal, also were placed in nomination.

In Richelieu, the straight Ministerial candidate is sure to win, but in L'Assomption, should Mr. Archambault persist in dividing the Liberal vote, the result will be doubtful.

Killed by Engine Explosion.

Chicago, Mar. 1.—By the explosion of a boiler of a locomotive on the Michigan Central Railroad yesterday, Fireman August Kreff was killed and a switchman named Swinnfrock was fatally hurt.

150 Arrested In French Riot.

Reims, France, Mar. 1.—Violent anti-Masonic rioting occurred here yesterday. Many persons were injured and the police made 150 arrests.

William A. Kidd's residence at Port Carling, was burned with $5,000 loss.

MY WIFE TOLD TRUTH.

Thaw Makes Statement In Court—Alienists Now Hold the Field.

New York, March 1.—Harry K. Thaw enlivened the extremely dull session of his trial yesterday by furnishing the newspaper men with a brief statement in which he accused District Attorney Jerome of having made unprofessional remarks in court, asserted his wife's testimony was absolute truth and declared Mrs. Thaw's "natural real goodness" was above the comprehension of the prosecuting officers.

Alienist Cross-Examined.

Dr. Britton D. Evans, the alienist, was in the witness' chair all yesterday undergoing cross-examination at the hands of Jerome. The prosecutor said before adjournment that he probably would keep Dr. Evans on the stand throughout to-day. This means that the cross-examination of Dr. Wagner, another alienist, will not be reached until next week and makes indefinite the time when the defence will rest.

Dr. Evans and Mr. Jerome spent the entire day in going over eight letters written by Thaw and culling out of them all excerpts on which Dr. Evans based his expressed belief that they were written by a person of unsound mind.

This was the essence of the day's work. Mr. Jerome seemed as interested as the expert in searching out phrases in the letters which might be construed as the writings of an insane man, and, for the first time, the jurors were permitted to examine photographic copies of letters thoroughly.

Jerome's attitude in this direction again led to the circulation of rumors that he intends to pave the way, if possible, for a commission in lunacy.

Thaw's Sleuth Dogged White.

A private detective hired by Thaw to shadow Stanford White when the latter toured Europe last spring, may give material evidence at the present trial. White followed closely upon the previous itineraries of Evelyn Nesbit in the hope that he might run across her and regain her friendship. Thaw had a report sent to him of every movement White made during the trip which lasted five weeks.

THE SHORTEST ROUTE.

Newfoundland Considering a New Transatlantic Line.

Halifax, N. S., March 1.—In the Newfoundland Legislative Assembly Wednesday night Premier Bond proposed the adoption of a contract between the Newfoundland Government and the Messrs. Ochs, capitalists, of London and Paris, providing for the establishment of a short line of transatlantic steamers between Killery, on the west coast of Ireland, and Green Bay, on the east coast of Newfoundland.

The plan also provides for a two-hour railway trip across the colony to Port au Basque, whence a twenty-knot steamer would convey mails and passengers to Gaspe, Quebec, in summer, and Sydney, C. B., in winter.

The promoters of the project claim that there would be a saving of 32 hours over any other transatlantic route.

The project must take shape within two years or else all liability on the part of the colony will cease.

Should the capitalists carry out their announced plans the Newfoundland Government proposes to pay them $75,000 annually for 25 years. It is said that the British, American and Canadian Governments will be asked to assist in establishing the proposed line.

The Messrs. Ochs are given the right to construct a tunnel under the Strait of Belle Isle within eight years, and establish railway connections between a proposed line through Labrador and the Newfoundland Railway.

The Legislature will act on the contract within a few days.

DEAD HEROINE HONORED.

Thousands Follow Miss Sarah Maxwell to Her Last Resting Place.

Montreal, Mar. 1.—Montreal yesterday showed that it felt it had lost a heroine when thousands upon thousands turned out to attend the funeral of the late Miss Sarah Maxwell, the principal of the Hochelaga Protestant School, who gave her life in an endeavor to save all the little ones confided to her charge. For years past Miss Maxwell, with her widowed mother, had regularly attended the service at Christ Church Cathedral, and from it the remains were borne yesterday, surrounded by children from all the Protestant schools in this city, and people of all classes, anxious to pay tribute to the memory of the brave girl. In the procession from the family home, on St. Urbain street, to Christ Church were crowds of people, young and old, all of whom showed by their sorrow that a true heroine had been cut off all too prematurely.

May Lift Age for Bryce.

London, Mar. 1.—In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Liddell, Unionist, wanted to know whether Ambassador Bryce at Washington would be compelled to retire on reaching the age of 70 in May, 1908, and whether he would receive a pension for his fifteen months' service.

Foreign Secretary Grey, in reply, said the Premier would recommend to the King the retention of the Ambassador's services after the age of 70 if it was in the interest of the public service to do so. No ambassador, however, was entitled to a diplomatic pension until he had served ten years abroad.

Bitten In Fight, He Dies.

Calgary, Mar. 1.—John Burley, who was bitten in a fight with a man named Sloane about three months ago, died from blood poisoning in the hospital yesterday.

Electrocuted At Top of Pole.

Ottawa, March 1.—Theophile Audrey, an employe of the Ottawa Electric Co., was electrocuted yesterday afternoon at the top of a street pole.

Gilbert Appeal Dismissed.

Ottawa, March 1.—In the supreme court yesterday the appeal in regard to the Northwestern murder cases, Gilbert v. the King, was dismissed.

Edward Sweet, twenty years old, was killed at Violet, seven miles from Napanee, by a tree he was felling striking him.

BLACK HAND STRIKES

Member Murdered in Free Fight in Saloon.

Italian Slain As An Act of Reprisal For Breach of Confidence—Had Four Bullets In His Body—Room Was Filled With Men—Two Wounded By the Fusilade—Zimmerman and Indorf Were Arrested.

New York, March 1.—One man is dead and two others have serious bullet wounds as a result of a free fight in Curley's saloon at Third Avenue and 117th Street early yesterday. All of those involved were Italians. Michael Gallo, the dead man, is said by the police to have been prominent in the Black Hand Society, and their theory is that his murder was an act of reprisal for a breach of confidence on his part. Louis Indorf, bar tender; Louis Zimmerman, contractor, and Lorenzo Condessa were arrested. Indorf and Zimmerman are wounded. Zimmerman told the police that he had gone to the back room of the saloon with a woman about four o'clock yesterday morning. There were many persons there. Suddenly there was a shot, followed by a regular fusilade, and in a moment the room was so filled with smoke that it was impossible to see anything. When the police reached the place they found Gallo dead with four bullets in the body. Five more bullet holes were found in the walls of the back room. Zimmerman and Indorf were arrested when they went to a nearby hospital to have their wounds dressed.

BUCKET SHOP BROKEN.

American Accused of Swindling Clients In the Northwest.

Winnipeg, March 1.—George D. Woods, president of the Canadian Stock & Grain Co., a prominent member of the Minneapolis and St. Paul bucket-shop fraternity, was arrested last night by Chief of Police McCrea, charged with the theft of $1,000.

J. J. Carrick of Port Arthur alleges that on Feb. 4 he purchased on margin 100 shares of Canadian Copper Co. stock. Recently his account was closed out, presumably for the reason that his margin was exhausted. Investigation has shown that the stock has risen in value from $26 a share to $35. The Canadian Stock & Grain Co., in closing Carrick out, said the stock had gone down to $17 1-2.

The Canadian Stock & Grain Co. opened an office here last September, and has been carrying on an extensive business through the whole of the west, advertising extensively in all parts of the country.

TRAGEDY OF WEST.

Man Dies of Frozen Feet, One Kills Himself, Another Is Injured.

Battleford, March 1.—A horrible occurrence has been revealed by the investigations of the police following the rumor of tragedy near Eagle Lake, in the German settlement. A settler named Kuscher had both feet frozen, and while being treated in the house of a neighbor named Ryder went insane through suffering, having no medical attendance. He attacked Ryder while the latter was asleep, and nearly murdered him with an iron bar, beating him so that he will be disfigured for life, although the injuries will not prove fatal. The arrival of neighbors saved Ryder's life, and the maniac was overpowered and bound. He was taken to another house, and his sufferings were so terrible that a man named Stubbert, who was nursing him but dared not free him, also went insane and blew out his brains. Kuscher afterwards also died.

SUFFOCATED BY SMOKE.

One Life Lost In Incendiary Fire In Cleveland, Ohio.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 1.—In a fire believed to have been of incendiary origin the Waldheim & Co. furniture house, a five-storey brick structure, in Ontario street, was destroyed Wednesday night, and John Shafter, asleep in a rooming house, adjoining, was suffocated. The property loss is $150,000. The police are searching for a man said to have been seen in the Waldheim building before the fire.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

English Immigrant In Brockville Hospital In Serious Condition.

Brockville, Ont., Mar. 1.—William Parker, a young English emigrant in the employ of James Chalmers, a farmer of this district, while in the stable feeding the horses, was kicked on the side of the head. His face was badly lacerated and his tongue nearly severed. He was found unconscious, and lies in the hospital in a very critical condition.

Shut Out Emigrants.

London, March 1.—(C. A. P.)—General Booth, in an interview with the British Australasian, before sailing, said: "I offered Australians all the men they wanted, and they shut the door in my face. We do not propose to risk any more flouts and sneers. By the suspicions with which they received me they thought I was going to send them drunks, prisoners, or the refuse of Europe. Australia must be earnest about the matter before we send out emigrants."

Barred From Throne.

Berlin, Mar. 1.—Chancellor Von Buelow presided yesterday at a meeting of the Federal Council, at which it was decided unanimously that under the present circumstances no member of the House of Cumberland will be allowed to succeed to the throne of the Duchy of Brunswick.

Wisconsin Swept by Blizzard.

Superior, Wis., Mar. 1.—Superior yesterday suffered the worst blizzard of the winter, heavy snow being driven by a high wind. Incoming trains are badly delayed.

The directors of the Dominion Coal Company will meet on March 7 to discuss the question of a dividend on the common stock.

JUDGE IS PROMISED.

Mr. Borden Moves Vote of Censure For Delay.

Ottawa, March 1.—In the House yesterday R. L. Borden, for the third time, censured the action, or rather inaction, of the Government in failing to appoint a judge to the supreme court of Nova Scotia, preceding it by the more effective method of a straight resolution of censure.

He pointed out how since March 27, 1906, when D. C. Fraser was taken from the bench and appointed to the Government of Nova Scotia, the vacancy remained unfilled. With the absence and illness of judges, the judicial business of the province had become so congested that the situation was a scandal, and all this so that the position of a judgeship could be kept dangling before a political supporter.

Twenty-four judicial appointments had been made in Canada, yet this one had to be left vacant because the Government was afraid to open Mr Laurence's constituency of Colchester.

Hon. Mr. Aylesworth Explains.

Hon. Mr. Aylesworth contended that there was nothing unusual in the case. It frequently happened in other parts of Canada that a court of appelate jurisdiction was deprived of a quorum because one of the judges happened to be the trial judge in a particular case. He pleaded ignorance of the fact of Mr. Borden's absolute retirement from the firm, supposing that his name was left on, as his own was in Toronto, for the sake of what prestige it might be supposed to bring.

As to the legal situation in Nova Scotia, there would be no important sittings until the spring assizes, and the appointment would be made before that date.

Mr. Lancaster (Lincoln and Niagara) said it had been a matter of surprise when the Premier had appointed Mr. Aylesworth to his present place. The Opposition took the position that they would give Mr. Aylesworth a fair show, but it was idle to show him any consideration. Every day he became more offensive to the House and indifferent to the rights of the people.

Mr. Boyce (Algoma) said the delay in filling the vacancy helped to further prevent the trial of the Halifax election case. Mr. Boyce asked if the gentleman from Colchester (Mr. Laurence) had not been promised the appointment.

Mr. Aylesworth denied that he had.

E. M. MacDonald (Liberal, Pictou, N. S.), one of the candidates for the vacant judgeship, defended the Government. Public business had not suffered.

Mr. Bennett (E. Simcoe) asked, could there be any dispute but that the Laurier Government had degraded our judiciary?

Upon division the Government was sustained, Mr. Borden's resolution being defeated: Yeas 50, nays 83. It was a straight party vote.

An Incidental.

Ottawa, March 1.—In committee yesterday the fact was developed that over $16,000 has been expended by the Government in procuring valuations and options upon the land upon which the new Government office buildings are to be erected.

One of the beneficiaries was James White, contractor, and president of the Liberal Association, to be remembered for his generous activity on behalf of Mr. Hyman in the London bye-election.

WANTS TO RENEW CHARTER.

Emmerson Opposes Extension of Time to Canadian Northern.

Ottawa, March 1.—The Canadian Northern Ontario Railway Co. bill, to give the company permission to build branch lines in Ontario, was considered again in the Commons Railway Committee yesterday morning. It was discovered that the clause limiting the time for construction covered "the lines of railway which the company is hereby or has heretofore been authorized to construct."

Mr. Emmerson pointed out that the addition of the words, "or has heretofore been" would grant an extension of time to all other lines of the railway granted in previous years to the James Bay Railway Co., such as the line from Toronto to Ottawa and from Toronto to Sudbury. Some of these branches might be outlawed by now. He said the bill appeared to be a surreptitious attempt to renew charters.

Dr. Sproule moved to strike out the words "or has heretofore been."

W. H. Moore, for the company, protested against any amendment which would delay the beginning of the construction of the company's line from Ottawa to Toronto, plans for which had been before the Minister for some time. The company proposed also to build a line from Ottawa to Georgian Bay, and he was not prepared to say that without this legislation the company would be able to go ahead.

At the Minister's suggestion the bill was referred to a sub-committee of five.

Kills Man and Three Women.

Colfax, Ills., Mar. 1.—Thomas Baldwin, a rich farmer and former merchant, yesterday shot and killed Chas. Kennedy and wife, and Mrs. Sim Eisman and daughter, Cora.

Baldwin narrowly escaped lynching. He surrendered to the authorities.

Overcome by Gas.

Kingston, Mar. 1.—C. Folger, superintendent of the gas plant, and J. Forsyth, while seeking a leak in a pipe in lower Union street, were overcome with gas yesterday.

New Styles Easily Copied by the Clever Needlewoman.

If the prevailing styles in neckwear had been expressly designed for the benefit of the woman who makes these small frivolities for herself they could not have suited her better. The season shows a marked preference for combinations over a single form of trimming used exclusively, and there is hardly an end of lace or embroidery left over from a dress, a shirt waist or even a fine bit of lingerie that will not come into play in skillful fingers, while fine hand work embellishes everything.

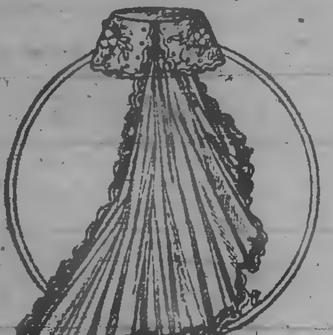
Even the stiff brim collars show hand embroidery. Even the cobwebby laces which are lavished on the dressier forms of neckwear are embroidered.

A charming stock that admirably illustrates the prevailing trend in fancy neck garnitures is built on a foundation of tucked chiffon. It is cut with a long tab that hangs down quite over the front of the bodice and is decorated with pieces of lace shirred on down the center, with a lace medallion to cover the shirrings. The stock itself is boned and is finished off with turnovers of chiffon. At each point is placed a small lace medallion.

Fine valenciennes lace, eyelet work and French embroidery combine to make a linen collar a work of art, and it illustrates capitally the passion for combination. This collar has a tab of finely plaited Persian lawn, the center of which is embellished with embroidered leaves and eyelets, while the outer edge is finished off with a row of the finest val. The edge of the collar proper is buttonholed in tiny scallops.

Collars of this description are worn mostly with tailor made blouses. Some of them emphasize the note of tailored severity by having the lawn of which they are built made up into a little bow, with just the ends trimmed with val edging.

As for the "dressy" stocks, they are nearly all made either of mousseline de soie or chiffon. Chiffon is without doubt the most perishable of all materials for such a purpose, but it is by far the prettiest, besides being such a soft, pliable fabric that one can do all manner of things with it.



LINEN COLLAR WITH LAWN TAB.

An extremely pretty effect is produced where the chiffon is tied in one bow and two ends, one of which should be much longer than the other. The ends are trimmed with insertion and lace to match, then pressed into tiny plaits. The upright part of the collar is very simple, with just a row of lace at top and bottom.

Exceedingly dainty, too, is a collar and cuff set made of two different laces joined with fagoting. The collar, made on a bias band of lawn, has six points—two on the back and two on each side of the front.

A PRETTY DRESSING SACQUE.

There is nothing in the wardrobe which holds so warm a place in feminine affections as the negligee. It is always ready to rest one from tiresome street clothes and requires little time to don in the morning when breakfast is waiting. Its uses and joys are numerous and every woman should have several with the low priced materials to be had in the shops, and the ease with which they may be fashioned. Here is a pretty sack having tucks in front and a graceful broad collar as adornment. The fulness may fall loose in front or be girdled trimly with ribbons, fastened at the back. It is a style easily developed and well suited to tubbing. Lawn, dimity, Swiss silk or challis might fashion it pleasingly 3 1-4 yards of 36 inch material being needed for the medium size.

ROOM FURNISHINGS.

They Should Be Simple, Durable, Sanitary and Artistic.

Do not act on the supposition that everything old is beautiful. "Your grandfather's taste may have been worse than yours," observes an expert. Do not buy many things. Do not make a museum of your house.

The furnishings should be adapted to the use to which the family wishes to put them. The life for which the white and gold chair was designed is elaborately and distantly formal. Conventionality and ceremony rather than cozy comfort are suggested by the white and gold room. The use of the room and the purpose of the article should be kept in mind in the selection of furniture.

Furnishings should be simple, durable, sanitary and artistic. Color is one of the most important elements in the selection of furnishings. Do we realize that the indefinable difference between the restful room and the inharmonious room is largely a matter of color? A room requires its color to be in unison if it is to soothe and rest.

Frequently the householder may recall Morris' words, "Have nothing in your homes that you do not know to be useful or believe to be beautiful." And those from Henderson: "One must surround oneself with wholesomeness and beauty. This parallelism between conciseness and nature makes this insistence upon convenience of arrangement and respect for form and color more than a mere matter of taste. It makes it a matter of moral obligation. A man's surroundings are not accidental. They are a part of himself and must likewise be chastened and purified. An ugly room, badly lighted, poorly ventilated, inadequately heated, must be regarded as morally reprehensible, whether provided for oneself or for somebody else. It is the projection of an evil thought and, entering into consciousness, lowers the level of human life."—Boston Traveler.

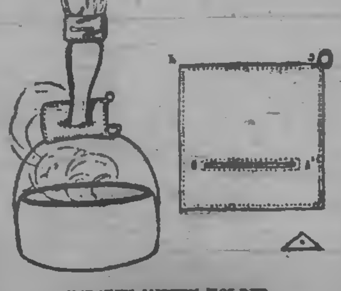
Handkerchiefs.

To keep handkerchiefs a good color, instead of damping them in the usual way before ironing, proceed as follows: Put two quarts of tepid water, with five drops of blue and a small piece of lump starch, into a basin, and into this mixture dip each handkerchief separately, thoroughly wetting it, then squeezing it as dry as possible. When all the handkerchiefs have been treated in this way spread them out smoothly on a clean cloth or towel until they can be ironed.

A MITTEN HOLDER.

Protects the Hand From Steam In Lifting Pots From the Range.

When a young bride I purchased some very pretty blue and white kettles to harmonize with the other kitchen furnishings. On using them I discovered that they had bails, but no handles, and it was almost impossible to pour anything from them without scalding my hand in the rising steam. So I made what I call the "mitten holder." Take a piece of canton flannel sixteen inches long and eight inches wide, fold in halves lengthwise and pad well with flannel. Before closing the side seam cut a slit the width of a hand two inches up from and parallel to the bottom seam on the side not padded (A B). Bind with tape. Then finish the edges, not forgetting a brass ring hanger (C). When in use this will be found ample protection to the back of the hand as well as palm. It launders easily and altogether has proved a great convenience. The same scheme might be used with two sheets of asbestos paper quilted into the cloth. The covering for this holder should be removable for laundering.—Good Housekeeping.



KITCHEN MITTEN HOLDER.

The Simple Bedroom.

A simple bedroom is most desirable and the most comfortable. Large closets are a great convenience. Under one of the windows a box can be built in which shirt waists may be kept and also serve as a seat. Mirrors may be set into the wall, framed to match the woodwork. If the walls are in good condition it is better to have them painted a delicate tint, though it gives a room a cold appearance. Nothing, however, is as sanitary or economical. If the walls are painted, the hangings and furniture coverings should be figured. If flowered or figured paper is used, then the material for draperies and coverings should be plain. In some bedrooms both wall paper and hangings are of the same design. The floors, of course, should be of hard wood or be painted. It is possible then by removing the rugs and wiping up the floor with a damp cloth occasionally to keep the room free from dust. The rag rugs now so popular are desirable for bedrooms, for they can be washed without much trouble.—New York Post.

Believes Children Have Taste.

One Boston matron who has theories of child culture undreamed of by early New England says it is a great mistake to dress children on uniform lines, but that they should be consulted as to what they wish to wear and to exercise their own taste in dress. The Boston woman adds: "The thoughtful child of today appreciates what is good form in dress and other things, and when a little girl gets to be half a dozen summers or so her preferences should be taken into consideration. It is a mistake for reproving elders to frown upon any little fancy which does not coincide with their own ideas." She further remarks that, given an idea, many of these geniuses of the nursery go ahead and improve upon it with a cleverness that would put many dressmakers to the blush.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Goose oil persistently applied for a few weeks will loosen stiff joints.

Celery tops and roots steeped in hot water makes an excellent tea to be taken by nervous persons.

Olive oil mixed with quinine and rubbed on the back and chest prevents cold settling on the lungs.

The moment pimples and cold sores appear on the face take a dose of citrate of magnesia, which will cool the blood and put the system in better condition.

As soon as a cold sore appears wet the spot with camphor and cover with powdered subnitrate of bismuth. Camphor by itself will also lessen the inflammation.

Certain kinds of toothache can be relieved by painting the gums with a solution of one-half iodine and one-half glycerin. If there is a cavity in the tooth, saturate a small piece of absorbent cotton in oil of cloves, tincture of myrrh or laudanum and place it in the cavity.

Rare coins to the value of $15,000 were stolen from the Museum of Art in Vancouver on Tuesday night.

James Holmes of Port Arthur, was shot, perhaps fatally, by a stranger with whom he was walking on Monday night.

MANAGING A SERVANT.

Have Neither Too Much Nor Too Little Supervision.

Said a notable and successful housekeeper in a recital of her domestic experiences:

"I make it a rule to give a new servant orders for the first day and leave her to carry them out in her own way as the best test of her skill and ability. Upon this basis I begin the work of instructing and correcting. I do not hesitate to say that I have gained much valuable information in certain directions from girls who knew better ways than my own."

For guidance of the domestic machine a golden mean, neither too much nor too little supervision, promises most favorable results.

Communication and kindness may be trusted to strengthen and confirm good traits already in evidence, while expression of faith in ambition and ability will develop others to be cultivated in like manner. A servant's failure should be the mistress' regret, and if thus treated the sympathy proves a stronger incentive to well doing in her future than any amount of reproof and fault finding.

Servants are not exempt from trials and anxieties and often perform the labor of the day with heavy hearts from some trouble in their homes or among their kindred. To know that they have a friend in their employer in whom they can confide and trust for advice is a great comfort at such times. With abundant leisure for enjoyment it scarcely is possible sometimes for the mistress to comprehend how much an unexpected pleasure or privilege means to those engaged in a constant round of daily toil.—Washington Star.

TINTING LACE.

Good Way to Treat a Fabric That Will Not Wash Well.

When one desires to color lace for a gown, procure a tube of oil paint the color desired and squeeze it into a cup of gasoline and stir until dissolved. Then pour into a larger vessel.

Dip a small piece of the lace into it and if too deep add more gasoline until the shade desired is obtained. When it is the right color, put all the lace into it, take out, shake gently and dry in the open air.

When thoroughly dry, expose it to extreme heat for a few minutes, taking care, of course, that it is not near a fire or blaze, where it might ignite. This exposure to the heat will remove the odor of gasoline.

Lace which has been used and will not wash well can be given this treatment if first dry cleaned by being sprinkled generously with fuller's earth, then rolled up and put away for a few days. Upon taking out shake well and then proceed with the tinting as above.

Flowers and straw may be tinted by the same method. As gasoline is inflammable, it is always best to use it out of doors or as far away as possible from a flame or intense heat.—Chicago News.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

A pinch of grated nutmeg added to potato croquettes improves them.

The nutritive quality of fish and its flavor are best obtained by roasting or baking.

Remember that green vegetables should not be covered with the saucepan lid when they are being boiled.

Broiled meats are more nourishing than fried meats, and roasted meats yield more nourishment than broiled ones.

Baked potatoes are quite possible for breakfast if small ones are chosen. These will bake in twenty-five minutes, while the muffins are baking and the rest of the breakfast being prepared.

If cup custards are placed in a pan of water and cooked on top of the stove, there will be less liability of their overcooking, as they can be carefully watched. Just before they are done place in the oven to brown them on top.

The investigation of the murder of Constable Barron of Hamilton, three years ago, is the subject of a petition to be forwarded to the Ontario Government.

One of the New Pleated Skirts.

The separate skirt is to be very popular during the coming months and its most fashionable guise is a multitude of pleats. Here is a skirt rather unique in style and yet not difficult to fashion. There are eleven gores, the extra fulness let in at flounce depth being arranged in side pleats with inverted pleats at front and back. This insures a perfect fitting upper portion and plenty of fulness at the lower edge. Checks and stripes are very smart for these odd skirts and either might be used here while one of the many plain materials would also prove pleasing. For the medium size 7 1-2 yards of 42 inch goods are needed.

Many Names for New Steamer

Otonabee Navigation Co. Competition Will Remain Open Until March 15th

The Otonabee Navigation Co. have received suggestions of names for the new steamer from forty-nine different persons. This competition remains open until March 15th, and if the public continues to take such a keen interest in it the judges will have a difficult job to decide upon the most suitable name.

The directors of the company met last night and received communications from the railways giving the excursion rates from the different points to Peterborough. The rates are exceptionally low and should be a great drawing card. In fact there is no reason why the Otonabee Navigation Co. should not have three or four large excursions to the city every week during July, August and September.

The names for the new steamer suggested so far are;

Two Express Messengers Met Death in Burning Car on C.P.R.

East Bound Express Collided With West Bound Freight Train at Mountain Station—Engines Were Telescoped—Express and Baggage Cars Caught Fire.

Special to the Review.

Smith's Falls, March 1.—A head-on collision occurred on the C.P.R. at Mountain Station at six o'clock this morning.

No 6 express east bound, which left Smith's Falls at five o'clock crashed into a freight west-bound on the same track.

The crews of both trains jumped and escaped serious injury. The two engines were telescoped into each other.

The express car and the baggage car were burned and one freight car was destroyed. The two express messengers were burned up in their car. Their names are William Hitchins, of Cobourg and J. J. Nicholson, of Montreal. The passengers on the express escaped.

Mr. R. J. Winch received a telegram this morning from his son, Mr. C. H. Winch of Montreal, stating that Mr. William Hitchins, express messenger on the C.P.R. had been killed in the wreck this morning. Mr. Hitchins resided in Montreal, but formerly lived at Cobourg, being a native of that place. He is a first cousin of Mr. R. J. and Mr. H. C. Winch of this city.

Practical Test Made by Inspector and Members of Board of Education on Efficiency of the Drill—Scholars Acquitted Themselves Creditably—No Confusion.

School Inspector Walker was very much surprised this morning when Messrs. Wm. Pringle, Dr. Morrison, and W. H. Hill, members of the Board of Education, called at his office and asked him to ring the fire alarm in the Central School in order that they might see how efficient the pupils were in the fire drill.

After entering the building Mr. Walker rang the gong and in one minute and a half the edifice was entirely cleared of scholars.

The fire drill has not been practised in this school for some time and the teachers and pupils had not the least intimation that the alarm would be given. The manner and coolness of the pupils in marching out of the school is deserving of the highest praise. "They marched out like young soldiers," as one member of the board expressed it.

The doors of the rooms are situated near the stairs. Each pupil knew his or her own door in making an exit. Going down they kept to their respective sides of the stairs. Crossing and running into one another was avoided.

The necessity for fire drill in the schools has been brought home by the recent holocaust in the Hochelaga school at Montreal, where seventeen little ones met death in the smoke. In a building like the Central, where there are between five and six hundred pupils, it is necessary that the scholars should be trained in some system of leaving the structure in case of a blaze.

The members of the board were very much pleased with the manner in which the pupils acted, especially in the oldest school building in the city.

Will Present Handsome Chalice To Their Departing Priest

St. Mary's Church, Port Hope, Will Honor Rev. Father Lynch on Occasion of His Retirement to Take Up His Residence in Peterborough—Rev. Father Collins Leaving the Lakeside Town.

Father Lynch will, in the course of a few days, resign the charge of St. Mary's church and will remove to Peterborough, where he is having a residence fitted up for his accommodation, says the Port Hope Times. Father Collins will also leave Port Hope within the next few days. Rev. Father O'Sullivan will for the future have charge of the parish and will arrive on Monday. He has been curate at Lindsay for about six years.

The departure of Father Lynch will cause deep regret. Father Lynch, who is 84 years of age, has been a priest for 53 years, eighteen of which have been spent in Port Hope. His kindness of heart, self denial, and other estimable qualities have won him hosts of friends among all congregations, who will learn of his departure with much regret.

Father Lynch was born in Ireland and came to Canada with his parents when one year old. His parents and family, consisting of twelve children, settled near Montreal. His parents died when he was quite young. He attended school at Perth for two years and afterwards graduated from Montreal College. He was ordained in St. Joseph's Cathedral at Ottawa.

As a mark of respect and good will on the part of the congregation, a handsome chalice, purchased by the congregation, will be presented to them at the close of next Sunday morning's service.

Father Collins, who has been connected with St. Mary's church since last August will also be much missed by the many friends he has made in Port Hope. The remarkable success of the bazaar recently held was mainly due to his energy and organizing ability. The Bishop has not yet decided in what parish Father Collins will labor for the future.

Sanitary Inspector Geo. Ball Is Wearing His New Uniform

Duties Started To-day, March 1st—He will be Known to the Public by His Blue Uniform, With Black Buttons and Decorated Cap.

This is the first of March and when the sun stuck his face above the horizon a new era was begun in Peterborough. Ex-Ald. Geo. Ball, the new sanitary inspector, started on his rounds of the city to-day and he will hereafter see that everything is kept in the very best of order. Mr. Sanitary Inspector did not have a very good night. His new uniform arrived and was delivered at his residence. It is a nifty dark blue suit, trousers well creased, box coat and snug fitting vest, with the black buttons designating the wearer's occupation. The clothes on Ball fit likee the paper on the wall, but the best of all is the dinky automobile cap of dark blue, to match his suit. The peak is of patent leather and handsomely polished, while across the front of the cap in plain gold letters is embossed "Sanitary Inspector." On the whole the outfit is a peach and the citizens will have no trouble in knowing what they are up against when ex-Ald. Ball looms up in the distance.

As soon as the box containing the uniform arrived nothing would satisfy the official's curiosity and he had to try it on and see how he looked. The greatest care was exercised in unpacking the garments, because it was the first suit Mr. Ball ever and presented to him and being a tailor by trade he realized the amount of work there is entailed.

It was a great sensation when he got the garments on and his heart fluttered like a leaf in a breeze. In fact his whole person was all excitement. An hour or two were spent in marching up and down the main hall in the house to accustom himself to the uniform and to get the proper pose. It was difficult, because the inspector could not refrain from looking himself over, but after awhile he got his head up to the regulation height and his arms fell into line with his legs and had accomplished the regulation gait. (It might be mentioned Mr. Ball is also a special policeman.)

Bed time arrived and the sanitary inspector was in duty bound to retire early so as to be fresh for the morning. The clothes were carefully folded and placed in the box again. The ex-alderman crawled into bed to dream and see visions. But at the first peep of day he was up again, performed his ablutions with the greatest care, had a hurried breakfast and started for town and his new duties. One of the first men seen on George street was Mr. Sanitary Inspector Ball in his new uniform glittering in the sunlight. The official had had a clean shave and an official hair cut and as he strutted about the town his many old friends gazed upon his portly frame half with envy and half with admiration.

Nevertheless Mr. Ball should be a good man for the position, he knows his duty and he will perform it without fear or favor and that is what the city needs. Of course for the first few weeks the work will not be hard, but as soon as spring opens the inspector will have no time to loose. In the meanwhile he will lay his plans and make all preparations for carrying on the campaign against dirt.

John Temple of Feversham, charged with arson and tried at Owen Sound, was acquitted.

Funeral Service in Murray St. Church

Delegates From Toronto Will Attend Funeral of Late J. A. MacDonald

The funeral of the late John A. MacDonald will take place from the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr, Samuel Cottingham, 430 Donegal street to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock.

Owing to the large number, who will in all likelihood be in attendance, and the fact that delegates will be present from McMaster University and the University of Toronto, it has been decided to hold a public service in the Murray street Baptist church at 3 o'clock. Rev. J. R. Webb, the pastor, will be in charge, and will be assisted by the Rev. J. G. Potter, and the representatives of McMaster University. Afterwards the remains will be conveyed to Little Lake cemetery for intrment.

It is expected that the delegates from the Universities in Toronto, McMaster, of which deceased was a graduate, and Toronto University, where he was studying medicine, will arrive in the city to-morrow morning.

The Toronto Globe says:—Death carries off a brilliant young student yesterday morning at the hospital, in the person of Mr. J. A. MacDonald, of Peterborough. He was in his first year in medicine at the University of Toronto, and was a graduate in arts of McMaster University, where he held a fellowship one year. He subsequently studied at the University of Chicago, and was engaged in educational work in Colorado. He was well known as a hockey player and a footballer. Meningitis was the cause of his death, which came rather suddenly. A body of students accompanied the remains to the Union Station yesterday afternoon, and two of the medicals and a member of the McMaster staff will attend the funeral at Peterborough to-morrow. Lectures were suspended at MaMaster from noon yesterday out of respect.

New Sign is a Handsome One

Front of Laidlaw and Oles, New Store is Embellished

A handsome new sign has been placed in front of Laidlaw and Oles premises on Hunter street. It is the work of J. J. Turner & Sons, and is of the usual high standard of work turned out by this popular and flourishing firm. The background of the sign is black, with the words "Fashion Craft," printed across in gold letters. Between the words the letters L. and O. are monogramed, standing for Laidlaw & Oles, the proprietors of the store. The sign is an excellent one, both in conception and execution.

Old Friends Have a Chat

Times are Different From What They Used to be

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—It is quite a while since I wrote you and I thought to drop you a few lines. Bye the bye, I met my old friend Sandy McGregor in the village a few days ago and after we had a chat aboot each other's welfare and all our family connections and a good many other things, which would not be interesting to you, Sandy says, Hoot mon, Jock, the times are quite different noo to what they were when you and I were young. When I look aroond I can hardly think it is the same kintry. Then we thought nae-thing of walking a few miles to kirk or market—sometimes 8 or 10. Now the young folks canna walk e'en a mile, but must have a fast horse, a fine cutter, or top buggy, and the dress instead of homespun clothes that you and I used to wear, must be broadcloth coats and fur-lined at that. The ladies, dear creatures, it is a sight to see them in their stylish hat and fligarity. Aye, Jock, it was different with oor wives and mithers.

That's sae Sandy. It almaist makes me weep to see the craze this generation has after the almighty dollar. It brings to my mind about the story of the children of Israel worshipping the golden calf, in Exodus, 32nd chapter, 4th verse, and you canna take up a daily or weekly paper but you see glaring before your eye aboot stocks and bonds and mines and shares and, how sae many had made their fortune. Aye, but they dinna say a word aboot their misfortune. Aye, mon, but they will find their mistake each day. They canna worship God and mammon too, and Sunday. Mon, they are gone clean mad on political sensation and other things. we are almost represented to death, to begin with oor township council, and then oor county council, and oor local parliament. Then oor House of Commons, and then the Senate which beats them all and if we hae no good laws it is no for want of enough of law. Aye, mon, they dinna ask you or I when the rest of the folks pay the taxes aboot their pay but they just fix that themselves, and such big pay too, mon. You see what a grand thing it is to live in a free kintry where they will hae us taxed to death after a while. I think that was just what I was Jock and the names they gie themselves. It is honorable this and that and if their actions were looked into some of them would nae be very honorable.

As the day is drawing to a close we agreed to meet again and discuss some ither things, such as local option, trusts and graft and perhaps public ownership and sich like so likely you will hear from us again.

Good-bye, mon,
Yours truly,
THE OLD FARMER.

AMUSEMENTS

UNCLE JOSH.

One of the novel advertising devices used by the "Uncle Josh Spruceby" Company, which appears at the Grand Opera House, Thursday, March 7th, to attract attention is the daily parade of the "Hayseed" band. The band itself while of much better calibre than the usual travelling organization, has its members attired as the title indicates, in the usual characteristic dress of the New England rustic. Some dressed in their best as on "Circus Day" while some attired in stage boots and jeans appear fresh from 'chores.' With "Uncle Josh" himself in the lead, umbrella and carpet sack in hand, they parade the principal streets and give a concert of choice selections. The parade takes place at noon.

Sugar Has Advanced 10 Cents; Is 20c Higher Than Last Year

The refiners have advanced granulated sugar ten cents per hundred pounds to the wholesalers and there is a possibility of it going still higher. If it does, however, it will not be long until it drops again. If it does not take a second increase the price will likely remain stationary for some time. The old price was, for St. Lawrence or Redpaths, $4.40 per cwt. and the increase of 10c. with 12c added for freight from Toronto to Peterborough will make the price to the retailer $4.62, with 5c. per hundred pounds off for car lots.

This will make a material difference to the householder, but is better to have the price raised at this time than during the summer, when the canning season is in full swing.

Sugar at the present time is 20c per hundred higher than it was at this time last year. Yet the raw material market shows fully as much or even, more, sugar cane produced than last year. The only reason for the advanced price is because of the trouble some little time ago in Cuba where nearly all the sugar comes from.

The Canadian Grocer refers to the situation as follows,—

Certainly the Canadian refiners are not following the New York market. Willet & Gray, New York, said at the close of last week,—

Interest centres in the Cuba market and the point at which the continued decline will end and the improving side of prices begin.

Europe offers no obstacle to an advance in Cuba, the parity of beet values continuing abnormally above the Cuban parity and with indications that Europe has entirely cut loose from Cuba and is advancing on its own merits. Europe after touching 8s., 7 1-2d., at the end of January on its decline, has during February gained in strength, moving up slowly, but steadily to 8s. 11 1-4d., while on the other hand Cuba Centrifugals were selling at 2 1-8c., c. & f. (3.48c. per lb.) at the close of January, are now value at 2 13-32c., c. & f., equal to 3.38c., landed for 96 degree test, based on sales of nearby Porto Rico, thus widening the parity between Centrifugals and beet sugar to 49c. per hundred lbs., or 15c. per hundred lbs. more than the 34c per hundred lbs. granted Cuba by reciprocity. Of course, such a condition could only result from the continued pressure of twice the amount of sugar on the market that our refiners can use or take care of.

That the Cuban planter is beginning to realize somewhat of the abnormal condition under which he is forcing his sugars to a sale is a little in evidence, at the close of the markets here this week, when it appears evident that the 2c. per lb., c. & f., point at which buyers are aiming is to be contested by the planter, the first sign of a little bit of independence on his part.

We feel compelled to say therefore, that the tide of decline has already turned or is about to turn, in favor of the seller from the present low level, and that the improvement, once begun will go on more or less steadily until the parity of beet sugar is reached in our market.

Society is in Splendid Shape

Annual Meeting of Peterborough Workingmen's Building and Savings Society

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Workingmen's Building and Savings Society was held recently, and reports were presented for the past year. These were of the most encouraging character. The society, which has been in existence seventeen years, is well managed, and its affairs are carefully looked after.

The financial statement showed the receipts during the past year to be $8,971.19. This sum, together with the amounts received in the sixteen previous years, makes the total increase, since the inception of the society in January, 1889, $131,739.49. The payments in 1906 were $9,318.15, and the amounts previously paid in were $117,236.75, leaving a balance in the bank of $5,184.59.

The total assets of the society are loans on real estate and shares, $21,-300; interest overdue and accrued, $330.74; cash in Bank of Ottawa, $5,184.59; total, $27,083.33. The liabilities are: Subscriptions, $22,-719.37; surplus, $4,363.96; total, $27,083.33.

This society in its long and successful history, has never lost a dollar through investment or loans. This is a unique and highly gratifying record.

ITS OBJECTS.

The chief object of the society are to procure a profitable investment for the individual investor, and to inculcate habits of thrift. Subscribing for instalment stocks, payable monthly, is the first step towards saving money. The subsequent payments of a shareholder lead to the accumulation of money which is continually earning interest. The opportunities of this society enable it to promptly lend the payments received from its shareholders, and such advantages are not within the reach of an individual lender.

OFFICERS.

The officers elected were as follows, Mr. McGrath having filled the position of president for five years:

President.—T. B. McGrath.
Vice-President.—Jas. Lynch.
Treasurer.—Jas. Murty.
Secretary.—J. Corkery.

The directors are;—Geo. Ball, M. Coughlin, H. LeBrun, J. J. McCabe, Dr. F. P. McNulty, F. McFadden, L. Minicolo, W. Hinchliffe, A. Murty, E. A. Peck, F. J. Pope, R. Sheehy.

The solicitors are Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr, the bankers, Bank of Ottawa. The valuators of the society are Messrs. T. B. McGrath and R. Sheehy.

"IT SAVED MY LIFE"

PRAISE FOR A FAMOUS MEDICINE

Mrs. Willadsen Tells How She Tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Just in Time.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words.

Mrs T. C. Willadsen

"Before I wrote to you, telling you how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money on medicines besides, but it all failed to help me. My monthly periods had ceased and I suffered much pain, with fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing-down pains, and I was so weak I could hardly keep around. As a last resort I decided to write you and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful that I did, for after following your instructions, which you sent me free of all charge, I became regular and in perfect health. Had it not been for you I would be in my grave to-day.

"I sincerely trust that this letter may lead every suffering woman in the country to write you for help as I did."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of an organ, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

Misleading Reports in the McGill Case

How Toronto Papers Published Utterly False Statements

The following letter recently appeared in the Toronto papers in reference to certain reports touching on the case of Charles McGill. The letter explains itself:—

Kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper to contradict the statements in some of the Saturday papers referring to Mr. McGill going to Kingston. Evidently the reporters of said papers could get no information from the authorities—therefore allowed their imagination to invent a report to their own thinking, which statements were not only cruel, but absolutely false. I am now denying these statements under the authority of Sheriff Mowat. On Saturday, when Mr. McGill left Toronto, he was not fettered to himself or any other person, but was driven to the Don station in a cab in company with Mr. Jarvis, and went on the train as free of fetters as any other passenger.

Every day for the last week he spent the greater part of it at the head office of the Ontario Bank in assisting with the investigation now going on, his luncheon each day being sent over to the bank from the King Edward Hotel. Mr. McGill was cheery and bright, recognized and appreciated that every kindness, as far as it could be allowed, was shown him by the authorities. Let me add that Mr. McGill has shown no wish to evade responsibility or flee the country, notwithstanding he was strongly advised to do so through anonymous letters. On the other hand, he has had scores of letters telling him to keep brave and not to forget that he has hosts of friends. Some people do not recognize that the real disgrace is not in the going to gaol, but in the action itself of wrong and guilt, and I firmly believe the day has yet to come for Mr. McGill to be proven innocent or guilty of evil intent to rob or deceive.

Will Canada Build Battleships; Proposition Under Consideration

Naval Estimates Presented in British House of Commons.

Construction of New Battleships Will Be Dependent Upon Hague Peace Conference—Three More Vessels of the Dreadnought Type to Be Added—Fleets to Be Re-Distributed—Important Changes.

London, March 1.—A statement of the naval estimates for 1907-8, presented to Parliament last night, introduced quite a novel feature, for it makes the construction of battleships during the coming year dependent in a measure upon the defence reached at the next peace conference held at The Hague.

The new construction, estimated at £40,500,000, against £46,175,000 for 1906-7. Lord Tweedmouth, first Lord of the Admiralty, says, will include two, or unless an understanding between the naval powers is reached at The Hague conference, three large armored vessels of the Dreadnought type.

One was unarmored cruiser, five torpedo boat destroyers, 12 torpedo boats and 12 submarines also are provided for.

On April 1 there will be under construction five battleships, seven armored cruisers, eight torpedo boat destroyers, 17 torpedo boats and 12 submarines.

Big Reduction in the Year.

The estimates for the year show a total reduction of 1,000 men and $5.-675,000 as compared with 1906-7.

Lord Tweedmouth comments upon the striking improvement in the gunnery of the fleet compared with last year. The average of hits was practically doubled.

The First Lord of the Admiralty mentions also the highly satisfactory performances of the battleship Dreadnought and the greater efficiency that has resulted from the system of nucleus crews.

As an illustration of this system and the better state of repair emanating from it, he compares the condition of January, 1904, when, out of 60 battleships, 30 were not available, owing to the need of repairs, with that of January, 1907, when out of 51 battleships, only eight were not available.

Redistribution of Fleets.

In dealing with the re-distribution of the fleets, Lord Tweedmouth touched indirectly upon the position of Admiral Lord Beresford. He explained that the home fleet was still in process of development and that some time would elapse before it could reach its full strength.

He said the fleet at home will continue to be combined for war purposes under orders of Lord Beresford, while the Channel, Atlantic and Home fleets will carry out their periodic manoeuvres together under his command.

Lord Tweedmouth said further that the Channel and Atlantic fleets still occupy the principal fighting position, and will in no way be interfered with by the home fleet, except in the event of a totally unforseen outbreak during the absence of the Channel and Atlantic fleets from home waters.

Retail Grocery Business Corralled by Wholesalers

Retail Merchant Gives a Few Facts About the Great Combine That Was Investigated in Hamilton—Local Merchants up Against it.

The retail grocers in Peterborough claim to be feeling the pinch of the wholesale grocers and Grocers' Guild. As a result some feeling is being worked up against that organization. The wholesalers, the retailers allege, are not content with charging the retailers the very highest price and demanding prompt, almost immediate, payment, but they are seriously cutting in on the retail trade.

Speaking on this subject to the representative of The Canadian Grocer, one of the largest retail grocers in the city, stated that the wholesale grocers and the Grocers' Guild had secured the control of the grocery trade, that they were like a lot of autocrats.

In the first place, the Guild had persuaded the manufacturers to sell only through them. All manufactured goods which were sold in a grocery store had to go through the jobbers' hands first, or the jobbers would refuse to handle the goods at all. Wholesale men had also fixed the prices, not only among themselves, but for the manufacturers. The manufacturers dared not sell to a retailer under any consideration, unless the wholesalers' price was charged and the wholesalers got their commission.

Take for instance, said the merchant, the sugar business. The wholesaler made from $40 a car upward, and he never touched the car, and seldom, if ever, saw it. The retailer in Peterborough, through keen competition, was compelled to sell at cost, or even less. In order to get any show at all he must buy by the carload. Even then the wholesaler only allows him 5 cents per hundred off, no matter whether he bought, one, two or a dozen carloads.

In cereals the same thing existed. The wholesale houses demanded that they sell the whole output. They made a profit of 20 cents a case, at least it would average that, and did not touch the goods. It was handed over to the retailer and the best he could do was to make about the same as the wholesaler, and he had to give credit and take chances or not on getting paid at all, and do all the work of distribution.

Some lines of tobacco were handled in the same way. Competition was so keen that the retail merchant had to less at cost and even less. The wholesaleers also had the entire canned goods business under their thumb until a number of new factories were started. An arrangement of prices was soon made with these factories, and now the wholesalers were eating up all the profits. In fact, nearly every line of grocies that could be at all was being handled by the wholesalers in the same way.

That, however, the retailer declared, was not the chief reason for complaint the retail men of Peterborough had. The wholesalers were not satisfied with taking practically all the profit and doing practically none of the work, but they were reaching out and grasping the retail trade. The travellers came around, and after doing the stores and getting all they could there, went to the hotels and sold to them in quantities at the same price as they did the retail merchants. The wholesalers were not satisfied with taking the hotel trade, but they were taking the restaurant and boarding house business. In fact, any person, or any house which bought a quantity of the wholesale house was after and sold to them at the same prices the retail grocer had to pay.

Another serious and unfair practice was that the wholesale men had corralled the grocery business of the lumber camps. They took the order for the season's supply at the lowest possible price and deprived the retail men of the business. Not only did they take the lumbermen's large order, but the wholesalers actually supplied the shareholders of the lumber companies with their groceries in small quantities, too.

It would be plainly seen the proposition the retail grocers of Peterborough were up against. Held down by the wholesalers to the very smallest profit; compelled to pay promptly, usually in ten days, and then the wholesalers depriving them of their largest cash trade. Any person who would pay cash the wholesaler was after. The retailer might have all the credit customers.

One of the largest wholesale houses in Montreal actually advertised in a local paper a number of small articles, teas and coffees, in one and two-pound lots, with a total cash value of $2.80, sent free upon receipt of cash. That was pretty nearly the last straw. The retail grocers here were afraid that if the unfair practices of the wholesale men were not stopped, the retail grocery business would be a thing of the past. As it is, the business is reduced to a second-class trade.—Canadian Grocer.

Peterborough Boy Speaks in Glowing Terms of Westaskiwin

Mr. James Bradley Says That the New and Pulsating Life of a Growing City is Being Felt—Real Estate Advancing Rapidly in Value.

Mr. James Bradley, son of Mr. J. Bradley of this city, is an old Peterborough boy, who is doing well in the west, where he has resided for the past five years. He is engaged at present in the real estate and insurance business in Wetaskiwin, Alberta.

Writing to his father of the progress and future of that city, he says,—

"Real Estate is active. Wetaskiwin, the infant city of Alberta, has lain aside its long clothes and is busy with active life. The throb of an awakening future is stirring to activity the latent qualities, inherent in the potentiality of its surroundings. Its position in the economy of railway systems, present and future, makes possible the new life, pulsating in the veins of its citizens. A good sign in any forward movement of this nature is to see local forces at work. It is said "Charity begins at home," but in this case we could say, "Wisdom is justified of her children."

"To those who have been watching the progress of Wetaskiwin, it is no surprise to find such a movement on foot, as the activities displayed in the past few weeks. The old timer is opening his eyes in wonder to see the rapid change of values, and most of those on the ground are taking advantage of the low values in real estate. Properties that have been on the market for some time have recently been bought up, and those adjoining the location for the new C.P.R. station, are being held for the future as property too valuable to be let go at the present time. All the lots of the old town side division were bought last Saturday by local men. A prominent C.P.R. man bought all the lots left in another division, while others were thinking about buying some property very reasonable in price, others had bought the same. There is not a single house to be rented in Wetaskiwin. A local real estate man said more property and lots had been bought during the past two weeks than during the preceding two years.

The C.P.R. have an outline plan of their operations for the future system to be installed but have not revealed it to the public. Enough, however, is known, to point to the fact that a complete change of programme at Wetaskiwin is to be made. It is said the round house will contain seventeen stalls. Already forty men are employed at the round house. A large system of tracks will be out in embracing fourteen distinct lines. The new station will be one of the best and will be built one block north of the old station. They have made arrangements to buy the land for their freight sheds on the new sub-division to the north of the roundhouse, known as Pipstone Park.

It is the intention of the City Council shortly to submit a bylaw for the installing of a complete system of water and sewerage, which is certain to be granted. Being the centre of the grain trade, possessing a larger storage capacity than any other city in Alberta; having a complete fire system, and also a municipal electric light plant, giving good returns of light at a long cost: possessing one of the finest schools and best teaching staffs in the province, the Alexandria school costing $50,000,0 and being the divisional point on the Pacific trunk line of the C.P.R. east of the mountains, and distributing point for one of the richest districts in Western Canada—these circumstances point to a day near at hand, when the primitive conditions will have passed away, and the new and pulsating life of a progressive city with modern conveniences, economic industries and social advantages will have been brought about; when the products of the north and the south, as well as of the east and west, will meet and each add its share to make the infant city of Westaskiwin a stalwart man."

THE GOVERNMENT AND ZAM-BUCK.

SURVEY OUT FROM FORT WILLIAM TAKES A SUPPLY OF THIS USEFUL BALM.

Zam-Buk, the favorite household balm and salve, is now adopted as "the Doctor" by leading parties engaged in surveying various parts of the Dominion lands.

Mr. Henry Hall, writing from Fort William, says: "Having proved how beneficial Zam-Buk is in cases of cuts, skin injuries and diseases, I determined to keep a supply handy. Being engaged to go on a survey, I thought it would be a most useful thing to take along. I obtained a supply in Fort William and very well it was I did so. I may say that pretty nearly every day it was called into requisition by one or other of the party for cuts, brusies, burns, or some injury or other. It is wonderful how quickly Zam-Buk takes the soreness out of cuts, burns, bruises and injuries and on our survey it earned golden opinions from all who had occasion to try it. I have found it very fine for skin diseases, and I can strongly recommend it as a household balm."

Mr. Lascelles Scott, one of the leading Government analysts, says: "I have no hesitation in certifying the entire purity of Zam-Buk, which in my opinion is excellently adapted for skin injuries and diseases." Zam-Buk cures cuts, scalds, burns, bruises, eczema, scalp sores, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, chapped places, Spring pimples, blood poison, chronic abscesses, etc. As an embrocation it relieves rheumatism, neuralgia and sciatica. All druggists and stores sell at 50c a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. 6 boxes sent for $2.50. Send 1c stamp and we will mail you free sample box.

A LESSON TO LEARN

There are many people in this world who can always conduct somebody else's business better than their own. They always know just how the other chap should run his affairs to make money, to please the public, or to give the best possible service. There are "arm chair critics" in all walks of life. It often takes a butcher to give pointers to a baker, and vice versa. A grocer can frequently tell the street railway company the best system on which to run their cars, and a blacksmith may inform a grocer how to satisfy the wants of the public. The average man about town can inform a newspaper on many topics, how to gain circulation, where to place its news items, what matters it should discuss and what paragraphs it should suppress. The retailer can guide the wholesaler, and the wholesale man could tell the average store keeper a thing or two. Thus the world wags along. It is very funny to hear one man in one particular line of enterprise laying down facts for the other fellow in another line of business. But people do love to tender advice and point out defects and shortcomings in their neighbors, their trades and professions. The individual who never made a success of any thing can point out volumes of admonition for others. Have you met such a one? Of course you have, but he gives his advice so freely and gladly that you simply ignore it. The average mortal has not yet learned the art of minding his own business, attending to his own affairs and leaving other people alone to mind their's. Do not exercise too much concern in the problems of others, unless you are called upon for assistance and counsel. It will keep you out of trouble, and in the end your lot will be much happier.

THE CANAL OUTLET

The Trent Canal outlet is now definitely settled and, as has been expected, the "all-river route" has been adopted. This matter of the southern terminus has been hanging fire for years, but, at last, a final conclusion has apparently been reached. It is hoped now, that the work will be rushed to a speedy completion. The question of the northern outlet should also be decided. It is believed the Severn River route will be the one selected.

According to the report of Mr. E. J. Walsh, the engineer, who made a detailed survey of the Trenton, Cobourg and Port Hope routes, there are numerous convincing reasons why the waterway should go by way of Trenton.

Mr. Walsh has submitted figures as to estimated cost of three outlets, viz., to Port Hope, to Cobourg and to Trenton. On the basis of six feet navigation, that in use on the existing portions of the route open to travel, they compare as follows; From Rice Lake to Port Hope, $3,541,917, from Rice Lake to Cobourg $7,906,401; from Rice Lake to Trenton, $3,118,111. On the basis of a depth of eight feet four inches on lock sills the several routes compare as follows; To Port Hope, $3,958,051; to Cobourg $8,236,040; to Trenton, $3,997,482.

Mr. Walsh further says, in considering the value of the diversion of the water so far as it affects the water powers of the Otonabee River, that he does not believe any damage will accrue to the water powers beyond Rice Lake. The total fall from the level of Rice Lake to the level of Lake Ontario is 364 feet. Making certain allowances for losses, an approximated total head of 350 feet will be the full measure of the total powers in the Trent River that would be entitled to ask for compensation. The quantity of water estimated for diversion is 103 cubic feet per second, equal to 4,083 gross horse power which at the customary departmental rental of $2 per horse power, equals $8,166 per year. Capitalized at four per cent. this equals a sum of $204,150, and this amount should be added to the Port Hope and Cobourg routes to reach a full and fair comparison.

One important point is that in the construction of the canal by way of Trenton there is to be a depth of 8 feet four inches of water on the sills of the lock gates. The government has concurred in this recommendation. To have this depth of water by the all-river route will entail an expenditure of less than half a million over and above the cost of six-foot navigation.

The Trenton terminus also ensures the development of many water powers along that route while the Port Hope plan would not admit of any such development. Another important factor is that in regard to the distance on the two routes, the distance from the mouth of the Otonabee River to Kingston via the Trenton route and Bay of Quinte is 135 miles; via Port Hope, Lake Ontario, Murray Canal and the Bay of Quinte, 134 miles, and via Port Hope and the open lake around Prince Edward county, 126 miles. Port Hope, therefore, possesses no advantage in this respect. The only argument in the whole report in favor of the lakeside town route is that so many bridge tenders and lock masters would not be required as by way of Trenton, but this is a comparatively insignificant matter when the relative merits and outstanding advantages of the Trenton terminus are taken into consideration.

By way of Trenton the utility of the canal in facilitating the export and import trade between Western Canada and Europe will be fully felt and then there will be no dangerous open lake navigation for barges, etc.

On the whole the government has acted wisely in selecting the Trenton route. It appears as if this question of outlet, which has been made a political football of for so many years has been settled on a sound, business basis, with a view to the best interests of the country as a whole and the important part which this great inland waterway will play in the transportation problem and facilities of the Dominion.

The principal thing now is for the government to call for tenders for the uncompleted portion of this great work and finish the canal with all possible speed.

RACING AT FAIRS

Prof. Goldwin Smith in the Weekly Sun, has this to say of racing at fall fairs,—

"The chief object for discussion at the Fairs Convention, held in Toronto, last week, was that of racing at fairs. Eventually, by an overwhelming vote, it was recommended that the principle of local option be applied—that it be left with each fair board to decide whether racing shall be allowed or not.

"The real point in the case was overlooked both in the discussion and the conclusion arrived at. The point is not whether horse racing shall be permitted at fall fairs, but whether public money is to be appropriated for the purpose of assisting in the promotion of such racing.

"The Ontario Legislature will, this year be asked to vote nearly $70,000 for distribution among fall fair boards in the province. This money is to be voted "for the purpose of promoting agriculture." Is agricultural progress aided by the holding of a horse race of the class usually seen at our fall fairs? Do these races tend to improve the quality of horse flesh, or are they intended merely for purposes of entertainment? On the answer to these questions should depend the decisions whether public aid shall go to the fairs which have racing as part of their programme. Public money may very properly be granted to stimulate improvement in the quality of grain, live stock, dairy products or fruit; but it is a case of misappropriation, when funds are taken from the provincial treasury to defray the cost of entertaining or amusing a crowd at a fair."

PEN POINTS

The first day of March—and also of spring.

Our waste paper basket is simply yawning to receive some poetic effusions on "Spring, Gentle Spring."

Railway wrecks are almost as numerous in Canada just now, as drowning accidents in "the good, old summer time."

Perhaps Port Hope will now reluctantly come to the conclusion that Trenton has been definitely settled upon as the outlet of the Trent Canal.

Pick up the papers and glaring at you from every page are tragedy, disaster, holocaust, wreck, explosion fire. What is wrong with this old world? In Canada we do not seem to require earthquakes or tornadoes to kill the people, yet how many are daily meeting violent and untimely deaths.

A public ownership league is being formed and also an independent Labor party. They will probably meet with as much success and length of days as the Patrons of Industry, the Equal Rights Movement, the Grangers, the McCarthyites and other parties that have flourished for a few months or years and then, having their day, have ceased to be.

Rev Dr. S. E. Young, of the Second Presbyterian Church, Pittsburg, in a sermon Sunday night said, "Surely the hour has come for a general movement to prevent railroad and steamship wrecks. The murder of people by transportation companies is probably the most glaring crime of our day. Were one particular man distinctly responsible for each accident the people would soon find a way to land him in the penitentiary or on the gallows or electric chair. The soulless corporation gives the murderers a chance to go unpunished. One of the most aggravating features is the attempt on the part of railroads to suppress the news—as if it were impertinence for the relatives of the dead and wounded to wish to know who was hurt and how badly. God gives us legislators enough and brave enough to stand up right now and enact laws that will lessen the awful iniquity of railroad murder."

The City Council has not given the city engineer, Mr. T. A. S. Hay, an increase in salary any too soon. It should have been accorded him years ago. Mr. Hay is a hard working and energetic official, and has been called upon to give attention to too many minor matters. In fact, the amount of detail duty that has been piled on his department was enough to discourage a less faithful and conscientious public servant. He should have been granted assistance long ago, but everything comes to him who waits, and at last Mr. Hay's ability and devotion to his labors have in a measure been recognized.

Our worthy member of the Legislature, Mr. J. J. Preston, has introduced a bill to license hotels or places where the public are provided for and granting them a bonus for keeping a comfortable stopping place. This strikes us as reasonable and fair because it is well known that in country villages there is not enough to keep up such entertainment as the public requires where no bar is allowed. Then the government could regulate the house as to accommodation, cleanliness, etc., which they cannot now do, except under the Crooks Act.—Millbrook Reporter.

Who knows what changes the future has in store for us. Each day brings some startling proposition and now we are likely to have free street cars before many years elapse. Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland, the hero of three cent fare, is well pleased with his virtual victory in that city. He says,—"I have fought for 3-cent fares because it is 2 cents nearer nothing than is 5 cents. Street cars ought to be as free as elevators. Fares used to be collected on bridges and turnpikes, but such tolls have a mediaeval sound now. So will street car fares some time. A proper system of taxation would yield sufficient funds to operate street car lines without burden to the people. With free cars a working man could choose his home where he would. Congested districts would disappear. I operated a free system once, in Johnstown, Pa., after the flood. We had to run free cars, because no one had money. But people did not ride unless they needed to ride. There was no wonderful rush after something for nothing."

The Grits in West Durham are in a sad plight. They are at sixes and sevens, and the Bowmanville Statesman (Liberal), makes the following pungent observations on the deplorable state of affairs:—

At the last annual meeting of Durham Liberal Association, at Orono, it was decided that annual meetings should be held in January. This clause of the constitution was ignored last year the blame being placed on an alleged misprint in this paper but the same plea cannot be used this year, for we called President Baker's attention to the matter. But January is passed and no annual meeting has been held. Why? The only reason yet given to us is that they wanted this blooming P.O. appointment first made. Again we ask why? Did the manipulators of the P.O. appointment fear that a new executive might be chosen whom they could not lead by the nose? It looks that way.

The West Durham Liberal Association has not yet held a meeting for two years. Surely this meeting is not deferred, too, because of the P.O. fiasco. Liberalism in this county is fast becoming a by-word and a farce. What are the leaders doing to save the party? It will be a dead issue soon from the discord and rancor caused by the manipulators of party patronage. Breaches have been made in the ranks that will never be closed.

Speaking of the business failure of W. A. McMaster, Havelock, which he attributes to the credit system and the practice of local people buying goods from Toronto departmental stores, the Madoc Review says:—Mr. McMaster was at one time a well known and prosperous man in Madoc and his statements are without doubt, correct. How long will this state of affairs exist among the different communities? Profit by advice, and spend your money where you make it instead of handing it out to the stranger in the departmental store, where it is not a matter of choice in things you purchase, but a case of put up with it and say nothing, or else return it at your own expense. To speak frankly in the matter, we believe the ladies are the greatest offenders in this regard. Forgetful of the fact that their own very living is dependent upon the business of the locality they send out of town, so that perhaps, they may have clothes or hats different from other people, or it may be that they are laboring under the delusion that they are saving money. The first reason is groundless, because local dealers can send away if the required article is not in stock, and get just what is wanted. The latter excuse is, as intimated above—a delusion. Surely our merchants can lay goods down in Madoc cheaper than the city dealer can by mail or express to private individuals. We would advise our readers to consider this question from every standpoint, and we do not fear as to the conclusion.

Baby Was Chocking With Cold in Chest

PARENTS IN GREAT ANXIETY, BUT QUICK RELIEF AND CURE RESULTED FROM USE OF

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

Mr. W. F. Smith, 364 Nepean street, Ottawa, Ont., writes:—"My sister's little baby, Albert McDermott, four four months of age, was so bad with a cold on the chest that we were afraid he would choke to death. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine was obtained, and I am happy to say that it brought relief almost at once.

"The baby was completely cured by the use of three bottles, and my sister and her husband are very grateful for this cure. We shall all recommend this great medicine."

Under few circumstances does a mother feel herself so anxious and so helpless as when the child in whom her hopes are centred is seized with croup or bronchitis and struggles in vain to get its breath.

It is then she asks, "What is the most effective treatment I can buy?" and probably remembers what her friends have told her about keeping Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house for use in just such emergencies.

Any cough mixture the dealer may offer is not good enough in the face of serious illness. You insist on having Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine because it has been proven by the test of time to be the most certain cure for croup, bronchitis and severe chest colds.

Children like to take Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and being composed of simple vegetable ingredients it is well suited for their use. 25 cents a bottle, family size 60 cents. At all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every bottle.

Euchre Contest at Club Rooms

Interesting Competition in the Popular Progressive Game

A jolly evening was spent in progressive euchre at the Young Conservative club rooms last evening. About forty took part in the competition, which was arranged by Mr. J. G. M. Wilson, the popular first vice-president of the club.

The first prize was a handsome case pipe, the second a briar pipe and then there was a booby trophy in the shape of a Chinese doll.

The contest lasted two hours. Mr E. Storey captured the first premium with twelve games to his credit. For the second prize Messrs. George Powell, C. A. Londreville, P. Graham and Wm. Gibbs each took eleven games. They "cut" for the premium and Mr. Londreville won out. The booby prize went to Mr. T. J. Blois, who had only five games recorded on his score card. The doll was presented to him by Mr. Wilson amid applause. The scores last night were:—

Curlers Had an Enjoyable Time

Many Were Present at the Smoker Last Evening

The smoker held at the curling rink at the conclusion of the president versus vice-president match last night was a most enjoyable affair. There was an air of good fellowship abroad and everyone present enjoyed himself immensely. A table was spread in the club rooms and a large number sat down to enjoy the coffee, sandwiches and other good things provided; After these were done justice to cigars and pipes were lit and while "My Lady Nicotine" was being enjoyed there was an impromptu programme of songs and speeches. President Matthews presided. Vocal numbers were given by Messrs. W. McIlroy, H. Evans and J. W. Fulton. Speeches short and witty, were made by Mayor McWilliams, Dr. Greer and Messrs. C. Rutherford, J. W Fulton, W. H. Denham, M. C. Tooly, Ald. Bradburn, R. M. Waddell and Mr. Challis, of the Montreal Curling Club, who happened to be in the city and was invited to be present. He expressed thanks for the hospitality extended by the Peterborough curlers and wished the local club every success. Mayor McWilliams said he was an admirer of every manly sport and would do everything in his power to help the different sporting organizations in the city. Mr. Fulton thanked the curlers for the hospitable way in which he had been treated since coming to the city.

The gathering broke up shortly after eleven o'clock.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted, beauty glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and angles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

FEARED NOT KITCHENER.

Brilliant Career of Young French-Canadian, Sir Percy Girouard.

The approval by the King of the appointment of Sir Percy Girouard to be High Commissioner of Nigeria, brings the young French-Canadian of whom Britain is so proud once more into the public eye.

Sir Percy Girouard, who is just under 40 years of age, is one of "Kitchener's young men," and his brilliant career forms a striking testimonial to the great general's remarkable knack for knowing a good man at sight.

At 23 he was traffic manager of the Royal Arsenal at Woolwich, where Lord Kitchener's keen eye detected him as the very man for the construction of the Soudan Railway in the Dongola expedition. With wonderful inventiveness and resource he laid a line across 500 miles of desert for the advance on Khartoum, and the world immediately recognized him as the finest railway engineer the service had produced.

Anticipations Justified.

His subsequent career more than justified anticipations. At 29 he was awarded the D.S.O., and at 33 he was a K.C.M.G. And still on the sunny side of 40, he has ample opportunities of enhancing an already unrivalled reputation.

He is a French-Canadian, the son of a Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada. He had a share in building the Canadian Pacific Railway before entering the Royal Engineers. After his Woolwich and Egyptian experiences he became Kitchener's railway chief throughout the South African war. It is said that he was the only person on the staff who did not stand in fear of "K."

On one occasion, in Egypt, the general thought a railway was getting on too slowly. "You must go quicker," said Lord Kitchener. "I can't," replied Girouard; "I am not being properly supplied with materials." "I have no use for a man who says 'can't'," returned the general, and he sent Girouard to Cairo. Within a week he recalled Girouard and admitted that he was wrong.

When "K." began his South African campaign, Girouard was the first man for whom he telegraphed. The incarnation of energy and force of will, Girouard triumphed over the most formidable obstacles in the way of transporting our troops in the face of the swiftly moving enemy. He spent every hour, day and night, flitting about in the military trains, directing this arduous, puzzling work.

From North to South.

Lord Kitchener was delighted with the result, and Girouard's reward was his lieutenant-colonelcy and the K.C.M.G.

After the war, Sir Percy was appointed Commissioner of Railways in the Transvaal and Orange River Colony, on which occasion Lord Kitchener paid him this striking tribute: "He has been my principal adviser in the numerous and intricate questions pertaining to railway administration in South Africa. He is an officer of brilliant ability, and I wish him all success as head of a great civil department." When he gave up his important post in 1904, a gratifying proof of his popularity with those who worked under him reached him in the shape of a silver casket presented by 2,700 employes of the line.

He has been employed on the staff of the recent Fourth Army Corps during the past few years.

Sir Percy Girouard married in 1903 the eldest daughter of Sir Richard Solomon, legal adviser to the Transvaal Administration at Pretoria, who lately surrendered to the Boer party, and is bidding for the Premiership of the Transvaal.

The Minister of Railways.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson, the man who declares he is going to make the Intercolonial pay, is a New Brunswick statesman, and received his training in statecraft in the Maritime Province before he entered the larger field. He was born in Sunbury County in 1853, the son of a Baptist minister. Educated at various academies in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and at Boston University, he graduated from the latter institution in 1877, and was called to the Bar of his native Province the year following. He made an able attorney, and soon built up one of the leading practices in New Brunswick. But all his attention was not devoted to law. Mr. Emmerson became interested in the petroleum and copper industries of his Province, and took an active part in developing them. His entry into politics was made in 1887, when he unsuccessfully contested Westmoreland against Mr Josiah Wood, who has since been made a Senator. Next year he entered the Legislature, and soon after as a member of the Provincial Legislative Council, aided in abolishing that body. It was while a member of the Provincial Upper House that he entered the Blair Ministry as president of the Executive Council. In 1892 he became Commissioner of Public Works, and in 1897, on the resignation of Hon. James Mitchell from the Premiership, became head of the Provincial Government. Three years longer he spent in the Provincial House, and then entered the Dominion Parliament, succeeding his old chief as Minister of Railways in July, 1903.

Grand Banks' Fisheries!

In all, about a thousand vessels of different nationalities, crewed by 20,000 men, are dispersed over the Grand Banks during the long and pleasant summer days, the height of the fishing season. The region is covered with the Arctic floes until well up in April, and scarcely has it cleared away than from the countless Cis-Atlantic harbors the fishing craft flock out, driving before the robust winds with full sail set, like flocks of gulls on the wing, speeding for the best trawling ground about the Bank. Here, on a bright, sunlit noontide, the marine picture that is presented is unequalled elsewhere in the world. Far as the eye can reach in every direction is spread an animated panorama. The whole horizon is dotted with the sails of the "bankers"—white, black, brown, red and motley.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper, which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable or more gloomy and discouraged than liver complaint and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

William Bell has offered Hamilton and Wentworth forty acres on the mountain top, provided they will erect and maintain a joint industrial refuge.

A deputation of Hamilton citizens waited on the license board yesterday and asked for the suppression of gambling in hotels, which evil, they allege, exists.

The Match Ended With Score Even

President Versus Vice-President Game Was Keenly Contested

The last games of the president versus vice-president match were played at the curling rink last night and when the totals for the three night's playing were added up, it was found that the match was a draw, each side having 111 points to their credit. Five rinks were played last night and one yesterday afternoon. At conclusion of Wednesday night's playing the president's side was one shot up, but the vice-president's rinks finished one to the good last night and made the final score a tie. Wednesday—President 26; Vice-president 29.

Thursday—President 45, Vice-president 46.

Knockers There With the Hammer

Won Out From the West Enders Last Night

At Brock street rink last night after the City League games the Knockers defeated the West Enders by one goal to nil. The match was stubbornly contested and the result was in doubt right up to the last minute. The West Enders had promised to do all sorts of things to the Knockers when they met, but the latter were there with the hammer and furnished a surprise. Mr. Leo Derocher made a satisfactory referee.

Strathconas Capture the City League Championship

Defeated Charlotte Street Team Last Night by Three Goals to Two in a Lightning Fast Game—Auburns Beat the Orphans.

The Strathconas have won the City League championship. The honors went their way at Brock street rink last evening when they defeated the Charlotte street team by 3 goals to 2. It was a great struggle and the six hundred spectators were wild with excitement. The victors deserved to win for they played just a little better hockey than the Guild boys, especially the forward line. The scoring was done alternately. The first went to the Straths, the second to the Guild, the third to the Straths, the fourth to the Guild and the fifth and last goal to the winners. The half time tally was two to two and the excitement was at fever heat when the second half commenced. Up and down the puck travelled, both teams playing desperately, but after fifteen minutes' play the Strathconas broke the tie and took the lead. But Charlotte street was not yet beaten. They were coming stronger every minute and the hopes of their supporters were high as they became more aggressive. They repeatedly attacked the net that Wilson guarded, but could not score, the winners in turn made it lively for Crowe. With the Strathconas in the lead the minutes wore on but their opponents could not score. Playing like demons they attacked again and again, but it was of no avail, and at last the bell sounded, the agony was over and victory perched upon the banners of the boys in red and white.

It was a fine exhibition of hockey all the way through and one of the best seen at Brock street rink this season. Charlotte street never gave up hope until the final bell sounded, neither did the winners. The Strathconas were aggressive right up to the last moment and deserve every credit for their victory. Every man played the game of his life. The same may be said of the losers.

The second game, between the Auburns and the Orphans resulted in a victory for the former, the score standing 4—2.

THE BIG GAME

The fastest and most exciting game of hockey that has been played in the City League this season was the final match last evening when the Strathconas won the championship from the champions of last year, the Charlotte-st. Guild, by the close score of three goals to two. The contest was a hard fought struggle but was a good exhibition of hockey. During the first half it was doubtful who would be the winners, the score at half time being 2—2. The Guild boys were not up to their usual mark of efficiency and played better when they met the Auburn septette a few weeks ago. In the second half the Straths had the best of it except towards the close. The match was close at all stages and both teams checked hard and were inclined to be somewhat rough. The penalties were numerous and there were always two or three players keeping company with the time-keepers. Towards the close of the second half Roddy received a bad cut in the head during a mix-up between he and Weatherstone. Apart from this nothing of a very serious nature occurred.

The winners are an all-round fast bunch. They are all fast skaters and play the game well. They have a very strong defence and although Charlotte street made many attempts to pass them it was very seldom they were able to do so. Wilson played a great game in goal and cleverly stopped shots which looked like sure winners. White and Meagher are two of the strongest defence men in the City League and it is few who pass them. White made some brilliant rushes last night which were pretty to look at and also effective, carrying the puck clean down the ice through a whole bunch of the Guild team. The Straths forwards are fast and sure. They display lots of combination and most of them are good shots. McMillan and McGrath played an effective game, but Weatherstone and Seymour were away above the average and were always in the right place at the right time. Seymour did some nice shooting in last night's contest, scoring the second goal on a nice shot from the side.

The Methodists also have a fine team and though defeated have nothing to be ashamed of. Some of their men were not in the best of condition last night. The Guild team have had a good season. They were champions last year and were only defeated by the closest margin this year. Crowe played well last evening and the score would have been much larger but for his clever stops. The Guild boys have a strong defence. Roddy and Moore both being fast players. They made some brilliant rushes into the enemy's quarters. Dusty as rover was perhaps their best player and is a fast man. He was always on the job last evening. Gross, Long and Campbell make a fast forward line but do not combine as well as the Straths. They shine individually;

THE PLAY

The game started off at a lightning fast pace and both teams mixed it up considerably. At the start the puck was kept in the vicinity of Charlotte street goal and the Straths were not long in scoring, Weatherstone doing the trick.

The play started off again and both played hard and tried to score. The puck was being carried from one end of the ice to the other until finally Moore got the disc and after a nice rush scored, making it

SECOND HALF.

Play in the second half was very fast and both teams worked hard. The Guild team were outplayed in the first part of the second half, but towards the close of the game were showing up better. The Straths scored a goal in the second half, Weatherstone doing the trick, making the full time score;

AUBURNS VS. ORPHANS.—

The second game, between the Auburns and Orphans was won by the former by the score of four goals to two. The Auburns had to move some to win. It was a clean exhibition of hockey. The Orphans put up a game fight and at one time it looked as though it would end a tie. The Auburns are heavier than their opponents and have a strong defence. McDonald played his usual good game for the winners, as also did Hillier and Tucker. Crough too was always prominent. Shaw and Clegg, with Derocher in goal, made a strong defence. For the losers Charlie Ray played well and was about the best player on the Orphans' line-up. Pentland did not play last night and was replaced by a good man in the person of Harvey Staunton. McFadden in goal made some nice stops. Quinlan and Barber on the defence also showed up well. The game was not of the fastest kind, but was interesting. Auburns were the first to score after considerable playing, Tucker doing the trick. Score 1—0.

Auburn soon followed with another, Hillier doing it this time and making the tally 2—0.

The Orphans got busy and Ray in a nice rush scored, making it 2—1.

In the second half the Orphans scored another, making it a tie. Dobson netted this time.

Things looked interesting now and the Auburns got busy. Shaw, in a clear sweep down the ice scored, making it 3—2 in Auburn's favor.

In the last minute of play McDonald made a rush and netted the puck making the final score 4—2.

Something About the Winning Team

Interesting Information About the Strathcona Players

The Strathcona Hockey Club hold the Stratton Cup in the city league for the coming year. They have had a most successful season not having lost a game. They are a fast team and won the championship fairly and honorably. The Strathconas were known as the Suicides last season, when they made a fair showing. The games they lost were lost by the closest scores. The team is under the capable mangement of Mr. Will Metheral and he deserves great credit for the success attained. At the opening of the season he had difficulties to contend with. Four of last year's team were unable to play either by removal from the city or for other reasons. Art Weekes, who played last season, had gone to Woodstock, and Joe Gilman to Toronto. Two other players left the team to play with another club. Nevertheless the manager got a good team together and they have done splendidly.

Clarence Wilson, the clever goaltender of the Strathconas, played in fast company for the first time last season. He learned the game in this city.

"Bill" Meagher, who plays point, played a few years ago on the T. A. S. team, champions of the Trent Valley league. He is a strong defence man.

White, the cover-point, is one of the strong men of the team. He comes from Madoc where he learned the game. This is his first year with the Strathconas.

McMilne learned the game in this city. He figured on the team last year and is developing into a fast hockey player.

Alex. Weatherstone came here two years ago from Cobourg, where he figured one season on the Junior O. H. A. team in that place.

Jack Seymour played this year for the first time in fast company and bids fair to become a great hockey player in the near future.

Fred McGrath, has played the game for a number of seasons. He figured on the T. A. S. team that played in the Trent Valley league a few years ago.

Art Mann and Bill Weatherstone are also two other fast Strathcona men, but owing to injuries were only able to play a couple of games this season.

Much of the success of the Strathcona septette is due to Mr. "Wallie" Parnell, who acted as coach for the team during the season. He has taken a great interest in the boys and did much to help them.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Mamie, Norwood, Ont.—Is Harry Theo bald?

Answer—We wonder why you persist in asking foolish questions. It appears to us as if you were after his scalp.

Mathematician, Otonabee.—If it takes a potato beetle with a wooden leg a day and a half to bore a hole through a frozen Early Rose potato, how long will it take the Examiner hockey team to score against the Review septette?

Answer.—This is rather complicated, but after consulting all known works relating to the subject we have come to the conclusion that they would not score in a thousand years.

Marion, Hunter street.—As I am certain the Examiner hockey team will be a dead one, would it be good taste to send flowers?

Answer.—You might send lemons, but flowers would not be acceptable.

Lovelorn one, East city.—Will Frederick Corntassels Craig again favor the spectators with a buck and wing dance?

Answer.—We have it from the aforesaid rustic youth himself that this year he will confine himself to wing dancing. Times change, you know.

Blue-eyed Susan.—Would I be safe in making a bet that Mr. M. J. Hutchinson knows less about hockey than old Rameses?

Answer.—It is easy money. Take all you can get.

Otonabee lass.—Is there any connection between the Examiner hockey player named Clarke and the man mentioned in the poem which says;
"His breadth is like the mountain,
His clothes are all in pawn,
And his shape it is the greatest,
That e'er the sun shone on."

Answer.—The similarity is striking, but we cannot give you a definite answer.

Curling Match on Wednesday

The Peterborough-Lindsay Cup match will be played on Wednesday of next week. Four rinks from the local club will go to Lindsay, and four form Flavelle's town will play here, making an eight rink contest. The local curlers won the cup last year and will strive hard to retain it.

BURLESQUE! BURLESQUE!

Examiner Hockey Team Make a Sorry Sight at Practice

Just as the hands of the clock were pointing the hour of five last evening a strange looking aggregation filed into the Brock street rink. One, he was apparently the leader of the motley throng, was of stern countenance with a German Emperor's moustache. Following in this wake was a youth with fiery crown and wearing a little mallet the insignia of the knockers. The brand of Otonabee was stamped upon the countenance of a rustic youth who came next while a chorus of small boys on the rink side struck up "Hey, Mr Joshua" as the great and only "Lady" appeared on the scene. A few more verdant youths completed the strange procession that emerged onto the ice. Who were they? Speculation was rife. From what clime had come these strange beings, so awkard of form so snail-like in pace, so unfamiliar with the first rudiments of hockey? No one seemed to know. But at last it leaked out that the Examiner hockey team was having a practice. The bubble of secrecy was busted, aye, more so than the hopes of the aforesaid hockey team will be on Thursday night when they go up againt the fast scintillating unbeatable world conquering, stupendous aggregation of hockey players that will represent the Review. The practice was a sight to behold. Barnum's clowns would have turned green with envy if they could have had a peep, the creme de la creme of the burlesque profession would have gone away back and sat down far below. A Review scribe looked on a moment, but his heart melted in sympathy and he turned away to wipe a tear, that sorrow for the misguided youths who were attempting to play hockey had caused to appear. Oh, sad, bad world. Oh, cruel fate that rules that such things should be. We drop a tear when we thing of what will happen the Grits alleged hockeyists on Thursday night next.

By the way the admission to see the game and to skate afterwards is only 10c. The proceeds will go the Children's Aid Society.

Watson Starred for Berlin Team

Dutch Campanee Defeated Smith's Falls Intermediates

Port Hope, Feb. 28.—In a semi-final game of the intermediate series played here this evening, the flying Dutchmen of Berlin defeated the Smith's Falls Mic-Macs by a score of 8 to 1. The half-time score 3 to 0.

The game throughout was marked by hard, close checking and very little combination. The Berlin players were better skaters and their forwards followed back well and aided their defence very materially. Watson, the auburn youngster from Berlin, put up a star game for Berlin, while Dunn, at cover, for Smith's Falls, carried off the honors for his team. Berlin now meets the winners of the Parry Sound-Collingwood game for the intermediate championship.

The teams lined up as follows,—

Scratched Furniture.

Where there are fine pin-like scratches on new furniture they may be easily remedied by using pulverized rotten stone that can be bought ready for use. This put on a soft flannel rag and rubbed into the surface of the seat, back or arms of a chair or on to the top of a table will not only take off the defects, but bring a polish to the wood. To remove the rotten stone with a damp piece of chamois carefully wipe the wood, and when all trace of this is gone a bright luster can be brought to the surface of the wood by rubbing it lightly with a soft piece of cheesecloth moistened with alcohol. The latter must be used sparingly on furniture, for it burns the varnish and will ruin the appearance of the rocker or table if enough is put on to scorch the surface.

Balancing Expenses.

Young housekeepers so often utter the plaint, "I can buy the ordinary food for three meals a day on my table allowance, but there are so many extras." A woman of many years' experience, accustomed to working domestic miracles with an infinitesimal income, once said: "I would never have kept out of the poorhouse if I had not had a system. I make a list of the sundries without which no house is complete—soap, starch, flour, salt, etc.—and keep it under my eye. Each week I apportion so much money for my sundries and buy something. Thus I never find myself face to face with an empty salt box or vinegar jug at a time when there is no money to fill the lack."

William Gray and Mayor Judd, of London, are mentioned as possible Conservative opponents to C. S. Hyman.

Building Street Car Motors by Thousands at Canadian General

Over a Thousand Delivered Last Year and Have Another Thousand on Order—The Company Has Built Nearly all the Street Car Motors Operated in Canada To-day.

A Toronto despatch says:—From the old-fashioned "carryall" to the modern electric car is not such a far cry judged from the standpoint of time. In this city the transition from the slow-going horse cars to the speedy, commodious electric cars, which go to make up the equipment of the Toronto street railway of today is sufficiently recent to furnish food for conversation: Electric street railway systems are of quite modern origin, and this fact makes their phenomenal growth all the more striking. To Mr. Frank J. Sprague belongs the distinction of building and operating the first commercial electric street railway system in the world. Richmond, Virginia, was selected as the scene of his experiment. The road started with 12 miles of track and the rolling stock comprised 30 motor cars. It was first operated in 1888, the railway being the fruition or outcome of investigations and experiments entered upon in 1883, conducted by Mr. Edison, Mr. Sprague and other experts. The first experimental electric railway was exhibited and operated in Berlin, Germany, in 1879, it being the product of Dr. Siemens. It was a small affair, and it remained for Mr. Sprague to give to the world nine years later the first commercially possible electric street railway.

Since 1888 electric motors have been brought to such a point of perfection that they are rapidly encroaching on the steam locomotives. It is not generally known that practically all the electric motors in use in the street railway systems of Canada are manufactured and supplied by the Canadian General Electric Company, of Peterborough. During the past year the company sold about 1,000 street car motors, the orders being received from every town and city having a street railway service between Halifax and Vancouver. As a matter of fact all electric railway systems have more or less of their equipment made by the Canadian General Electric Co. Practically the total number of motors now in use were manufactured by this company. At the present date the company has over 1,000 street railway motors on order for delivery this year. The motor is the life of the car, and in street railway equipment great care is given in its selection. It is one of the appliances in which the question of cost is a secondary matter, the main thing being to secure the best that is going, irrespective of all other considerations.

Despite the tremendous growth in electric railways both in the United States and Canada, there is no indication of any abatement to the extension. Certain States are fairly networked with electric roads, while in Canada many miles of lines are being operated with great success.

Deputation re The Trent Canal

Mayor Doxie of Campbellford Asked Mayor of Peterborough to Send Deputation.

Yesterday Mayor Doxie, of Campbellford, was in the city in consultation with Mayor McWilliams. The object was to create enthusiasm in the city so that a deputation will be sent to Ottawa to urge the Dominion Government to place a good substantial appropriation in the estimates this session to build the lower outlet of the Trent canal. Mayor Doxie is greatly interested in the scheme and is of the opinion that all the towns concerned should send a joint deputation to Ottawa. The sooner the canal is opened the better for all. While Peterborough will be benefited by the opening of the lower end, the upper end is of more importance to some of the manufacturers. However, His Worship will bring the matter up at the Council meeting Monday night.

COMMITTEE ON LIGHT AND GAS

Will Report Monday Night—Letter From Robt. Stuart Received Yesterday.

A letter has been received from Mr. Robt. Stuart, of Chicago, in reference to the proposed sale of the Peterborough Electric Light plant and gas plant to the city. It will be remembered that Mr. Stuart promised to furnish the sub-committee of the Council with details of the business done by the companies and the condition of the plant, etc. That was several weeks ago and since then the matter has been at a standstill. But this afternoon the power committee, viz., Mayor McWilliams, Ald. Stevenson and Ald. Bradburn will meet and consider the communication, and will also prepare a report to submit to the Council on Monday night giving account of the progress to date. This report will be somewhat lengthy and will be very interesting to the general public.

THE STORE THAT NEVER DISAPPOINTS

Genuine "Old Bleach" Linens

We are headquarters for these world-famous Linens. There has never been a Linen woven to equal it in texture or wearing qualities. We have them in Towels, Huckabacks by the yard, Dress Linens, Art-Linens, etc., etc. Every article or piece stamped "Old Bleach."

Four Reasons Why "Old Bleach" are So Much Superior to Any Other Linen Goods:

1—They are made of pure flax of the best quality only,

2—Elaborate precautions are taken to ensure perfect weaving.

3—They undergo the troublesome and tedious process of grass bleaching practiced by our forebears, who relied not on strong injurious chemicals, but on the generous rays of the sun, to whiten their flaxen treasure. "Old Bleach" thus retains the extraordinary natural strength which was justly claimed for flax fabrics in years gone by.

4—They are finished without a grain of starch by the Special "Old Bleach" Process—the only one which can produce the everlasting silky lustre and delightful soft feel characteristic of "Old Bleach."

Returned Home From Sunny South

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cressman Had Delightful Holiday in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cressman and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Henderson, of Norwich, Ont., returned last evening after a month's pleasant holiday in the south. They travelled principally in Florida, and visited Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Palm Beach and Miami, the most southern point of Florida. The party had a most delightful trip and returned much benefited by the outing. Mr. Cressman says that the temperature in the south is about 60 to 75. The orchards are now in full fruitage, and oranges, lemons, pine apples and grape fruit are being gathered in abundance. The harvest is unusually heavy and everyone in sunny Florida was happy and busy in fruit gathering.

COUNCIL MEETING MONDAY NIGHT

Many Important Matters to be Taken Up

The council meeting on Monday night should be an important one. Besides the report from the power committee, the proposed deputation to Ottawa, re the Trent Valley canal outlet, several other important matters will be taken up. The council will be asked to pass a bylaw regulating the borrowing powers of the city. The board of works will probably ask to have a bylaw passed permitting them to advertise for tenders for street watering, the tenders to be in by March 31st. This is two or three weeks earlier than last year. The Kinnear Co.'s siding question will also be up, and if possible the fire alarm contract will be disposed of.

Mr. Preston, M.P.P. for Brant, has asked the council of Peterborough to express an opinion which has been placed in his hands by the municipal association to bring before the Ontario Legislature. The bill provides for municipal nominations on the last Monday in November, and the elections on the first Monday in December. This is a radical change in the municipal act and it is a question—well worth consideration.

The council will also have the usual routine business, so that the prospects are bright for a midnight session.

Latest Details on the Wreck; How the Disaster Occurred

Head-On Collision With Freight Train Near Kemptville.

Two Express Messengers Slowly Burned Alive—Some of the Passengers Slightly Injured—Wreckage Took Fire—Three Cars Were Burned—Mail From Toronto and the West Destroyed—Averts Disaster.

Smith's Falls, March 2.—A head-on collision occurred on the C. P. R. at Mountain Station at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. No. 6 express, eastbound, which left Smith's Falls at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, crashed into a freight, westbound, on the same track.

The express does not stop at Mountain Station, and it is said was running at fifty miles an hour when the collision occurred about a hundred rods east of that station.

The track is straight at this place, and the crews were able to see the impending danger, and all jumped to save their lives. In this they were fortunately successful.

Engineer Loses Fingers.

Engineer Daniel Hartney, of Smith's Falls, the driver of the express, sustained the most painful injuries, but escaped with the loss of three fingers. He was bruised and suffered slight injuries otherwise, as did all the crew, but the only serious thing is the loss of Mr. Hartney's fingers.

It is supposed he lost his fingers in trying to apply the brakes or reverse his engine before the awful impact came.

The Dead.

William Hutchins, Cobourg.

J. G. Nicholson, 47 Laurier street, Montreal.

The Injured.

A. Lesperance, brakeman, Montreal, face lacerated.

John Hartney, engineer, Montreal, three fingers cut off.

G. McQueen, passenger, Owen Sound, cheek laid open.

Engines Were Telescoped.

The two engines were telescoped in each other, and were practically ruined. The express car next the engine and the baggage car next to that received the full force of the collision. There was a stove in each, and either from these or from the lamps the wreck took fire. In a few minutes both these cars were enveloped in flames.

The baggageman, Lesperance, had just opened the door of his car for a minute when the crash came. He was thrown through the opening, and to this, no doubt, owes his life. He was scratched and scarred about the face from plowing through the snow, but he was not badly hurt.

Slowly Burned Alive.

The express messenger, Wm. Hutchins, and his assistant, Nichol, were less fortunate. They essayed to get out of the car, but the legs of one were caught by some of the wreckage, and he could not free himself. The other succeeded in getting his head and shoulders through the window of the car, but he was caught there and could get no further.

Immediately these two cars took fire. The two unhappy men, thus pinioned down, saw the flames surrounding them and rapidly coming nearer and nearer to them. They cried out in their extremity for assistance, and quickly the passengers and those of the crew who were able to do anything responded, but they were unable to succor them.

Unable to Rescue Them.

So great was the heat from the flames that it was impossible to do much, but all that could be done was done to rescue the doomed men. Passengers took turns in chopping at the car to free the messenger, who was partly out of the window.

An effort was made to pull him out, but he was fast imprisoned and could not be released. With piteous appeals for help, and in sight of the horror-stricken crowd, who were powerless to save, both men were burned to death. In the burning debris of this car there seems to be the head of a third man, and it is thought there were three lives lost, though who the third may be is not yet known.

The first-class passenger coach was only slightly injured, and no damage was done to the rest of the coaches. One freight car only was destroyed. Conductor Burt was in charge of the passenger train.

The wreck is the result of an unpardonable blunder by somebody, which the investigation that must be held, will no doubt disclose. The telegraph operator at Mountain, it is said, has been in a fainting condition since the collision.

Mail All Destroyed.

In the mail car was a particularly large mail from Toronto and Western points for the United Kingdom, and every bit of it was destroyed. The officials cannot explain how the fire could have started so quickly, and, while they state it must have been due to one of the engines exploding, they cannot understand how it could have gained such headway so quickly.

The crew of the freight train saved themselves by jumping.

Chicago Flyer Derailed.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 2.—The Chicago Special, westbound, on the New York Central, consisting of an engine and six cars, left the tracks east of Rome last night. The train was running at full speed, but no one was killed and no one was seriously injured.

Sante Fe Train Wrecked.

San Bernardino, Cal., March 2.—A Santa Fe passenger train struck an open switch near Colton yesterday, and collided with a San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake train. It is reported that many were hurt.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE.

Thomas Sinclair Ate Pie Intended For Rats.

Toronto, March 2.—Thomas Sinclair had a narrow escape from being poisoned Thursday from eating a piece of pie which had been loaded with "Rough on Rats." Before going to work Sinclair missed his customary pie from his lunch pail. He went to the pantry, where he noticed a nice piece of apple pie. He took it with him and after eating it at lunch time, became violently ill. Medical aid was summoned. Although his condition for a time was serious, Sinclair went back to work yesterday.

Carried on Cow-Catcher.

Guelph, March 2.—James Ellis while driving across the G. T. R. track, was struck by a train. His sleigh was smashed and Mr. Ellis was caried on the fender of the locomotive a considerable distance. He was only bruised.

Struck By Tornado.

Hope, Ark., March 2.—A destructive tornado struck the Town of Washington late last night and almost literally wiped it out of existence.

Two negroes are reported killed and several persons were injured.

Six Firemen Injured.

Pittsburg, March 2.—One fireman was seriously injured and five others slightly hurt early yesterday at a fire caused by crossed wires in Allegheny, which destroyed the ward five school building, a three-storey structure, valued at $150,000.

While six firemen were on a ladder the roof caved in and they narrowly escaped with their lives.

Dutch Steamer Ashore.

Flushing, Holland, March 2.—The Dutch mail steamer Koningin Wilhelmina, from Queensborough, England, went ashore yesterday morning during a thick fog on a dyke eastward of the entrance of the harbor. The 90 passengers and mails were landed, and the vessel is expected to float at high water.

THAW STILL INSANE?

Alienist's Evidence on the Point Still Being Taken.

Dr. Evans Says There Are Many Kinds of Madness and It Is Hard to Identify Thaw's—Prisoner Has a Spell In Court—Commission In Lunacy Likely to Be Asked For—Jerome to Use Statements.

New York, March 2.—Now that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw no longer is on the stand, the prisoner is attracting more and more attention. He issued no additional statements yesterday, but, just before the close of the morning session, he caused almost as great a sensation as yesterday, when he attacked the "unprofessional" methods of the district attorney. Through his counsel, Thaw asked permission to leave the room. Dr. Evans at the time was examining an exhibit and the request was granted.

When he reached the prisoners' pen Thaw threw off his hat, brought his heels together and began violently to go through a five minute drill in setting up exercises. His guard looked on in amazement.

When he had finished swinging his arms Thaw announced he was ready to return to the court room. He declared he "felt" he had been compelled to take the exercise.

Mr. Jerome during the luncheon hour was minutely informed of the defendant's conduct and made notes upon it.

His Mail Growing Daily.

Thaw again brought to court several large packages of letters. His mail seems daily to be growing. He read the letters with activity and made pencil notes upon each. He apparently took no interest whatsoever in the fencing between the district attorney and the alienist.

The insanity of odolescence, paranoia and the characteristics of "brainstorms" occupied both session, and, when adjournment was taken until Monday morning Dr. Britton D. Evans one of the alienists for the defence, was still under cross-examination.

Jerome's motives in questioning the witness were somewhat baffling, but the net results of the day appears to be that he is still laying a foundation upon which he may ask for a commission in lunacy to judge of the present mental condition of the defendant.

Jerome to Use Statements.

What effect will the statement issued by Harry K. Thaw yesterday afternoon have on his trial?

This is the question which is calling forth much speculation. It is said that Thaw's lawyers did their best to convince him that it was bad policy to issue the statement and only consented when he insisted that he be allowed to do so.

It is reported Jerome will seek to put this statement in evidence to show Thaw is still insane.

Shot General Dead.

St. Petersburg, March 2.—The following details of the murder Wednesday at Karenoyarsk, Siberia, of Gen. Koslovsky, the commandant of that town, have been received here:

The general was walking on the street at five o'clock in the afternoon, with some friends, and he referred jokingly to a threatening letter he had received that day, saying he would be killed at five o'clock that afternoon. Drawing his watch from his pocket the general remarked, laughingly, to his friends: "You see I am still alive."

About six o'clock, when Gen. Koslovsky was returning home alone, a man suddenly called upon him to halt and then fired three revolver shots at him. The general dropped dead.

Czar Will Keep His Throne.

New York, March 2.—Nicholas will continue to rule Russia, in spite of all upheavals and internal strife, in the opinion of L. Von Meyer, formerly the American Ambassador to Russia, who arrived here yesterday on the steamer Teutonic.

Mr. Meyer said conditions in Russia, both political and social, are vastly improved over those of a year ago.

Mr. Meyer is the bearer of a message from King Edward to President Roosevelt.

Bucket Shop Case Goes Over.

Winnipeg, March 2.—Magistrate Daley held George Wood, president of the Canadian Grain and Stock Co., until Wednesday on the charge of the larceny yesterday. A commission will take evidence at Duluth, New York and Boston on gambling on margin.

Dr. McLean For Senate.

Orillia, March 2.—The News-Letter nominates Dr. J. A. McLean for the Senate, to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Sir James Gowan. He is the "old war horse" of East Simcoe.

Lid On In Alberta.

Edmonton, Alta., March 2.—Attorney-General Cross announces that Alberta will rigidly enforce the Lord's Day Act.

Major J. E. O'Reilly of Hamilton, for many years an alderman, and twice Mayor of the city, is dead, aged 74.

ESTIMATES FOR BUILDINGS.

Railway Companies and Their Employes May Be In Labor Bill.

Ottawa, March 2.—The House was quite industrious, and after spending all afternoon in committee upon Mr. Lemieux's labor bill, this evening, went promptly into supply. The bill is now to be reprinted so as to include amendments, and will come up again on Wednesday. The Minister is undecided as to whether he will include railway companies and their employes. The sections which forbade a strike against the open shop were dropped. The arbitrators, where any, appointed under the act, must be British subjects, but they are not required to reside in Canada.

Public Buildings.

This evening Mr. Fisher, as acting Minister of Public Works, presented a number of estimates dealing mainly with public buildings and repairs thereon. The Galt postoffice, the Guelph armory, the Hamilton drill hall, and the postoffice, barracks and custom house at Toronto were among the items under consideration.

W. F. Maclean (South York) asked if the Government intended to dispose of the present custom house at Toronto. Mr. Fisher was unable to answer.

The New Barracks.

An item of $150,000, for the new barracks for the permanent corps at Toronto, led to some discussion. W. F. Maclean insisted upon knowing what the Government proposed to do in this matter, and why there had been such delay. Mr. Fisher stated in substance that the original scheme called for a number of buildings at an aggregate cost of $1,000,000. It was now hoped to reduce the cost. Plans were under way, and he hoped that two or three of the buildings would be commenced this spring.

Too Many Accidents.

Mr. W. F. Maclean drew attention to the large number of accidents that are happening to-day in Canada and all over the continent of America.

"The matter has become so serious that I think it demands the immediate attention of Parliament.

"It seems to me that the great railway corporations of this country are devoting too much attention to the expenses of their systems rather than to the operation of their systems to the satisfaction of the public.

"I take this occasion of calling the attention of Parliament to the matter by reason of another accident that has occurred to-day very near this city."

AUSTRALIAN WINS RACE.

Canadian Misses World Championship by Very Narrow Margin.

Nepean, Australia, March 2.—(C. A. P.).—The boat race for the championship of the world on the river here between George Towns of Gladesville, Australia, and Eddie Durnan of Toronto, Canada, was decided over the three-mile course on the river here to-day and was won by Towns by one length.

The weather was dull before the race, a hot thunder storm threatening as the men pulled out from the landing stages of their boat houses for the start.

Both were trained to the minute and seemed equally confident.

By three o'clock the train loads and boat excursions had filled all the points of vantage along the river. When the men backed up to their buoys, the current was sluggish and the river low.

It was a desperate race over the entire straightaway three miles, daylight being barely preceptible between the boats at the finish, the Australian's margin being a scant boat length.

The victory of the citizen of the Commonwealth was a popular one and Towns was greeted with tumultuous applause as he rowed over to Durnan's water and shook hands with his vanquished and plucky opponent.

The Canadian, too, was liberally serenaded with cheers by the greatest concourse that ever witnessed a race since Ned Hanlan rowed in Australia.

Strathcona Presents Portrait.

London, March 2.—At the Westminster Palace Hotel yesterday, Lord Strathcona, the high commissioner for Canada, acting on behalf of a number of his friends, presented Sir Charles Tupper, the former Prime Minister of Canada, with a life size oil portrait of himself in appreciation of his services to Canada during the last sixty years.

In his address, Lord Strathcona recalled that in that very room Sir Charles had attended the conference forty years ago, which finally settled the provisions of the British North American Act, under which the Dominion of Canada was constituted.

In his reply, Sir Charles said the time would come when homes would be provided in Canada for as large a population as now inhabited the British Isles, and that the future depended largely upon the realization of Joseph Chamberlain's message to the Canadian people, in which he said:

"I am profoundly convinced that of all the bonds uniting this nation, the bond of commerce is the strongest."

Bandits Give Trouble.

St. Petersburg, March 2.—The fighting between Chinese bandits and Russian troops at a point 20 miles north of Harbin, which resulted in the sending of Russian reinforcements to the scene, has occasioned increasing apprehension here, as the Russian troops in that section have been reduced to numbers of bare necessity and would not be able to cope with a large outbreak.

The Foreign Office is not willing to give an opinion as to what steps will be necessary until it will be better informed as to the nature of the hostile forces arrayed against the Russians.

Tweedie For Lieutenant-Governor.

FIRE VICTIMS BURIED.

Touching Scene At Funeral of Montreal School Children.

Montreal, March 2.—A touching scene was witnessed at Hochelaga when ten little coffins were removed to St. Mary's church at noon yesterday for the funeral service over the remains of the victims of the Hochelaga school holocaust.

When the coffins were ranged along in front of the altar they were literally covered with flowers from all sections of the community, from schoolmates and teachers, from citizens of high and low degree, from French and English Canadians alike.

The fact that many of the bereaved parents have been but a short time in Canada, having recently come here from England, gave additional impetus to the desire to prove the sincerity of feeling for them in their affliction.

Thousands of Mourners.

The service was directed by the Rev. Henry Jekell, rector, one of whose children narrowly escaped.

The service was most affecting. An immense throng collected, far greater than could gain admittance to the church. A pathetic picture was the part taken by the little school mates of the deceased. When the funeral cortege of ten hearses left the church for Mount Royal cemetery, there was an escort of 35 police and an immense concourse of people.

THREE YEARS FOR M'INTOSH.

Man Who Posed as J. J. Hill's Representative Goes to Pen.

Hamilton, March 2.—J. A. R. B. McIntosh, the stock broker, who got into the confidence of a number of people by representing himself as the representative of James J. Hill, the railway magnate, and then obtained from them large sums of money to be invested by him in railway stocks, was before Judge Monck yesterday. He pleaded guilty to three charges of obtaining money under false pretences, and was sentenced to three years in the Kingston penitentiary. McIntosh is supposed to have operated in other cities besides Hamilton.

BARMAIDS IN ARMS.

Angry Over Proposed Bill to Stop Their Vocation.

London, March 2.—The thousands of women of all ages who under the name of barmaids tend a large proportion of the saloon and restaurant bars in this country, are angrily excited at the prospect of their occupation being compulsorily closed to women. A bill has been introduced in the House of Commons with the object of making the tending of bars illegal for all women except publicans' wives and daughters, and empowering the authorities to refuse a license unless men only are employed.

Quest For South Pole.

London, March 2.—The Argentine Antarctic ship Uruguay, which left Buenos Ayres, Jan. 29, 1906, has arrived at Scotia Bay, South Orkney Islands, after a perilous voyage, during which she encountered hundreds of icebergs and heavy pack ice, and sustained considerable damage.

The Scotia Bay station was established by the Scottish Antarctic expedition of five years ago, and was taken over in 1905 by the Argentine Government, which is continuing the meteorological and magnetic observations commenced by the Scottish expedition.

Favorable Impression.

London, March 2.—(C. A. P.)—The English Zionist Federation is endeavoring to draw the ties closer of federations in the United States, Canada and other colonies.

The first Lord of the Admiralty's annual statement includes reference to the visit of the Newfoundland naval reserve, and says a most favorable impression was created by their general appearance; the commodore commanding the squadron in which they served reported in high terms on their conduct and efficiency.

Assault On Raisuli.

Tangier, March 2.—Kaid Mehalla, the representative of the Minister of War, completed arrangements to attack the Ben-Iarous tribe, which is sheltering Raisuli, and made a final assault on the fortified place yesterday.

Dock Laborers Strike.

Corunna, Spain, March 2.—A general strike of dock laborers and others has been declared here, with the result that all the ships in port are tied up.

Maple Leaf Rubbers

The MAPLE LEAF Brand
TRADE MARK REG

"If I were to return to earth again I would provide my entire family with 'Maple Leaf' Rubbers."—Wireless from "the old woman who lived in a shoe."

You see the "old woman" is somewhat of a philosopher. She knows it would take a pile of money to keep her big family supplied with ordinary, go-to-pieces rubbers.

But "Maple Leaf" Rubbers are different. They're long wearers—money savers.

Only the finest Para gum, which makes the toughest, longest-wearing, most waterproof rubbers, is used in the manufacture of "Maple Leaf" Rubbers.

They are not loaded with any cheap, stiff, tarry substance which makes ordinary rubbers split, crack, wrinkle and become prematurely old and worn-out before "Maple Leaf" Rubbers show a sign of wear.

Minister of Education Takes Precautions Against Fire.

Premier Whitney Stirs Up the Members—Fire Drill To Be Compulsory In All Schools — To Expropriate Land for Sanatoria—Two-Cent Rate on T. & N. O. Railway—Mining Companies In 1906.

Toronto, March 2.—The appeal of the Prime Minister, Hon. J. P. Whitney, at the close of the sitting on Thursday night for greater activity and less lethargy on the part of the members at the week-end, brought admirable results. A good deal of business was transacted in a short time yesterday. The budget debate goes over till Tuesday, and the order paper was tackled with a vim that surprised the old-time habitues of the House.

The Prime Minister himself is an indefatigable worker and he has the happy faculty of rousing the energies of those about him. "We want no hasty legislation," he declared, "but we want no time wasted." So it was a busy Friday afternoon, despite the fact that the Liberal benches were almost empty.

To Protect the Children.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, the Minister of Education, announced that the Education Department is providing by definite regulations for the prevention of any repetition of the recent terrible Montreal school fire catastrophe in this Province.

Mr. Preston (Brant) drew attention to the disaster in the eastern metropolis and defined its causes as the location of the kindergarten and junior classes on the upper floor of the building, faulty construction, the absence of adequate fire escapes and the neglect of fire drill.

Hon. Dr. Pyne said the matter had already received the consideration of the Department. It was proposed to provide proper protections in all lines in the regulations. At present these did much in the lines desired and excellent results had followed the training in the fire drill. In the schools of Gananoque, Chatham, St. Thomas and Windsor particularly, it had been accomplished with remarkable success, one of the largest schools being cleared of pupils in less than sixty seconds.

Hon. Mr. Whitney expressed his personal gratification at the results achieved. To his mind the fire drill in the schools was one of the most important factors and worth all the fire escapes imaginable.

Sanatoria For Consumptives.

Mr. J. P. Downey (Wellington) introduced a bill amending the act "providing for the erection of municipal sanitoria for consumptives." The act in question makes provision for the expropriation of property for the erection of a sanitarium in cases where two or more municipalities unite for that purpose. By an evident oversight, Mr. Downey pointed out, the same powers are not conferred upon a single municipality entering upon the enterprise. At present municipalities enjoy expropriation privileges for the purposes of isolation hospitals. The object of Mr. Downey's bill, which passed its first reading, is to confer on each single municipality similar powers where it is desired to erect a consumptive hospital.

Two-Cent Rate.

Mr. Pense (Kingston) asked if it was the intention to establish a two-cent per mile passenger rate upon the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, and to provide for it upon all railways hereafter voted subsidies by the Legislature.

Hon. Dr. Reaume pointed out that the query entailed a matter of Government policy, which would be answered by later declarations.

Gillies' Limit Rights.

In response to an enquiry from Mr. Labrosse (Prescott), Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands and Mines, gave some interesting information regarding the Gillies' Limit. The Government had not, he said, received any bona fide offers for the mineral rights in the Limit or any portion of it, nor was it the present intention of the Government to parcel it out and sell or lease it. Neither was it the intention of the Government to open the Limit to prospectors."

Mining Companies In 1906.

Mr. Pearce secured an order of the House for a return showing the number of mining companies incorporated in the year 1906, also total amount paid into the Treasury Department from incorporation of mining companies in 1906, including licenses to companies previously incorporated.

The second reading of a number of local private bills concluded the session.

To Assist Firemen.

Toronto, March 2.—A deputation representing the volunteer firemen of the province waited on Hon. Mr. Matheson yesterday to ask assistance for the establishment of a home for aged and disabled members from among their ranks.

The suggestion was made that the municipalities collect two per cent. on all insurance policies to be devoted to this purpose.

Mr. Matheson pointed out that under the Supplementary Revenue Act the province had only power to collect one-third of one per cent.

Port Huron, Mich., March 2—Aboud Abraham, aged 28, a Syrian, suffering from hydrophobia, has been deported to Canada by immigration officers at the tunnel. Abraham was bitten by a dog several days ago and his mind has already become affected. He said if he could get to Point Edward, Ont., friends would care for him.

Winnipeg, March 2.—The Great Northern Railway is perfecting plans for entrance into Winnipeg. One is to build from Emerson, the other from Plum Coulee, and the third is to secure running rights over the Canadian Northern to Portage Junction. It is not unlikely that the latter proposal will be followed for the time being at least.

It is expected the Great Northern will be running into their Ross street depot by early autumn.

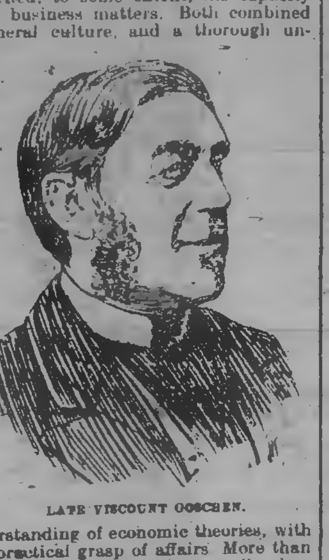
THE LATE LORD GOSCHEN

ENGLISH STATESMAN WHO WAS IN GRAND OLD MAN'S CLASS.

His Budgets Compared Favorably With Those of Gladstone—Left His Impress Upon the British National Debt—Likewise Remembered For a Notable Failure—Work of His Declining Years.

Viscount Goschen, whose death is reported, was one of the most distinguished English statesmen of his generation. Statesman rather than politician is the word that fits him, for Goschen dealt with great matters of finance, far above the head of the average elector, and was never tempted to damagoguery. It is as a financier that he will be remembered in the history of the nineteenth century, and it will be hard for the historian to find a contemporary who was his equal in handling financial matters of national importance. His budgets compared favorably with those of Gladstone, and as the Chancellor of the Exchequer these two men were in a class by themselves.

Goschen was something of the same type as Lord Avebury. Both were products of a city training, and each inherited, to some extent, his capacity for business matters. Both combined general culture, and a thorough understanding of economic theories, with a practical grasp of affairs More than any man in a hundred years, Goschen left his impress on the English national debt, whose conversion was undoubtedly the greatest piece of work he ever did. His reduction of interest on the debt was contemplated with alarm in financial circles, for it was felt that the task was so huge and complicated by so many problems that he would surely make some mistakes. But so skilfully was the change accomplished that there was no disturbance whatever, and the new "Goschens," as they were called, were as readily subscribed as any former issue of consols.



LATE VISCOUNT GOSCHEN.

Lord Goschen will also be remembered for a notable failure, as well as for a great success, for it seems inevitable that the battle he lost will be fought again and won some time in the future. He felt that the strain on the coinage of the nation was unnecessarily severe, through the absence of paper money of less value than five-pound notes. As the average weekly wage is much less than £5, the paper currency was not, and is not, used by the great proportion of people in England. Goschen wished to create £1 and £2 Bank of England notes; but, though he put forward a strong argument, he failed to carry his point. His "Theory of Exchanges" is a standard text book on the subject of international balances, and indicates the general culture as well as the deep special knowledge of the writer.

Goschen was one of those members of the Balfour Cabinet that stepped out when Mr. Chamberlain's policy was announced. He had no sympathy with the preferential idea, and was a pronounced free trader.

Lord Goschen had Canadian investments, and must have had a peculiar interest in the country, as he was for years Governor of the Hudson Bay Co., in which position he preceded Lord Strathcona. The two men were thus closely associated, their common bond being an interest in Canada. As Lord Goschen has been, for the past few years, withdrawn from public life, it cannot be said that his death creates a gap, so far as government is concerned. It can be said that he made a mark on big questions of his day, and was generally recognized as one of the best informed men of affairs the past generation has produced, and one whose advice, in financial and naval affairs, should be accepted as the last word on those subjects.

Lord Goschen had been engaged since his retirement from active politics in the task of compiling and editing the memoirs and correspondence of his grandfather, George Joachim Goschen, the most famous European publisher of his day, who, making his headquarters at Leipsic, was in personal relations and correspondence with all the great literary personages of his time, particularly during the latter half of the eighteenth century and the first few years of the nineteenth century. The correspondence is said to include a large number of hitherto unpublished letters of Schiller and of Goethe, and it may be hoped that Lord Goschen had completed his task when overtaken by death, for the memoirs, when published, cannot fail to prove of absorbing interest.

It was the son of the Leipsic publisher who founded the London banking house of Frubling & Goschen, which was active in financing foreign Governments during the earlier portion of the Victorian reign, and launched many of the loans raised by Khedive Ismail for the development of the resources of Egypt. Lord Goschen himself was a member of the firm and governor of the Bank of England until he first took office under the Government, and his sons are partners in the firm which still flourishes and from which all the family wealth is derived.

Though the Goschens have been Christians for at least three generations, they are of Semitic origin, a fact to which must be ascribed the marvelous skill of Lord Goschen as a financier.

Lord Goschen will remain on record as having trained some of the most successful men of their age. Lord Milner; the late Sir Clinton Dawkins, who, after being finance minister of India, died as a partner of J. Pierpont Morgan; Sir Edgar Vincent, formerly financial adviser to the Khedive and governor of the Ottoman Bank of Constantinople; as well as several other equally distinguished men may be said to have acquired their administrative and financial experience while serving as his private secretaries. The new Viscount Goschen, his son, is a man of about 40, was one of his father's private secretaries, served on the staff of Lord Jersey when governor of New South Wales, was one of the militia aides de camp of Lord Roberts when commander-in-chief, and also has sat in Parliament as a Tory. He is married to the youngest daughter of the late Lord Cranbrook, and has several children.

One of the late peer's brothers, Sir William Goschen, is now British ambassador at Vienna, where, in spite of his agreeable manner and cleverness, he is handicapped by the fact that he does not belong to the old English aristocracy. Every one of the men who preceded him there as British ambassador has been a man of patrician lineage, among them Sir Edmund Monson, Lord Augustus Loftus, Sir Andrew Buchanan, Sir Henry Elliott, Sir Horace Rumbold, and Sir Francis Plunkett.

Thanks to this, the representatives of the British crown at Vienna were always received in the Austrian great world, which is the most exclusive in Europe, as members of its caste and the intimacy which they thus formed proved of inestimable advantage to their Government. At Vienna more than anywhere else diplomatic office, per se, does not carry with it the entree into the grand monde, and the envoy from any European Government who comes there without the advantages of blue blood is apt to find himself restricted to intercourse with his foreign colleagues and Austrian officials, while the only opportunities he will enjoy of meeting the cream of Austrian society will be at those court balls and ceremonies to which he is invited by reason of his mission.

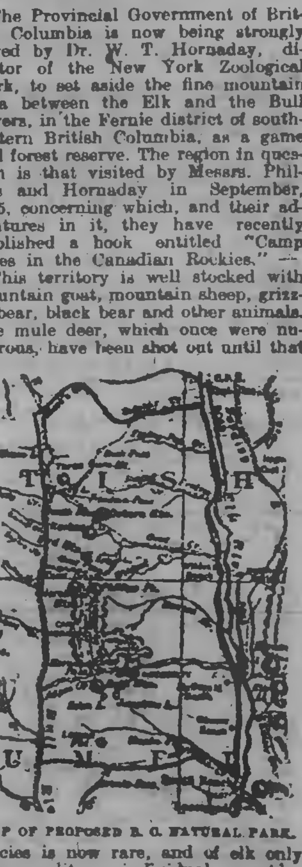
Indeed, his life there is the reverse of pleasant, since he sees himself barred from the most brilliant society of Europe, to which his attaches, provided they possess the advantages of birth which he does not enjoy, are welcomed with open arms.

NATURAL PARK FOR B.C.

American Endeavoring to Get the Government to Set One Aside.

The Provincial Government of British Columbia is now being strongly urged by Dr. W. T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological Park, to set aside the fine mountain area between the Elk and the Bull Rivers, in the Fernie district of south-eastern British Columbia, as a game and forest reserve. The region in question is that visited by Messrs. Phillips and Hornaday in September, 1905, concerning which, and their adventures in it, they have recently published a book entitled "Camp Fires in the Canadian Rockies."

This territory is well stocked with mountain goat, mountain sheep, grizzly bear, black bear and other animals. The mule deer, which once were numerous, have been shot out until that species is now rare, and of elk only a few solitary individuals remain. Martens, mink and wolverine are still fairly plentiful. The works of nature there are extremely interesting, and the country as a whole, if preserved in its present natural wildness, would make a grand resort for camping parties of nature-lovers and photographers.



MAP OF PROPOSED B. C. NATURAL PARK.

Dr. Hornaday has drafted a bill and submitted a map showing the boundaries of the proposed reserve. The reservation as proposed by him would be about thirty miles in length by fifteen miles in width, and would, therefore, contain a total area of about 450 square miles. The region thus delimited contains no coal nor other valuable minerals, no agricultural lands, and no timber of commercial value, so that, commercially or industrially, the people of British Columbia would make no sacrifice in carrying out the idea proposed. The reserve is situated between two main lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and would be accessible from three points—Michel and Fort Steele on the south and Banff on the north.

Owing to the natural conditions of the country, it would be entirely possible for two game wardens effectually to protect the reservation. Dr. Hornaday proposes that the enabling act shall designate the mountains between the Elk and the Bull Rivers as the "Great Mountains," and the reservation as "Great Mountain Park." From the encouragement and sympathy which have been received, there is good reason to hope that the scheme may be carried into effect.

COFFIN WOOD MINES.

The Chinaman Digs For Wood Prized For Burial Caskets.

There exists no object which the average Chinaman exhibits more regard for than the narrow box which is destined to contain all that is mortal of him. He is never happy until it is in his possession. It occupies a conspicuous position in his house, and the richer he is the more he expends on its acquisition and adornment.

The coffins most esteemed by the Celestials are manufactured from a peculiar resinous wood, possessing quite extraordinary preservative properties and found only in one small district in Tonquin, buried in the earth, no living specimens of the tree now being in existence.

The natives search for it quite as eagerly as elsewhere gold and precious stones are run after, and, indeed, the deposits, for such they are, are to all intents and purposes mines of wood, the origin of which has never been satisfactorily explained.

Local legends have it that in a far distant past vast numbers of these trees existed in the dense forests with which the whole region was covered and that as a result of some tremendous cataclysm they were uprooted and precipitated into the ravines. Whether this account is true or not, the buried trees are today a source of quite considerable wealth to the lucky person who finds them. For a coffin made of this special wood a Chinaman does not consider £50 or £60 at all too high a price to pay.

City Druggists Object to Bill

Do Not Favor Registration Fees and Inland Revenue Stamp on Medicines

A meeting of the druggists of Peterborough was held on Thursday night to consider the bill now befor the House of Commons respecting proprietory and patent medicines It was unanimously decided to forward to Mr. R. R. Hall, M. P., a resolution to the effect that the druggists object to the bill in its present form because it deprives them of right to sell by retail, medicines of their own manufacture and while they are quite willing to submit formulas of medicines of their own manufacture to the Government, they object to paying an annual registration fee. With respect to the proposed inland revenue stamp tax on each preparation that they sell direct to consumers they maintain that such a levy on their preparations would be burdensome and unjust.

With regard to the preparation of patent medicines the druggists have no opinion to offer, leaving this to the patent medicine men, feeling that they can look after their own interests.

DIED AS RESULT OF ACCIDENT

Mr. John Kearney, who met with the distressing accident at the G.T.R. station on Monday, Feb. 4th., by which both legs and one hand were taken off and other injuries received, died at the General hospital, Toronto, last evening about 8.30 o'clock. Both legs had been amputated and deceased bore the strain remarkably well. An abcess had since formed in the side and on Thursday last this was opened and a piece of the rib removed. The doctors then stated that there was no hope for recovery and from that time on he gradually sank.

The remains were brought down on the 7.30 train Wednesday evening and were taken in charge at Newtonville by Mr. Alf. George and thence to his home in the village. The funeral took place to Port Hope on Friday.—Port Hope Guide.

City to Get Stone for Streets From Mount Eagle, Stony Lake

City Official Says Purchasing Stone From Farmers Will be Too Expensive in Another Year or Two--Lots of Granite at the Lake--How to Handle it.

For a long time the city of Peterborough has had to purchase field stones for crushing. These stones after going through the machine are hauled onto the streets and gone over by the big steam roller for the purpose of making good roads. At first the stone did not cost much, but last year the price went up 60c. a cord, making a total of $3.00. This year it is the same and when 300 cords are purchased it runs away with a lot of money.

Talking with one of the city officials who has charge of the street work, the Review learned that the probability is that this is the last year stone can be purchased at the present price. The farmers and the teamsters, who draw the stone to the crusher, have each year to go farther This year even some of the men are drawing stone from four to six miles out in the country. At more than three dollars a cord this will not pay and the engineering department and the council will have to look elsewhere for their supply.

During the conversation Stoney Lake was mentioned and an idea struck the city official. He, as well as everyone else acquainted with the lake knows that there is an unlimited supply of both granite and lime stone. The latter is just at the head of Clear Lake and could be quarried easily. The granite is farther back. At Mount Eagle it is all granite and of the very best quality for road making.

The official suggested that the city secure the right to quarry stone at Mount Eagle and establish a plant there. He figured that the cost of quarrying and transportation would not amount to much more than the city is now paying. In the first place a system for handling the stone would have to be adopted. At the quarry it could be easily worked. All there was to getting the granite broken up was a few charges of dynamite. The more stone taken out the more dynamite required of course. From the quarry the stone could be run down a chute to scows with very little expense. Then towing the scows down to the city would not be a heavy expense, but the most important feature would be the unloading and storage after the stone reached here.

The day for wheel barrows and scores of men walking up and down planks has gone by. It is too slow and runs away with too much money. A barrow full of stone would represent almost as much cash. The only thing would be a derrick. This, located on the city's wharf, with the stone crusher moved up to the stone pile, would answer the purpose. The thing for the engineering department to figure out would be where to build the wharf so that the crusher could be used and thus save another handling.

The problem is one which the Board of Works or the engineer will have to deal with in the very near future and the sooner it is solved the better for the city's treasury.

Model Farm for Peterborough; Taylor Property Has Been Sold

Senator Cox Sold it to Messrs Storey & Leary, Who Will Stock it With Horses, Cattle and Poultry—Farming on an Extensive Scale.

Peterborough is to have a model stock farm, and it will be one of the attractions of the outskirts of the city. A large real estate deal was put through yesterday whereby Mr. Jas Storey and Ald. R. H. Leary have become proprietors of that grand property known as the Taylor farm. The sale was made by Mr. W. G. Morrow on behalf of Senator Geo. A. Cox and the price was a large one, although Mr. Leary says it is a cheap farm at that.

Hon. Mr. Cox purchased this land some months ago from Mr. Taylor for $7,500, with the intention of holding it until such times as the Coates Co. would need it for building purposes. It adjoins the southern line of the Thompson farm, the site for the Coates factory, and it should be very valuable for building lots. But Mr. Cox had an opportunity to make a good thing on his investment and he took it.

The Taylor farm contains 180 acres more of less, of very valuable farm land. It is situated just north of the golf links and between the canal and river. It is on an elevation which affords a beautiful view of the city and the surrounding country and it also has the advantage of the water on both sides. The property possesses a fascination which appeals to a romantic nature; it is an ideal spot for lovers of the pure free air, the trees, the green grass and the water. It was the picturesqueness as much as the fertility of the soil which attracted the new owners. All the land on the farm is cleared and under cultivation except three acres along the road side and only a short distance from the house. The woods are all of the hardy class and it is the intention to clear out the brushwood and saplings and convert the bush into a large grove. Besides the grain and hay fields there is an orchard of some 00 trees, apples and pears, and all are in their prime. The buildings are large, well built and modern. a handsome brick house with large verandahs will be the scene of many a jolly little party next summer. There are three large barns, a fine hen house, cow byre and all other dwellings for farm stock. In fact there is everything which is necessary to make an ideal farm.

Messrs. Storey and Leary have prepared their plans already and they will not loose a day in carrying them into effect. The main idea is to establish a model stock farm, and conduct it in connection with their flour and feed business which they recently started on Water street and which promises to prove so successful.

Ald. Leary is a well known horse fancier and buyer. He has been in the business for many years and he not only buys and sells horses as a business, but he loves good horses. At the present time he has a large number in his stable at his home on McDonnel street. These he will transfer at once to the barns on the farm and will purchase a number more to fill the place up. If he had had the accommodation he would have had between fifty and a hundred head in the stables feeding all winter.

The farm will be used largely for keeping the horses on while they are being put in condition for shipment to the west where Mr. Leary has already established quite a market and a good name. Besides horses the new proprietors will have several head of well bred cattle as well as other live stock. But next to the horses one of the main features of this model farm will be poultry. For many years Mr. Leary has been a poultry fancier and he and Mr. Storey will go in on an extensive scale for raising poultry for exhibition purposes as well as for the market. In this business, if well handled, there is to be made a lot of money and as both these men are capable business men and acquainted with every branch of the farm there is no doubt they will make a success of the venture. The new yards will also be a welcome addition to Peterborough's poultry business.

The first year Messrs. Storey and Leary cannot put on as much live stock as they would desire as the larger portion of the farm has been cropped. This will have to be cropped again and seeded down before it will be serviceable as meadow land. However, they will put as many horses and cattle on as the pasture will stand. Of course this will not interfere at all with the poultry business.

A first class man with wide experience and expert knowledge of live stock will be placed in charge of the farm. He will occupy part of the big residence and will act as overseer. Messrs. Storey and Leary will manage the place themselves, Other than the foreman there will be no one living in the house, but it will be kept open in the summer so that the owners and their families with friends can have tea and spend the evenings upon the verandahs, large lawns and the hard wood grove. This will be the pleasant and social side of the model farm and it should be equaly as successful as the business end promises to be. The new owners of the Taylor farm are enthusiastic over their scheme and state that in a year or two they will have one of the most complete and up-to-date farms in Ontario. It will at least be an entirely new thing around Peterborough and the gentlemen's many friends will wish them all prosperity.

Will Charlotte Street Church Methodists Erect New Edifice?

Pastor Thinks That New Structure Should be Built Capable of Seating 1,000 Persons—Growth of the Congregation—Individual Communion Cups Likely to be Used at Sacramental Services.

A new church, with seating accomodation for 1,000 persons is one of the needs of the Charlotte street Methodist church congregation, according to the opinion of the pastor, expressed at the annual congregational meeting held last night in the Sunday school room.

In a short review of the state of the work he pointed out that at the present time there were 350 families represented in the congregation, and if the average attendance of these families was but 1 1-3 persons per service the church would not be large enough to accomodate them There are enrolled in the Sunday school 570 names, and, these 570 children of the Sunday school have no church—there is no room for them.

His first thought had been that there should be a great revival and that following the revival a new church should be provided, but he had come to the conclusion that the new church must come first, because even should a revival result in a large increase in the membership of the church there would be no room to accomodate them in the church.

The matter was not discussed further at the meeting last night but it is probable that it will be taken up later at a meeting of the Trustee Board.

INDIVIDUAL CUPS

It is probable too, that, at an early date the practice of using individual communion cups for sacramental service will be adopted by this church.

At the meeting last night Mr. A. B. Cunningham, who had been appointed by the Board to look into the matter presented his report, and explained to the members of the congregation some facts in connection with the use of the individual cups, pointing out the fact that, while it was only a few years since they were first introduced. At the present time about 200 churches in Canada were using them, and the number was growing all the time. Three churches in Peterborough were using them, and, in conversation with members of some of these churches he had learned that their use was most satisfactory, and that the members would not think of reverting to the old system.

The reports of the different departments of the church, as presented at the meeting last night, showed a healthy state of affairs, at least from a numerical and financial standpoint. Nearly all the organizations of the church reported having closed the year with credit balances, while all bore evidences of the unmistakable generosity, which is a proverbial characteristic of this congregation.

Interspersed with the presentation of the reports were musical selection by Miss Belleghem and Miss Olive Howell, while little Miss Greta LeBar delighted the gathering with three recitations.

OTHER REPORTS.

Mr. R. J. Kidd gave the report of the Trustee and Quarterly Boards, explaining some of the items in the statements of receipts and expenditures, which have already been published

Mrs. J. K. Moore read an encouraging report from the Women's Missionary Society and also gave a statement of the finances of the Society.

The report of the Young Men's Guild was presented by Mr. I. D. Moore, the president, who gave a brief outline of the work the Guild is endeavoring to do and supplemented it by a financial report.

The "Olive" Mission Band, one of the enterprising of the younger organizations of the church, reported through Miss Elliott, a successful year, the receipts having been $105, and there was a balance in the bank at the close of the year of over $45.00.

A ROSY REPORT.

Dr. Morrison, who represented the Sunday school, had a rosy report to present. He pointed out that when he first came to the Sunday school, fifteen years ago, the attendance was about one hundred and fifty. and two or three years ago, if they had 300 present on a Sunday afternoon they were pleased. At the present time, however, no small numbers satisfied them. The members o the roll number 570, and the average attendance for last year was 365, while, a few weeks ago, the high water mark of attendance was reached when 400 were present. He gave a report of the financial aspect of the school, pointing out that while the improvements recently effected in the school room had cost about $4,700, all that remained unprovided for was $1,500, and no apprehension was felt concerning that small balance. He believed it would be met when it was needed.

REV. H. M. MANNING,
Pastor of Charlotte St. Methodist Church

Mr G. F. Hornley, the president, of the Epworth League, presented the report of that department, stating that the average attendance at the weekly meetings was over sixty, principally young people. He invited the older members of the congregation to attend the meetings.

The Ladies' Aid Society, which raised during the year past, nearly $400, was represented by Mrs. A. B Cunningham, who gave a resume of the work accomplished and presented a financial statement.

An unusually interesting report was that presented on behalf of the choir by Miss Clarry, the leader, who pointed out the means by which the choir had assisted the church financially, as well as by their services in the ministry of song.

Following the business portion of the evening, refreshments were served, and a pleasant social hour enjoyed.

EGGS CHEAPER ON TO-DAY'S MARKET

A drop in eggs was the feature of the market to-day. Prices ranged from 25 cents to 27 cents per dozen, and the demand was good. There was plenty of hen fruit on hand to meet all demands. Butter was also down a peg, dairy prints selling at 25 cents and 26 cents per pound. The supply was larger than usual, promises to increase from now on.

In other lines there were no changes of any importance.

Beef sold at 5 cents and 6 cents per pound, and pork at 10 cents and 11 cents per pound, by the quarter.

Potatoes were quoted at 90 cents and 95 cents per bag and apples at $1.25 to $1.50 per bag, according to quality.

Hay sold at $10 per ton. Several loads were offered for sale.

Nicola Maricka and Joseph Gerjowik, laborers, were killed at the Lackawanna steel plant at Buffalo yeterday by a falling wall.

It was about the size of a dozen stars put together and when nearing the ground burst into a thousand pieces making a sight unequalled by the beauties of pyrotechnical extravaganza.

Court Bridgenorth is Progressing

Enjoyable Time Spent at the Last Regular Meeting

A grand Foresters' meeting was held in the Foresters' Hall by Court Bridgenorth, No. 315, on Feb. 28th. The hall was crowded with Foresters to welcome a number of new members brought in by Bro. Keys, the organizer. The court was opened in due form the Chief Ranger in the chair Bro Keys conducted the meeting and was pleased with the way the officers and brothers carried out the business of the meeting. The Foresters partook of a fine supper, prepared by the Social Committee, who deserve credit for the generous way in which they put up the viands At the close a good programme was rendered, consisting of songs speeches, instrumental, clog and step dancing. Bro. Scott. reeve gave a good address. Bro. Keys also spoke on Forester work. The "rooster band" took an active part in the programme.

The new members joined in a circle with the old members around Bro. Keys, singing. "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" This brought the meeting to a close.

The hockey team of Bridgenorth have made rapid progress this season. Their rink is in good shape.

Mr. Keys has been in Bridgenorth all week working for the Foresters, and says he has been used well. His companion, Mr. A. Jobe, lets him hold the horse while he goes in the house for a "shin heat."

Mr. George Bell is able to be out again

The chosen few held an "at home" at Mr A. Jobe's on Feb. 28th. The receipts of the evening are not known Supper was supplied by the Foresters.

TWO DRUNKS WERE IN POLICE COURT

Heavy Fines Imposed upon a Brace of Offenders This Morning.

There was something doing in the police court this morning for the first time in several days. Some citizens who could hold out no longer had to have a time last night. As a result they were in the police court to-day. Edward James had hardly recovered from his spree this morning when he entered the box. The charge against him was not only for being drunk but for refusing to pay his fare to a cabman. When the Magistrate asked him if he was guilty he replied in a drolling voice "I suppose I must be guilty." He was then ordered to pay the cabman and also a fine of $5.75 for being disorderly. The prisoner said "yes sir, I'll pay for everything with the help of God." When he came to count out $5.75 he found he was just short two dollars of the amount required. He told the Chief that he would write out a cheque for the balance.

David Hoben, who has appeared before in the Police Court, was charged this morning with being drunk and disorderly in a public place. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5.75 to be paid forthwith. He hadn't the necessary, so he will spend 10 days at Nesbitt Castle. If he can raise the $5.75 between now and the termination of his sentece he will be allowed his freedom.

Strongly Objects to Method Adopted

Referendum Should be Taken on the Eldership as Well as Pastorate of St. Paul's

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir.—The officials of St. Paul's church seem to desire publicity in the present crisis in the church, which is causing a good deal of comment just now in our City. I want to say a few words. If the officials had included their own names to be voted on, then something like fair play would have been shown the pastor, to say nothing about the spirit of Christianity, which, at least, the Elders should possess.

I take it that the success of any church depends as much on the elders or deacons, by whatever name they are known as the pastor. I will not attempt to tell the office bearers of St. Paul's church, what the Bible gives us to what constitutes a man, eligible to fill the office of elder of the church. They can read it for themselves. If they do, I think they will come to the same conclusion that many of the members of St. Paul's church have come to, namely, that, if they had done their duty as faithfully and with the same Christian spirit as Dr. Torrance, there would have been no need for this one sided referendum today. If there were differences between the pastor and the session or office-bearers as stated in the official letter between Dr. Torrance and the congregation, at least I have heard nothing of them. Whatever differences there have been has been between the office-bearers and the pastor. If the office-bearers could not settle this matter in a manly Christian spirit, their proper course was to call a meeting of the congregation and resign. But I take it that the present action was not only unwise, but unnecessary and selfish, unworthy of the elders of any Christian church.

I do not think that Dr. Torrance would wish to remain in St. Paul's or any other church to preach to an unwilling congregation, and if the congregation want a change of pastors the matter can be left, with confidence in their hands, without the office bearers becoming hysterical over it, and it will be done without offending the sensibilities of the pastor or any one else in that charitable and kindly Christian spirit, which should control the members of a Christian church in a crisis of this kind. I am exceedingly sorry that the office-bearers did not see fit to take the congregation fully into their confidence in this matter Another matter and I have done. In the letter accompanying the ballot papers the following words appear: These voting papers will be received in the strictest confidence and held absolutely secret. Why? If this is so, then why the numbered ballot? The people have been crying out against a numbered ballot for years as being dishonest: Then why take it into the church. If the office-bearers were elected by ballot there would be considerable of a change.

Members of St. Paul's church I intend to burn my ballot papers as a protest against the dishonest position the office-bearers wish to place us in, namely, to shoulder their discreditable and ill-advised quarrel with the gentleman who has been your pastor for thirty years. If a change is necessary in the interests of the congregation and in the advancement of the church, then by all means let it be done in decency and in order and let us drive. The courage to come out and say so in in all kindliness as among brethren, and give the pastor who has gone in and out among us in joy and sorrow carrying the message of Christ to the best of his ability in that kindly spirit which those of us who have gone down to the dark river with our loved ones know how to appreciate. Give your pastor at least British fair play, the same as we would expect for ourselves. Only by charity and forbearance can we build a strong and united church whether under the old pastor or under a new one. This is for the congregation to decide. I have not always seen eye to eye with the pastor but let him that hath no sin cast the first stone. I cannot follow the proposition, I will not call it by a worse name, although it deserves it, laid down by the office bearers and keep my own self-respect or have any for them. Can you?

Respectfully yours,
A MEMBER OF ST.
PAUL'S CHURCH.

Has Taken a Thousand Zutoo

Always Cured Headache. Never Affected her Heart.

Here is a testimonial from the wife of Doctor W. L. Shurtleff, K.C., of Coaticook, Que., who has taken a thousand Zutoo Tablets (the Japanese Vegetable Headache remedy.)

It should convince any doubting one, that while the tablets cure headache, they do not, like the drug cures, affect the heart, nerves or stomach. No one would or could take such a number if they were not perfectly harmless. Mrs. Shurtleff herself had to discard the drug cures.

Here is what she says:

I have always been a great sufferer from headache, and have taken a great many headache cures. I found that after taking them for a time they caused palpitation of the heart. Three years ago I began using Zutoo. I have likely taken over a thousand tablets. I have never yet felt the least ill-effect from using them and they cure my headaches as quickly as any remedy I ever took.

They are Harmless as Soda.

MAKING OF MAPLE SUGAR

Valuable Book Sent Out on This Subject by the Department of Agriculture

For the purpose of distributing a bulletin on the manufacture of pure maple syrup and sugar, the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has undertaken to collect a list of maple sugar makers from each county in the Dominion. If by chance any names of sugar makers or any interested in the manufacture have been omitted from the list, or the copy already mailed has gone astray, the Department will be glad to send to all who apply or to anyone who may wish to send in a list of names with post office addresses, a copy of the Maple Sugar Bulletin just issued.

This bulletin not only deals with the manufacture of "Pure Maple Syrup and Sugar," but also explains the sections of the Adulteration Act having reference to maple syrup and sugar, and like ingredients, and gives a "Form of Warranty" which has to be signed by the sugar maker himself and handed on to the wholesaler, retailer and consumer, thus giving the purchaser assurance that the goods sold as "Pure Maple Syrup" or "Pure Maple Sugar" are what they are represented to be.

Fruit Cures Constipation

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Constipation because they are Fruit Juices in Tablet form.

Constipation means a disordered liver. When the liver is weak, bile is lacking. And it is the bile—which the liver excretes—that flows into the intestines and moves the bowels.

Fruit is the great liver tonic. It invigorates the liver and causes more bile to flow into the bowels.

Purgatives, powders and purging mineral waters, never reach the liver. They irritate the bowels and FORCE them to move. They generally do harm. They NEVER do any PERMANENT good.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices—in which the medicinal action is many times intensified by the wonderful change which takes place when the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes are combined.

"Fruit-a-tives" have already proved a cure to many thousands of people in Canada.

"Fruit-a-tives" are free from calomel, cascara, senna and other bowel irritants. They are concentrated fruit juices with valuable tonics and internal antiseptics added.

"Fruit-a-tives" move the bowels regularly and easily every day — and thus cure Constipation.

President Crowell's Address at Quaker Oats Co. Annual Meeting

Past Year Was Most Successful in History of the Company—Gain in Profits Over 1905 Was $163,816.47—Surplus is a Million and a Half.

The Review has received a copy of Mr. H. P. Crowell's address to the shareholders of the Quaker Oats Co., at their annual meeting held in Chicago on February 15. Mr. Crowell is president and his address is as follows;

To the Shareholders of the Quaker Oats Company;

We have the satisfaction of sending out the information that during the fiscal year ending December 31, 1906, the company has earned the largest profit and procured the greatest volume of business in its history. The profit is $1,283,389.14 in contrast with the profit for 1905 of $1,119,572.67, or a gain of $163,816.47. After deducting interest on bonds dividends and other charges, we have left a balance of $642,637.79, which balance has been added to the previous profit and loss surplus making the surplus new $1,602,070.99.

It is our further pleasure to advise you that all bonds upon the Company's property were paid June 1st, 1906. The Northern Trust Company, Trustee for the bondholders, issued its release of the obligation on July 17th, so that the mill and property of the Company are now free and clear of all incumbrance. This makes the preferred stock, which is preferred as to dividends, and also as to assets, a first lien on all the assets and good-will of the Company, and should make each of you perfectly satisfied with the value and solidity of your preferred holdings.

On August 23rd all of the properties and assets of the American Cereal Company were transferred by deed and bill of sale to the Quaker Oats Company, so that on this date the Quaker Oats Company became an active operating company.

On October 15th the first dividend ever declared on the common stock, was paid. The directors, considering the strong, financial condition of the Company, the earnings, and the favorable outlook for the future, felt justified in making this distribution.

I cannot more clearly give you the thought of your officers than by quoting an extract from one of the leading financial papers of the country;

"The Quaker Oats Company has declared an initial dividend of one-half of one per cent. on the common stock together with extra dividend of 1-2 of 1 per cent, October 15th to Stock of Record, October 5th. The declaration of an extra, along with the first dividend ever declared on the stock, is significant enough to tell its own story. The intimation is that 6 per cent. may be counted upon, but that the Company is making enough money to pay 8 per cent. and probably will do so in the form of extras. This method of informing stockholders of prosperous times, but at the same time giving a cautionary note of possible changes in trade conditions, is not new, but is to be commended. It should prevent overdue speculation and at the same time encourage the investment attitude towards good industrials."

Some new and advanced methods have been introduced in our Sales and Advertising Departments which have greatly strengthened both Departments and made it possible to materially increase the sale of our specialties. We are so much encouraged over these immediate results that we feel confident a much larger sale awaits us in 1907.

Many more cases of Quaker Oats were sold in the United States than ever before. While this brand has been long established, there are indications that the public at large is just waking up to an understanding and appreciation that Quaker Oats is the best oatmeal made. This fact, coupled with our extensive and efficient advertising, is developing a volume away in excess of our already large distribution. It may be of interest to you to know that, according to the best information we can obtain, the Quaker brand is registered, and Quaker products sold in more countries in the world, than any other brand of goods of any character.

Our foreign trade, which is of very large proportions, shows good growth and is in a healthy condition. We are sending out more experienced men into countries where our trade has been moderate, but where the increase justifies the belief that careful and thorough work will be amply rewarded.

In the history of the Company I have never seen a spirit of interest, enthusiasm and co-operation in our men, both home and foreign, equal to that of the present moment. This presages much for the future in the up-building of the Company, the amount of business secured, of profit earned, and of the safety of your interest.

Respectfully yours,
H. P. CROWELL.

Fish and Game Protection Bill Before Ontario House

Whitney Government Introduced a New and Important Bill—Game Commissioners are Abolished—Inspectors to See That Law is Enforced.

Toronto, Feb. 27th.—The Governments new measure respecting game and fisheries was introduced in the Legislature yesterday afternoon by Hon. Dr. Reaume. The bill bears the title of "an act respecting the game fur-bearing animals and fisheries of Ontario," and in some respects is most radical. It takes the place of the Ontario game protection act and the Ontario fisheries act, and all amendments to them. Provision is made for the amalgamation of the now separate fisheries and game branch, to be in charge of a superintendent. Inspectors of game and fisheries not exceeding three in number are to be appointed to see that the wardens and overseers carry out their duties properly. The Board of Game Commissioners in existence since 1812 is abolished. Mr. H. S. Osler, K. C., Toronto, is the Chairman of the present board.

The present regulations in respect to the forest and other Crown preserves are re-enacted. The sections of the act relative to fisheries are not changed in principle from those of the present act, but there are some alterations in wording with a view to making the meaning clearer.

Among the most important changes are the enactment of the following close seasons to supersede those now existing,—Deer, moose, reindeer, caribou, Nov. 21 to Oct. 1, both days inclusive; grouse, pheasants, prairie fowl, partridge, woodcock, black and grey squirrels, between Dec. 15 and Sept. 15; quail or wild turkeys, between Dec. 1 and Nov. 1; swans or geese, between May 1 and Sept. 1; ducks of all kinds or other water fowl, between Dec. 31, and Sept. 1; snipe, rail, plover, or any other birds known as shore birds or waders, between Dec. 15 and Sept. 1; capercailzie, between Dec. 15 and Sept. 15, but for the present these birds are protected by an all the year round close season lasting until 1909; hares, between Dec. 31, and Oct. 1. The present law respecting beaver, otter, and muskrats is unchanged.

The use of automatic guns is forbidden. Persons employed on the construction of railways or other public works shall not be allowed to carry fire-arms unless authorized by special license for which regulations are provided.

It is made an offence for any hotel, restaurant or club to supply for or as part of a meal, any game or fish, under any pretended name or under the designation of anything which might at the time be lawfully supplied.

In regard to penalties persons guilty of breaches of the clauses of the act, referring to deer, moose, elk, reindeer, caribou, beaver or otter, are liable to a fine for each offence not exceeding $100, and not less than $20, together with costs. At present the fines are $20 to $50. For offences against other sections, the liability is for fines from $5 to $50 and costs, instead of $5 to $25 as formerly. In default of immediate payment, the offenders are to be imprisoned for a period not exceeding three months. A second offence committed within two years, means punishment to the extent of not less than double the minimum of the penalties mentioned. A third offence involves punishment not less than the maximum penalties.

The Great Poets Who Have Made Old England Famons

Admirably Prepared Paper Read Before St. Peter's Ladies' Literary Society Last Evening by Miss Eva Tangney—How Literature has Been Enriched by Poetic Contributions.

Since the inaugural meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. in October last, the society has enjoyed a continuous and constantly increasing popularity. Its meetings, which have been so liberally patronized, have been characterized by excellent essays and bright musical programmes.

At the regular meeting last evening a large and appreciative audience assembled in the Association Hall to enjoy the excellent programme presented.

The most pleasing feature of the evening was, however, the essay on "Famous English Poets," read by Miss Eva Tangney. The subject, though a broad one, was dealt with in a most praiseworthy manner and from beginning to end, proved to be most interesting and instructive.

The introductory part of the essay dealt with the superiority of English language and literature. From the eleventh to the fourteenth century there was in no sense a national language. A number of dialects existed, but no really national language could exist until a literature had been created which would be admired and studied by those who could read, and taken as a model by those who could write. This work was done by Chaucer, the first great poet of England, and the true father of English literature. Being conversant with court life and moving in the highest circles of English society, Chaucer wrote in the Midland dialect, and thus raised it at once to a position of superiority, for his writings were read and admired everywhere and the dialect as written by him was adopted by his successors, and thus became the language of the nation. This language has still retained its composite character, which is one of its marked features.

Chaucer was the first English poet to honor the English language by framing in it great literary masterpiece. "Canterbury Tales" is by far the most read of his works. Two centuries elapsed before England could boast of a poet worthy to succeed the author of "Canterbury Tales," in the person of Edmund Spenser, the only non-dramatic poet of the Elizabethan age, whose poetry may be said to be the most poetical of all poetry. In the English language have been written the most noble poems, the sweetest songs and the stories which best portray the human character. The English historian has seen most deeply into the mists and darkness which shroud the ages of the past; the English philosopher has most clearly understood the forces which move men to action and control their minds, and, as language makes past knowledge present treasure, English historians, poets, philosophers and novelists have displayed their genius by pouring out their souls in a language whose range and compass express better than any other human tongue all the varying thoughts, emotions and purposes of men.

Beginning with Shakespeare, England's greatest poet, Miss Tangney in very beautiful language, gave brief sketches of the lives and characteristics of some of England's famous poets, who have graced the pages of English literature. Among them were Milton, Pope, Gray, Goldsmith, Woordsworth, Tennyson, who succeeded Wordsworth as the poet laureate, and who was the first of modern poets; Robert Browning, the poetic student of human nature, and Alfred Austin, who was called to the vacant laureateship after the death of Tennyson.

The essay was interspersed throughout with poetical extracts from the different poets to exemplify their predominant characteristics, in some depth and sincerity of emotion, in others fertility of fancy, philosophy of thought, or elegance of diction

As a fitting close to this able essay, a beautiful quotation from Tennyson's last poem, entitled "Crossing the Bar," was given.

Each number on the musical programme, which preceded the reading of the essay, was highly appreciated by the enthusiastic audience, and deservedly so, as the rendition was not only pleasing, but most artistic

The following was the musical programme presented:—

Instrumental Duet—Misses Shevlin and Flynn.
Vocal Solo—Miss K. O'Brien.
Recitation—Miss Derocher.
Violin Solo—Miss E. Doris.
Instrumental Solo—Miss Nora Coughlin.

The accompanists of the evening were Miss Bernice Giroux and Miss A. Doris.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday evening, March 15th, when a lecture on "King Lear" will be delivered by Rev. Father Galvin.

TRADES THAT CURE ILLS.

If You Want to Drive Away Disease, Turn Shepherd.

"Oil workers are never bald," said a druggist. "Visit our oil regions or those of Russia. Examine the workmen's hair. It is soft and thick and glossy, for petroleum cures incipient baldness, and if your hair is thinning rub some in. Never mind the smell. It will do you good.

"Shepherds enjoy remarkable health. The odd odor of a sheep seems to drive away disease. Sheep are especially good for whooping cough. In the sheep country when a child takes the whooping cough it is the custom for the mother to put it to play among the sheep, and the next day it is well.

"The men and women who work among lavender, gathering it or distilling it, never have neuralgia or nervous headache. Lavender, moreover, is as good as a sea voyage for giving tone to the system. Run down persons often work for nothing in lavender plants in order to build themselves up.

"Salt miners can wear summer clothes in blizzard weather without fear of catching cold, for colds are unknown among salt workers. Breweries and tanneries and printing ink factories bar out consumption. Turpentine works and ropewalks bar out rheumatism. Copper mines bar out typhoid."

When Chloroform Was New.

Here is a curious little story about Sir James Simpson, the man who introduced the use of chloroform into surgery, and a peril which he escaped, as recorded by Lyon Playfair. Simpson when busy with his researches into the subject of anaesthetics called one day on Playfair and asked if he had anything new likely to produce anaesthesia. Playfair had just prepared a liquid which seemed worthy of trial. Simpson, who knew no fear, prepared instantly to test it on himself. This Playfair refused to allow until it had first been tried on rabbits. Two were procured and placed under the effects of the anaesthetic. Next day Simpson proposed to try it on himself. "We might as well see how the rabbits have fared," said Playfair. They found both the animals dead.

Character in Medicine

In medicine, as in every sphere of human action, it is character that tells. Every prescription that Dr. A. W. Chase gave to his fellowmen is full of character, full of the honest, sterling character, which made the grand old doctor respected, admired and loved by all who knew him. The integrity of Dr. Chase is shown in every one of his famous family medicines.

PUBLISH THE ROLLS

The assessment rolls should by all means be published this year. The outley will not be more than $500, and it will be money well expended. To say that the city cannot afford to publish the rolls is a flimsy excuse, and there is not the slightest justification for this plea. There is a widespread feeling in favor of the issuing of the rolls in printed form and Ald. Johnston, the father of the proposal should keep up the agitation. The rolls have never been printed in Peterborough, and it is high time that a move was made in this direction. This does not mean that the assessors have not done their work faithfully and conscientiously. The majority of ratepayers have a strong desire to know what property is valued at in different parts of the city. The advances in prices have been rapid, certain sections have been built up quickly, the terms of the new assessment act have gone into effect and many other reasons exist as to why the rolls should be published. It would allay any feeling of distrust or uneasiness and show each citizen just where he stands in comparison with his neighbor. The rolls are published in other cities and why not in Peterborough?

It is hoped that the council on Monday night, when the final consideration for the estimates comes up, will change their decision on this question and agree to the proposal to have the assessment rolls issued in some convenient and handy form.

A SACRIFICE OF LIFE

The Hochelaga school horror, in which seventeen little ones lost their lives has made the whole Dominion think and many questions are asked. Why should not all school buildings be provided with proper fire escapes? All kindergarten and junior departments should certainly be located on the ground floor. Why should children, scarcely able to toddle, be placed on the top flat of any building as was the case in Montreal? It is said that if fire escapes had been provided, every life that was sacrificed would have been saved, and many Montreal homes would not to-day have been plunged in deep grief over the loss of their babes.

The practical demonstration given at the Central school, Peterborough, yesterday afternoon of the efficiency of the fire drill when the entire building, accommodating 400 or 500 pupils, was cleared in ninety seconds, is all right, but it does not go far enough. The Supervision committee should see that fire escapes are provided for every school. It would be a guarantee that the Hochelaga calamity would not be repeated here. That holocaust should teach a lesson to all Boards of Education in Canada. Great is their responsibility and no blame should ever be attached to them in the future with this experience to profit by. The fire drills should not only be practised frequently, but all school edifices should have proper fire escapes. The heating apparatus should be closely innspected and no inflammable material allowed to accumulate near the furnace of stoves. The kindergarten and junior forms should all be located on the ground floor. There should be no neglect of any kind. Now is the time for action—not a month or six months hence. Precaution, foresight, care and vigilance, must be exercised. Human life cannot be lightly treated and a great weight rests upon those in authority to discharge their public duties in a manner that will leave no possible loop hole or oversight.

THE GROWING TIME

This is certainly the growing period in Canada's history and no more contented or prosperous people than the Canadians can be found any where on the civilized globe. We hear much about the wonders and possibilities of the great west, but what about our own province! Old Ontario is by no means being left behind in the race. Every feature of her splendid advancement is distinctly recognized. You do not have to go searching for evidences of expansion. They are visible on all sides. A provincial surplus of over $1,000,000 is the record of two years under the able and progressive administration of the Whitney Government. The provincial coffers are well filled and the liabilities are diminishing. The total estimated receipts for 1907 are $7,612,287.28.

Col Matheson, the provincial treasurer, was able to tell a happy story to the province this week. He had unassailable facts at his back to give effect to his utterances and the budget speech was received with every evidence of satisfaction. The treasurer presented the usually dry details of finance in attractive form and told of the development along all lines. It was a tale of prosperity and good government, of an earnest desire to provide adequately for the needs of all departments, and to keep the province to the forefront in agriculture, education, dairying, mining and commercial activity. The Opposition had little to offer by way of criticism. They realize that the province is now at the flood tide of prosperity and when everything is going along satisfactorily and smoothly there is little room or inclination for fault finding or complaint. The Whitney Government pledged themselves to give the electors clean, honest and efficient administration and, during their two years tenure of office that promise has been implemented. The results speak abundantly for themselves. It requires neither defence nor argument to substantiate what has been brought about.

PEN POINTS

Wonder where the daily railway wreck will be to-day.

March was in a weeping mood today and shed copious tears—a sort of Thaw trial.

How do you like the Ontario surplus. Even the opposition can offer no serious criticism.

If you want to have a long lease of life do not ride on railway trains would seem sensible advice just about now.

March came in like a lamb and according to tradition will go out like a raging, devouring, rampageous lion. So look out.

No one should travel without an accident policy and the railway company should hand one out with every ticket it sells, says an exchange.

Who is going to succeed Senator Gowan, of Barrie? If some Peterborough gentleman is Gowan to get an appointment in the Upper Chamber, now is the time.

The reason for the Government's selecting Trenton and not Port Hope for the Lake Ontario terminus of the Trent Valley Canal is that the Port Hope route would cost more than that to Trenton, as the depth of water provided for would be six feet or eight feet six inches. The engineers also think Trenton the best terminus so far as navigation is concerned. This latter should be a satisfactory reason so far as the country is concerned. Port Hope may wonder, though, if it would have availed if its people had given Mr. Aylesworth a majority when he sought their suffrages for Parliament some two years ago.—Montreal Gazette.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. A few weeks' use of this treatment will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

Alterations to City Hall Will be Made in the Spring

When Fire Brigade Moves Out the Hall Will be Fitted Up as Offices for City Engineer and Staff and Tax Collector—Suggestions Made for Other Improvements.

Every person, who has any money and who is interested in the growth and development of the city will invest their money in buildings this year. In addition to the numerous public buildings going up, many private residences will be erected. The price of lumber has gone up and the cost of labor in nearly every branch has gone up. Nevertheless there will be more houses built this year than there were last year.

The city itself will do its share Through the Board of Education, $81,000 will be spent on the Collegiate Institute, $25,000 in remodelling the Nort Ward School, besides the several thousand dollars usually spent in repairs and alterations. Then there is also the prospect of spending $20,000 or $25,000 on a new market building and dairy show building, and the remodelling of the West Ward school.

In addition to this several hundred dollars will be spent, probably thousands before it is done, on the present city hall building. The fire department vacate their quarters in a short time, leaving a large available room. It is understood that it is the intention to immediately remodel that part of the building. The idea is to tear out the floors and partition in the fire hall, and remove all traces of the stables and barnyard, and the same applies to the second floor, where the firemen have their sleeping rooms and lounging quarters.

The ground floor is to be converted into offices. For a long time it has been felt that all the civic offices should be together. The tax collector's office certainly should be downstairs. The majority of those who pay taxes are women and many of them are old and feeble and they feel the effort of climbing the stairs. As a matter of fact, all the ladies strongly protest against the upstairs office. This is one which will be down in the new part. The city engineer with the plumbing inspector and street commissioner will also have a suite of offices, the sanitary inspector will have a small room, all by himself, and several other offices will be provided.

The second floor has already been sought after by lodges as their headquarters and there will be no trouble in renting that space. With very little money, those rooms could be turned into ideal lodge rooms and they are very centrally located. The top flat is now used by the 57th band and that organization will want to keep their quarters for a couple of years yet, until the armory is completed. Then they will move up there, and they city will have a lot more room for lodges or offices.

While the city hall is undergoing repairs, it would be well for the council to put a wider and longer stairway leading up to the council chamber. The present entracne is a disgrace. It makes one feel as if he were going into a gambling den or some other den which the law does not permit to exist. Add two or three feet to the doorway and stairs and put in a new attractive door and then refurnish, repaint and paper the council chamber, and make the place look as creditable as the city outside does. The present building is in good condition and there is no need of a new city hall for many years. A few thousand dollars will convert the old place into handsome quarters, and be made creditable to the city.

Sich Headaches and Biliousness

ONLY COME WHEN THE LIVER GETS TORPID AND SLUGGISH—THE CURE IS

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Sickness is to some extent a habit. This is especially true of biliousness and constipation. So long as you neglect treatment or merely use medicines to move the bowels, the old trouble returns.

Isn't it worth while to follow up a treatment that has positively cured these ailments in thousands of cases!

Mrs. James Monteith, Saurin, Simcoe Co. Ont., writes; "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for liver complaint, biliousness, and terrible sick headaches, and have found that they are more effective than any treatment I ever tried. They cleanse the system thoroughly, remove the cause of pains and aches and make you feel fresh and strong again Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are also excellent for stomach troubles."

Such a host of ailments may be directly traced to disorders of the liver that the physician in the great majority of cases prescribes a treatment for the liver the very first thing so as to eliminate poisons from the system.

On the activity of the liver to a very large extent, depends the health of the body and the success of Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills must be attributed to their prompt, direct and specific action on the liver.

Healthful liver action ensures a good flow of bile to aid the functions of digestion and regulate the bowels, Biliousness, headache, intestinal indigestion, bodily pains, low spirits and ill-temper, as well as a score of other troublesome symptoms of slow, torpid liver action, soon disappear when Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are used.

The benefits obtained by this treatment are not only prompt, but also thorough and lasting. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

BERLIN PROS. BEAT TORONTO

"Bill" Crowley was to have gone to Toronto to play with the Queen City pros. against Berlin last night but owing to the non-arrival of the C.P.R. train he failed to make connections. He was to have gone up on the C.P.R. train at 5.10 but it was five hours late. His place on the pros. was filled by Bert Brown who was to have acted as referee. The Dutchmen won by eight goals to three, leading at half time by 3—0.

Some Notes on the Press Game

March made its entry like a lamb in which respect it bears a striking similarity to the Examiner hockey team.

Manager Craig, of the Examiner hockey team will wear pads in next Thursday night's game. This might excite curiosity were it not for the fact that he will play goal on that occasion.

It is said that the Brook street rink will be enlarged before next Thursday night's game. Bert Huston has difficulty in turning in the present regulation space and when on the ice sighs for the freedom and scope of the broad acres of Otonabee.

A gentleman in the north end of the city was digging in his cellar yesterday when he unearthed a large animal skeleton. At first he thought that he had made a valuable discovery and was prepared to consult a well known local natural historian but imagine his disgust when he discovered that the bone framework was nothing more or less than the remains of the Examiner Hockey team.

For ways that are dark and tricks that are shady the management of the Examiner hockey team have the heathen Chinee beaten a block, outclased completely in fact. They are shivering in their shoes at the prospect of being defeated that looms up before them and are taking desperate steps in their endeavors to prevent the threatened trouncing. A well known George street merchant informed the Review last night that he had been offered inducements to don an Examiner uniform if such a thing was ever known to exist. As the gentleman in question is over forty and had not skated for 16 years the calibre of the Grit outfit as hockeyists may be judged.

At half time Mr. M. J. Hutchinson, the Examiner soloist will render the following touching ballad with variations;

Everybody plays but me, sir.
I slide around the ice,
Feet above the belt line,
But never in the same place twice.
Huston can't play hockey,
Neither can our Jim Clarke.
Gee, if I only was able,
Somebody's shins I'd bark.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Admirer, East City; Will there be any way of distinguishing "Josh" Craig from the goal posts in the Review-Examiner game?

Answer; Yes. This is an easy one. The goal posts will be straight.

Maude, Rubidge street; Being an admirer of the Examiner, or rather of it's city editor, Mr. Hutchison I would like to know if there is any danger of him meeting his death in the coming game?

Answer; You should have known long ago that the aforesaid gentleman was a dead one. He is likely to meet all sorts of things during the game and the Review will not hold itself responsible for any damage to this person or feelings.

Fond Parent, My little girl aged 26, persists in crying over what she knows is going to happen the Examiner hockey team on Thursday night What can I do for her?

Answer; Take her to see the above hockey team at practice. Their burlesque antics would make a dog laugh.

Blue Eyes, Havelock; Is it true that B. T. Huston has received money for playing hockey?

Answer; Certainly not. The world is not altogether crazy yet.

HOCKEY

LAKEFIELD MEN TO THE FORE.

The Edmonton senior hockey team on which Reg. Blomfield, the Toronto Canoe Club paddler, and Argonaut hockeyist, and his brother Charlie, are playing, defeated the Reginas for the championship of Saskatchewan and Alberta. Speaking of Blomfield's work the Bulletin says: "Edmonton has an all-star cast for sure. R. Blomfield was the bright particular. He had a long string of rushes to his credit that only the superior checking of the losers prevented him tallying with."

COLLINGWOOD WON.

Barrie, March 1.—In a very fast game of hockey here to-night Collingwood beat Parry Sound 10 to 3. At half time the game stood 5 to 1. Frye, of Collingwood, played a fine game, usually ending in a score, while Campbell acted his best for Parry Sound. Mr. H. E. Wettlaufer, of Berlin, refereed the game well, but allowed much rough work.

Fire Escapes for the Schools

To Exercise Pupils in Drill Alone is Not Sufficient

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Since the shocking holocaust in a Montreal school where so many children, with their teacher, were burned to death, one of our schools has been practicing the children in the fire drill and announces that the school was emptied in ninety seconds. The Montreal school in question had in vogue the same fire drill, but how did it work? The despatch tells us that "the children were accustomed to fire drill regularly every week. On discovering the fire, the gong was at once rung, but for some reason not yet explained, did not sound." It is all very well to talk of emptying a school in ninety seconds when there is no danger or panic, but what guarantee have we that the same thing would not happen as in the case of the Montreal fire, were such a thing to happen here. Indeed there might be scores of other reasons why the fire drill would prove useless. It behooves our trustees at once to see to it that proper fire escapes are constructed if we are not to witness a repetition of such a disaster. By all means keep up the fire drill as well.

Yours, etc.,
PRECAUTION.

William Gray and Mayor Judd, of London, are mentioned as possible Conservative opponents to C. S. Hyman.

Development of Great Industry

How the C. G. E. Has Branched Out in all Departments.

In to-day's illustrated portion of the Toronto Globe there appears an interesting article by Augustus Bridle on "A day in the great factory of the Canadian General Electric Co." The write up deals especially with the works at Peterborough and fully traces their development from the opening in 1889 up to the present time. Illustrations of the works at the present time and in 1889 appear, which show a vast difference between the buildings of the present day and those seventeen years ago. Cuts of the interior of the different departments are also shown and a description of the work done in these departments.

The C.G.E. works in this city consist of the following buildings;—

The central machine shop is 527 feet by 100 feet, with galleries on all sides 25 feet wide; storage and shipping building and punch-press department, two stories high, 440 feet by 80 feet, with 40 foot gallery on one side of ground floor; lamp and wire department 272 feet by 50 feet, and two stories high; transformer building 125 feet by 50 feet; compound building, 144 feet by fifty ft.; brass foundry 13[illegible] feet by 42 feet; blacksmith shop 170 feet by 42 feet; carpenter shop and pattern department, 125 feet by 60 feet, two stories high; boiler house 54 feet by 58 feet; electric sub-station 52 feet by 38 feet; carbon building 150 feet by 75 feet, three stories high; porcelain department 150 feet by 100 feet, two stories high; storage shed 204 feet by 26 feet; paint shop 122 feet by 20 feet; new buildings are in course of erection, including new transformer building, 303 feet by 80 feet, with gallery on one side 45 feet wide.

A similar article is also given by the same writer on "A day in the Canada Foundry Co." Toronto, the allied industry of the Canadian General Electric Works.

Some Examples of Public Ownership

Convincing Figures From Certain Centres in Great Britain

The Y.M.C.A. Debating Club met on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock. Mr. W. Maclaren, second vice-president was in the chair.

The programme for the evening was a paper on "The Extension of Municipal Control," by Mr. Wilfrid Shiner, followed by discussion.

The reading of the paper was followed with great interest by the members of the club and afterwards a number took part in the discussion. The following figures are some of the statistics which were presented by Mr. Shiner in proof of his assertion. That the extension of municipal control in the cities of Great Britain had contributed largely to an increase in the material comfort of the people and at the same time had relieved to some extent the burden of the rates.

The figures are for the year 1906, and the money paid over to the city treasurer as the balance of the profit on the undertaking after paying interest on capital borrowed, providing a sinking fund sufficient to repay all borrowed capital within the statutory limit.

The municipal council of Salford, England, own their gas works, tramways and electric lighting plant The money handed over to the city in relief of the rates was as follows: from the gas works, $96,000; electric lighting works, $38,500; tramways, $62,500; a total of $97,000, which in Canada would be equivalent to approximately 4 [illegible] mills on the dollar.

Stockport: Gas Works $59,000; Electric Lighting Plant, $9,600; Tramway, $12,000: a total of $80,600, or equivalent to a reduction in the rates of approximately 5 mills on the dollar.

Blackpool: Gas Works, $67,200; Electric Lighting Plant, $19,200; Tramways, $19,200; a total of $106,600, equivalent to a reduction of approximately 5 mills on the dollar.

Halifax: Gas Works, $40,608, Electric Lighting Plant, $24,200; Tramways $19,200, a total of $84,000, equivalent to a reduction in the rates of approximately 4 mills on the dollar.

In forty cities where the gas works were owned by the municipality the total profits handed over in relief of rates, was $1,900,000, an average of $47,500 per city.

In twenty-two cities, who owned and operated their tramway system, there was a total profit handed over in relief of the rates of $1,100,000 or an average of $50,000 per city.

In 22 cities who owned their electric lighting plant, the total profits handed over toward the relief of the rates was $363,000, or an average of $16,500 per city.

Altogether 65 cities owning one or more of their undertakings made profits, which went to the relief of the rates of $3,363,000, an average per city of $51,700.

After dealing with these statistics, the writer dealt with some of the objections which are advanced against any extension of municipal control. One common objection is that a body of men elected by the ratepayers for general purposes, are not competent to manage a complicated and technical undertaking. In reply to this the writer referred to the fact that the largest cities in England are generally the best governed, and that as yet the multitudinous duties of the councils had not resulted to any great extent in carelessness or lack of supervision. Referring to municipal debt, the writer pointed out that it was only debt when the borrowed money was invested in unremunerative undertakings, such as sidewalks sewers, etc., and that money invested in gas works or electric lighting plants was not municipal debt, but municipal capital, for which the council should show practically full value in the form of buildings, machinery, etc.

After the reading of the paper and the discussion, Mr. Hodgson, the critic to the club gave a short criticism.

WILL MEET TO-NIGHT

Gathering of Englishmen and Their Friends at Young Conservative Club Rooms.

A meeting of the newly arrived Englishmen and their friends has been called for this (Saturday) evening at 8 o'clock in the Young Conservative Club rooms, to protest against certain articles which have been permitted to find their way into the columns of a contemporary. These articles are, it is claimed, sent home to the Old Country, and have an undesirable effect in so far as encouraging immigration is concerned, conveying the impression that Englishmen who are invited to come to Canada are treated here with discourtesy and disrespect.

Otonabee Power Company Has Withdrawn its Offer

To Supply City With 500 Electric Horse Power at $15 --Council Put too Stringent Conditions in the Agreement and Lost the Opportunity to Get Coates Co. Power.

Peterborough has lost an opportunity to secure 500 electrical horse power at $15 per h. p. per year. The Otonabee Power Company made the offer to the city council and the council endeavored to put terms in the agreement which the company claim they could not possibly grant and get their money out of it. The Otonabee Power Company, like any other concern, is in business to make money. It does not want to make all the money, as its past record will show, but it is not developing electric power for the mere purpose of investing money.

The company wished to develop No 4 dam with No. 5 dam and before this could be done a lease for No. 4 dam had to be secured from the government. The company desired to secure the lease as cheaply as possible so as to give power to the consumer as cheaply as possible. The city council, therefore, was made the offer, which is now withdrawn. Had the two parties interested been able to agree the company could have secured the lease for a much less price than they will now pay for it.

The city council, on the other hand, is bound to supply the Coates Co. with 500 electric horse power at $15 per h. p. The Otonabee Power Company offered to supply that power, but the council asked for too many concessions and lost the opportunity.

It is unfortunate for the city that an understanding was not reached, and the council did not act in the best interests of the city in allowing the offer to slip out of their hands. The public will regret that things have taken such a turn.

There is one important feature which the council evidently overlooked and that is that the company did not ask the city to give anything towards securing the lease. The only thing the city was asked to do was to pass the resolution requesting the government to grant the lease at the tendered price. Had this been accomplished the city was to get the 500 horse power at the cheap rate. As matters stand now the city will have to pay more than $15 and the amount in excess than $15 and the amount in excess will be a constant debt for twenty-five years, the length of the Coates contract.

The Otonabee Power Co. wrote to the city clerk as follows, and the letter will be read to the council tonight;

Peterborough, March 4th, 1907.
S. R. Armstrong, Esq.,
City Clerk,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir; We have carefully perused the resolution passed by the City Council at their meeting held on the 25th ult.

Our object in suggesting to the Council to endorse and support our application to the Government for lease of Dam No. 4 was to enable our Company to obtain such lease on such favorable terms that the Company could afford to supply the citizens of Peterborough and new industries with power and light at the lowest possible cost.

We regret to state that the concessions which the council desire to have made in favor of new industries are so excessive that it would be necessary for our Company to make a general advance in the price of electric power and light to everyone of our present consumers in Peterborough, in order to comply with its demands and in order to give a fair return to our shareholders on their investment.

We prefer to stand by the customers we have and see that they are fairly treated rather than give at their expense more favorable terms to strangers. Moreover, the terms imposed by the Council are so onerous that it would not pay this Company to accept a lease rent free accompanied by a very substantial bonus per annum. It is needless to say that we do not desire assistance from the Council to obtain a lease at any such sacrifice to our Company and its customers.

Hence we desire to withdraw our application and offer, but in doing so we beg to state that should we obtain a lease on terms we are prepared to accept, we shall be glad at any time to co-operate with the Council in assisting them to attract industries to Peterborough by offering our surplus power on fair and reasonable terms.

Best concert of the season will be that of the Rebekah Lodge, to be given in Oddfellows Hall, to-morrow evening. Admission 25c.

Consults A Physician

But does NOT Tell Him All.

Few women confide fully in a physician. They simply will not tell him all. That's why many doctors fail to cure female diseases.

Every woman dreads the ordeal of the physician's consulting room. A sensitive, refined woman shrinks from the searching questions and the physical examination.

It is not so in writing to Mrs. Pinkham. Thousands of women owe their present health and happiness (yes, and their good looks, too) to the fact that they have told all their physical troubles to Mrs. Pinkham and followed her advice and been cured of female diseases.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cures more women every year than any other medicine in the world. If you are in doubt about your case, write in perfect confidence to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. You will receive in reply a personal letter of advice free. Mrs. Pinkham is daughter-in-law of Lydia Pinkham, and for twenty-five years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered intensely with suppressed periods and pain every month for years, and could get no relief from physicians' prescriptions or other medicine. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and did so, and in a very short time the flow was regular, natural and without pain.

I am, indeed, a grateful, happy woman for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

ELLEN WALBY, Wellington Hotel, Ottawa, Ont.

Mrs. Hayes also profited by Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Sometime ago I wrote you describing my symptoms (fibroid tumor) and asked your advice. You replied and I followed all your directions carefully and to-day am a well woman.

Another Steamer Was Wrecked; The Best Boat on Pacific Coast

Thrilling Work in Saving the Lives of Passengers and Crew.

One Sailor Drowned—Vessel Had 100 Passengers On Board—Struck On Humboldt Bar During Heavy Gale—Heroic Attempts to Fasten Life Line—Boats Were Swamped and Capsized—Captain Last to Leave.

Eureka, Cal., March 4.—The steamer Corona (Captain Boyd), the best boat in the Pacific Coast Steamship Co.'s services between Eureka and San Francisco, lies straddling the north jetty on Humboldt Bay, a hopeless wreck.

With nearly 100 passengers aboard, the vessel struck on Saturday as Captain Boyd was attempting, in the teeth of a stinging wind and terrific bar flood, to drive her into port.

Women were hysterical and men were in panic, but reassuring words from the crew finally brought calm.

Assembled On Deck.

Then the passengers assembled on the hurricane deck, where they remained until the rescue work was undertaken a few hours later.

Soon after the ship struck a boat in charge of Quartermaster Gunn was lowered. It contained three of the crew and three steerage passengers. This boat capsized at once in the boiling surf, and Sailor Herrickson was drowned. Gunn and the others reached shore.

A second boat in charge of Second Officer N. V. Johann, was put off. Badly battered and leaking, this boat reached shore.

Tried to Carry a Line.

Then T. E. Sothern, night saloon watchman, formerly a marine in the United States navy, stripped to the waist and attempted to carry a line ashore. The line parted before he had gone far. Sothern was picked up by live savers.

Several attempts were made to shoot a line aboard, but each time the line fell short.

Finally Capt. Hennig of the life-savers reached the side of the Corona and picked up the line. Several unsuccessful attempts were made to work the life buoy, but it was not until near dark that Capt. Hennig and his men worked effectively. At that time the ship's boats had begun working, and at dusk Capt. Boyd, the last to leave the ship, stepped ashore.

The passengers were brought to Eureka. Nearly all had been drenched, and some were suffering greatly from the cold, exposure and nervous shock, but all will recover.

San Francisco, March 4.—The steamer Roanoke, the first boat to reach the steamer Corona when the latter was wrecked at the entrance to Eureka harbor, Saturday, arrived yesterday. Captain Dunham blames the United States lighthouse board for the wreck. There have been four steamers wrecked on the Humboldt Reef during the year—The Newsboy, Corinthian, Sequoia and Corona—and Captain Dunham declares that all might have been prevented if the lighthouse board had had the channel properly buoyed.

Dakota Ashore at Tokio.

Yokohama, March 4.—The Great Northern steamship Dakota went ashore in the Bay of Tokio last night. All the passengers are safe, and the agents are hopeful of saving her.

STEAMERS IN ICE.

P. E. I. Ferries Are Caught and Have Narrow Escape.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., March 4.—The winter steamer Stanley, bound to Prince Edward Island, stuck in the ice one mile from Pictou Island and had a narrow escape from destruction yesterday. The running ice almost laid her on her beam ends, breaking all the rails on the port side. So serious was the situation that the captain landed forty passengers, including the Abegweit hockey team and Jere McAuliffe Comedy Co., on Pictou Island. Early in the day fourteen passengers, mostly sturdy lumbermen, walked to the island shore, fifteen miles distant, over heavy ice, arriving almost exhausted. The Minto also stuck in the heavy ice near the Stanley. Both are out a week and are likely to remain for several days yet. In the meantime communication will be kept up by small boats hauled by hand between the capes.

ATTACKED BY WOLVES.

Two Men Have Narrow Escape From Pack of Hungry Animals.

Watson, Sask., March 4.—While engaged in erecting a dwelling north of Winner, two men, by name Bailey and Bannister, were attacked by three wolves. The leader sprang at Bailey's throat, but he encountered an upper cut that sent the animal back, while Bannister ran for his rifle. The latter would not work but was used effectively as a club. Bailey defending himself in like manner with a bit of wood. At last an opportunity was had to change cartridges and Bannister succeeded in shooting one of the brutes, and the others turned tail. If they had attacked with the leader it would have gone hard with the men.

To Decorate Prince.

London, March 4.—King Edward has bestowed on Prince Henry of the Netherlands, the Prince Consort, the Grand Cross of the Bath, in recognition of his gallantry at the time of the wreck of the British steamship Berlin on the Hook of Holland, where the Prince directed the work of rescue on Feb. 23.

Fred Piper was sentenced at London to three years in Kingston for theft.

DR. ORONHYATEKHA DEAD.

Famous Founder of the Order of Foresters Passes Away At Savannah.

Savannah, Ga., March 4.—Hon. Dr. Oronhyatekha of Toronto died at the Desoto Hotel, in this city, at 5.20 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

His death was due to heart failure, from which, it was stated, he had been a sufferer for about ten years.

His body will be sent immediately to Toronto for burial, leaving here early to-day.

At the bedside of Dr. Oronhyatekha at the time of his death were his private secretary, W. W. Dunlop of Toronto, and A. E. Stevenson of Port Huron, Mich., assistant general manager of the Independent Order of Foresters, of which Dr. Oronhyatekha was supreme chief ranger.

DR. ORONHYATEKHA.

Dr. Oronhyatekha's son, Dr. Ackland Oronhyatekha of Toronto, who had been notified of his father's critical condition, has started south from Toronto. He will probably meet the remains en route.

Dr. Oronhyatekha arrived in Savannah in the latter part of January, coming in the hope that his health would be benefited. He seemed to rally at times, and recently gave out an interview, in which he expressed the belief that the climate would prove beneficial.

Dr. Oronhyatekha is survived by his son and daughter, Mrs. Percy Johnson of Deseronto, and it is probable that his remains will be interred in that place by the side of those of his wife, who died several years ago.

While in Savannah, Dr. Oronhyatekha received the very best medical attention. It was not until Thursday that his condition became serious. He was reported to be dying Friday, so that the end Saturday afternoon was not unexpected.

Engines Rolled Down Embankment Into a Ditch.

Four Men Killed Outright—Two Others Not Likely to Recover—Twenty Soldiers Also Injured—Special Train Ran Into Regular—Governor Woodruff of Connecticut Has Narrow Escape.

Waterbury, Conn., March 4.—With an impact of sufficient force to crush the ponderous locomotives together like paper, twist and bend them and topple them from the track down an embankment and into a ditch beside the track, two passenger trains, a regular and a special, met in a head-on collision early on Saturday on the Nagatuck division of the New York Newhaven and Hartford Railroad at Platt's Mills, about a mile and a half below this city, resulting in the death of four men and serious, if not fatal, injury to two more. A score of others are more or less seriously hurt. The dead were the crews of the engines.

Govenor Was On Board.

The regular was the midnight train, which is due here at 12.39, but which was behind time. The special was made up of an engine and one coach in which was a party of about 65 members of Company X, Second Regiment, C. N. G., known as the Grays, and Governor Woodruff and members of his staff.

When the engines crashed together and in their embrace rolled down the embankment they carried down to death with them their crews. Three of the dead, the two engineers, and one fireman, were taken from the wreckage, their bodies torn, bruised, and blackened by the fire from the wreck, while the body of the other fireman was, at last reports, still under the mass of twisted iron.

Tenders Hurled Backwards.

The tenders of the locomotives did not leave the rails but were hurled backwards and into the coaches behind them. In the case of the special the coach was badly wrecked and the occupants almost all of them received some hurt. The baggage car of the regular was telescoped.

The dead are: Wm. Fisher of New Haven, Wm. Norton of Waterbury, Charles Carpenter, and G. Erickson of New Haven.

ENGINEER RAN AWAY.

Blamed by Coroner's Jury and Warrant For His Arrest Issued.

New Haven, Conn., March 4.—A coroner's jury returned a preliminary finding Saturday to the effect that William E. Fisher, engineer of the special train that was wrecked at Waterbury, disobeyed orders, thereby causing the death of three persons, the probable fatal injury of two National Guardsmen, and the injury of twenty other persons.

No trace of Fisher's body was found in the wreckage, and the supposition is that he jumped and fled. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.

RAIL WAS LONG CRACKED.

Scrutiny of Broken Rail Shows Rust In the Break.

Guelph, March 4.—A thorough investigation into the cause of the wreck on the G. T. R. near here will be made by the Government. Mr. Ed. C. Lalonde of Ottawa, accompanied by Mr. A. Bougault, has arrived to get all the information that is to be had from every source available. Mr. Lalonde made an inspection of the broken rail at the Police Court, in company with Chief Randall and Coroner Dr. Robinson. The small piece of the rail was weighed at the market scales, and the condition of the broken steel and the pounded ends was carefully inspected. The condition of the raw steel where the break occurred, shows that the break did not go clear through at the one time, for in places the steel is covered with rust, while in others it is bright. But, although a portion of the break looks fresh, the pounded condition of the broken ends seems to indicate that the rail was broken clear through some time before the train was derailed.

BODY PUT ON TRACK.

Ernest Ironside Met Death Mysteriously Near Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, March 4.—Peculiar wounds on the body of Ernest Ironside, who was supposed to have been killed by a snow-plough near MacKenzie on the C. P. R., and the finding of a blood-stained knife and signs of a struggle, have led Coroner Laurie to hold an inquest, which will be continued to-day.

The theory is that Ironside was beaten and stabbed, and that his body then was placed on the tracks to make death appear accidental. His clothes were torn and cuts on his arms indicate that he tried to ward off blows.

Officers Elected.

St. Catharines, March 4.—The annual meeting of the Conservative Association of Lincoln and Niagara was held here on Saturday, when the following officers were elected: President, David Allen, Grimsby; vice-president James A. Keyes, St. Catharines; secretary, H. O'Loughlin, St. Catharines; treasurer, M. Y. Kating, St. Catharines.

Poison In the Salts.

Kingston, March 4.—Recently a farmer of this district purchased some supposed epsom salts from a local drug firm. After taking a dose he became violently ill. Analysis revealed particles of white vitrol or zinc sulphate. The farmer threatens legal action against the druggist.

Transvaal Cabinet.

Pretoria, Transvaal, March 4.—Edward Solomon, president of the Nationalists, has joined the Cabinet as Minister of Public Works. Gen. Smuts becomes Colonial Secretary and Minister of Mines, and DeVilliers takes the portfolio of Minister of Justice.

SWEPT BY REFORMERS.

In London County Council Elections Municipal Party Gain 43 Seats.

London, March 4.—The returns at a late hour of the county council elections, which exceeded in bitterness the parliamentary contest of 1906, indicate that the Municipal Reformers have gained 43 seats and the Progressives and the Labor party one each.

The Socialistic or Labor party played an unprecedented part, fighting both the Progressives and the Municipal Reformers.

The Municipal Reformers have claimed that the defeat of the Progressives would be a serious blow to the Liberal Government.

The outgoing council consisted of 83 Progressives, 34 Municipal Reformers and one independent.

WOMEN TO HAVE VOTES.

British Premier Will Support Measure Extending Franchise to Women.

London, March 4.—Premier Campbell-Bannerman, who up to the present time has refused to receive a deputation of the women suffragists, has now written a letter in which he promises support "with much pleasure" the bill presented by W. H. Dickinson, M. P., to give the suffrage to women.

Rode In Pullman Cars.

Toronto, March 4.—When the Church Army immigrants boarded the G. T. R. train to Aylmer yesterday, there was not room for the 50 men in the day coaches; so a number of them shouldered their big tin boxes and stumped into the Pullman.

Piling their bundles and luggage into the corner seats, they chose the most comfortable sections, and refused to be put out. They claimed that when a man has a ticket he has a right to a seat, no matter what car it is in. They rode to Hamilton in the Pullman.

Vagrant Dies In Street.

Kingston, March 4.—W. Fannon, a vagrant, was found dead in the street yesterday morning. He was aged 60 years.

W. Gibson, Co., building, occupied on the ground floor by the G. W. Gibson Co., tailoring and gent's furnishings store, and G. H. Harrison's insurance office, and upstairs by Mrs. Hayden's dressmaking and millinery establishment and the N. B. Telephone Exchange; the Dent building, occupied by Mrs. Camben and the Dent bakery downstairs, and the Dent dwelling upstairs.

The buildings are a total loss, but much of the stock was saved. The loss is estimated at $25,000, of which $15,000 is covered by insurance.

The town is now without telephones.

Murder and Suicide.

Newcastle, Pa., March 4.—Geo. Cachrick shot Nicholas Majon through the heart here yesterday and then fired a bullet through his own body. Cachrick probably will die. The shooting occurred in a boarding-house.

CHAPTER I.

IN the year of grace 1774 a climbing sun glowed above his majesty's colony of Virginia. It drank the opal mists of the marshes, flecked the fields into shadow haunted cloth of gold and so unrolled over the old "middle plantation," where a round century before Bacon and his men had taken the oath against England, a drowsing, yellow mid-May afternoon.

Two quickened rivers, like silver girdles unclasped, wound through the lowland, from where phantom-far lay the shadows of pines against the color washed line of sky, sharp edged and black, in gigantic pointed fronds. The rivers rolled broadly to the sea, holding between them a green valley sweet with the warm perfumes of leaf and flower, and this valley folded to its heart Williamsburg, the gay little capital.

The teal and mallard that winged over from York to James looked down thereon and saw a single broad thoroughfare, shaded by poplars and mulberries, with William and Mary college at one end and the new capitol at the other. Straggling streets of wide porched houses bordered with gardens debouched upon this, and spreading away in all directions, like gathered ribbons, by league long plantation and through broken forest, went tawny, twisting roads.

Along one of these roads, by clumps of rustling laurel, came a great coach with green body and brown cloth, bearing the arms of the Tillotsons of Gladden Hall. A black body servant rode behind it a-horseback.

The coach, which rolled thumping and swinging ponderously where the way was rugged, pleasantly and lightly where the road was smooth, held a matron and a slender girl. The latter was of that age when nature paints with her richest brush. Her hair was a wave of russet lights, with shadows of warmer brown. Her face, rose stained, was the texture of a rose. Her mouth, below serious eyes of blended blue, gave a touch of willfulness. If there was intentness on the brow, so was there languor in the lips, red, half ripe, the upper short and curved to smile. She was all raptures—all sapphire and rose gold against the dark cushion.

Both as they rode were silent, looking out through either wide window upon the warm, scent steeped glimpses of the way. All along were waving reaches of wheat, where the poppy flung its wrinkled splash of red, or acres of young growing tobacco wherein sweating slaves toiled listlessly, their songs woven with the undertone of the sluggish stream, slashed by reviling oaths and whip crackings of a bearish overseer. At the dusty edges of the road thistle and wild honeysuckle scrambled for their breath, and cowslips went spinning yellow ribbons. It was a slumberous land swathed in a tremulous haze of heat and a wash of sun.

"Anne," said the matron at length, withdrawing her gaze from the window.

"Yes, Aunt Mildred."

"Do you intend to treat that boy badly?"

The girl was silent, gazing across the fields, watching the birds' slender flashings in the olive hollows.

"You haven't answered my question."

"What question?"

"Do you intend to treat that boy badly?"

"What boy?" inquired Anne, with a sweetness that boded other things.

"Francis Byrd."

"I intend to treat him as I always have—no better, nor worse."

"The world has changed since my time," reflected Mrs. Tillotson. "Maids deemed themselves lucky to have one gallant and wasted small time in wedding. Last winter I thought it had been Captain Jarrat. Now he is left for Molly Byrd to make eyes at. The way that woman acts! So I suppose it will be with Francis."

"Let them cease arranging things for me, then!" cried Anne. "I will not be put up and bargained for. I will be the subject of no family councils. I will wed when and whom I please."

Her aunt looked a bit startled at the outburst.

"Of course, of course," she assented mildly. "But you don't please. You're eighteen—two years older than I was when I married your uncle. Francis Byrd of Westover is the pick of them all."

"He is a mere boy." Anne's tone held a growing impatience.

"He is not too young," went on Mrs. Tillotson, "to take stock of all you say. But remember, dear, that he is to wear the royal colors now. 'Tis all well enough for you and me to be open Whigs. We don't have to do any oath taking, and they don't hang us. But king's men cannot be so free of tongue."

Anne turned upon her.

"I know the rest of it!" she cried. "Francis is spending time at Alberti's rooms—my fault. Francis is making a friend of Patrick Henry—my fault! Francis has a mind of his own, hasn't he? If he chooses so, well and good. Aunt Mildred, there will be a day when any Virginian will be proud to be a friend of Patrick Henry!"

The lady shook her head not unkindly. "Your mother over again, Anne," she said. "Loyal and true. Ah, me!"

She was silent, but Anne knew of what she was thinking. After a time [illegible] head over and touched the [illegible] "Keep your friendships, child, [illegible] you like them," she said. "I have naught against Mr. Henry. I like him, and the colonel values him most highly. Only—Byrd is a good lad; too good to be hurt."

"Here is the shop," Anne said presently as the coach stopped before the sign of a mercer. "I shall drive awhile and return for you in an hour. Won't you take John the Baptist with you and buy that turban for Mammy Evaline? What color did she want, John the Baptist?" she called to her body servant.

The lank, loose jointed, strapping figure of solemn countenance who sat a sorrel behind the coach, spurring alongside the window, broke out in wide smiles.

"Mammy want er maz'reen blue, Mis' Anne. Dat whut I hearn her say."

"Now, don't go over the hour," Mrs. Tillotson reminded as her niece bowled away, and she sighed as she looked after her.

The coach had entered Williamsburg from the north and now turned into Duke of Gloucester street, where stood an embowered mansion, the town house of the Byrds of Westover. Here at the gate fluttered two girls, who waved hands and called eagerly to the solitary occupant.

"Anne, Anne!" they cried as the coachman drew up at the horse block. "Come and tell us what you are to wear to the ball tomorrow."

"I don't know, Betsy," replied Anne, jumping down.

"Pshaw!" rallied Mistress Byrd. "Just as if we believed that, when you know you will be looked at more than the new arrived Lady Dunmore!"

Anne kissed the younger one—Paulina Cabell, slight, olive eyed, a pretty, pouting slip of a girl, wriggling to be grown up. "Your eyes are red, sweetheart," said she.

"I have been reading 'Lady Julia Mandeville,'" Paulina complained. "I never cried so in my life reading a novel. The tale is beautiful, but the ending is horrid!"

"You'll stay to supper, of course?" asked Betsy, linking an arm in Anne's. "Brother Frank will fetch you home."

"Not today."

"Mother will want to tell you about Frank's royal commission," pursued Betsy. "Come in for a moment. Do."

But the mistress of Westover was otherwise occupied. In fact, the girls entered the wide, cool hall to find a storm lowering.

Mrs. Byrd was not only young, pretty, a second wife and the possessor of a husband who was one of the governor's council, but she was conscious of all these things.

Her husband did not remember as often as did she that the gay colonel, his father, had been bosom friend of the learned Charles Boyle in England and a fellow of the Royal society. She reminded him frequently of the fact that the old wit had been a scholar and had left to Westover, where he lay under a monument in the garden, the best private library in the colonies, not even excepting that of Mr. John Bordley of Maryland, and a garret full of writings. His portrait hung there, a face as clear and as beautiful as a woman's, framed in a curling peruke of the time of Queen Anne.

As for the present master of Westover, much to her irritation, he cared little more for sight of St. James than for the heaped up manuscripts in the garret. He contented himself with sitting in the council chamber at Williamsburg and riding after foxes at Westover, when his gout left him.

Now Mrs. Byrd, consciously impressive, leaned against the white paneling in a posture which showed her plump figure to advantage.

"'Tis high time," she was saying, settling the yellow point de venise at her throat, "that Francis be spoken to about it. (Come in, Anne.)"

The colonel, bowing as gallantly to Anne as his gouty leg propped on a chair would permit, shifted his powdered wig in some discomfort.

"Frank will get no harm from Patrick Henry," he said. He is too sensible."

"Mayhap you call it no harm, sir," persisted Mrs. Byrd, "to see your son—you, a member of the council—hobbing with that shiftless wag. Sooth, then, I do! The malt bugs of the tavern are his betters. (No, don't go, Anne.) Francis is daft about him, sir. And the boy's royal commission just come. Oh, 'tis too bad!"

Colonel Byrd straightened his ruffles carefully.

"You go to the ball, of course, Anne?" he asked.

But his wife was not to be shut off.

"Small preferment," the lady went on, "will Francis get from Lord Dunmore if he continues. The governor keeps himself informed. Every one knows that Patrick Henry is the very front of all these rebel doings. (Yes, you need give me no look, Anne. 'Tis the word I meant to use. Rebel doings! Rebel doings!) And for my son—a Willing—to"— "Zounds! Your son is a Byrd, ma'am!" This from the colonel.

"For my son to associate with a low country demagogue, half the time dressed in buckskins like that shabby burgess from Louisa county you brought to dinner last week, and to go to his crazy meetings at the Raleigh. I thought his stay abroad would have weaned Frank of that. That and the commission. But, no! He comes home talking the gibberish of that mealy mouthed Charles Fox that he learned in his dreadful London club. I look yet to see him put off his king's uniform and disgrace us all."

"Pshaw!" said Colonel Byrd, nevertheless uneasily. "Frank's all right. The young blade will take to the army like a duck to water. Zooks! There is no harm in the Apollo room. Jefferson is steady enough, and he is ever there."

"Tom Jefferson!" ejaculated the lady. "Think you he is much better? A freethinker! He and Henry are pitch and toss. La! A squeak of a fiddle, and both of them will dance. Jefferson used to be gay enough with it at Governor Fauquier's musickings. Everybody knows he spends half his time when he is in Williamsburg at the rooms of that papist actor Alberti, and so does Henry. I marvel if Francis does not know him too."

The colonel sighed. If the truth must be told, the same uneasiness was in his soul. But, being masculine, he did not admit it to his wife.

"I'll lay a crown you'll dance with Master Henry tomorrow night, Anne," volunteered Betsy wickedly.

Anne was looking through the large window, sashed with crystal glass, and there were little blue sparks snapping in her eyes. She made no reply, but under her skirt edge her red slipper, like a burnished tongue, went tapping the polished floor.

"I should think, Anne," remarked Mrs. Byrd, with acidity, toying with a rose jar from which the Duke of Cumberland had once plucked a bud, "that you would have more regard for your bringing up. I never had to be reminded of mine."

Mrs. Byrd never looked younger or more handsome than when remembering this. In her soul the soothing and ever present consciousness of being born a Willing of Philadelphia was embalmed like a fly in amber. If she could have had her way she would have had the master of Westover dining at 4, like the Cadwaladers and Shippens and the rest of the Church of England set there.

"A Tillotson," she continued raptly, "dancing at the burgesses' ball with the husband of a tavern girl!"

Anne turned, her eyes glowing the color of burning brandy.

"And why not?" she cried. "Why not? Mr. Henry is a burgess of Virginia!"

"Aye, a burgess—from the woods! A lick dish for the country votes!"

"Molly!" Her husband's tone was gathering remonstrance.

"He is a gentleman!" Anne flared, with wrath dark eyes. "A courteous, honorable gentleman! And he has more in his head than any four of them together."

"Highty tighty!" exclaimed Mrs. Byrd. "More rebellion, you mean! I should think so!"

Looking, Betsy felt a strange wonder. She did not always understand the other. "Why like you Master Henry as you do, Anne?" she asked curiously.

"Because," cried Anne hotly, "he is a man—a man—not a gallant! He has something more to do than the wits of the Raleigh tavern or the Jemmy Jessamys of the assemblies. He knows no fine speeches. He spends no hours twirling a lovelock nor feather biting over dolorous sonnets, nor petting his ruffles, nor dicing in the Apollo room. Oh, I grow sick of the macaronis and their silken compliments and dress swords, all as nice as nanny hens. And the verses they write in the Gazette! 'Tis mawkish! What do they do? What do they know? The breed of a bird. The latest fashion of pinchbeck shoe buckles from Annapolis."

Mrs. Byrd sniffed.

"A pity he married the tavern keeper's daughter!" she said. "You might have had him and his buckskin breeches!"

Betsy laughed at this. "Bless me!" she sighed. "What a blow that had been for Captain Jarrat!" Then, repenting, she ran after Anne as she swept grandly out and threw an arm around her neck.

Anne kissed the younger one.

"Don't be angry, dear," she said. "An you are, I shall feel all to blame!"

Paulina was still at the gate. "Haste!" she called under her breath. "Here comes Mr. Jefferson."

"Lack!" said Betsy. "Speak of the dev—I mean—there is Mr. Henry with him."

"I marvel Mr. Jefferson likes him!" quoth Anne, a gentle sarcasm ruffling her anger.

Mistress Byrd did not note the tone. "Aye," she responded, "so do I. He has a tongue, though. Father says it has made more trouble for the colony than all the exclusion acts put together. He looks a very uncouth creature," she added. "See that moth eaten hunting cap and those horrid leather clothes!" This was in a low tone, for the approaching men were come within earshot and were even then doffing headgear to them.

The two were vastly dissimilar. One, the younger, was clad in dark velvet, wore lace and a sword. His fine face was pale with the look of the scholar. The other, walking by his side, with saddlebags over his arm thrust through the bridle of a lean roan nag, wore hunting dress, with a small cap. He looked to be turned thirty-five. His face was keen and sallow, with Roman profile, and his eyes were deep set under overhanging brows. For the rest he moved his spare body awkwardly, slouchily, with a rawboned stoop of shoulders, as one at happier ease in the woods than the street. Both bowed gravely as they came up, the face of the horseman searching the group and brightening suddenly with a flash of smile at sight of Anne.

He passed on, but the younger turned back, nothing loath for a moment of chat.

"Gossiping of the ball tomorrow, I'll swear!" he laughed. "Are the furbelows all chose?"

"Tell us, Mr. Jefferson," cried Betsy Byrd. "Have you seen the new come beauties? They say Lady Dunmore is lovelier than her daughters."

"I have been away for a fortnight," he answered, "and cannot say. I would I could say 'Aye,'" he added humorously; "'twould relieve much anxiety."

"'Tis the dreadful uncertainness of you masculine lovers," Anne countered archly, "that keeps us poor maids in terror."

"'Tis said," put in Paulina, "that his excellency will publish a new code for the palace etiquette. Think of it! Just like a real court! There is to be a chamberlain, and all gentlemen are to unbonnet before the portraits of the king and queen!"

The young man looked dark. "Would he kept to his court etiquette!" he exclaimed. "See you the green yonder?"

All turned their gaze toward the lower end of the street where sat the new two storied capitol, with its tall cupola and clock. Generally there were to be seen burgesses, singly or in couples, passing in or out. Now the space before it was covered with knots of men, talking, gesticulating, walking from group to group. One could almost imagine an accompanying hum, like the sound of a distant bee swarm. As they gazed the knots separated and moved slowly toward one of the side doors.

"They enter the left," said Anne. "'Tis not the usual sitting of the house, then. Has the governor summoned them to the council chamber? And for what?"

"For — what?" repeated Jefferson wrathfully. "For the resolves, printed today in the Gazette, appointing a day of prayer and fasting because of the shutting of the port of Boston. His excellency—I had like to have said 'his majesty'—is in a fine rage. The Virginians are in no mood to bear more flouting. One can scarce say what will befall if he dissolve them!"

There was well nigh a wail at this. "Oh," moaned Mistress Byrd, "then there will be no ball?"

Jefferson smiled, but a spot of tempestuous red burned Anne's cheek as she flung up her head. "If the governor clapped all save ten of Virginia's burgesses into the prison yonder," she said slowly, "the ten would give his lady the ball of welcome. They are Virginians."

"See!" said Jefferson. "He is coming."

At the end of the broad reach which spitted Duke of Gloucester street midway, nearly opposite them, stood the palace, brick red, greened with creepers, lifting its tall lantern above gardens laid in the Italian fashion in shapes of stars and horseshoes. Now its front sprang suddenly into action. A great chariot, very splendid, with vice regal trappings of gilt and leather, whirled up at the steps, and two figures entered it. The vermilion liveried outriders broke into gallop, and the team of six milk white horses wound through the many acred grounds sown with silver grass and studded with mulberry and catalpa trunks, like gnarled, one legged dancers, and swept at a smart trot into Duke of Gloucester street.

His excellency Lord Dunmore, red and thick necked, with Captain Foy, his cold featured aid, beside him, rode to the capitol.

The splendid chariot brought from London to awe the Virginians went at speed along a way suddenly grown a-bustle. The unwonted summons to the council chamber had gone abroad, and Williamsburg, full to the brim with rich planters from the valleys of the Potomac, the Rappahannock and the James, now at their town houses with their families for court season, were come forth to wait and to speculate upon the royal governor's wrath. The road was filling with coaches and fours bearing the nabobs and their dames and with sparkish young gentlemen passing on dancing nags. The pave of old Bruton church, wherein of a Sunday sat his excellency in his pew under the canopy, was bright with maids in satin and lace, with beaus showing silken calves and powdered wigs and with students in collegiate gabardines of a sobriety by no means ever fitting their habits.

Stout old Governor Botetourt had got many a cheer in the old days as he rode by in his fine chariot. He was popular, and departed this life in the odor of liking, to receive a statue on William and Mary common. But for the new governor, John Murray, earl of Dunmore, there had come to be many a wry look. He had learned Toryism under Lord Bute, as had the king, and nature had made him a Scotch barbarian to begin with. Diplomacy to him meant the heavy hand, and charity was as far off as religion.

He rode along this afternoon scowling, abrupt and imperious, as usual, and now with an extra set to his heavy lantern jaw that boded no good.

Beaming adoration was in the low courtesy that Mistress Byrd swept him as he was whirled past with unseeing eyes, and at the sight Anne's mouth took on little lines of impatience.

"Gossiping of the ball tomorrow, I'll swear!"

"I shall drive to the queen," she said, springing into the seat. "The capitol, Rashleigh!" she cried to the coachman, and waved goodby to the group.

"Anne grows a worse Whig every day!" pouted Mistress Byrd in a pet. "La, I think the governor is monstrous fine. I am going to wear my celestial blue satin tomorrow night and a white satin petticoat!"

Many a gallant bowed low from the pave as the beauty of Williamsburg went by.

"'Slife!" protested young Brooke to Francis Byrd, as he petted his lace 'neath the leaden bust of Sir Walter at the Raleigh's entrance. "She would dazzle St. James. Even the Du Barry was a stick to her! By the Lord, they should send her to London!" He prided himself upon his foreign travel.

Byrd flushed angrily. It was not to his pleasure to hear her name coupled with such. Nor did it sit well upon the tongue of this dissipated fop. He choked the word that rose to his lips, however, and turned away, looking longingly after the girl that rode by.

The chariot bearing Anne wheeled near the debtors' prison, abreast of the new capitol, whose wide wings spread out like a great letter H. Scarcely had it pulled up when the west door opened harshly and poured forth again the lowering burgesses.

They came out under the sparse trees, through which gleamed the sky steely blue as sword blades, quietly and in orderly groups, but with brows knit, fingers clinched and smoldering anger in their faces.

In the groups one might have seen many conditions. There was a sprinkling of homespun and buckskin, men from the shadow of the Blue Ridge and from the great district of West Augusta stretching far to the Mississippi, and with these rich planters from the tidewater and bay counties and the big rivers, clad in foreign fabrics, with ample wigs, swords and cocked hats or the conical head covering then coming to vogue in England. But save a few on whose faces sat a smirk of Tory smugness all wore the same deadly look of angered concern.

POLICE WERE UNREASONABLE

No Necessity for Ordering Merchants to Chop the ice on Saturday

The police were unreasonably officious Saturday morning when they notified all the merchants and business men that if they did not remove the ice from the sidewalks at once they would be prosecuted. In this city the police allow the snow to stay on the walk when it first falls until it is packed down and becomes ice. To start with that is a breach of the bylaw and a case of neglect of duty on the part of the police. Why it is allowed is not known.

To offset this breach of the law and to prevent the walks becoming sloppy, the police order the merchants to remove the ice as soon as the weather turns mild.

On Saturday morning someone thought it was going to thaw and the cops got busy and notified all the merchants and business men on the business street. The kick is the result of some person thinking again. There was no thaw Saturday and there was no reason whatever in ordering the ice removed, and the merchants were put to a great deal of inconvenience. At this particular season, the only very busy day of the week is Saturday and all the clerks are needed in the store.

The order caused a great deal of [illegible] were [illegible] and dodge flying ice, swinging axes, the long handles of ice choppers, and the various other weapons used by the merchants.

The most serious result of the unreasonableness of the police is that the sidewalks were in great danger of being damaged. To get the ice off the walks on Saturday required the use of axes and other tools, which, in the hands of in experienced persons, frequently chip and crack the pavement, and the repairs cost considerable.

All the merchants did not comply with the instructions from the police, but there will be no prosecutions The police will not go that far because the city itself is the greatest offender. The sidewalks in front of the city buildings are always among the last to be shovelled while the walks around the parks are seldom, if ever, seen from the first fall of snow until the water runs in the spring.

This state of affairs is very unfair to the merchants. If the police want to enforce the law to the letter they should start with the people who made it. If the council refuses to have the snow shovelled from in front of its property, the private citizen should certainly not be forced to keep his walk clean.

Electric Fire Alarm System

Conference To-day Between Bell Company and City.

Mr. F. G. Webber, sales agent for the Northern Electric Company, of Montreal, is in the city today. The Northern Electric people manufacture an electric telegraph fire alarm system which is handled by the Bell Telephone Company. The latter company and the city council are endeavoring to draw up an agreement whereby the Bell Company will install the new alarm system in the city. Negotiations have been on foot for some time and an effort is being made today to definitely settle it before the council meets tonight. The trouble is the Bell Company put in a tender and included many conditions. The fire, water and light committee did not know anything about fire alarm systems but the members would not grant the privileges the company asked. The committee drew up an agreement and forwarded it to the company and when it got back there were several changes. The meeting today is to try and overcome these differences. If no settlement is reached, negotiations with the Bell Company will likely be dropped.

New C. P. R. Grain Route Will Join Main Line at Havelock

Plans Show That the Line Will Pass Through Lakefield and Warsaw—Addition to Round House and Many New Sidings are Contemplated at Havelock.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, March 4.—The C. P. R. have recently got out blue prints with the plan of the various extensions which they intend to make in the near future. Among them is a plan of the Georgian Bay grain route from Victoria Harbor, showing the line to pass through Lakefield, Warsaw, and join the main road at Havelock.

The C.P.R. are also figuring on adding another building to the round house here and of making new sidings.

This will be a great boon for Havelock, as it is sure to be a terminal point, and will cause several more men and their families to locate in Havelock.

Will Not Accept Any Donations; Evangelists Provide Everything

Peculiar Religious Services in Old Havelock School House—Speakers Pay for the Wood, Light and Rent and Supply All the Books and Bibles.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, March 4.—Two men, an Englishman and a Scotchman, whose names are unknown, are holding religious meetings at the school house at old Havelock every evening.

One peculiarity of their meetings is that they take up no collection nor will they accept any donations. They work during the day at whatever they can get and preach in the evenings, supplying their own lights and fire. They also have their own hymn books and Bibles. They are first-class speakers and singers. They do not go by any special religious name, nor yet does their religion differ from the ordinary preaching and laboring simply for the good of God. Where they come from, or who they are no one knows. Their lectures, which are full of truth and power, are attended by large numbers, who are much impressed by the soundness and earnestness of their views.

Englishmen Enter Strong Protest Against Articles in Examiner

Vigorous Resolution Passed at Largely Attended Meeting on Saturday Night--Disaproval of Contemptuous Sentiments Which Have Been Given Space in That Journal.

On Saturday evening a meeting [illegible] the large rooms of the Young Conservative Club

It consisted of Englishmen and their friends of all nationalities who had gathered together to protest against the action of the Examiner in allowing a letter to be published in its columns alleging that Englishmen were less worthy of being allowed to enter Canada than Chinamen, who were of some use, being at least able to wash shirts. The meeting was called to order shortly after eight o'clock by the chairman, who stated briefly the object of it He said that it was deplored by all true Canadians that such a slur should have been permitted circulation. Not only was it an insult to people who were invited to come here by the Government and the people at large ,but it was a direct blow to that British connection which we all cherish. At the present time many journals in England are alleging the very thing that the Examiner allowed space to namely the real hatred and contempt of Canadians for the English. These statements are forwarded to England and cause no end of ill-feeling and heartburnings. Not only that, but it is a poor return for the boundless hospitality always shown to Canadians in England. Apart from its far-reaching effect upon our relations with the mother country it helps to prejudice the chances of newly arrived immigrants in this country and is in every way to be deplored.

Mr Jas. Kendry, ex-M.P., was surprised that any journal should allow and apparently encourage this wanton vilification of English immigrants. The correspondent who was allowed to make the statement was allowed to repeat the insult in the succeeding issue of the Examinr and it must be supposed with the full connivance and knowledge of those in authority in the councils of that paper. The incident in question had proved a very serious one already. English people resident in Peterborough resented the criticism as distinctly unfriendly to a class of people who are making an earnest endeavor to improve their condition. It was no wonder that so many had declined to follow the flag, but had gone to the United States when contemptuous slanders by irresponsible people were allowed free and repeated circulation. He sympathized with the English immigrants [illegible] would [illegible] to remedy the [illegible] when newspapers like people, find that they have gone too far, they have grace enough to make an apology of some sort, disguised or undisguised, and he hoped that the Examiner would not allow the opportunity to pass.

Mr. J. G. M. Wilson was very sorry that the Examiner had allowed the letter space, as it did not represent Canadian feeling and was an offence against all Englishmen.

RESOLUTION CARRIED

Mr Kendry moved ,seconded by Mr Wilson, that this meeting of Englishmen and their friends, held under the auspices of the Young Conservative Club of Peterborough which had gladly offered its rooms for the purpose, put on record; 1.—Its strong disapproval of the action of the Examiner in encouraging a feeling of hostility on the part of Canadians towards English immigrants 2.—Its disapproval of the contemptuous sentiments given space to. 3.—Its very cordial welcome to all immigrants to Canada from whatever part of the British Isles, who may be assured that Canadians will give them a most hearty welcome

STRONG VIEWS EXPRESSED

Mr. Herbert Gray, an Englishman said he had come tonight be cause he felt it very discouraging to find that Canadians felt toward them as he had read in the letter mentioned, in the Examiner.

Mr Hensley and Mr. Alloway, who had also just landed in Canada from England, were also sorry to find contemptuous remarks made about them. They had thought that they were coming to a friendly country.

In putting the resolution, which was carried with loud applause, the chairman assured them that all, Conservatives and Liberals alike, extended to them a cordial and fraternal welcome. Very many prominent men of both parties had expressed their surprise and indignation at the insult offered to men from the Old Land. He trusted the Examiner would do something to repair the mischief already done, without delay. No man or woman from any part of the British Isles should be made to feel otherwise than most heartily welcome here.

An evening of English songs, speeches and readings, will be held on the evening of Thursday, March 13th in the club rooms, at which all those newly arrived from England are especially welcome. A large turnout of members of the club is also requested. Mr. Wm. Buller, treasurer of the club, will be asked to preside.

Quartette of Aspirants for Liberal Nomination in the East

Preliminary Canter Held at Norwood on Saturday—Messrs Finlay, Buck, Johnston and Stratton Are all Out After the Coveted Honor—Some Skilful Manipulation Going on.

Won and lost is how the Grits of East Peterborough fared at the annual meeting held in Norwood on Saturday afternoon. The convention was not the enthusiastic success hoped for. But as one of the big guns from the west said afterwards; "It was just a nice family gathering."

For the most part the meeting was for the Grits of Otonabee, Douro and other parts close to the west riding. The preparations were made and carried out, the meeting was called and held, and today there are a great many people in the eastern part of the riding and even in the town of Norwood, who are not aware that there was a meeting Nevertheless the convention of 1907 has passed into history and new officers are at the wheel and will guide the Grit machinery during the year.

The main object of the meeting was to decide on how the candidate for the Federal election was to be chosen. In the past the open voting system was in force and everyone had a vote, Grit or Tory, British subject or alien, and the report is that there were far too many of the alien class voting. The ambitious candidate frequently packed the meeting if he thought there would be any particular opposition to his candidature. This, however, worked against the would-be candidate from a distance who could not conveniently surround himself with his friends.

A movement was started some time ago to adopt the system of choosing a candidate by delegates elected by each polling sub-division. The delegates would all have to be armed with credentials entitling them to a vote. This does away with the packing and was decidedly in favor of the manipulators, who understand handling men, as it is much easier to secure majority of delegates than to pull a majority out of the camp of the enemy. The men from this end of the riding were hot foot after the new system. They won their fight and a resolution adopting it was passed at the last meeting to the delight of the men from the west.

On Saturday another resolution was passed fixing the number of delegates from each polling sub-division at five. This is where the men from the west lost. It will be hard to get five men from enough divisions to carry a candidate through the convention. The men in the west wanted only a couple of delegates, but the men in the east stood out for a larger representation and they carried the day. As a result the political manipulators will have a big proposition to go up against.

The annual meeting was held in the town hall and at one o'clock all the old war horses gathered around the box stoves and waited for the chairman to get busy. There were about twenty present when order was called, but before the gathering adjourned about seventy-five had found their way in. Among those present were four aspirants for the nomination, viz., Mr. John Finlay, the present member; Mr. J. R. Stratton, ex-M.P.P.; Mr Wm. Buck, ex-Warden and Mr. Thos Johnston,ex-Warden. All four gentlemen made good use of their time and shook hands with all the old stand-bys present. But the question of who would be honored was not mentioned.

The feeling around the town is that Mr. Finlay will run again, although the other men are working hard to get him out. Mr J R Stratton, who is very anxious to run, will not be at all acceptable to the Reformers of Norwood nor to the Reformers of the district around there He will have to get his vote from Douro and other townships near the west riding and even there he will be opposed. He is not at all popular in the east. Mr. Wm. Buck would make a formidable candidate. He is well known and well liked. He has been in the public eye for several years and no one has anything to say against him. Then ex-Warden Johnston has many friends and he has a great ambition for public life. Before Mr. Stratton gets the nomination he will have to do a whole lot of hustling and get out with the boys again. Even though [illegible] carry the Grit banner [illegible] is a pronounced feeling in and around Norwood that he would go down to defeat on election day, and it will be the Grits who defeat him.

The only outside speakers at the meeting were Mr. Hugh Guthrie, M.P. of Guelph; Mr. R. R. Hall, M. P. for West Peterborough, and Mr. J. R Stratton. Mr. Guthrie was, of course, the chief speaker. and he gave the audience a splendid talk on the questions now before the House.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Getting down to business the convention elected their officers for the year, as follows;

President, John Lang.

Vice Presidents, Warden McNulty, Jos. Johnson, Charles R. D. Booth, David Campbell, Dennis Moloney, Ed Hawthorne, Wm. Stewart, Wm Mathewson, Wm. Hull, Thos Drain, Secretary, Dr. Robertson.

Treasurer, Mr. Buck.

Mr Wm. Anderson, of the Ontario Legislature ,and Mr. Finlay, representative for the Commons, addressed the members of the Association, giving a good and acceptable account of their stewardship.

Short addresses were also given by Messrs. R. R. Hall, M.P., J. R. Stratton, Kerr, Johnson, and Wm. Buck.

Mr. Harry Long Will Go West

Leaves To-day on a Several Months Trip to Alberta and British Columbia

Mr. Harry Long leaves today on an extended western trip. He will go to Toronto for a couple of days, leaving on Thursday for Winnipeg, where he will spend a couple of days. He will ten proceed to Edmonton, Alta., where he will visit his brother Chas. Long for a month or two. Mr. Chas. Long lives about ten miles outside of Strathcona, a suburb of Edmonton. The brothers have not met for many years and Mr. Harry Long will enjoy farm life on the prairies as well as get acquainted with the western town life. In the summer he will move on to British Columbia, and also visit Seattle and Portland.

Mr. Long, who was booked by Mr. W. McIlroy, may be away for six or nine months. At the present time he has no intention of going into business in the northwest, although he would not say that he would not if he saw a snap. The main object of the trip is one of pleasure.

Englishman Asks Where Would England be To-day if It Were Not for Her Sons

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I am an Englishman. I feel that the Examiner newspaper has been pretty severe on us Englishmen for our mistakes and shortcomings. We are not all failures, or else where would Old England be to-day? Our faults ,like other people's, are our weakness, but we have done some good, haven't we? I think the Examiner was pretty hard on us, but I know Canadians are not perfect.

When I came to this country I followed the Old Flag. "God bless her." I will be at the Conservative Club English night all right.

Thanking you,
Mr. Editor,

Sloth Makes Man Cling to His Sins

It is the Very Handmaid of Vice, Says Mr. Langfeldt.

At Evensong last night, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt preached a forceful sermon in St. Luke's church, on [illegible] "Go thy way for this time when I have a convenient season, I will call for Thee." He referred to the solemn fact that men and women were living under the influence of, a strong delusion, trusting in it, destroyed at last by it,—namely, that in matters which concern the soul "there is no hurry." Unbelief, hypocrisy, drunkenness, dishonesty, and vice are slaying their thousands but indifference and sloth their tens of thousands! Sloth the cause, conviction without repentance, the immediate, and eternal death the final effect. If the ministers of Christ had but a gospel of sloth to preach, how popular and fashionable a gospel it would be.

But the gospel of Jesus Christ is one that requires something the very opposite of sloth from its followers, and so one can understand that with certain people to whom the idea of self-restraint is altogether distasteful, Lent was never a popular institution.

It is sloth which persuades people that Sunday being a day of rest, they may legitimately lie in bed all morning, dream away all the afternoon as they sit looking out of the window with a novel lying on their knees, and end the day with a mild dose of religion, by going to church in the evening.

It is sloth that provides you with a dozen excuses for neglecting some duty.

It is sloth which makes one who has leisure to take up some good work for God and live a life of usefulness say: "Some one else will do it much better than I should. It really is not at all in my line."

But sloth is more than all this—it is the exact opposite to self-control—and it is just self-indulgence in every form.

Sloth says to a man: Indulge your taste and your passions to the full; no matter how selfish, how cruel, those passions may be, And [illegible] is the very [illegible] vice.

Sloth makes a man cling to his sins, and sloth is urging men that there is no hurry.

I suppose that if the apostle himself could stand before a congregation again tonight, and reason, "of righteousness, temperance and judgment to come," some would say, "Go thy way for this time." The business man would say, "After this one venture: I must wait and see how it will turn out." The pleasure-loving people, "Let me just once more take my pleasure in my own way." The gambler, "Just this once, and I will never touch cards or dice again." The drunkard, "Only one more drink and I will sober up." And all the while their sloth is driving them to perdition, and they know it not.

In closing his remarks the rector urged his people to shake off the foul spirit of sloth this Lent. It is a sin which is weakening the character, destroying manhood and womanhood. "Keep under your body; bring it into subjection," less these words come to apply to you. "Because I have called and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded, I will also laugh at your calamity, I will mock when your fear cometh."

Bold Burglary at Havelock; Hardware Store Ransacked

About $100 Worth of Goods Taken From Mr. F. C. McMaster's Place of Business—Hole Cut in Back Door and Rifles, Razors, Knives, Ammunition and Other Things Taken.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, March 2.—Mr. F. C. McMaster's hardware store was entered Friday night last and a number of things taken. An entrance was made at the back door by cutting a hole in the door so that they could slip their hand in and slide back the bolt which held the door. A good rifle and revolver were taken, as well as knives, razors, pipes and ammunition. The cash register was robbed of the twenty-three cents it contained, but the safe was not tampered with. The burglary must have been committed after midnight as Mr. McMaster was in the store at twelve o'clock. No clue as to who it was by has yet been found, but it is thought that the burglary was committed by someone who knew the run of the place. Mr. McMaster estimates his loss at about $100.

Card Fiends Use the Market Building for Sunday Games

Policeman Meharry Visited the Place Yesterday and Found Big Fire in the Stove and a Table and Chairs Arranged for a Nice Little Game.

Policeman Meharry made an interesting discovery yesterday afternoon which will result in more attention being paid to the city's market building. The policeman was passing the building on George-st., [illegible] that something was doing upstairs. He immediately went up, and, although the four young men who had been there were gone, there was every evidence of a pleasant little game having been in progress. In one of the big box stoves was a roaring fire, and the stove and pipes appeared to have been red hot almost to the roof. A table was pulled up close to the stove and chairs were arranged as for a game of checkers, ping pong or poker. P. C. Meharry immediately shut off the fire and left the hall in a much safer condition than it was before his visit.

It is understood that a gang of young fellows, some of whom have on previous occasions been occupants of seats in the police court, have made the market hall their headquarters all winter. It is a nice large place with lots of light and [illegible] a fire can easily [illegible] the big box stove, and the [illegible] made very comfortable. The city is usually kind enough to keep a supply of wood on hand so that thus far there was no occasion to appeal to the charity board. Then, too the market hall belongs to the citizens and any band of young fellows could not be blamed very much for making use of it on Sunday afternoons when no one is around. Although the policeman did not get the young fellows at least two of them are known and it is not likely the club will meet next Sunday. P. C Meharry deserves great credit for breaking up this aggregation of Sabbath breakers.

Father Lynch was greatly beloved by his people, and also by all classes of the community. He will be succeeded at Port Hope by Rev. Father O'Sullivan, who has been curate at Lindsay. The vacancy at Lindsay caused by the departure of Rev. Father O'Sullivan, will be filled by Rev. Father Collins, who for the past eight months has been curate at Port Hope. Father Collins is in the city to-day on his way to Lindsay. Father O'Sullivan is now in charge at Port Hope.

Dairy Meetings in Peterborough

Bright Prospects of High Prices For Cheese During 1907.

The dairying industry in this district, promises at the present time to be more profitable and more extensive during 1907, than ever before. In this the dairy farmers should be greatly interested, and they would do well to prepare for a big year.

The combined meeting under the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association and the Farmer's Institute will be held in Peterborough on March 26th, and in Lindsay on March 27th, and every farmer in the two counties of Peterborough and Victoria are requested to make it a point to be present. It will be of great value to them in an educational and monetary manner.

Every Young Man Has Desire to Build

But He Should Take God into His Plans, Says Rev. Mr. Webb

In Murray street church, before a large congregation, Rev. J. R. Webb, the pastor, last night concluded a series of interesting and helpful sermons to young people. His subject was "Legitimate Ambitions," and he based his remarks on verses 28, 29 and 30 of the 14th chapter of St. Luke's gospel.

The speaker said the words were addressed to those followers of the Lord whose service was not real, and whose hearts were not open—those who had nothing definite in purpose regarding spiritual things, or who gave a half-hearted service. It is well to count the cost of the structure you are aiming to put up before beginning to build. The last penny for the top stone is in your hands, God says, if you have perfect sincerity. We had in the text a picture of legitimate ambition if you intend to build. Everyone intended to build. It was a beautiful ambition. The instinct to build was in all humanity from the cradle to the grave—the child who constructs with blocks, the boy who builds a snow fort, and the young man who erects a home. There was no young man present worthy of the name that had not a passion to build a home. God had implanted this desire in their soul. Men were stronger from the very fact that they aimed to do large things than if they had not aimed at all. It was legitimate to build things and to possess things. We should also build character as well, but into building we must put work and determination and discipline. Not only ambition but inspiration was required. "But," asked the speaker, "have you the same joy in building for eternity that you have in building a home?" Why are you not looking forward? If you are not experiencing the same pleasure with respect to the hereafter, as in building on earth, you should for answer be drawn to the Bible and the God of the Bible. You should begin to build in the proper sense. Each life building is completed when man has done everything in his power to complete it. Have you a skylight in your home, have you taken God into your plans, have you a family altar, and do you ask daily a benediction on your household? Are you pointing your children the way to Christ? Do not forget to take God into your plans, young man and young woman, and build for eternity.

Sunday School Anniversary Day

Impressive Sermons Delivered at Park St. Church

Large congregations gathered to celebrate the school anniversary of the Park street Baptist Church yesterday.

The sermon in the morning was by the Rev. A. H. Brace, on "A boy given away." The preacher said first there was culpable recklessness, and second the value of a boy in the transfer was sadly undergrated. The bestowal of children was regarded as a divine favor, and children withheld, felt to be a chastening from the Lord. Children must have tender and delicate handling. Do not sin against the child. They will develop in beauty and usefulness. The most neglected and needy are the nearest the Lord's heart. Mr. Brace recited the following lines,—

It's the loneliest house you ever saw,
This big grey house where I stay
I don't call it living at all, at all,
Since mother has gone away.
I tell you the [illegible] loneliest thing
In this great, big world of today,
Is a boy of ten, whose heart is broke
'Cause his mother has gone away.

It will be a glorious consummation when teachers and parents shall stand before the King and say, "Behold I and the children whom God hath given me." Master Wilton Tranter sang "I'll be a Sunbeam."

Mr. Thomas MacGillicuddy, of Toronto, preached at night, from the words, "Show me a Penny," enforcing the different lessons suggested by the coin. Holding up a ten cent piece he said: It was silver and valuable. The soul was of value; it bore an image of our king, our souls should be stamped with the divine image; a crown was on it, Jesus wore the crown of thorns that we might wear the crown of glory; its date, the year of our Lord, was a confession of Jesus in the face of infidelity; it was for circulation, therefore we must be about our Master's business; it had a good ring. Our lives should resound with honesty and truth. The speaker said he would give this ten cents away to any who would take it. A small boy came up and took it.

Salvation is a gift. Faith is the empty hand that takes a free Christ.

The Sunday school supper will be served on Thursday.

Health and Vitality for Old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly, the blood becomes thin and watery and the power of resistence is lessened. It is the old people above all others who require the new life and energy, which come with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it calms and quiets the nerves gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shrivelled arteries.

News Notes From Indian River

Heavy Shipments of Products From the Village—Building Operations

Indian River, March 4.—These are busy times at our lively station. Last week there were shipped from here two carloads of hardwood plank by Mr. Delaney of Dummer, for Toronto, and 2 car loads of elm by Mr. John Fitzgerald to Messrs. Finlay & Sons, of Norwood. One car load of live hogs was shipped by Messrs. Stabler and Devlin for the Matthews Co., Peterborough; two car loads of oats by our local grain buyer to Montreal and one car load of flour by the Warsaw Milling Co. for Quebec.

We expect a busy time this spring in building in this district. No less than three new houses, three new barns, and some minor improvements within a radius of two miles from the station. This is sure proof of good times among the farmers.

Mrs Wm. Collins died on Wednesday morning of last week and the funeral took place on Friday to St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro. The funeral was attended by a large circle of friends and neighbors. The deceased was of a very kindly disposition and was highly respected. Her husband died some years ago. A family of four sons and four daughters survive. They are all doing well and have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement.

Superstitions on Skin Diseases

Of all superstitions probably the most foolish is the idea that when a rash or sore is healed and cured by means of external applications it will "strike in" and do further harm. No reputable physician will give any countenance to such a notion. Skin diseases of every form, and especially eczema, salt rheum, scald head, etc., are promptly relieved, and certainly cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

MEETS TO-NIGHT

St. John's A.Y.P.A. meets this evening at eight sharp. Interesting papers will be given on "Church History" and also a short talk on the same subject by Rev. Canon Davidson. There will also be some musical numbers. Any interested will be welcome.

PROGRAMME FOR TEN DAYS

The programme for the Gigantic Sale Extension for the next ten days at the B. Y. Moyes store, is a bunch of bargains such as have never before been offered to a Peterborough shopping public, and include all new goods too, bought for the spring and summer trade. Now, take a little good, sound advice. Get busy, and join the crowds that are flocking to this store. Remember, these goods must be sold, and you might just as well get in on some of them as anybody else. "Enough said." B. Y. MOYES, 408 George street.

SAVE THAW FROM ASYLUM.

Counsel Decided to Combat to Last Ditch Jerome's Probable Course.

New York, March 4.—Every day of the Thaw trial apparently takes District Attorney Jerome so much nearer to the foundation he is trying to lay for a request for a commission in lunacy as the first step in an attempt to send the slayer of Stanford White to Mattewan.

Mr. Jerome is firmly convinced that Thaw's mental condition is the result of paranoia, and not of melancholia, as the defence has tried to show. In other words, he believes that Thaw's mental malady is of a character which precludes the possibility that he could have been insane on the night that he shot Stanford White and sane today.

It was determined Saturday night at a conference of defendant's counsel, held at the home of Delphin M. Delmas, to endeavor by all legal means to combat the supposed attempt of the district attorney to apply for a lunacy commission.

The lawyers were unanimous in the opinion that Harry K. Thaw's fate should be decided by the jury, and when their conclusion was reported to the wife and mother of the defendant they acquiesced in the decision to fight the case to the end.

SIX DAYS, SIXTEEN MILES.

Terrible Hardships Endured In Six-Hundred-Mile Western Trip.

Edmonton, Alta., March 4.—After a detour of nearly 600 miles over a trail blocked with snow, across rivers, and lakes, and through wooded sections through which they pushed their lonely way, Alexander Monkman, with his wife and family, reached Edmonton the other afternoon from the Grand Prairie County, west of the Peace River.

They left their ranch on New Year's day with two teams, and for the first five days were only able to make 16 miles. As they proceeded, the trail was much better. The snow was not so deep and the weather became milder. Game was plentiful on the journey, and food for the horses could be obtained at intervals. Despite the hard trip the entire party are in good health, and Mr. Monkman leaves in several days on the return journey. His wife and family will remain in the city for a few months.

GOT TWO REVOLVERS.

Wild West Scene Interrupted by Arrival of Mounted Police.

Saskatoon, Sask., March 4.—[illegible] ing himself probably a small battery of artillery, or a South American army on parade, Wm. Rodgers attempted to create a bit of diversion in the Western Hotel yesterday.

He was in the bar-room when he drew out a revolver loaded to the limit, and commenced moving it about in an uncomfortably dangerous manner. He pointed the gun at his own head, and incidentally spoke of shooting up a few people, among others, himself.

The weapon was taken away from Rodgers by some men standing around. The reckless man went out, and after a while returned with a second revolver, and this he handled in about the same way. This time the Mounted Police were telephoned to, and Rodgers was arrested after a hard struggle, for he is a big man. He was soon in the cells.

SICK WOMAN'S SUICIDE.

While Wearied Watcher Sleeps, She Leaps From Upper Window.

New York, March 4.—Fearful that she might never regain her broken health, Miss Mary Maroney, who came here from Norwich, N. Y., to enter a hospital for treatment, threw herself from a third storey window in her brother's home here early yesterday and was instantly killed.

Miss Maroney's condition was such that a watcher sat by her bedside all last night, as she tossed restlessly about. Soon after daybreak she became more quiet, however, and sank into what appeared to be a deep sleep.

The tired watcher, believing the patient would sleep for some time, went into an adjoining room to rest. An instant later Miss Maroney crept from her bed and jumped from the window.

Her life was crushed out when her body struck the sidewalk. She was 35 years old.

NEW YORK FRIGHTENED.

Dynamite Explosion Awakes Thousands and Shakes Skyscrapers.

New York, March 4.—A dynamite magazine blew up at the Pennsylvania Railroad's North River tunnel at Homestead, N.J., yesterday, injuring a score of employes; and breaking nearly every window in Homestead and at Union Hill.

The shock was felt in this city, it shaking the skyscrapers perceptibly. Thousands of persons were awakened from sleep and badly frightened.

Homestead is four miles west of Hoboken.

Vatican's Veiled Threat.

Rome, March 4.—Authorities of the Vatican deny with emphasis the charges contained in a semi-official statement issued in Paris yesterday, that Mgr. Montagnini, the expelled secretary of the papal nunciature, was active in trying to prevent the visit of King Alfonso of Spain to Paris.

Commenting on the Status of the conflict with France, they explained that the Vatican could retaliate readily for the action of the French Government in making public part of the documents sequestered at the time of the expulsion of Mgr. Montagnini.

It would be easy for the Vatican to publish documents exchanged before the rupture of the concordant, showing the anti-Italian and anti-British attitude of the French Government, as well as other documents dated subsequently, which tended to create embarrassment for the Holy See.

Rancher Arrested as Rustler.

Medicine Hat, March 4.—A wealthy rancher named Patterson has been arrested, charged with horse stealing and with being a member of a notorious band or border rustlers.

South Perth Liberals met at Mitchell on Friday. Thomas Ryan, of Dublin was elected President.

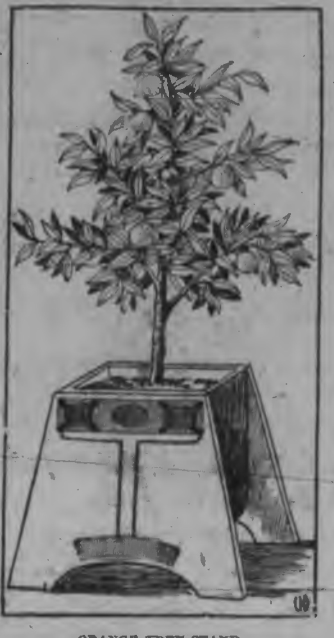
CHEAP PLANT STANDS

Amateur Carpenters Can Make Them With Little Trouble.

LESSONS FROM THE JAPANESE

In the Land of the Mikado a Special Flower Has a Special Pot—Some Practical Ideas For a Window Garden Stand.

The Japanese are exceedingly clever at arranging plants, and with them a special flower has a special pot, one not being seen without the other. The orange tree and its box illustrated are a combination of this kind, the form and color of the box being considered in conjunction with the tree. It can be quite easily made of half inch pine, and if its inside dimensions are eight and a half inches square an empty biscuit tin can be used as an inner receptacle to hold the soil. [illegible] be put together with small nails, these being driven below the surface of the wood and the holes filled with putty. The edges of the box will be improved by being slightly rounded, and the whole box must be sandpapered smooth previous to staining and decorating.



ORANGE TREE STAND.

A dead black stain is next applied, both inside and out, two coats being given to insure a good surface. The design must then be drawn in and painted with oil colors thinned with turpentine. The rectangular background of the blossoms and the curved space behind the leaves are to be deep peacock blue, the blossoms a rich purple and the leaves and stems olive green. Slight shading can be given to the blossoms and leaves with deeper tones of their respective colors.

A window garden which offers accommodation for eight or ten plants is desirable. Its construction should not be difficult for the amateur carpenter, especially if soft wood, such as pine, is used. The length will be governed by the window at which it is to be used and the width and height by the size of the flowerpots. The uprights should be an inch and a quarter square and should be chosen free from knots. The caps on the tops of these uprights are cut from inch material, beveled to fit the inch and a quarter material. Half inch wood will be sufficiently strong for the sides of the box, but for the bottom, the small shelves, brackets and crosspieces inch boards must be used. A zinc inner lining can be used to hold the soil, although a better would be to have a shallow zinc tray fitted to the bottom of the box and then use ordinary flowerpots to hold the plants. If the tops of the pots are hidden by a layer of green moss, the plants will show to much better advantage.

When the woodwork is completed, it must be sandpapered smooth and then stained and oiled. A soft moss green would look well with a dull polish given by means of repeated coats of oil rubbed in with a soft cloth. The slight design on the side should then be painted in with oil colors, thinned with turpentine, a dull pink being used for the flowers and a darker shade of green for the leaves and stems, the whole being outlined with vandyke brown.—Philadelphia North American.

Emigrants to Canada Cannot Find Sufficient Number of Berths.

London, March 4.—(C. A. P.)—The number of emigrants going to Canada is so enormous they have difficulty in obtaining berths on ships. The central unemployed body send 3,500 in March and April.

Gilbert Parker will draw Lloyd George's attention to the fact that any arrangement of Canada and Germany whereby the surtax is removed will, in the absence of reciprocal arrangement between the Dominion and Britain, diminish the preference Britain enjoys, one half. The King Weather Bound.

Dover, England, March 4.—King Edward will be compelled to postpone his departure for the continent today if there is no abatement in the great number of accidents in the English Channel.

There are so many calls for assistance that there are not enough tugs to go around. The last one at Dover was sent out last night to help the Red Star Liner Vanderland, which is ashore on Goodwin Sands.

Taking Canada's Wheat.

Ottawa, March 4.—P. B. McNamara, Canadian commercial agent in Manchester, writes that imports of wheat from Canada into the United Kingdom for the year ending Dec. 31, 1906, increased 40 per cent., as compared with the preceding year, and that Canada has now moved up to fourth place in the great wheat exporting countries of the world. The exports from Russia for the last year fell off nearly 40 per cent. Mr. McNamara says also that Alaska salmon is being sold in England under the label of British Columbia salmon, to the discredit of the latter.

CZAR TO BE SILENT.

Second Russian Parliament Won't Hear a Speech From the Throne.

St. Petersburg, March 4.—The Russian Parliament, the second under the constitution decreed under Emperor Nicholas, Oct. 3, will assemble in the Tauride Palace to-morrow.

The Douma will be called to order by one of the senior dignitaries of the empire, but there will be no speech from the throne.

When the officers of the Lower House have been elected, the Ministerial program, with the financial budget, will be introduced, after which the House will have an opportunity of working out its own existence.

The chief interest is centred in the budget and the question of a responsible Ministry.

The composition of the present Parliament is closely patterned upon that of the first body, but it lacks a number of interesting personalities who have been eliminated on account of the signing of the Viborg manifesto of July 22.

Assassinated by Six Men.

Reval, Russia, March 4.—Baron Budberg, ex-chief of the Esthonian nobility and a member of the Council of the Empire, was set upon by six unknown men, while driving near his country seat, yesterday, and killed.

Of two servants accompanying the baron, one was killed and the other was wounded. The pockets of the dead men were rifled by their assailants, who escaped.

James Barnum, of Haldimand township, is dead, aged 82.

THE GLOBE VS. THE EXAMINER

The Toronto Globe of February 28th contains some unvarnished references with respect to the report of the Royal Insurance commission, under such headings as "Very General Raking Raking Over," "Trafficing is Stocks," "Misleading Returns to the department," "That Home Life Deal. (of which Mr. J. R. Stratton is president' with its $10,000 discount." etc.

The leading Liberal organ adds ;

"The commissioners comment upon the relations of Mr. J. R. Stratton, Mr. Pattison and others to the affairs of the Home Life are unequivocal and not at all complimentary."

[illegible] the Home Life deals at considerable length with the bargain struck between Mr. J. R. Stratton, President of the Dominion Loan & Savings Company, which had acquired the People's Life debentures, and Mr. Pattison, Manager of the Home Life. The statements of Stratton, McCutcheon and Pattison with regard to the amalgamation of the People's Life and the Home Life are, in the opinion of the commissioners, not reconcilable, and entirely unsatisfactory. In reference to the reduction in the price of transfer ($90,00 named by Mr. Pattison) to $80,000 at the suggestion of Mr. Stratton, the commissioners say that, having regard to all the circumstances, they are compelled to conclude that what really took place between Stratton and Pattison was that the former demanded and the latter conceded a share, to the amount of $10,000 in moneys which were being paid to the latter and charged to the Home Life. "The agreement and all the surrounding circumstances," says the report, "further demonstrate that Pattison, the managing director, from the beginning to the end of the transaction, was actuated by the sole desire of personal gain and paid no heed whatever to the company's interest, and that the other officers and directors of the Home Life, particularly the President, (Mr. Stratton) became and were regardless of the interest of shareholders and policyholders, and corrupted by the desire to share in the 'good thing' which Pattison was supposed to be making, stepped down and surrendered the company to the management of the People's."

The report further says:—"The impairment of Home Life capital at the end of 1905, according to the company's annual return amounted to $86,200, and had the commission paid to the People's and McCutcheon been shown as liabilities, as they should have done, a real impairment of $207,000 would have been shown, leaving the capital at less than $10,000."

The Peterborough Examiner evidently does not agree with the Globe and the report of the commission. On Thursday last Mr. Stratton's organ offered the following explanation in an attempt to justify his conduct in connection with the negotiations leading to the amalgamation of the People's Life and the Home Life companies ;

"The report of the Insurance Commissioners has been placed upon the table of the House. In their findings, in a great many instances, the Commissioners have made assumptions and placed construction upon evidence that is practically contradictory to, and at variance with the evidence submitted. With regard to the investigation into the affairs of the Home Life Association, the finding of the Commission is at variance with the facts. The Board of Directors of the People's Life unanimously agreed to re-insure the business of that Company with the Home Life Association of Canada. When the re-insurance was being effected it was found that Mr. Pattison, the Managing Director, and Mr. Firstbrook, the President, had an irrevocable contract with the Home Life Association which had been in force for some seven years. The Directors of both companies believed it to be in the interest of the company which they represented, that this contract should be commuted. Mr. Stratton temporarily financed the commutation arrangements, the negotiations being carried on by the solicitors for the Home Life and People's Life.

Just before the completion of the commutation of the contract, when Mr. Stratton learned what the conditions actually were, he would not agree to the $90,000 payment being made, but sanctioned the payment of $80,000. Mr. Stratton had already provided for the payment of $90,000, by giving his own personal cheque for that amount, but when he finally consented to the payment of $80,000, the $10,000 was re-deposited to his own credit, that balance being absolutely his own money. Mr. Stratton made no profit, either directly or indirectly, out of the People's Life, out of the Home Life or out of the amalgamation. The credit of the Home Life was not pledged to secure the amount paid to Mr. Pattison for the commutation of the contract with that gentleman. The whole contract, from its inception until its completion, was before the shareholders and the policyholders of the Home Life Association at the last annual meeting, and very fully discussed and considered, and the arrangements made were unanimously ratified and confirmed as being in the best interests of both the Home Life Association and the People's Life, and Mr. Stratton was unanimously voted by the shareholders an honorarium for his services to the Home Life Association, and a resolution was passed thanking the Directors. No statement of the Commissioners nor of anybody else can change the facts—they speak for themselves.

PEN POINTS

[illegible] in the Review.

Has anybody seen the Examiner hockey team at practice? This spectacle is entitled to rank as the eighth wonder of the world.

The City Council meets this evening to strike the estimates for the year and Finance Minister Tovey will deliver his budget speech.

The city council expects to strike the rate to-night. If the rate is kept at 17 1-2 mills—the same as last year—the citizens will not be heavily hit.

We are going to get satisfaction out of the Examiner on Thursday night, and will so flabbergast the hockey septette of that journal that they will not be able to recall their names.

The light of the gospel had to suffice in several city churches last night. As one preacher expressed it, "The situation was decidedly awkward."

Many churches in Peterborough were in a sort of heathen darkness last night, while not a few church members could be seen groping for light.

Service for Men at Springville

Presbyterian Church Was Crowded to the Doors—Able Addresses

The services at the Springville Presbyterian church yesterday, were largely attended and proved to be most interesting and profitable. Rev. H. G. Livingstone of Barton Street Methodist Church, Hamilton, preached in the morning. His sermon was much enjoyed. He is an eloquent speaker, and delivered a profitable and inspiring address. He sang two solos, which were appreciated.

In the afternoon, Rev. Mr. Livingstone preached at Bethany where a large congregation gathered to hear him.

In the evening, the service was for men only. Rev. Dr. Marsh preached an instructive sermon on "The necessity of living a Christian life." This service was one of the most successful ever held in the church and was productive of much good. Rev. Mr Livingstone sang two solos at the evening service.

5000 LIVES SAVED YEARLY BY MODERN METHODS IN TREATING CONSUMPTION

In New York since 1881 there has been a reduction in the death rate from tuberculosis of 40 per cent.; that mean an annual saving of some 5,000 lives.

Before a German scientist discovered the germ of this disease, it was considered the visitation of an avenging Providence. Our fathers gave it up as hopeless. Modern methods of treatment, however, have done much toward eradicating the terrible disease.

A noted specialist, whose camp for consumptives in the Pine Woods of Maine has attracted great attention, because of the remarkable cures he has effected there, and whose methods have been endorsed by the highest authorities, says his treatment was very simple, consisting of open air exercise, deep breathing and nourishing food. Every four hours the patient given one teaspoonful of a mixture of the Pure Virgin Oil from the White Pine Trees, combined with Whisky and Glycerine, in the following proportions: One-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good Whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

This treatment strengthened the lungs and healed the bronchial tubes. He claims this formula will break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable. The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost, and can be easily mixed in your own home.

Inquiry at the Prescription department of one of our leading druggists elicited the information that Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up only in half-ounce vials for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), put up only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.,—plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), which are put out under similar name and style of package. Never accept these, as a substitute for the Pure Virgin Oil of Pine, as they will invariably produce nausea and never effect the desired result.

Horrible Explosion in Mine; Gas Ignited by Naked Lamp

Two Miners Killed and Thirty-One Others Seriously Injured.

Another Party of Thirty Thought to Have Been Entombed, Had Narrow Escape—Gas Was Ignited by Naked Lamp—Most of Injured Men Are Foreigners—Searching Parties Tour the Workings.

Scranton, Pa., March 4.—Fourteen men are near death in the Taylor Hospital and 12 others are suffering from slight burns through a terrific explosion of gas that swept through a portion of the Holden Mine of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Co., at North Taylor, Saturday.

Whether or not thirty other miners escaped was in doubt up to 10 o'clock Saturday night when Mine Inspector Williams felt safe in saying they were all out of the mine and alive.

Searching parties, who toured the affected part of the mine, returned with the report that they could find no men in the workings.

Caused by Naked Lamp.

The force of the explosion was supposedly caused by gas that had been accumulating all day, unnoticed, and which was ignited by a naked lamp.

Two Miners Killed.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 4.—Two men were killed and five badly burned by an explosion of gas in the Woodward Mine of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Co. at Kingston Saturday evening.

The injured are foreigners. They were seriously burned, but it is believed they will recover.

The mine is very gaseous, and the men worked with safety lamps.

It was at first reported that a large number of men were entombed in the mine, but this arose from the accident at the Holden Mine near Scranton.

Oil Explosion Burns Twelve.

New York, March 4.—Mrs. Benjamin P. O'Connell, 42 years of age, was probably fatally injured, her husband, aged 43, seriously injured, and several of their ten small children painfully injured, by an explosion of a can of kerosene oil at their home in Brooklyn last night. The explosion of the can caused a lamp to explode also. The mother, father and children received burns as they ran through the flames to the street.

Struck By Semaphore.

Toronto, March 4.—George Allan of Paris, Ont., is in Grace Hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull and severe scalp wounds and is not expected to recover, although he is still conscious.

Allan was found on Saturday afternoon in a car in the G.T.R. yards. He was in charge of a car of sheep being sent by Telfer Bros. of Paris to the Ottawa Live Stock Show.

The injured man was looking out of the door of the car and was struck by a semaphore arm or some other object. He is not able to tell just what struck him.

Slip Brings Death.

Hamilton, March 4.—A fatal accident occurred on Saturday at Park and York streets, the victim being Steve Lambert, an employe of the Hamilton Brewing Association.

Lambert was carrying a keg of beer into a store, when he slipped. The keg crushed in his chest. He was taken to the City Hospital, where he died about an hour later.

Brakeman Falls to Death.

London, March 4.—H. P. Williams, 24 years of age, employed on the G. T. R. as a brakeman, was killed yesterday by falling from his train near Hyde Park.

Several Churches Were in Darkness

Last night there was darkness in several city churches. A great scurrying around took place for candles, lamps and everything that would give forth luminous rays. The lights of the Otonabee Power Company were not doing business. In St. Paul's church, Murray street Baptist, All Saint's, St. Luke's, Mark street and the Salvation Army there was nothing but darkness, save the slight reflection of coal oil lamps. However, in each sacred edifice the service was proceeded with, and before eight o'clock the sanctuaries were brilliantly lighted.

At the power house of the Otonabee Company, which started up about 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon, a section of the "exciter" burnt out. Fortunately a duplicate was in stock and a new armature was installed. This operation took from five until nearly eight o'clock. Had the section burned out earlier in the afternoon, the necessary attention could have been given without in any way interfering with the lighting service in the evening, but mishaps do not occur in this world when you want them to, or just when they should.

Japan and its Evangelization

Special Missionary Sermons Preached at Charlotte St. Church

Two splendid missionary sermons were preached at Charlotte street Methodist church yesterday by Rev. D. Norman, a returned missionary from Japan. The occasion was the annual missionary anniversary and large congregations were present both morning and evening. Rev. Mr Norman has spent the past nine years in missionary work in Japan and is thoroughly conversant with conditions there and of the needs of the Japanese people. Having been in such close touch with the spiritual condition of the subjects of the Mikado and being an interesting speaker, his sermons or rather his story of Japan and its people were exceedingly interesting and brought home the necessity of fulfilling the command of the Master, to go into all lands and preach the gospel.

EVENING SERVICE.

At the evening service, Mr. Norman took for his text, part of the 10th verse of the 4th chapter of St. John's gospel: "If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, 'Give me to drink'; thou wouldst have asked of Him and He would have given thee living water." This quotation is from the story of the conversation between Jesus and the woman of Samaria, at the well, whom the Master had asked for a drink of water. The speaker said in opening that the question had often been raised why people of the western nations send missionaries to Japan, when the people of that country had shown their ability to take care of themselves. It had been pointed out in this connection that after the Japs had spent a few years, a very short time in a western country, they were able to go back to their own land and build railways, schools bridges, etc., and were able to hold their own with the westerners in what the world calls material progress. It had been affirmed that the Japs would themselves find the true religion, even if missionaries were not sent to them. This, said the speaker, was a false conception of the situation. The Japanese are not without a religion they have had their teachers who have taught them many wise things but they have never heard the message of God's love.

The Japanese religion does not reveal God the Father and the people are yet in spiritual darkness. The Japanese were a wonderful people; there was no denying this, but until Japan has been evangelized, until the people look to Christ as the one who can release them from sin, the country will not be as it should. There was a similarity between the text of the sermon and the conversion of many Japanese, who are now Christians. When they but know the gift of God, and have heard the message of the true gospel they are not slow to embrace it.

NO LIFE BEYOND.

The Japanese religion, said Mr. Norman, does not teach that there is another life beyond the grave. With the Japanese, death brings all to a close. It is the last chapter. They never expect to meet their loved ones again once they have passed out of this life. They express surprise when a Christian speaks of meeting loved ones again in the better world beyond. This was the reason for the indominitable courage of the Japanese soldiers, which has aroused the admiration of the world. Knowing nothing of the story of the Cross, they go to their deaths fearlessly, having no thought of the future. Death means to them the termination of the sorrows and trials of the world, nothing more.

DISTINCTIONS OF CASTE.

Rev. Mr. Norman then spoke, of the influence the introduction of the Christian religion had already had in Japan. It had broken down distinctions of caste. Thirty-five years ago there were many distinctions of caste. One class of people, known as serfs, lived in separate quarters by themselves. They had no civil rights, they could not attend the schools, and could be put to death to please the whims of the upper class. Now it was different. This barrier had been broken down by the introduction of the Christian religion, which taught that all men were on an equal footing and were brothers and sisters. Life and property were now as safe in Japan as in Ontario. The speaker gave several accounts of the conversion [illegible] Christianity once the message had been brought to them. Mr. Norman referred to the encouraging nature of the work of the Christian workers in Japan, and made an earnest appeals for funds to support the missionaries who were laboring in that country.

Special collections were taken up during the day on behalf of the missions and the response was most generous.

The hymns sung at the two services were of an appropriate nature. Solos were rendered at the evening service by Miss Belleghem and Miss Manning.

The Doctor Said Nervous Prostration

BUT AFTER WEEKS OF EFFORT HE COULD NOT HELP ME, AND I WAS CURED BY

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Sleeplessness, failure of appetite and digestion, and then nervous collapse. This is the story told in this letter. But there is also new hope for similar sufferers in the cure described.

Mrs. Alf. Stevens, Burgessville, Oxford county, Ont., writes:—

"Two years ago last November I was run down, and did not kow what was wrong. I could not sleep or eat, and at last my nervous system gave way entirely, and I had to go to bed. The doctor told me that I had nervous prostration, and, though he doctored me for some weeks, I did not get any better.

"I then began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by the time I had used six boxes I was completely cured. People remarked how well I looked, and I said, 'Yes, and I feel well, that the best of it, and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did it.'"

"Twenty years ago," said Dr. Weir Mitchell, the great American authority on disease of the nerves, "the treatment of diseases was the highest medical ideal. Now the highest ideal is prevention of disease."

In the front ranks of preventives must be placed Dr. Chase's Nerve Food because it works on the principle of increasing the quantity of rich blood and nerve force in the body and thereby keeping vitality at the high water mark.

This is the only way in which nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia paralysis and many less dreaded diseases can be prevented of cured, and cure of such ailments when once they are thoroughly established means long weeks and months of persistent treatment.

The old saying that "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is nowhere so applicable as in diseases of the nerves, and there never was so effective a preventive as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This is being proven every day in thousands of cases. 50 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

THE HOCHELAGA HORROR

Rev. Dr. Crothers Refers to the Heroism of Miss Maxwell.

In George street church yesterday morning the pastor, Rev. Dr. Crothers referred, during the course of his sermon, to the bravery and heroism of Miss Maxwell, the teacher in the Hochelaga School, Montreal, who sacrificed her own life, in endeavoring to prevent the pupils in the kindergarten department from being suffocated. The speaker referred in the highest terms to the noble spirit and devotion of Miss Maxwell and said that her name was worthy of the highest place among heroines who had yielded up their own lives to save those of others.

Baseball Fans Are Getting Ready

Annual Meeting of Midland League on Good Friday

The local baseball enthusiasts are beginning to talk baseball now and a strong team will likely be placed in the Midland League this year. The annual meeting of the League will be held on Good Friday, but where it will be held has not yet been decided. There are six teams which will likely play in the league this year. These are Peterborough, Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Oshawa and Bowmanville.

The Peterborough team will be greatly strengthened this season by a strong battery. Corney Burns and Harry Burridge, who have been working in the city for some time past, will be the battery on the local team this coming season.

Some Notes of Big Struggle

Great Press Game is Arousing Much Interest

With Uncle Josh Spruceby at the Grand opera house, and Uncle Josh Craig performing at the skating rink, Peterborough will have two great shows this week.

Manager F. Corntassels Craig sent his team away for a ten mile run yesterday afternoon. Up to the time of going to press they had not returned, which speaks well for their speed.

The Examiner hockey team will put on a burlesque at the Brock street rink between five and six o'clock tonight. Jim Clarke will take one of the heavy roles, while M. J. Hutchinson, as usual, will take all kinds of rolls.

Josh Craig carries the long green for the Examiner team. Birds of a feather flock together you know.

The admission to the game is only 10c. which includes skating after the match. The proceeds will go to the Children's Aid Society.

As a curtain raiser to the big press game, the Best Hardware Co. team will meet Ackerman's fast septette between seven and eight o'clock. The ten cent admission also includes admittance to this game.

Judging from the cold feet of the Examiner hockey team, someone must have passed them the ice pitcher.

The Review has just put in a large supply of lime juice which it will administer in generous quantities to the Grit hockey outfit on Thursday night.

Even "the saucy little bird on Mary's hat" predicts a victory for the Review. The Mary referred to is not "Knocker" Theobald's friend as many might suppose.

The night watchman paused in front of the Examiner office. It was the midnight hour and all was still, save for the sounds of sweet music which leaked out through the crevice under the door. Investigation found M. J. Hutchinson standing on a soap box in the basement rehearsing a new song. He had managed to get the airs with the aid of a pitchfork, which he struck gently on his iron constitution to get the necessary sounds. The chorus that sneaked out upon the night was as follows,—

Just there upon the Brock street ice sheet,
Not far away.
Dere's where de ice am keen and shiny,
Dat's where we's going to play.

All de team is slow and rusty,
Everyone, dat's true.
Oh, Mary, how my heart grows weary,
Gee, what a dismal view.

Mr. Hutchinson will render this pleading bass solo at half time on Thursday night.

Many Peterborough People Will go West This Spring

Farmers are Selling Out and Making Preparations to Settle on the Prairies—Estimated That at Least 100 Will Leave the City—Several Went To-day.

The movement from the east to the west has started already, and 1907 will see even more people from Ontario going into the wheat fields on the prairies and into western commercial life than ever. Last year Peterborough sent many of her best sons into the distant lands as she has done, in fact, for many years. These young men has been continually writing home and to friends about the success with which they have met, until the whole farming community here is worked up. Those who can so arrange have decided to sell out and move west. Others, the great majority, of course, while fairly well contented here, and have no intention of moving, are talking about the west. As a matter of fact, there are sections in Alberta and Saskatchewan, where Peterborough farmers would be just as much at home as in the old county, where they were born, so that there is every attraction for the young men and men in middle life to leave their native sod.

Real estate men report the sale of many farms this year. The reasons are varied, but foremost, is the shortage of farm help, the desire of the young men to leave home, and the old farmers have made considerable money and are retiring from active life. A new lot of men are occupying the farms of Peterborough county and soon the old residents will be in the minority. It is estimated that at least a hundred farmers from this county will go west this spring and make new homes as well as a large number from the city. Several left this morning and others will go during the week. Among those who went today are Mr. Jas. McConnal, to Winnipeg; Mr. W. T. Huntingford to Alameda, Sask., Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Bell to Calgary, and Mr. Charles James to Gainsboro. All the above travelled C.P.R. right through.

Peterborough O.H.A. Team Disbanded for the Season

But Games Have Been Arranged With Arnprior and Guelph for This Week—They Should be Fine Exhibitions.

The Peterborough O.H.A. hockey team has disbanded and a professional team is being organized in the city. Two games have been arranged for this week, Arnprior on Wednesday night, and the Guelph Nationals on Friday night. It is not likely that the Peterborough management will have to import any players to make up their pro. team. It is said that practically all the players who constituted the O.H.A. senior team will turn out with the pros. In case some of the younger players should not care to join the pro ranks, there are other good men in the city to take their places. It is likely that before the season is over, in additon to Arnprior and Guelph, the teams of Belleville, Berlin and Toronto will appear here.

The organization of a professional team here comes as no surprise. Unless this was done it meant that there would be no more hockey in Peterborough this season. There should be ice at Brock street rink for another two weeks, and no doubt some splendid games will be seen.

In all probability a professional league will be formed next winter, in which Peterborough will be represented along with Belleville, Toronto, Berlin, Guelph, Stratford, Galt, and probably several others of the larger hockey centres in Ontario.

The Arnprior team, which plays here Wednesday night, is said to be a strong aggregation, and should give the locals a close game. The easterners will likely be strengthened by a number of Ottawa men.

Strathconas vs. C. L. S. Team

Lindsay Hockeyists Will be Here on Tuesday Night

The Catholic Literary Society hockey team, of Lindsay, will play the Strathconas, champions of the City League, at the Brock street rink on Tuesday of next week. The C. L. S. has so far this season not met with a defeat. The return game will be played in Lindsay on Thursday of next week. These contests promise to be very close and should draw large crowds.

The Skips Have Been Selected

For the Peterborough-Lindsay Match on Wednesday.

The skips for the Peterborough-Lindsay cup match, which will be played on Wednesday have been selected. They are as follows,—

At Peterborough — Connal, Ray, Giroux, Brown.

At Lindsay — Matthews, Waddell, Morrow and Davidson.

Arrangements are being completed for the match, which promises to be a keenly contested one. The skips will select their own rinks and no doubt they will be strong ones.

Thomas Johnstone, of Hamilton, died recently, aged 74.

HOCKEY

ACKERMAN'S AGAIN.

Ackerman's septette scored another victory on Saturday when they defeated a team from the Brass Department of the C.G.E. Co. by 4 goals to 2. The game was played at the Brock street rink between six and seven o'clock, and was well contested. Wallie Parnell made a satisfactory referee. The winning team lined up as follows:—Goal, Elliott; point, McWha; cover point, Dobbin; rover, Loomis; centre, Robertson; right wing, Gosslin; left wing, Callaghan.

A CHALLENGE.

The Park street hockey team challenge St. Andrew's guards to a game of hockey to be played at the Brock street rink between six and seven o'clock next Saturday evening.

A BIG SURPRISE.

One of the biggest surprises of the hockey season was furnished on Saturday night when the Wanderers defeated Ottawas on their own ice by 10 goals to 6. The Wanderers thus win the championship of the Eastern Hockey League, having gone through the season without a defeat. Even Ottawa supporters had to admit that the better team won.

A FAMOUS VIKING.

Late Captain Jackman of Newfoundland Captured In His Time 552,510 Seals.

In the death, recently, of Captain Arthur Jackman, Newfoundland lost its most famous Viking.

For over forty years this mariner navigated a ship to the ice-fields off the coast of Newfoundland in quest of seals. Some of the adventures in which he was the hero are amongst the most thrilling incidents in marine annals.

His name is a household word all over the island colony for his skill and daring as a mariner, and as probably the greatest and most successful captain who ever steered a ship through the frozen ocean in search of seals.

His knowledge of the coast of Newfoundland evoked universal admiration. He was able to find his way through the most dense fogs and furious tempests with amazing certainty; his record on the coastal service being marked by scarcely an accident. This year, for the first time in over forty the famous old mariner will be missing at the ice. He has gone on his last voyage; the ocean—eternity; the pilot—death.

His Sealing Career.

Captain Jackman was born in 1843 at Renews, where the first of the Jackman family settled on coming to Newfoundland from Devonshire, nearly two centuries ago. Animated by the spirit of daring and adventure characteristic of the race, he took to the sea as a pursuit, and sailed as a lad with his elder brother, the late Capt. Wm. Jackman. In 1865, at the age of 22, he was given command of a schooner at the seal-fishery, continuing to prosecute that industry until 1871, when he made his last voyage in a sailer, the Fanny Bloomer.

Appointed Master.

Then he was appointed master of the Hawk, in succession to his brother, who had been promoted to the command of the first steamer Eagle, which had then been brought out a new ship from Scotland. During the ensuing 35 years he has had command of the following sealing steamers: Hawk (six springs), Falcon (four springs), Norwhal (one spring), Resolute (six springs), Eagle, lost (seven springs), Aurora (four springs), Terra Nowa (six springs), the present Eagle (three springs).

During these 36 years he has brought into St. John's, Nfld., 552,510 seals or an average of 15,347 per year, the aggregate value being estimated to exceed $1,000,000.

During this period more than 8,000 [illegible] and he has the record of never having lost one. In the worst blizzards that desolated the floes he always contrived to pick up his crews. Some years, however, deaths have occurred to some of his men through colds, or other diseases, but in 1897, the stormiest spring in sealing annals, four of them died of diphtheria. That was the year he killed his trip off the Virgin Rocks, and was the only one of the fleet to load. He did the same again in 1905, and great was the sensation caused by his unexpected appearance after getting a trip away off the Banks.

Arrived First.

On March 21, 1876, he arrived first in the Falcon with 21,190; on March 31, 1885, in the Resolute with 34,628; on March 27, 1895, in the Aurora with 29,916, and on March 28, 1905, in the Eagle with 32,064. He also enjoyed the reputation bringing in a saving trip every year. During his career two ships were lost under him, the Hawk in 1876, and the Resolute in 1886, but the crews were saved each time. In 1886, when Bowring Bros. took the first coastal contract, with the Curlew and Plover, Capt Jackman was appointed to the command of the former ship on the west route and continued on that service for years. In 1889 he and his crew in the Plover narrowly escaped death, while on a voyage from Sydney to St. John's with a cargo of coal, and their rescue was one of the most thrilling incidents in marine annals.

His Arctic Record.

Besides his sealing voyages, Capt. Jackman was the pioneer of the Newfoundland venture in the Greenland whaling industry, and went to the Arctic seas several years. Commander Peary, the famous Arctic explorer, made his first trip there with Capt Jackman in 1886. In 1893, while on a whaling voyage, the Eagle was lost, and the story of how Captain Jackman brought his crew safely in open boats through hundreds of miles of ice-strewn seas, is equal to any in Arctic annals, and is one of the most stirring in marine history.

When the "Discovery" South Polar expedition was frozen fast in Antarctic waters, and the Admiralty bought the sealer "Terra Nova" for a relief expedition, Commodore Montgomerie, of H. M. S. Charybdis, who was entrusted with getting a ship and a commander, chose Captain Jackman.

In 1900 he went in the Kite to the relief of the American whaling station in Cumberland Sound, Baffin Land, after a sailing vessel bound there from Boston had been wrecked on Northern Labrador; and though it was very late in the season when he received orders to start, he carried out his mission with conspicuous success. His last great feat was the towing to St. John's, in the trawler Magnific shortly before Christmas, 1904, of the schooner Bessie Dodd, cast away on Labrador. Dr. Grenfell lavished unstinted praise upon him for his splendid work on that occasion.

Work of Canadian Artists.

An interesting sign of the times is the predominance of Canadian scenes and sketches in the work of Canadian artists. There was a time when our artists received all their inspiration from Europe; they were taught in European schools, and painted European landscapes, or, if by chance they sketched a Canadian scene, it was from the point of view of an Old Country man. But now all that is changed. During the last few years there has arisen a generation of men who paint Canada as it appears to them. Northern Ontario has been a very special source of inspiration to these men.

A Children's Aid Society for Welland has been projected.

The Guelph Fat Stock Club held its annual banquet Friday night.

Last Tribute of Respect Was Paid

Many Attended Funeral of the Late J. A. MacDonald.

With every evidence of respect and sorrow the remains of the late John Allan MacDonald were borne to their last resting place in Little Lake cemetery Saturday afternoon. The funeral was one of the largest that has been seen in this city for some time, many people turning out to pay their last tribute of respect to one who had endeared himself to a wide circle of friends.

A private service was held at the residence of the deceased's brother-in-law, Mr. S. Cottingham, at 2.30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of Murray street church, of which the deceased was a member. At 3 o'clock the funeral left the house. The cortege was a long one. The members of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 13, of which the late Mr. MacDonald was a member, headed the funeral procession, which proceeded to the Murray street Baptist church, where a large number had assembled for the public funeral service. Seated on the platform with the pastor of the church Rev. J. R. Webb, were Prof. P. S. Campbell, of McMaster University, and Messrs. N. T. Beeman, Pres. 1st year class; and S. M. McLay and G. MacDougall, of Toronto University Medical College.

The service was opened with the singing of a hymn, after which Rev. J. G. Potter offered prayer. Rev. Mr. Webb then read a portion of Scripture. Mr. Webb said there were others present to speak to them about the deceased, as he had not been in the city long enough to know him as others did, but as the pastor of the bereaved mother he expressed to her and family his heartfelt sympathy.

Mr. N. T. Beeman, President of the 1st year medical students' class, in a few well chosen words, on behalf of the class, expressed to the mother and sisters bereft, their sincere sympathy in the great loss they had sustained. He said they had met John A. MacDonald a few months ago, and they had learned to love and [illegible]. They keenly felt the [illegible] loss of one of their fellow scholars. He would be greatly missed in the class. Another hymn was sung, after which Prof. P. S. Campbell, of McMaster University, addressed those present. He said he was here as the representative of the faculty of McMaster, as well as the whole University. He extended his deep and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved ones. The deceased was a noble young man. It had been the speaker's privilege to be the late Mr. MacDonald's professor in Latin and Greek during the years of his brilliant course at McMaster and during that time he had a strong affection for him who had just passed away. He regarded him as a man of strong religious principles and pure ideas. He referred to a short time ago when he had been talking to the deceased and the latter was telling him of the purpose he had in view when he decided to study medicine and spoke of his plans for the future. The professor said he little thought then that he would soon be attending the funeral of the young man. The learned gentleman closed by saying we know not when we will be called away and urged those present to so live that when the time came they would be ready.

"Jesus, Lover of My Soul," was then sung and the Benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Webb. During the service Mrs. Miller sang very sweetly, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." An opportunity was given for anyone who wished to have a last look at the departed to do so. A large number availed themselves of the opportunity.

The remains were then borne from the church and the funeral proceeded to the Little Lake cemetery.

The following acted as pall bearers: Messrs. John Jordan, E. M. Best, T. Henderson, R. Mowry, J. Bucannon and Arthur Payton.

The floral offerings were numerous and of many handsome designs. Among them were a wreath from Bro. Masons, Toronto University; wreath from Phi Delta Theta, of Trinity University; wreath from Peterborough Rugby Club; compass and square from Peterborough Lodge Masons, No. 155; three links from Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 13; broken column, medical class of 1910, Toronto University; anchor, Alumni Association of McMaster University; anchor from Medical Society, and gates ajar, from family.

Practice of Cigarette Smoking Its Baneful Effects Discussed

Proposal to Introduce Bill of Prohibition Is Turned Down.

Enormous Increase In Number of Cigarettes Manufactured — Suggestion That Provinces Be Allowed to Act—Premier Opposes the Scheme—Deprecates Smoking by Boys, But Thinks Law Would Become Dead.

Ottawa, March 5.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier gently waved aside the proposal to introduce at this session of Parliament a bill to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of cigarettes when it came up for discussion in the House yesterday, saying, "Such a law would not be supported by public opinion and would become a dead letter."

Mr. Blain (Peel) started the discussion by declaring it was expedient to bring in such a bill at this session. He pleaded for the growing youth of Canada, and said statistics showed that the number of cigarettes manufactured in Canada had increased from 85,000,000 in 1896 to 270,000,000 in 1906.

Would Let Provinces Act.

A resolution declaring such legislation necessary had passed the House in 1903 by a vote of 103 to 48. A bill had been introduced, but had been routed on a technicality. A bill could not be introduced now unless preceded by this resolution.

E. M. MacDonald (Liberal, N. S.), apparently in response to a nod from the Premier, asked if Mr. Blain would not prefer a law giving to each province power to make the manufacture and sale of cigarettes criminal.

"Would such legislation be constitutional?" asked W. F. Maclean.

"I am not prepared to answer that," said Mr. MacDonald.

Premier Opposes Scheme.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not minimize the importance of the question. "Cigarette smoking is injurious," he said, "physically and mentally to the immature youth; so, indeed, is the use of tobacco in any form.

"It hardly can be maintained, however, that the use of tobacco is injurious to the majority of adults.

"Shall we prohibit cigarettes to men, because they are injurious to small boys? Then why not forbid the use of tobacco in any form?

"Nothing is more offensive to me, than to see a child smoking a cigarette. The police should stop it, parents should stop it, but Mr. Blain's proposition is too sumptuary, too drastic.
